CHANG.—THE GREAT PYCHOW GALOP. By the Composer of "Ching-a-ring-a-chaw." Illustrated by Brandard. Post 24 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE are unanimously superior to all others. The largest stock in London, from 1 to 100 guineas, at NICOLE'S, 20, Regent-street, W. WALES and MCCULLOCH, 56, Cheapside, and 1, Leadenhall, Catalogues (trade and post-free on application.

DULL EVENINGS MADE MERRY, by Acrostic and Conundrum Cards, 1s. 6d. each, of all Stationers and Booksellers.

DULL EVENINGS MADE MERRY, MINIATURE BILLIARDS, complete, from 21s.

DULL EVENINGS MADE MERRY, BAGATELLE BOARDS, complete, from 10s.

DULL EVENINGS MADE MERRY, THE GAME OF THE RACE, from 3s. to 30s.

DULL EVENINGS MADE MERRY.—An ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, post-free, ASKEW and HERBERT, 97, Strand, and 96, Oxford-street, London.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street; 67 and 72, Cornhill, London.

CHRISTMAS, 1868.—Celebrated TABLE KNIVES.

CHRISTMAS, 1868.—SPOONS and FORKS. Quality guaranteed.

CHRISTMAS, 1868.—ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE.—Tea-sets, Tea Urns, Kettles, Spirit-Frames, Cake and Cruet Baskets, Dish-covers, Fish-carving and Dessert Knives, &c., in the greatest possible variety.

CHRISTMAS, 1868.—SEASONABLE PRESENTS.—Dressing Bags, Writing Cases, Envelope Cases, Work Boxes, Dressing Cases, Tea Trays, Inkstands, Dessert Stands, Fruit Knives, Fish Carvers, Razors, Scissors, Pocket-knives, Tweezers, Pencil Cases, Tablets, Purses, Pocket-books, Portfolios, Albums, Opera Glasses, Ivory Brushes, Combs, Mirrors, Fans, Walking Sticks, Umbrellas, Parasols, and Sunshades.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of each and all Patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Fancy Articles suitable for Presents, at MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'s Manufactory and Show-rooms, 77 and 78, Oxford-street, opposite Soho, 67 and 72, Cornhill, London.

NOSOTTI'S LOOKING-GLASSES and GILT FRAMES.—Unrivalled in every variety. Accordions for Museum or curiosity new specimen. Parisian Importations from Nosotti's Manufactory, Italianate, Florentine, Louis Quinze, Gothic modern Gilt Frames, Pier Glasses, Console Tables, Cornices, 60, 59, 57a, Oxford-street, Manufactories, Dean-street, Soho, and Newman-street, Oxford-street. Established 1760.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality, Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, West Strand, one door from Trafalgar-square, S.W.

GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS, Moderator and Paraffin Table Lamps.—Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, West Strand, one door from Trafalgar-square, S.W.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, Table Glass, Dessert Services, Papier Mâché Tea Trays, Vases, and other ornaments.—CHILD, 6, Oxford-street, W.

CHILD'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, suitable for Dining-rooms, Halls, Bedrooms, and Nurseries. Also Glass Dessert Services, for 6 persons, from 40s.
CHILD, 6, Oxford-street, W.
Ornamental Glass for England and foreign markets for exportation. Moss, Export, and Manufacturing Glass Warehouse, 6, Oxford-street, London, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and show-rooms, Broad-street. Established 1807.

D. HULETT and CO.—GASELIERS in Ormolu, Bronze, and Crystal Glass. An extensive stock, for sale or hire, at moderate prices. Estimates forwarded with plans, &c.
45 and 46, MOUNT HOLBORN, W.C.

BRUNSWICK BLACK.—BRUNSWICK BLUE and GOLD, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have greatly enlarged their premises, for the purpose of carrying on the manufacture of Japanned Goods, Tinplate Work, Iron Bedsteads, and Bedding, and are now prepared with a different Suite of Rooms Furniture; there are Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, and Bedroom Furniture, at the Lowest Prices consistent with Good Articles; the whole forming, they believe, the most complete stock of Furniture in the Trade.
BRUNSWICK BLACK and BLUE and GOLD, 27, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

DEAL RED-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have made a large purchase of Deal Bedroom Furniture, which enables them to offer it to the public at a very low price, and to open it as a separate room, and Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

GOTHIC RED-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, having frequently had orders for Bedroom Furniture to correspond with the Gothic Hall and Staircase, which their manufactories have so frequently erected, have manufactured complete Bedroom Furniture in the Gothic style, and have now on show a variety of Patterns, the size of the closet and prominent features of which are the Gothic Arch and Pediment.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

IRON and BRASS BEDSTEADS.
HEAL and SON have now on Show 150 Bedsteads of Iron and Brass, fitted with the Patent Spring, in their extensive Show-rooms; and their stock consists of the Guinea Brass Bedstead, as well as every other make of Bedstead manufactured, and Heal and Son have Furniture Manufactories, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

HEAL and SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE contains 150 Illustrations, with prices attached, of Bedsteads and Bedroom Furniture, together with Bedding, Blankets, Quilts, Sheets, Counterpanes, Table Linen, Towels, Baths, Toilet Ware, and Turnery.
Heal and Son's Bedding Works, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

HEAL and SON'S BEDDING QUILTS, from 10s. to 18 guineas. Also, GOSSAMER QUILTS, from 10s. 6d. to 3 guineas. Illustrations of Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, and Bedroom Furniture, sent post-free on application to 196, Tottenham-court-road, W.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 25 and 26, Berners-street, have the pleasure to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all occupations, combining comfort with elegance.—Berners-street, W.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE, BALLS, BILLIARDS, and CO., 170, Oxford-street, have every large warerooms, with every description of serviceable Furniture, carefully selected from the best manufacturers' stocks.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, of every description, may be obtained instantly on view, or made to any order.—T. H. FILMER and SONS, 31 and 32, Berners-street, W. An Illustrated Catalogue sent free.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIRE-IRONS Every New Design always on Show.
Bronzed Fenders, 5s. 6d. to £5 5s.
Steel Fenders, with Rich Ormolu Ornaments, 8s. to £8s.
Bright Steel and Ormolu, 6s. to £8s.
Bronzed Fire-irons, 2s. 6d. to £2 2s.
Bright Steel Fire-irons, 3s. 6d. to £3 3s.
Improved Coal-vases, 4s. 6d. to £5 5s.
Chimney-pieces, 10s. 6d. to £5 5s.
Catalogues, containing 70 Engravings and Prices, gratis, or sent free by post.—SLACKS, 336, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER, by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, contains the largest, most magnificent, and most economical STOCK in existence of the Sheffield Plate of his celebrated Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate. Richest Silver, and Or-molu Dessert Services. Tea and Coffee Services, Waiters, Candlesticks, Candelabra, Chimney-piece Ornaments, Tea Trays, Urns and Kettles, Cutlery, Fenders, Fire-irons, Stoves, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers, Tables, Bedsteads, Bedding, Mattresses, Blankets, Quilts, Sheets, Counterpanes, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the Twenty Large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1a, 2, 3, Newman-street; and 4, 5, 6, Perry's-place. Established A.D. 1820.

KAMPTULICON.
Plain, 5s. 6d. per square yard.
Printed, 7s. 6d. per square yard.
T. REDLAR, Manufacturer, 57, Lodge-hill.

SAFETY for STREET DOORS.—CHUBBS' PATENT LATCHES, with small and neat keys, moderate prices; Chubbs' Fatent Safes, all sizes; and Chubbs' Cash Boxes for every purpose.—Chubb and Son, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The PEOPLE'S PRINTING-PRESS, price from 10s., upwards, for Printing Cards, Programmes, Circulars, &c. Prospectus, "Art of Printing," &c., of 12 stamps each.—B. G. REED, Manufacturer and Engraver to her Majesty's Post Office, 91, High Holborn, London, W.C.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much resembles in age, colour, and flavour the celebrated Amontillado Sherry, but possesses more delicacy of flavour. Price 24s. per dozen. Sherry, 18s., 20s., 24s., 30s., 36s. Port, 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s. Champagne, 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s., 66s., 72s. Hock, 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s., 66s., 72s. Claret, 18s., 20s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s. Liqueurs of the finest quality. Cash only. Terms strictly adhered to. A. DOU, 67, Strand.

PALE DINNER SHERRY, 24s., 30s., 36s.; superior quality, 42s., 48s., 54s., and 60s.; pale and rich Amontillado, 66s., 72s., 78s., 84s., 90s., and upwards; Vintage Port, 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s., 66s., 72s., 78s., 84s., 90s., and upwards; Champagne, Hock, Claret, Burgundy, Liqueurs, &c., all of undoubted purity. Cash only. Manager's Receipt to accompany all orders. Price-lists forwarded on application to R. and W. CRISTIE, 19 and 20, Panton-street, Haymarket, S.W.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY. DUBLIN DISTILLERY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky obtained the Dublin Prize Medal. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bond, at 16s. per gallon, or 36s. per dozen, by the wine merchants in the United Kingdom. Wholesale only of the proprietors, 20, Great George-street, Dublin. Wholesale agents for London, W. Gilbey's, 351, Oxford-street, 2, Duke-street, St. James's, and 109, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

ALLSOPP'S PALE and BURTON ALES. The above Ales are now being supplied in the finest condition, both in bottle and cask, by the Allsopp Agents in the principal towns of the United Kingdom. Pale Ale and Burton Ale Extract, Export Bottled and Duty-paid Wine and Spirit Stores, Royal Exchange, E.C., and from their Branch Stores, 61, Piccadilly, and 61, Pall-mall, S.W.

PEPSINE. MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE. MORSON'S PEPSINE LOZENGES, are perfectly palatable forms for administering this well-known and popular remedy for weak digestion. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31, 33, and 124, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C.

Pepsine Wine, 4s. 6d., 9s., 18s., and 36s. per bottle.
Lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. each.

MENIER'S CHOCOLATE FRENCH, Prize Medal, 1862, obtained at the International Exhibition, is of unsurpassed excellence. The annual consumption exceeds now 7,000,000 lb.
Medals awarded in 1851, 1855, 1862, 1867.
New Chocolate Factory, Menier, Seine-et-Marne, 1863.
London Exhibition, 1851. Dublin Exhibition, 1853.
"Menier's Chocolate is extremely good."—Westminster Review, October, 1867.

THE ONLY GENUINE FRENCH CHOCOLATE. Sold in Packets and Boxes in the United Kingdom.
CHOCOLAT MENIER, FRENCH, THE BEST ALIMENT FOR BREAKFAST.
Packets—1 lb., 1s. 6d.; ½ lb., 9d.; ¼ lb., 5d.
Chemists { Plain ... ... 2s. 6d.
Flow ... ... 3s. 6d.
Vanilla ... ... 4s. 6d.
Cream Wrapper ... ... 2s. 6d. per lb.
Lilac ... ... 3s. 6d. „
Bronze... ... ... 4s. 6d. „
Gold ... ... 5s. „
Sold, in 5-lb. packets, by all respectable Grocers.
Warehouse, 39, Hamilton-street, Strand.

EXCELLENT QUALITY of CHOCOLATE. The Chocolate so highly extolled by Dr. J. M. Duff Gibson, M.D., for "Emotional quality of Chocolate," The Jury adding, "This Chocolate of Messrs. Cadbury and Sons is a very pure confection."
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

Medals, London, 1851 and 1862; New York, Paris, and Dublin.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE PASTE is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being extremely wholesome, is valuable for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.
Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS, an extremely delicious confection, are rapidly increasing in public favour.

STILTON CHEESE IN PERFECTION. Wine is the true test of Stilton Cheese.
THE STILTON CHEESE CO. (Limited),
Choice of Dairyfields,
CLAY, Knutsford.

BROWN and POLSON'S PATENT CORN FLOUR.
Recommended for Children's Diet.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-SALVE: it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or excessive reading. Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d., by Messrs. Oxford-street; Frost, Bristol; Potter, Chippenham; Hooper, Lombard-street.

WHY SUFFER RHEUMATISM, Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Deafness, or Weak Limbs, when ALCOCK'S UNIVERSAL EMBROCATION, extremely applied, is an infallible remedy. Sold at 1s. 1½, 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per bottle. Observe the name.

TOOTHACHE.—This distressing complaint is instantly relieved and all further decay of the teeth prevented by DWEDNEY'S TOOTHACHE BALSAM. Sold over sheets, three-pence each; by post for a penny stamp extra. Directions, which may be taken with perfect safety, and has cured thousands of cases without fail. Sold by all Chemists. Prepared only at Dudley's Laboratory, 15, 19½, and 24, Wood-street.

TOOTHACHE.

TOOTHACHE is INSTANTLY CURED and the Tooth rendered sound for years by the use of ALEXANDER'S ODONTALGIC PASTE. Sold by all Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per box. Sent by post for 15 stamps, from J. B. COOPER, Manchester.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an effervescing aperient for Heat and Sickness, Bilious Affections, Indigestion, and a mild aperient for infants constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London, and all Chemists.

DR. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed the most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, DISEASES OF THE LUNGS, CONSUMPTIVE COUGHS, ASTHMA, RICKETS, and INFANTILE DISORDERS. Universally recognised by the highest Medical authorities to be THE ONLY COD-LIVER OIL
Of uniform Purity, Activity, and Efficacy.
PALATABLE AND EASILY TAKEN.

Dr. LETHEBY, Medical Officer of Health, and Chief Analyst to the City of London, reports:—"I find your Cod-Liver Oil perfectly pure, and of very superior quality. Cod-Liver Oil possessing the same set of properties, among which the presence of certain principles in minute quantities is a state of organic combination, are the only remedies of any value. I have found Dr. de Jongh's Oil to contain all these principles in a high degree. I consider the Cod-Liver Oil sold under your guarantee to be preferable to any other kind as regards pre-eminence and medicinal efficacy."
IMPERIAL HALF PINTS, 2s. 6d.; PINTS, 4s. 6d.; QUARTS, 8s. 6d.
Sold only in capsuled bottles, labelled with my name, by respectable Chemists.
SOLE CONSIGNEE,
ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

COUGHS and COLDS are INSTANTLY RELIEVED by Dr. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS. They have a pleasant taste.
Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box; of all Druggists.

COCKLE'S ANTIBILIOUS PILLS are a mild but effectual Aperient and Purifier of the Blood. Prepared only by Crosby and Co., 79, Strand. Sold by Chemists throughout the United Kingdom, in boxes at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 11s.

NEURALGIA, Nervous Headache, and Sleeplessness.—Sufferers from these distressing complaints are recommended to try DR. ROOKWOOD'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES and COMBS. They receive no preparation, are always ready for use, and cannot get out of order. Hair-brushes, 10s. 6d.; nerve-brush, 5s.; tic, 10s. 6d.; comb, 5s.; and fine-tooth comb, 5s. 6d. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, and wholesale of the Patentees, Barclay, Sons, and Farmer, Farringdon-street, E.C.; and 95 and 97, City-road, E.C.

COMFORTS FOR INVALIDS. Jos. Nix, Sailor Hatter.

ONE HUNDRED PIECES OF
BLACK SILKS,
with stripe down each (both sides alike),
at 2s. 6d. Full Dress of 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

SPECIALLY PREPARED
FOR WEDDING and EVENING COSTUME.
Fine and Fancy Silks, in the most beautiful Colours, from 3 to 5 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

IRISH POPLINS,
of the wear of which cannot be surpassed, 23 10s. 6d., 24 4s. 6d., 24 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
LYONS SILK VELVETS, for Mantles, Trimmings, &c.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ENGLISH AND FRENCH ANTIQUES.
SPECIAL.—50 PIECES OF NEW FANCY CHECK SILKS, all of which are warranted, 2 guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR VISITING AND EVENING WEAR.
RICH SILK GRENADINES.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Several Manufacturers' Stocks of the above article.
The whole Collection may be inspected at our Oxford-street premises, and now being sold on three leading principles of business, viz., Ready Money, Three Months' Credit, or Hire System.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A NEW FABRIC FOR WARM WINTER DRESSES.
RUSSIAN SILK LINSEYS,
in a large Collection of the newest Colourings.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

REAL YEDDO POPLIN,
manufactured of the finest Silk and Wool, in the new Colourings, for Evening Costume, combining all the durability of French Merinos, but with a more refined appearance and a far more elegant drape.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE ENGLISH LADIES' CHOICE OF TARTAN BALL DRESSES,
in all Novelties of the Season, 1868, 1869, 1870.
These Dresses can be had in Black, White, and all Colours.
Also a New Tartan, with the Cross-Bands Diagonal Instead of Perpendicular, as in the Old Tartans.
Patterns sent free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

White Grenadine and Book Muslins, for BRIDE'S and BRIDESMAIDS' DRESSES, in Striped, Plain, or Brocaded, 9s. 9d. to 14s. 6d. Dress.
Patterns and Illustrations free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A SUPERIOR QUALITY, KNOWN AS
"ROYAL" ABERDEEN WINCEY,
is especially recommended for Country Wear.
32s. to 35s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very useful Qualities, 21s., 24s., 28s., 30s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WATERPROOF MANTLES for Travelling and Seaside, in various colours and sizes.
A size, measuring 1 yard long, 1 yard wide ... 21s. 6d.
A size, measuring 1 yard long, 1½ yard wide ... 25s. 6d.
A size, measuring 1 yard long, 2 yards wide ... 31s. 6d.
Or with Cape, as equally low prices.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

REAL SEAL-FUR PALETOTS,
30 in. deep, 6½ guineas. 32 in. deep, 7 guineas.
34 in. deep, 7½ guineas. 36 in. deep, 8 guineas.
38 in. deep, 10 guineas. 40 in. deep, 12 guineas.
A very large stock to select from.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

VELVET MANTLES.—A perfectly New and beautifully-assorted Stock of Velvet Mantles and Jackets, from 1 guinea to 10 guineas.
The New Jacket, with Sleeves, 1 guinea.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WOOL SHAWLS
in every size and under regular prices.
Patterns and Illustrations free.—PETER ROBINSON has had offered to him a quantity of New Wool Shawls, the Manufacturer at present not having Agents.
These Robinson is, therefore, enabled to offer at 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., and 8s. 9d. those which were 5 guineas.
103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, Oxford-street, W.

OPERA CLOAKS.
Robe du Bal.
The Jupon of this Season is
THE KARNAC.
Opera Shawls, Opera Hoods, and Opera Dresses.
Patterns and Illustrations free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.
Also, Ladies' Cloth Costumes, Cloth Jackets, &c.

£10000 WORTH of the CHEAPEST DRESSES in London.
Beautiful Brocaded Poplins, Checked Poplins, Evening, Dancing, or Wedding Wear, 21 10s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

BLACK SILKS EXTRAORDINARY.
Rich, Rustling, Full-Dress Quality, Warranted, 2 guineas.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES, 2s., SENT POST-FREE.
Ladies are requested to write for Patterns of this Glove, which is 1 button length, 2s. 6d. per pair, 3½ do., 3s. 6d. per pair. Lace length, 3s. 6d. The very best Kid Glove ever sold at the price. Patterns free. Address for Ladies or Gentlemen. Free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL COURT MOIRE ANTIQUES
in all very Fine Coloured Silks, at 3½ 17s. 6d. Full Dress.
will wear and Shine for Years. Patterns dyeing at 11 guineas.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW SILK GAZE DE CHAMBRAYS,
for Evening Wedding, and Dinner Dresses, made expressly for BAKER and CRISP, in all the New Colourings, at 1 guinea, or for Morning, 18s. 9d. Full Dress.—198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S DRESSES, 63s.—Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP are now selling Beautiful Evening Dresses, in Tarlatan, Tarlatine, Grenadine, Organdie, Muslin, Watted Book-muslins, Tissues, Pearl de Soies, Blanc, White, and Coloured Crapes, Lace Flounces, Lace Dresses, Lace Mantles, Lace wear, dress, &c., at the lowest possible prices.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE MOST LADYLIKE DRESSES of the day are made of the Fine Cashmere Wools, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d. per yard, and are the Dress for evening and evening wear.
Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GREAT BARGAINS for CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—500 good, cheap, and useful DRESSES, the Full Dress of 14 yards, 7s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 18s. 6d. Full Dress.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

A FINE as the HUMAN HAIR, three for 1s., in all Colours, Invisible HAIR-NETS, post-free for 14 stamps. Beautiful Crimping Pins, 6d. per box. Sent free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE CHRISTMAS SALE of Ladies' and Gentlemen's CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS (slightly soiled), is now commencing at the Manufacturers' Warehouse, 490, Oxford-street, now selling for 6d., 12s., and 4 guineas the dozen. Patterns free.—RAILTON and CO.

GREAT SALE of LYONS and PARIS VELVETS (Nouvelle de Soubiax) at 3s. 6d. per yard, during the month, upwards of 15,000 rich Lyons and Paris Velvets, in every colour, including Black, White, and Coloured Velvets for Dresses. The above-named Velvets have been purchased in Lyons and Paris under very advantageous circumstances, and will be sold at the above price for one month only, and will command a speedy sale, ranging from 5 guineas to 12 guineas per Full Dress, without exception.
JOHNSON HOUSE,
Fetch-street and Old Compton-street, Soho-square.

STAYS, Crinolines, Baby-Linen, Juvenile and Ladies' General Outfitting Warehouse. Wholesale and Retail. From the immense stock of the above Establishment Wedding and India Outfits can be executed.
THOMSON'S, 75, Oxford-street, Corner of Rathbone-place, Oxford-street.

REAL SEAL FUR JACKETS, and other Fur Goods, Fur Trimmings, Fur Robes, Fur Pelerines, or POST and PLASTRON, a Victorine-piece, Full-sized.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net and Tulle Robes. 2½ Yards last specially prepared in Paris for this season a variety of Black Evening Dresses, which they can now be supplied with at present, ready for their entrance of fashion and economy in price.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

WINTER MANTLES.—Messrs. JAY having made a great reduction in the price of their surplus stock of French printed Velvet and other Mantles, beg to intimate this fact as affording a most favourable opportunity for purchasing those this season and next at less than their original cost.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

NEW HALF-MOURNING DRESSES for the winter.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Nos. 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

BLACK CORDED SILKS,
at 3½ per yard.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Nos. 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

DRAP DE SUISSE,
one of the best Black Materials manufactured for Lolling Mourning Costume.
Patterns and Prices of Dresses, Bonnets, and Millinery sent free.
For elegance, no other article can compete with it.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Nos. 247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.
Purchasers will find to call upon the greatest possible advantages in buying BLACK SILKS of either the richest quality or those of a more moderate character in price.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

FASHIONS.—NEW BONNETS.—"Marie Antoinette," a charming Bonnet, the Trimmings of which have invented many rivals to this unique specimen of a lady's head-dress.—JAY'S, the London General Mourning Warehouse, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

SILK SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
Patterns post-free.
Rich Black Glacé, Gros Grain, Gros de Suez, 3s. 6d., 4s. 3d., worth considerably more; 40 inches wide, 5s. 11d., per yard, worth 7s., 7s. 6d., and 8s. 6d.
Rich Black Glacé, Gros de Suez, 5s. 11d. per yard; worth 8s. per yard.
Autumn Colours in rich Gros de Suez, 21 10s. for 12 yards.
Rich Black Gros de Suez, 21 10s. for 12 yards, worth 25.
Rich Black Gros de Suez, 21 15s. for 12 yards.
Wide-width Gros Glacés, the new Colours, at 2s. 6d. 3s. 6d. the Dress for Young Ladies.
Silk Velvets, Velvet, and Terry, in all the New Colours for the season.
PETER ROBINSON & CO., 72 and 73, St. Paul's-churchyard, E.C.

NEW HEATHER MIXTURES IN ABERDEEN WINCEYS.
A large stock of the Manufacturer's, especially for us, in all choice colourings, Grey, Green, Brown, and Crimson, prices 9d., 9½d., 10½d., very best 1s. 2d.
A large assortment of Fancy Checks for 2 yards; worth 8s. per yard.
Fashionable colours, prices 10½d., 1s. 2d., and 1s. 6d.
A choice and large assortment of Plaids, 1s. 2d., 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d.
A choice assortment of Silkette, Gloves, Hosiery, Trimmings, Ribbons, Laces, &c.
Deeper, Broadcloths, Meltons, Beavers, supplied with and without at trade price.
Close on Saturday at four o'Clock.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., 57 and 58, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

SANSPLEUM CRINOLINES,
1s. 6d. and 1s. 9d.
Sold in 1 yards or 2 yards.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
"Very light."—Queen.
"Very flexible."—Lady's Newspaper.

THE POMPADOUR CRINOLINE.
This Skirt, from its graceful shape, is the favourite of the most graceful figures ever introduced. When on the figure it falls in the most graceful folds, and is the only Skirt that can be worn in plain or draped dresses, and is the only Skirt to show drapery and rich folds in which artists so much delight. Price 10s.
THOMSON'S, 75, Oxford-street, Corner of Rathbone-place.

THOMSON'S CRINOLINES, the new shape, 18s. 6d.
Sold in 1 yards or 2 yards.
ADDLEY BOURNE'S, Manufactory.

FAMILY MOURNING—MADE UP, fitted to the most correct and approved taste—may be obtained, ready for instant wear, or can be purchased by the yard at the most reasonable prices.
JAMES SPENCE and CO.,
Family Mourning Warehouse, 57 and 58, St. Paul's-churchyard.
Goods are sent for selection "free of charge" to all parts of London, Country, or Abroad.
Patterns of the New Materials for Mourning, and the Imperial "Proprietary Crape" to all parts of the World.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
57 and 58, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.
N.B. In consequence of the Great Establishment of Oxford-st.

BLACK SILKS.—SPECIAL NOTICE.
PETER ROBINSON, Regent-street,
Would invite the attention of Ladies requiring Rich Black Silks
to the superior Make and Quality of his Black Silks, and the very reasonable prices at which they are sold.
Good, useful Black Silks, from 2s. 6d. to 3½, the Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, Gros de Suez, and Gros Glacés.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, Regent-street.
THE COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

THE NEW REVERSIBLE FABRICS in (Tangly silks on both sides), for Ball and Evening Costume.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON,
The General Manufacturer,
the last named Fabric is the production of Manilla, being especially made 2 yards wide.
The above are the most elegant and the most useful Dresses in the Season for Parties.
For Patterns write to PETER ROBINSON'S
Regent-street Warehouse.

BLACK NET EVENING DRESSES.
An elegant variety of entirely New Designs in Bodices, Skirts, and Trimmings, from 2 guineas to 10 guineas.
Also a Collection of Black Lace Dresses, suitable for use all Morning.
Open Cloaks, Mantles, Grenadines, Barèges, Cameron, &c.
Patterns and Illustrations free.
At PETER ROBINSON'S,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
103 to 108, Regent-street, W.

INDIA SHAWLS. Large Consignments. PALMER and ROGERS request attention to a magnificent Collection of INDIA SHAWLS, in the following Descriptions:—
India; amongst them are some beautiful specimens, suitable for Wedding Presents, at prices from 5 guineas to 100 guineas.
PALMER and ROGERS, 170, Regent-street.

FASHIONS for the SEASON.—PARMER and ROGERS have pleasure in announcing the following novelties, now received expressly for their Firm:—
THE NEW ROBE DE CHAMBRE ... ... 42s.
THE POMPADOUR CLOTH COAT, Trimmed ... 42s.
THE NEW CLOTH CLOAK ... ... 42s.
THE NEW CLOTH CLOAK, Trimmed Fur ... ... 63s.
THE NEW SERGE CLOTH OPERA CLOAK and JACKET.
THE NEW CLOTH JACKET, Trimmed Fur, Velvet, and Satin Ribbon; Every Style would be sold to suit the purchaser.
PALMER and ROGERS, 170, Regent-street.

SILK SKIRTS (Jupons de Soubiax) at 3s. 6d., yard wide, selling everywhere at 4s. 6d., with the Velvet Bands to match. The Skirts are Bordered, Gathered, and Finished for Trimming or evening wear. Ladies' need for patterns.
HAYNES and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

FRENCH MERINOS in all the Brilliant Colours, at 2s. per yard. Double width. Fine and soft wool being essential to the dyeing of bright and durable colours, the Public are invited to inspect these Goods, which are unequalled for brilliancy. Every Style would be sold to suit the purchaser.
HAYNES and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

REAL ABERDEEN WINSEYS.—The manufacturer informs us that he can now execute orders to the price of this useful article. Those who have used it will find it the most durable and economical piece goods ever introduced.
HAYNES and CO., LAMBETH HOUSE, Westminster Bridge, S.

ILLICRAPP'S SEALSKIN CLOAKS.

ILLICRAPP'S ASTRACAN JACKETS.

ILLICRAPP'S VELVET MANTLES.

ILLICRAPP'S CARRIAGE WRAPPERS.

ILLICRAPP'S FUR COATS.

ILLICRAPP'S VESTS for HUNTING.

ILLICRAPP'S DRIVING GLOVES.

ILLICRAPP.—SKINS DRESSED.

ILLICRAPP.—SKINS MOUNTED.

ILLICRAPP, Furrier by Appointment to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, No. 2, Sackville-street, W.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
By appointment to her Majesty the Queen, and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 118, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.,
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Waterproof Shooting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, Scarfs, Hosiery, Gloves, Ribbons, and Lisney Woollens, for Indoor Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

G. POLAND and SON, 65, FUR MANUFACTURERS, 65, Oxford-street. The oldest established in London. Rich Fur Sets and Furnishings for Ladies' Costume. Sealskin Jackets, Velvet Mantles, Fur Trimmings, Muffs, Boas, Capes, Collarettes, Gauntlets, and Gloves. All Furs sold in this establishment as Natural Colour are warranted unchanged by dyeing.

SHETLAND OPERA MANTLES.
In this Novelty in every Colour, large size, very warm, weighing only 4 oz., 21 1s. 6d. each.
10, 12, 16, 61, 63, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

NEW FRENCH FANCY SILKS, from 2½ to 3½ guineas the Dress, a most desirable assortment to select from.
Patterns forwarded free.
GARNER and SONS,
10, 12, 16, 61, 63, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

REAL SEALSKIN JACKETS, 5½ gns. each, Trimmed Fur, 6½ gns. each, Trimmed Velvet, 7½ gns. each, Trimmed Lace, 8½ gns. each.
Patterns of Material, with Illustrations, forwarded free.
GARNER and SONS,
10, 12, 16, 61, 63, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

BEST SEASKINS, at moderate prices, for Hat Brim, Cuffs, Muffs, Boas, Capes, Trimmings, &c.
All other Skins in proportion.
GARNER and SONS,
10, 12, 16, 61, 63, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADE-UP SKIRTS, FANCY DRESSES, SUITS, &c., in every possible variety of New Material.
Patterns forwarded free.
GARNER and SONS,
10, 12, 16, 61, 63, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

SILKS, MANTLES, SHAWLS.
Black Silks, 21 5s. to 3 guineas the Full Dress (14 yards).
Rich Autumn Silks, 21 5s. to 3 guineas the Full Dress (14 yards).
Patterns post-free.
Velvet Jackets, lined throughout with silk, and quilted, 3 guineas.
Rich Velvet Jackets, Braided and Trimmed Fur, 5 guineas.
Corded Silk Rugs, Hunting-Shawls, Wrappers.
Scotch Cloth Cloaks, Tweed Cloaks, Waterproofs.
CARTER BROTHERS, 7, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square.
Nearly Opposite the Queen's Concert Rooms.

FAVOURABLE PROSPECTS FOR THE COMING WINTER.
In the face of a shrinking Foreign Trade, Flannels, and other manufactures of Yorkshire, are rapidly rising in public favour, as shown by timely application to ATKINSON and CO.
Patterns and prices of goods in the interest of Charitable Institutions.
ATKINSON and Co.,
198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

REAL SCOTCH WINSEYS, MANUFACTURED for ATKINSON and CO., by an old-established firm of Scotch Manufacturers. and embracing every variety of style and every shade of colour.
Prices per yard, 9½d., 10½d., 11½d., 1s., 1s. 2d., 1s. 4d., 1s. 6d., 1s. 8d., 1s. 10d., 2s., 2s. 2d., 2s. 4d., 2s. 6d.
Patterns on application, or per post.
ATKINSON and Co.,
198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

ATKINSON and CO.,
Caledonians, Carpet Warehousemen, Upholsterers, and Linen Drapers,
FURNITURE.
Drawing-room Suites, Dining-room Suites, Couches, Overmantels, Chimney-glasses, Pier-glasses, Cornices, &c.
A large stock of Bold and Marqueterie Cabinets, in sizes from 3 to 10 feet.
Bedsteads, Bedding, Feather Beds, Mattresses, Blankets, Sheets, and Patent Furniture, in every colour. All Bedding made on the premises under personal supervision.
CARPETS.
Turkey, Velvet, and Brussels, Kidder, and Felts.
Oilcloths, Linoleums, Floor Felts,
all every description. Damask, Rep, and Plain Cretes, with every article necessary for the furnishing of a house.
A very large stock of Rugs, Mats, Hearthrugs, Hearthstones, Hassocks, Hollond Linens, &c.
"The wardrobe or bedroom."—Messrs. Atkinson and Co. Messrs. Atkinson and Co. have a large and well-selected stock of furniture especially given to rooms well-known Worthy of Inspection.
ATKINSON and Co.,
198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

ATKINSON and CO.
Caledonians, Carpet Warehousemen, Upholsterers, and Linen Drapers,
FURNITURE.
Drawing-room Suites, Dining-room Suites, Couches, Overmantels, Chimney-glasses, Pier-glasses, Cornices, &c.
A large stock of Bold and Marqueterie Cabinets, in sizes from 3 to 10 feet.
Bedsteads, Bedding, Feather Beds, Mattresses, Blankets, Sheets, and Patent Furniture, in every colour. All Bedding made on the premises under personal supervision.
CARPETS.
Turkey, Velvet, and Brussels, Kidder, and Felts.
Oilcloths, Linoleums, Floor Felts,
all every description. Damask, Rep, and Plain Cretes, with every article necessary for the furnishing of a house.
A very large stock of Rugs, Mats, Hearthrugs, Hearthstones, Hassocks, Hollond Linens, &c.
"The wardrobe or bedroom."—Messrs. Atkinson and Co. Messrs. Atkinson and Co. have a large and well-selected stock of furniture especially given to rooms well-known Worthy of Inspection.
ATKINSON and Co.,
198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

GRETONNES, and other FRENCH CHINTZES, in all the New Patterns, for furnishing, direct from the Manufacturers, Prosper Legris, Frères, Rouen. Inspection most cordially.—A. D. SHACKS, London Cretonne Warehouse, 3, Bridge-street, Westminster, and 4, Great George-street, and Edmund-place.

SILK DAMASKS, BROCATELLES, LAMPASETTES, and all the New Materials for Curtains, Draperies, Portières, Screens, &c., direct from the Manufacturers, Prosper Legris, Frères, Rouen. Inspection most cordially.—CURTAIN WAREHOUSE, 3, Bridge-street, Westminster, and 4, Great George-street, and Edmund-place.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE, 1, WALSH and SONS, 2 and 4, Orange-street; and 63 and 65, Haymarket, Carpets, Floorcloths, Rugs, Mats, Bedding, Feather Beds, Indian Velvet Pile, Brussels Carpets, &c.; Curtains, Furniture, &c.

NOTICE.—Professor BROWNE respectfully informs the Public that the Exhibition of Models of Heads, illustrative of the Science of Phrenology, is open for the inspection of the public, at the usual hours, during the present holidays, at the well-known Establishment, 47, Fenchurch-street, City. Material and systematic illustrated of the first month. For self-examination see "Punch," that bruised by machinery.

CHOLERA.—DIXON and CALVERT'S Patent Anti-Epidemic and Anti-Miasmatic Solution (ADMIRALTY SALTS) should be worn by all. As a preventive and remedy it is unequalled. Sold by Chemists, Grocers, and all respectable Druggists.—9, Dean, Manchester Buildings, London.

TO MOTHERS and INVALIDS.—ELAM'S ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS for Debility, Corpulency, &c., are recommended confidently. 23, 24, and 25, Berners-st., Oxford-st.

NEW MUSIC.

A NEW QUADRILLE BY DALBERT.

SICILY QUADRILLE. A new and charming Quadrille on SICILIAN AIRS. Played at Ascher's Concerts with the greatest possible success. A capital substitute to his celebrated "Corso" and "Palermo." Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW WALTZ BY DALBERT.

TWILIGHT DREAMS. A new Waltz, and one of the prettiest ever written by that celebrated Composer. Price 4s. Septet, 3s. Illustrated. Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HILDA WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, late Conductor of the Scots Fusilier Guards and Mabel Waltzes. Played every evening at Ashley's Concerts; also with immense success by the Band of the Scots Fusilier Guards at the Crystal Palace, Brighton, and Private Concerts. Illustrated and Arranged, by permission, for the Barcelona Fortepiano de Institution. Price 4s.

"The new Waltz, 'Hilda,' by Mr. Godfrey, an evidently most fascinating composition, and we are not surprised at its success. The Band of the Scots Fusilier Guards played the accompany music most effectively."—Hilda" at Knowsley."—Liverpool Mail.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HOME, SWEET HOME. New Waltz, by HENRY FARMER. Played at the Promenade Concerts of "Home, Sweet Home." Price 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; free by post for 19 postage-stamps. Orchestra, 3s. Septet, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M., Grenadier Guards. Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, "Mabel," and, like his former waltzes, "Hilda" and "Minnie Waltz," is sure to be much played and admired by dancing folk. Price 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Brass Band, 5s. 6d.; Military Band, 5s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. By DAN GODFREY. Played with the greatest possible success at the Royal Yacht Squadron Ball, Cowes, and at Ashley's. Price 4s.; septet, 3s.; solo, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Brass Band, 5s. 6d.; Military Band, 5s.

MABEL. A Song, written by Henry Farmer, adapted to the melody of "The Maid Waits," by D. GODFREY. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TU SCENDENDI DAL CIEL. The Sacred Song, sung by Mdlle. Titiens, with Harp Obbligato by Signor Bottesini, composed by Balfe. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K UHE'S TANNHAUSSER. Fantasia on Airs from Wagner's Opera, including the celebrated March played by the Band at Ashley's Concerts. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K UHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K UHE'S WEARIN' O' THE GREEN. A Pianoforte Fantasia on the favourite song, in "Arrah-na-pogue." Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K UHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. New medley, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K UHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE BRILLIANT TRUMPETS, played at St. Peter's at Rome on Christmas and Easter Days, arranged for the Pianoforte by W. T. WRIGHTON. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

K LOSS'S LA CHARMANTE. Landler pour le Piano. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K LOSSE'S LIEBESFEE. Romance sans Paroles pour le Piano. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HAROLD THOMAS'S NEW PIECE.

ET BONDERBYLLUP.—The beautiful Bridal Song by the Italian Minstrels, arranged for Piano by Harold Thomas. Brilliant and not difficult. Price 3s. Just published.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVES. Benedict's favourite Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's favourite Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of short and easy concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of students. By BERNHARD ROMBERG. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one composed expressly for the work by the Editor. Price 1s. each, or in two volumes, each containing six numbers, and bound in cloth, price 6s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Violin and Flute. A selection of Waltzes, &c., including the "Lancers" and "Mabel," by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin and Flute, each 4s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by F. BERGMANN. Price 4s. each.
No. 1. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 4. The Hilda Waltz.
No. 2. The Royal Alfred Quadrille. | No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Grenadier Galop. | No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

I HAVE A LITTLE FAIRY BOAT. New Song. Sung by Mr. F. Bunch; composed by G. A. MACFARREN. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SUMMER DEW. Composed by GEORGE BARKER. In D and E flat. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SANTLEY'S SONGS.
THE CURE COMES FROM THEE. Song with harmonium accompaniment. Composed by GOUNOD. In E flat.
LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM. SERENADE. Sung at Ashley's Concerts. Composed by GOUNOD. In G.
THE MAID OF ORLEANS. Composed by WALLACE. In E, F, and G.
THE ZITHER CUP. Composed by ABDITI. In C, D, and E flat.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S FAIRY FOOTSTEPS. The Tenth Edition of the admired Mazurka. Entrance is just out. Price 3s.

W. WILLIAMS and CO., 123, Tottenham-court-road.

LANGTON WILLIAMS' SING ME A SCOTCH BALLAD. An Arrangement of Airs, Duet, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. Price 4s.

W. WILLIAMS and CO., 123, Tottenham-court-road.

LANGTON WILLIAMS' SPARKLING LA CASCADE. Mazurka Brillante. "It will excel in popularity its celebrated 'Fairy Footsteps'."—T.T.—T.

W. WILLIAMS and CO., 123, Tottenham-court-road.

LANGTON WILLIAMS' WOOD-NYMPHS' LA CHASSE. Gavotte. Sung by Miss Poole. Price 3s.

W. WILLIAMS and CO., 123, Tottenham-court-road.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music. All fullprice Music of every publisher forwarded immediately on publication in any part of the kingdom on receipt of stamps to half the price. Catalogue gratis.

ORTLEMAN and CO., 37, Baker-street, Portman-square, London.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOSEY AND CO.'S CHRISTMAS PUBLICATIONS.
All post-free from 24, Holles-street, London.

THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND. This day, in paper cover, 3s., beautifully bound in gold cloth, embossed gilt edge, 4s., or full gilt edge, 5s., or in two compositions, THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND. Edited by Fifty of the most renowned Songs, with the Original Words and Music, and Pianoforte Accompaniments by Sir JULIUS BENEDICT, Messrs. Balfe, Barnett, Benedict, Blumenthal, Bishop, Hatton, Kenney, "Queen Mary," Genn, "Belle of Erin," "My Longing is on the Sea," Pinsuti, Rodwell, Wallace, &c. Now Bond-street, W.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 2s. 6d. Ballad, composed by Miss LINDSAY, the original Mrs. Sinclair's delivered with the greatest effect with enthusiastic applause, always encored. Vide "Times," "Telegraph," &c. "A charming melody and very composed, both words and music."—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 3s. "A very graceful and effective morceau."—Queen.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS' FAVOURITE SONGS, sung nightly, at St. James's Hall—
Dwelling on the Banks of the Ohio. Price 2s.
When Johnny comes marching home. Price 2s.
Angel footsteps. Price 2s.
Little Nanny May. Price 2s.
I'm lonely since you went away. Price 2s.
Each post-free for thirteen stamps.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW AND BEAUTIFUL SONG.

THE GAIN. Written by Benedict. Price 3s. Likely to become even more popular than Cheer, Boys, Cheer, and The Ivy Green.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COMIC SONGS FOR WINTER EVENINGS—
Cadiz your-cum Cacoa. The Good-tempered Man.
Jolly Cabman.
Jolly Cad.
Ho, She, and the Postman.
Ho, Ho! What a comfy Waiter is Jim. (Adeste fidelis.)
The Pilgrim of Love.)
The Old Bachelor's Lament.
The Parlour Billiards.
The Barber's Daughter.
Wait 'till the Clouds roll by.
Won't you tell me why, Mary Jane.
Each post-free for eighteen stamps.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

I WENT A-HAWKING THRU' THE FIELDS AWAY.
EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY O, Two Charming Songs, by Benedict, fine rest with which ordinary success.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

I WENT A-HAWKING THRU' THE FIELDS AWAY.

COOTE'S EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY O. Benedict's charming Song, with Violoncello obbligato, ad lib. "This Quadrille, no doubt, will be the favourite set of this season."—Court Journal. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERSEVERANCE QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S MARION VALSE. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S GRETA QUADRILLE. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT HELLON'S.

COOTE'S ROCHES of LONDON LANCERS.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

COOTE'S LITTLE SONGBIRD VALSE. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW ALBUM OF DANCE-MUSIC. Price 10s. 6d. net. Containing a Selection of Quadrilles, Valses, Polkas, Galops, &c., by Coote, arranged for Pianoforte Solo and Duet. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O'-LINK POLKA. Arranged by COOTE. Price 3s. With the Bird-call.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A WILD, HIS STORY. An Illustrated Comic Duet by CHARLES HALL. Sent post-free for thirteen stamps. "Will be a favourite."—Court Journal. "Delightfully humorous."—Glasgow Herald. "Finest moral out."—Brentwood Monitor.
"Is clever."—Sheffield Independent.
"I think Mr. Hall's productions are quite worthy of notice."—Vide Antic Magazine. "This song ought to become a favourite."—Vide Bell's Life.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

GANZ'S NIGHTINGALE'S TRILL. Composed expressly for Mme. Parepa, and sung by her at all her concerts. Price 3s. Illustrated.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S EXTRAVAGANZA for the HARMONIUM. Price 4s. Illustrated with the Popular Scissors-Grinder Air.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

BENEDICT'S NEW SONG, THE BIRD THAT FLIES ALONE. Sung with immense success by Madame Rudersdorff, also by Miss Rose Hersee. Price 3s.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S VALSE DE FASCINATION. Just published. One of the most brilliant and effective Waltzes ever composed by this popular Composer. Price 4s.—ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S CHANT DES OISEAUX. Just published. A most charming and attractive piece, in the style of his celebrated "Chant du Rossignol" and "Fairy Whispers." Price 4s.—ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S MAYPOLE DANCE. Just published. A bright and thoroughly characteristic piece. Exceedingly effective. Price 4s.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S OBERON. Just published. A Fantasia on the most melodious Airs in Weber's beautiful opera, in his universally successful piano. Price 4s.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. On the universal "Dog Song" have we ere again." The most successful ballad ever sung by Miss Louisa Pyne, Mr. Santley, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Charles Lyall, and every Music-hall. Sent post-free for thirty stamps.
LONDON: ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. Sent post-free for thirty stamps. Post free for six stamps.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

A NIGHT ABOUT TOWN; or, The Streets of London. A Fantasia of all the Popular Airs of the day, arranged as a Pianoforte for Piano. By C. HUDSALL. Moderately difficult and effective. Free for 24 stamps.
D'ALCORN, 9, Bathbone-place, W.

60 POPULAR COMIC MELODIES for the VIOLIN, arranged in an easy and effective manner. Free for 30 stamps. Also same size for Solo Concertina, Cornopean, or Flute, price 10 stamps each.—D'ALCORN, 9, Bathbone-place.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOSEY and CO.'S CHURCH SERVICES. A New Edition, beautifully printed, demy 8vo, Sixpence each, post-free for Seven Stamps.
1. JACKSON, in F.
2. BOYCE and ARNOLD.
3. NARES, in E.
4. BEVAN, in E.
Holles-street and 41, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Editions, at half the publishing price, and post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted). Catalogues gratis and free.—W. Rose, Bath-street, W.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 2s. 6d. Ballad, composed by Miss LINDSAY, the original Mrs. Sinclair's delivered with the greatest effect with enthusiastic applause, always encored. Vide "Times," "Telegraph," &c. "A charming melody and very composed, both words and music."—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 3s. "A very graceful and effective morceau."—Queen.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS' FAVOURITE SONGS, sung nightly, at St. James's Hall—
Dwelling on the Banks of the Ohio. Price 2s.
When Johnny comes marching home. Price 2s.
Angel footsteps. Price 2s.
Little Nanny May. Price 2s.
I'm lonely since you went away. Price 2s.
Each post-free for thirteen stamps.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW AND BEAUTIFUL SONG.

THE GAIN. Written by Benedict. Price 3s. Likely to become even more popular than Cheer, Boys, Cheer, and The Ivy Green.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COMIC SONGS FOR WINTER EVENINGS—
Cadiz your-cum Cacoa. The Good-tempered Man.
Jolly Cabman.
Jolly Cad.
Ho, She, and the Postman.
Ho, Ho! What a comfy Waiter is Jim. (Adeste fidelis.)
The Pilgrim of Love.)
The Old Bachelor's Lament.
The Parlour Billiards.
The Barber's Daughter.
Wait 'till the Clouds roll by.
Won't you tell me why, Mary Jane.
Each post-free for eighteen stamps.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

I WENT A-HAWKING THRU' THE FIELDS AWAY.
EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY O, Two Charming Songs, by Benedict, fine rest with which ordinary success.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

I WENT A-HAWKING THRU' THE FIELDS AWAY.

COOTE'S EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY O. Benedict's charming Song, with Violoncello obbligato, ad lib. "This Quadrille, no doubt, will be the favourite set of this season."—Court Journal. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERSEVERANCE QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S MARION VALSE. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S GRETA QUADRILLE. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT HELLON'S.

COOTE'S ROCHES of LONDON LANCERS.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

COOTE'S LITTLE SONGBIRD VALSE. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW ALBUM OF DANCE-MUSIC. Price 10s. 6d. net. Containing a Selection of Quadrilles, Valses, Polkas, Galops, &c., by Coote, arranged for Pianoforte Solo and Duet. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O'-LINK POLKA. Arranged by COOTE. Price 3s. With the Bird-call.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A WILD, HIS STORY. An Illustrated Comic Duet by CHARLES HALL. Sent post-free for thirteen stamps. "Will be a favourite."—Court Journal. "Delightfully humorous."—Glasgow Herald. "Finest moral out."—Brentwood Monitor.
"Is clever."—Sheffield Independent.
"I think Mr. Hall's productions are quite worthy of notice."—Vide Antic Magazine. "This song ought to become a favourite."—Vide Bell's Life.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

GANZ'S NIGHTINGALE'S TRILL. Composed expressly for Mme. Parepa, and sung by her at all her concerts. Price 3s. Illustrated.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S EXTRAVAGANZA for the HARMONIUM. Price 4s. Illustrated with the Popular Scissors-Grinder Air.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

BENEDICT'S NEW SONG, THE BIRD THAT FLIES ALONE. Sung with immense success by Madame Rudersdorff, also by Miss Rose Hersee. Price 3s.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S VALSE DE FASCINATION. Just published. One of the most brilliant and effective Waltzes ever composed by this popular Composer. Price 4s.—ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S CHANT DES OISEAUX. Just published. A most charming and attractive piece, in the style of his celebrated "Chant du Rossignol" and "Fairy Whispers." Price 4s.—ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S MAYPOLE DANCE. Just published. A bright and thoroughly characteristic piece. Exceedingly effective. Price 4s.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S OBERON. Just published. A Fantasia on the most melodious Airs in Weber's beautiful opera, in his universally successful piano. Price 4s.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. On the universal "Dog Song" have we ere again." The most successful ballad ever sung by Miss Louisa Pyne, Mr. Santley, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Charles Lyall, and every Music-hall. Sent post-free for thirty stamps.
LONDON: ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. Sent post-free for thirty stamps. Post free for six stamps.
ADDISON and PARRY, 16, Hanover-square.

A NIGHT ABOUT TOWN; or, The Streets of London. A Fantasia of all the Popular Airs of the day, arranged as a Pianoforte for Piano. By C. HUDSALL. Moderately difficult and effective. Free for 24 stamps.
D'ALCORN, 9, Bathbone-place, W.

60 POPULAR COMIC MELODIES for the VIOLIN, arranged in an easy and effective manner. Free for 30 stamps. Also same size for Solo Concertina, Cornopean, or Flute, price 10 stamps each.—D'ALCORN, 9, Bathbone-place.

NEW MUSIC.

COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. A most lyrical set, easy, elegant, and sociable. Splendidly Illustrated. Solo, Duet, or Septet, free for 24 stamps.
D'ALCORN, Bathbone-place, London.

COOTE'S GOLDEN WAVES WALTZ. Coote's Greatest set; one of the happiest productions of this popular Composer. Illustrated. Solo, Duet, or Septet, free for 24 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Bathbone-place, W.

COOTE'S FLOWER OF THE VALE WALTZES (Sweet Lavender). Coote's best Waltzes. Not to be confounded with other pieces of the same name. Solo, Duet, or Septet, free for 24 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Bathbone-place, W.

THE LAST NEW BALLAD.

THE FOOTSTEPS ON THE STAIR. Words and Music by W. WEST. A most charming ballad. Free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Bathbone-place, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S greatest Success.—THE FOOTMAN; or, Her heart is always goes pit-pat. A Drawing-room Comic Song, with a very original Illustration. Free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Bathbone-place, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S. I vow'd that I never would leave her, for sweet is your dimpled chin. Illustrated. Free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 9, Bathbone-place, W.

Price 4s., limp cloth.

OLD ENGLISH CAROLS AND HYMNS for the merry Time of Christmas. With Introduction by R. ALLISON, Clerk of St. Sepulchre's, and Accompaniments for Pianoforte Edition, arranged for Violin and Violoncello or cornet for upper, and tenor, and bass, and Violoncello or Trombone for lower parts.
METZLER and CO., 20, 35, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

OLD ENGLISH CAROLS and HYMNS. By R. ALLISON, Clerk of St. Sepulchre's.
1. The Boar's-Head Carol.
2. The Seven Joys of the Virgin.
3. The Holly-Tree Carol.
4. The Virgin's Cradle Hymn.
5. The Virgin Mary Hymn.
6. The Babe of Bethlehem.
7. Sing.
8. Merry Christmas.
9. Sing.
10. Merry Christmas.
11. Sing.
12. Sing.
13. Sing.
14. Sing.
15. Sing.
16. Sing.
17. Sing.
18. Sing.
19. Sing.
20. Sing.
21. Sing.
22. Sing.
23. Sing.
24. Sing.
25. Sing.
26. Sing.
27. Sing.
28. Sing.
29. Sing.
30. Sing.
31. Sing.
32. Sing.
33. Sing.
34. Sing.
35. Sing.
36. Sing.
37. Sing.
38. Sing.
39. Sing.
40. Sing.
41. Sing.
42. Sing.
43. Sing.
44. Sing.
45. Sing.
46. Sing.
47. Sing.
48. Sing.
49. Sing.
50. Sing.
51. Sing.
52. Sing.
53. Sing.
54. Sing.
55. Sing.
56. Sing.
57. Sing.
58. Sing.
59. Sing.
60. Sing.
61. Sing.
62. Sing.
63. Sing.
64. Sing.
65. Sing.
66. Sing.
67. Sing.
68. Sing.
69. Sing.
70. Sing.
71. Sing.
72. Sing.
73. Sing.
74. Sing.
75. Sing.
76. Sing.
77. Sing.
78. Sing.
79. Sing.
80. Sing.
81. Sing.
82. Sing.
83. Sing.
84. Sing.
85. Sing.
86. Sing.
87. Sing.
88. Sing.
89. Sing.
90. Sing.
91. Sing.
92. Sing.
93. Sing.
94. Sing.
95. Sing.
96. Sing.
97. Sing.
98. Sing.
99. Sing.
100. Sing.
101. Sing.
102. Sing.
103. Sing.
104. Sing.
105. Sing.
106. Sing.
107. Sing.
108. Sing.
109. Sing.
110. Sing.
111. Sing.
112. Sing.
113. Sing.
114. Sing.
115. Sing.
116. Sing.
117. Sing.
118. Sing.
119. Sing.
120. Sing.
121. Sing.
122. Sing.
123. Sing.
124. Sing.
125. Sing.
126. Sing.
127. Sing.
128. Sing.
129. Sing.
130. Sing.
131. Sing.
132. Sing.
133. Sing.
134. Sing.
135. Sing.
136. Sing.
137. Sing.
138. Sing.
139. Sing.
140. Sing.
141. Sing.
142. Sing.
143. Sing.
144. Sing.
145. Sing.
146. Sing.
147. Sing.
148. Sing.
149. Sing.
150. Sing.
151. Sing.
152. Sing.
153. Sing.
154. Sing.
155. Sing.
156. Sing.
157. Sing.
158. Sing.
159. Sing.
160. Sing.
161. Sing.
162. Sing.
163. Sing.
164. Sing.
165. Sing.
166. Sing.
167. Sing.
168. Sing.
169. Sing.
170. Sing.
171. Sing.
172. Sing.
173. Sing.
174. Sing.
175. Sing.
176. Sing.
177. Sing.
178. Sing.
179. Sing.
180. Sing.
181. Sing.
182. Sing.
183. Sing.
184. Sing.
185. Sing.
186. Sing.
187. Sing.
188. Sing.
189. Sing.
190. Sing.
191. Sing.
192. Sing.
193. Sing.
194. Sing.
195. Sing.
196. Sing.
197. Sing.
198. Sing.
199. Sing.
200. Sing.
201. Sing.
202. Sing.
203. Sing.
204. Sing.
205. Sing.
206. Sing.
207. Sing.
208. Sing.
209. Sing.
210. Sing.
211. Sing.
212. Sing.
213. Sing.
214. Sing.
215. Sing.
216. Sing.
217. Sing.
218. Sing.
219. Sing.
220. Sing.
221. Sing.
222. Sing.
223. Sing.
224. Sing.
225. Sing.
226. Sing.
227. Sing.
228. Sing.
229. Sing.
230. Sing.
231. Sing.
232. Sing.
233. Sing.
234. Sing.
235. Sing.
236. Sing.
237. Sing.
238. Sing.
239. Sing.
240. Sing.
241. Sing.
242. Sing.
243. Sing.
244. Sing.
245. Sing.
246. Sing.
247. Sing.
248. Sing.
249. Sing.
250. Sing.
251. Sing.
252. Sing.
253. Sing.
254. Sing.
255. Sing.
256. Sing.
257. Sing.
258. Sing.
259. Sing.
260. Sing.
261. Sing.
262. Sing.
263. Sing.
264. Sing.
265. Sing.
266. Sing.
267. Sing.
268. Sing.
269. Sing.
270. Sing.
271. Sing.
272. Sing.
273. Sing.
274. Sing.
275. Sing.
276. Sing.
277. Sing.
278. Sing.
279. Sing.
280. Sing.
281. Sing.
282. Sing.
283. Sing.
284. Sing.
285. Sing.
286. Sing.
287. Sing.
288. Sing.
289. Sing.
290. Sing.
291. Sing.
292. Sing.
293. Sing.
294. Sing.
295. Sing.
296. Sing.
297. Sing.
298. Sing.
299. Sing.
300. Sing.
301. Sing.
302. Sing.
303. Sing.
304. Sing.
305. Sing.
306. Sing.
307. Sing.
308. Sing.
309. Sing.
310. Sing.
311. Sing.
312. Sing.
313. Sing.
314. Sing.
315. Sing.
316. Sing.
317. Sing.
318. Sing.
319. Sing.
320. Sing.
321. Sing.
322. Sing.
323. Sing.
324. Sing.
325. Sing.
326. Sing.
327. Sing.
328. Sing.
329. Sing.
330. Sing.
331. Sing.
332. Sing.
333. Sing.
334. Sing.
335. Sing.
336. Sing.
337. Sing.
338. Sing.
339. Sing.
340. Sing.
341. Sing.
342. Sing.
343. Sing.
344. Sing.
345. Sing.
346. Sing.
347. Sing.
348. Sing.
349. Sing.
350. Sing.
351. Sing.
352. Sing.
353. Sing.
354. Sing.
355. Sing.
356. Sing.
357. Sing.
358. Sing.
359. Sing.
360. Sing.
361. Sing.
362. Sing.
363. Sing.
364. Sing.
365. Sing.
366. Sing.
367. Sing.
368. Sing.
369. Sing.
370. Sing.
371. Sing.
372. Sing.
373. Sing.
374. Sing.
375. Sing.
376. Sing.
377. Sing.
378. Sing.
379. Sing.
380. Sing.
381. Sing.
382. Sing.
383. Sing.
384. Sing.
385. Sing.
386. Sing.
387. Sing.
388. Sing.
389. Sing.
390. Sing.
391. Sing.
392. Sing.
393. Sing.
394. Sing.
395. Sing.
396. Sing.
397. Sing.
398. Sing.
399. Sing.
400. Sing.
401. Sing.
402. Sing.
403. Sing.
404. Sing.
405. Sing.
406. Sing.
407. Sing.
408. Sing.
409. Sing.
410. Sing.
411. Sing.
412. Sing.
413. Sing.
414. Sing.
415. Sing.
416. Sing.
417. Sing.
418. Sing.
419. Sing.
420. Sing.
421. Sing.
422. Sing.
423. Sing.
424. Sing.
425. Sing.
426. Sing.
427. Sing.
428. Sing.
429. Sing.
430. Sing.
431. Sing.
432. Sing.
433. Sing.
434. Sing.
435. Sing.
436. Sing.
437. Sing.
438. Sing.
439. Sing.
440. Sing.
441. Sing.
442. Sing.
443. Sing.
444. Sing.
445. Sing.
446. Sing.
447. Sing.
448. Sing.
449. Sing.
450. Sing.
451. Sing.
452. Sing.
453. Sing.
454. Sing.
455. Sing.
456. Sing.
457. Sing.
458. Sing.
459. Sing.
460. Sing.
461. Sing.
462. Sing.
463. Sing.
464. Sing.
465. Sing.
466. Sing.
467. Sing.
468. Sing.
469. Sing.
470. Sing.
471. Sing.
472. Sing.
473. Sing.
474. Sing.
475. Sing.
476. Sing.
477. Sing.
478. Sing.
479. Sing.
480. Sing.
481. Sing.
482. Sing.
483. Sing.
484. Sing.
485. Sing.
486. Sing.
487. Sing.
488. Sing.
489. Sing.
490. Sing.
491. Sing.
492. Sing.
493. Sing.
494. Sing.
495. Sing.
496. Sing.
497. Sing.
498. Sing.
499. Sing.
500. Sing.
501. Sing.
502. Sing.
503. Sing.
504. Sing.
505. Sing.
506. Sing.
507. Sing.
508. Sing.
509. Sing.
510. Sing.
511. Sing.
512. Sing.
513. Sing.
514. Sing.
515. Sing.
516. Sing.
517. Sing.
518. Sing.
519. Sing.
520. Sing.
521. Sing.
522. Sing.
523. Sing.
524. Sing.
525. Sing.
526. Sing.
527. Sing.
528. Sing.
529. Sing.
530. Sing.
531. Sing.
532. Sing.
533. Sing.
534. Sing.
535. Sing.
536. Sing.
537. Sing.
538. Sing.
539. Sing.
540. Sing.
541. Sing.
542. Sing.
543. Sing.
544. Sing.
545. Sing.
546. Sing.
547. Sing.
548. Sing.
549. Sing.
550. Sing.
551. Sing.
552. Sing.
553. Sing.
554. Sing.
555. Sing.
556. Sing.
557. Sing.
558. Sing.
559. Sing.
560. Sing.
561. Sing.
562. Sing.
563. Sing.
564. Sing.
565. Sing.
566. Sing.
567. Sing.
568. Sing.
569. Sing.
570. Sing.
571. Sing.
572. Sing.
573. Sing.
574. Sing.
575. Sing.
576. Sing.
577. Sing.
578. Sing.
579. Sing.
580. Sing.
581. Sing.
582. Sing.
583. Sing.
584. Sing.
585. Sing.
586. Sing.
587. Sing.
588. Sing.
589. Sing.
590. Sing.
591. Sing.
592. Sing.
593. Sing.
594. Sing.
595. Sing.
596. Sing.
597. Sing.
598. Sing.
599. Sing.
600. Sing.
601. Sing.
602. Sing.
603. Sing.
604. Sing.
605. Sing.
606. Sing.
607. Sing.
608. Sing.
609. Sing.
610. Sing.
611. Sing.
612. Sing.
613. Sing.
614. Sing.
615. Sing.
616. Sing.
617. Sing.
618. Sing.
619. Sing.
620. Sing.
621. Sing.
622. Sing.
623. Sing.
624. Sing.
625. Sing.
626. Sing.
627. Sing.
628. Sing.
629. Sing.
630. Sing.
631. Sing.
632. Sing.
633. Sing.
634. Sing.
635. Sing.
636. Sing.
637. Sing.
638. Sing.
639. Sing.
640. Sing.
641. Sing.
642. Sing.
643. Sing.
644. Sing.
645. Sing.
646. Sing.
647. Sing.
648. Sing.
649. Sing.
650. Sing.
651. Sing.
652. Sing.
653. Sing.
654. Sing.
655. Sing.
656. Sing.
657. Sing.
658. Sing.
659. Sing.
660. Sing.
661. Sing.
662. Sing.
663. Sing.
664. Sing.
665. Sing.
666. Sing.
667. Sing.
668. Sing.
669. Sing.
670. Sing.
671. Sing.
672. Sing.
673. Sing.
674. Sing.
675. Sing.
676. Sing.
677. Sing.
678. Sing.
679. Sing.
680. Sing.
681. Sing.
682. Sing.
683. Sing.
684. Sing.
685. Sing.
686. Sing.
687. Sing.
688. Sing.
689. Sing.
690. Sing.
691. Sing.
692. Sing.
693. Sing.
694. Sing.
695. Sing.
696. Sing.
697. Sing.
698. Sing.
699. Sing.
700. Sing.
701. Sing.
702. Sing.
703. Sing.
704. Sing.
705. Sing.
706. Sing.
707. Sing.
708. Sing.
709. Sing.
710. Sing.
711. Sing.
712. Sing.
713. Sing.
714. Sing.
715. Sing.
716. Sing.
717. Sing.
718. Sing.
719. Sing.
720. Sing.
721. Sing.
722. Sing.
723. Sing.
724. Sing.
725. Sing.
726. Sing.
727. Sing.
728. Sing.
729. Sing.
730. Sing.
731. Sing.
732. Sing.
733. Sing.
734. Sing.
735. Sing.
736. Sing.
737. Sing.
738. Sing.
739. Sing.
740. Sing.
741. Sing.
742. Sing.
743. Sing.
744. Sing.
745. Sing.
746. Sing.
747. Sing.
748. Sing.
749. Sing.
750. Sing.
751. Sing.
752. Sing.
753. Sing.
754. Sing.
755. Sing.
756. Sing.
757. Sing.
758. Sing.
759. Sing.
760. Sing.
761. Sing.
762. Sing.
763. Sing.
764. Sing.
765. Sing.
766. Sing.
767. Sing.
768. Sing.
769. Sing.
770. Sing.
771. Sing.
772. Sing.
773. Sing.
774. Sing.
775. Sing.
776. Sing.
777. Sing.
778. Sing.
779. Sing.
780. Sing.
781. Sing.
782. Sing.
783. Sing.
784. Sing.
785. Sing.
786. Sing.
787. Sing.
788. Sing.
789. Sing.
790. Sing.
791. Sing.
792. Sing.
793. Sing.
794. Sing.
795. Sing.
796. Sing.
797. Sing.
798. Sing.
799. Sing.
800. Sing.
801. Sing.
802. Sing.
803. Sing.
804. Sing.
805. Sing.
806. Sing.
807. Sing.
808. Sing.
809. Sing.
810. Sing.
811. Sing.
812. Sing.
813. Sing.
814. Sing.
815.

THE LATE M. DUPIN, FRENCH JUDGE AND SENATOR.

THE veteran French lawyer and politician, M. Dupin, who was called "Dupin l'Aîné," to distinguish him from his two brothers—Baron Charles Dupin, still living, and Philip Dupin, who died some years ago—expired at Paris on the 10th ult., at the age of eighty-three. He was called to the Bar in 1802, and soon gained a high place in his profession. In 1811 he was appointed one of a commission of lawyers for the classification of the laws of the empire. Their work was interrupted by the events of 1814 and 1815, and, finally, this immense labour devolved on him alone. His reputation as a jurist and as a patriot attracted towards him the attention of the electors of his native department, the Nièvre. They returned him as one of their representatives in the new Chamber, where he took his seat with the Liberal Opposition. Dupin was one of the first to set the example of independence. He resisted the motion of Félix Lepelletier for creating a statue of Napoleon on the shores of the Gulf of Juan, with the inscription, "To the Saviour of the Country." He had little confidence in the Liberal promises wrung from Napoleon in adversity, and he demanded greater guarantees for the liberties of his country than the "Acte Additionnel" offered after Waterloo, and while Napoleon was lingering in the Palace of the Elysée, till the Chamber should respond to his demand to put himself once more at the head of the army; M. Dupin warned them against a second 18 Brumaire; and the abdication followed. In the secret sitting of the 21st of June he opposed with much energy the proclaiming Napoleon's son as Emperor; and the Bourbons were once more restored. In the reaction which followed, M. Dupin protested against the severities practised upon the defeated followers of the Buonapartist and Republican parties. He was associated with the two Berryers (father and son) as counsel for Marshal Ney, and for those who aided the escape of Lavalette, as well as in the defence of the Journal des Débats against an oppressive prosecution instituted by the Government of Charles X.; and in other political trials of great importance. In 1828 he was again elected to the Chamber of Deputies, when he took his seat with the Left Centre. He offered an opposition to the Montignac Ministry, but to that of Polignac he gave no quarter. He took an active part in the address of the famous 221; and, on the dissolution of the Chamber before it had met, was returned by the electoral college of Corne. When the famous Ordinances of July appeared, Dupin at once denounced them for their illegality and as the violation of a contract by the bad faith of one of the contracting parties; and he informed the deputies and journalists who consulted him that the people were justified in resisting them, though he declined to carry out, as a member of the Chamber, what he advised as a lawyer. On the 27th of July he attended the meeting held at the house of Casimir Perier, and on the following day put his signature to the protest drawn up in his absence, and dictated the order which General Pajol required from the deputies before putting himself at the head of the National Guard. When the fighting in the streets was over he was offered by the Municipal Commission, and declined, the post of Minister of Justice; but accepted from Louis Philippe, after the Revolution, the appointment of Procureur-Général to the Court of Cassation, and then became one of the stanchest supporters of the Government of Louis Philippe. Nor did he lose his place by the fall of that Government in 1848. In the elections which took place immediately after the Revolution he was returned, though last on the list of the Democratic candidates for the Constituent Assembly, by the electors of the Nièvre and his long experience of Parliamentary business, both as Deputy and Speaker, recommended him as chairman of the committee for drawing up the rules and regulations of the new Assembly. He also presided in the committee appointed to frame the new Constitution, on which he published, in 1849, a series of essays or comments. Nevertheless, when the coup-d'état was effected, and the representatives expelled from their Chamber, M. Dupin made no stand against the invasion of the military, and on one of the powers which, as President, he was invested with. He even retained his post of Procureur-Général, but resigned when the decree appeared, a-propos after, confiscating the property of the Orleans family. He followed up his resignation with an elaborate memorial on the illegality and impolicy of that measure. After this he retired for some time into private life; but in 1857 made terms with the Government of the Emperor Napoleon, returning to his former post of Procureur-Général, with a seat in the Senate, which he retained till his death. He was Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour, member of the Institute and French Academy and head of the Order of Advocates. The Portrait we have engraved is from a photograph by M. Pierre Petit, of Paris.

THE LATE M. DUPIN, SEN., SENATOR AND PROCUREUR-GENERAL OF THE COURT OF CASSATION.

GUNTON HALL, NORFOLK,

THE visit of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales to Gunton Hall, Norfolk, is mentioned in our Court News. This mansion, of which we present a View, taken by Messrs. Mann and Co., of Norwich and Old Bond-street, is a modern building, very pleasantly situated in the midst of a park of upwards of 1000 acres in extent, well wooded and stocked with game. It lies on the main road from Norwich to Cromer, sixteen miles from the former and about four from the latter, a well-known watering-place, of which Lord Suffield is lord of the manor. Gunton is nearly the most north-easterly point in the county of Norfolk, and is within about four miles of the sea. Preparations have been in progress for some time at the house for the reception of their Royal Highnesses, the suite of apartments and the ball-room having been prepared and magnificently decorated.

GREAT FIRE AT LIVERPOOL.

THE extensive drapery establishment of Messrs. Jeffery, Compton House, Church-street, Liverpool, was totally destroyed by fire about ten o'clock on Friday night week. It was a large block of buildings, between Church-street, Bunsett-street, Leigh-street, and Tarleton-street, occupying a considerable space. A number of the male and female shop-assistants and workpeople, who slept on the premises, were in a situation of much danger; but happily, all escaped with their lives. Every effort to stop the progress of the fire failed. At midnight the flames burst through the roof, floor after floor gave way, and very soon nothing of the building remained but the blackened walls. The loss is immense, and the fear is that it may far exceed the amount of the insurance. As usual at this period of the year, there was a very heavy stock, of which not a vestige remains. The immense block of building next also reopened a very heavy sum. The total loss, as far as can be at present estimated, will probably exceed £200,000. Messrs. Jeffery are insured for £140,000, including £80,000 in the Liverpool and London Office, £45,000 in the Globe, £10,000 in the £5,000 Office, £5,000 West of England, £5000 Manchester, £2000 Atlas, £2000 Yorkshire, £2000 Birmingham, £2000 Sun Fire, £2000 Imperial Fire and Life, and considerable sums in other offices. As to the origin of the fire, it will probably never be known. There were no signs of fire, no passages in many parts, and no doubt the over-heating of one of these has led to the melancholy disaster. Some persons attribute it to the escape of gas.

GUNTON HALL, NORFOLK, THE SEAT OF LORD SUFFIELD, VISITED BY THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

FINE ARTS.

NOTWITHSTANDING our senior and junior Etching Clubs, it cannot be said that the art of etching has received its due share of attention amongst either the artists or the public. The great revival of this style (or engraving with the Italian painters of the best period) was far more common with the old masters than it is now; and the facility, power, and at the present day in France etching is probably much more widely understood and appreciated than in this country. If we fairly estimate the peculiar interest and value of etching, we should constantly bear in mind that it is now the only method by which the artist's impressions of nature, be his own painted work, or that seized by his own hand into black and white. Nearly all the Italian engravings of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries were executed by works of painters, or produced in their schools and under their immediate superintendence. Often these engravings were the mere outline work and uncertain in the modelling or shading, and very coarsely printed; but still most often they are full of spirit, truth, and feeling and expression. Gradually the art of engraving received a technical development which, the plodding labour of line-engraving excepted, involving trained and toilsome hand-work, made of it a special pursuit, comparatively dissociated from painting, and also, it must be added, from those qualities of touch, and that free expression of inspiration which, despite mechanical inferiority, so greatly distinguished the art in Italy during the first century of its existence. Then etching became the representative of the old Italian engraving and in favour of it alone for historic subjects, the public has returned towards the level of a handicraft—the Northern painters alone to especial honour. Albert Durer, Rembrandt, Lucas Van Leyden, Paul Potter, and a number of Flemish and Dutch painters owe more or less of celebrity to their mastery over the art of etching.

If we reflect for a moment on the nature and method of etching, we shall readily understand that it presents the only means by which printed impressions can be obtained of works of the highest pictorial value and interest, the spontaneity, the freshness of impression and conception, and consequent suggestiveness of an original work or sketch. The etcher does not, unless from choice, commence his work by cutting away all the hard, unyielding surface of the plate of steel with graver or burin, and throughout he discards the tedious mechanical systems of the arranged dots or reticulated lines, and the more regular scrapings of the mezzotinto process. The plate is first covered with a varnish, which defends the artist's hand from the action of the steel spirit or "acidle," the varnish allowing the utmost possible delicacy of line and rapidity and freedom of hand. Aquatint then being poured on encircles the plate, and the parts of the plate on which the lines are to be traced. Portions may be re-covered and additions made, or lines may be deepened with the graver—then all remains to be done is "eat" of the plate. A rich velvety effect in the final impression may be procured by scraping the burrs, as they are called, of the lines on one side in a "bur," or burrow, which, when preparing to print, retains more of the ink on the surface when the plate is wiped, the spreading under pressure, leaves on the paper a thick, mellow line, with rather indistinct edge. With the above brief observations on the needle-point still permits a similarly delicate, playful movement over the metal; and parts may, in like manner, be enforced—this mode of working producing the class of etching of Salvator Rosa.

We were prompted to offer some observations that might extend the peculiar appreciation of a delightful art by the works of artists, principally of landscape subjects, by Mr. Seymour Haden, now exhibiting at Messrs. Colnaghi and Co.'s, Pall-mall East. In some respects the interest of these etchings is rather enhanced than diminished by the fact that Mr. Haden is, in many of the compositions as thoroughly as it is beautifully used, "only an amateur." He is one of the number of etching clubbists, and has produced many most for master and amateur. The suggestiveness for which etching is so pre-eminent is more relative than absolute. It depends on much of what we have to bring to it. In a word, the etching the master is compelled to epitome and abridge his great knowledge and experience; the amateur may, on the other hand, present all or nearly all he knows or perceives, and the result may be not wholly unlike. The deficiencies of the amateur may be largely condoned by freshness of perception and naïveté of expression. In the etchings by Mr. Haden an artist of the highest order of museum will detect evidences of the want of a thorough knowledge of form and modelling, and that discrimination of subordination by which the practised draughtsman gives instinctively. One remark in some of this after making all due allowance for the artist's avowed object in suppressing or suggesting, is, that the subject of a sketcher only the general aspect, effect, colour, and sentiment of a scene. Assuredly it is not desirable to see anything systematically adopt, in the hope perhaps of concealing technical shortcomings that indeed of expression which proceeds from the artist's mind the least complete. Nevertheless every one will, notwithstanding some obvious deficiencies, recognise in these etchings by Mr. Haden a genuine artist-faculty, a keen enjoyment of the beauties of nature, and a delightful freshness due to their having been done on the spot, as well as "on the spot." They supply besides an illustration not only of the facilities of etching, but of the class of subjects the etchings are produced in Paris (for these this series was prepared for publication)—the costly adjuncts, so dear to all collectors, of exquisite printing and choice impressions (which have been pronounced by the Gazette des Beaux Arts), and eaux-fortes vierges in old-fashioned, old Dutch or Rembrandt style—broad, free, made rounds, and extensive margins. The subjects are chiefly derived from the neighbourhood of London and the Thames—Richmond, Kew, Richmond, Windsor, South Wales, Lancashire, and Ireland. We may add that Mr. Seymour Haden is a member of the Society of Painters in the Royal Hospital for Incurables, and is honorary surgeon of the South Kensington Museum. During his residence as a student in Paris, in 1838, he employed the pencil as an aid in his anatomical studies. His drawings, however, were so much admired that, as early as 1839, by the publication in that year of a remarkable set of drawings by known set of etchings by Mr. Haden's brother-in-law, Mr. Whistler, the painter. Several of Mr. Haden's etchings have been exhibited in the Royal Academy and the Paris salon; the greater notice they attracted in the latter owing to the preparation of the series above for publication in that capital, with letterpress, in the French language.

A second series of "Illustrations of the Bible," from drawings by Mr. E. N. Holmes (Warrington), has just been published, and completes a work of standard interest and value. The architecture of the vast and costly Palace of Westminster. Mr. Holmes, the architect, was engaged in the office of Sir Charles Barry; Mr. Daniel Rudle, who supplied the descriptive letterpress, was also engaged, and for many years, on the same work, under Sir Charles; and Mr. Edward H. Barry has rendered every assistance, by allowing access to the drawings of the building. The illustrations, which consist of steel engravings, lithographs, and woodcuts, by their careful fidelity and painstaking finish down to the minutest detail, fully sustain the standard character of the work. This observation especially applies to the very elaborate outline steel engravings, executed to scale, after Mr. Holmes's drawings, by Mr. R. P. Cuff. Of these there are illustrations in one, two, or three details, of the Victoria Tower, the Central Tower, the Clock Tower, and the North Front. The labour expended on these must have been enormous. If the numerous lithographs—notwithstanding that they render the pictorial aspect and light and shade of important parts of the interior as well as exterior—are less valuable than the engravings, it is rather from inherent defects of the process than from any want of care and ability. With these "Illustrations" and Mr. Gullick's "Handbook to the Pictures," the public are supplied with all the information that can be needed respecting the magnificent and decorative paintings of our great national palace.

A few weeks ago we announced, on respectable authority, that Mr. J. Jackson (a rising sculptor, whose admirable figure over a drinking-fountain in St. James's Park we engraved about two years back) had been commissioned to execute a statue of Napoleon. This is not the purpose of executing a bust of his Lordship. Since that announcement statements have appeared in various quarters, and the contemporaries respecting the alleged misconduct of certain "leading officers" in the Peninsular War, which have appeared in late numbers of the lamented statesman. We are glad to be authorised to say that, as far as regards Mr. Jackson, nothing can be more especial desire of some Lord Palmerston's family.

Mr. Lewis Pocock, F.S.A., for many years one of the honorary secretaries of the Art-Union of London, and otherwise creditably known in connection with art, has taken the place of the late Mr. Scott in the firm of Messrs. Colnaghi and Co.; the most eminent, and, we believe, the oldest established, print-publishers in England.

The exhibition of Mr. Dunn's pictures, painted in the French Gallery, Pall-mall, will remain open (free) longer than was at first announced, viz. to the end of the present week.

The admirers of Leigh Hunt will be glad to hear that an effort is being made to erect a marble memorial-fountain to that amiable and distinguished grave in Kensal-green Cemetery. Subscriptions for the purpose will be received by S. C. Hall (with whom originated the effort), 11, Burleigh-street, Strand.

THE MAGAZINES.

THE Corsehill is singularly delicious in variety this month, no less than thirty-eight pages being devoted to "Wives and Daughters," and twenty-six to "Armadale." We are far from grudging the space allotted to the former, which is fully equal to the monthly instalment in humour and sweetness; while the recent death of the accomplished author renders every line of his delightful story doubly precious. Readers will, at all events, rejoice that Mrs. Gaskell's decease has not brought the story to an abrupt termination; while most, we should think, would have been glad of some tribute to her memory from the pen of her friend and publisher. We are sorry to say that the room bestowed on "Armadale" is the month simply thrown away. Both all his former merits, and his present faults, are those of the whose journal is this month inflicted upon us. Having found it quite unreadable, we can only hope that it contains nothing essential to the development of the story, and that Mr. Wilkie Collins speedily relieves its oppressiveness by one of his fine wild landscapes, or such strong delineation of character as his admirers have a right to look for. Pedgitis, "Joseph Heywood" is a very peculiar and charming composition, reminding us of the humour of Charles Lamb, and occasional criticism with autobiographical details, imaginary or real. The style is very quaint, and the subject-matter is treated in a most original vein as a study for the art-novel of which Clive Newcome's friend Hodge was to have been the hero. The first chapter of author of "Vanity Fair" died a debtor to the world. "Ronda Fair" is a good descriptive article of the usual calibre.

Fraser, as usual, relies more on thoughtful essays treating of important subjects than on its fictions. A paper on Spain is essentially of this character, but is disfigured by some strange inaccuracies and misrepresentations. The remarks on Spanish art are, however, original. Were they so they would probably be wrong; for there cannot be two opinions on the propriety of exhorting Spaniards to honesty, industry, and sobriety. In the same number a long letter written paper on Mr. Carlyle would be valuable if Mr. Carlyle's works were not sufficiently known; but as it is, it possesses only the general conclusions of intelligent readers. We all know that Mr. Carlyle is a disciple of Goethe, and a worshipper of Cromwell; but very pleasant because he is so full of genius—a poet in very rugged prose—a thinker of unquestionable power and originality. Mr. Bryce—a thistle associated with figs. There is more scope for original remark in the paper on "Parties and Politics," but it wants point and elegance, and illustrated by a graceful parallel between George Eliot and Miss Austen. "The Military Situation in India" is an acceptable addition to the many articles on Indian affairs which appear from time to time in this periodical. "The Gains of the Church of England" is a timely paper on a subject of interest at the present particularly with reference to the recent relaxation of the terms of subscription.

There is little variety in Blackwood this month. The two fictions are of average merit, but not such as to add materially to their character at the commencement as to afford hardly any scope for remark. The "Life in the Clearings" is a pleasant paper, and a kindly addition to the innumerable reviews of Palgrave and Yeadley Tokay, Zante, a spot, and Ithaca, and Cephalonia, Malta, Ionia, and "D'Orsol" is funny as the exposure of the consumeral travellers, and discriminating in his estimate of Lord Palmerston. "Memoirs of Confederate Life" continues to throw occasional flood-lights upon the history of the contest, which is all that can be expected under the circumstances. "Tom Cringle" is a delightful sketch of the old tar trooper, incapable of an impartial, or even a rational, view of the circumstances of the case, and yet so much in earnest in his opinions that he should have served so long under General Lee without insulting or quitting the service. Altogether, this is a very good number was characterised.

The prejudice thus aroused ought, however, speedily to give way to an appreciation of the skill displayed in executing for general readers. It is an excellent book, the number, perhaps, of its illustrations being by writers of mark. Mr. Charles Reade leads off with a story, clever, like everything he writes, but, like everything he writes, infected with the twang of his intolerable self-assertion. Miss Ingelow's verses are pleasing, but not remarkable; the memoir of the late Archbishop of Miss Isa Craig's noiseless incisely into true poetry. Mr. Tawbery Collier's "Recollections of Spain" are a very pleasant and genial sort of "Ballyboguncky" with equal knowledge, humour, and feeling. Mr. Thornbury's "Haunted London" is a very curious and most interesting and eloquent paper in the number, although the information is not always that to which they are set (as such devices are apt to be with him) almost an approximation to the ludicrous. Exception will probably be taken to the somewhat rhapsodical character of his diction; but this, after all, only reproduces the impression of delighted amusement natural to an enthusiastic mind under the circumstances. Mr. Alexander Smith has none of Mr. MacDonald's exuberance: his essay is choice in language, refined in thought, but deficient in vigour. A writer on the natural history of Scotchmen describes twenty-one varieties, the most remarkable being the Montrose Scot, "whose whole being is grace and genius, and chivalry and devotedness." We feel tempted to inquire, with the little boy in Leech's sketch, "Is he real, or is he only stuffed?"

The Shilling Magazine puts forth by far the best number we have yet seen. "The Wild Flower of Ravenswerth" continues its course by its elegance and more by its pathos, while the interest of the situation is marred by no infringement of probability, and the varied characters are sketched with truthfulness and manœuvred with tact. Practical, clear-headed Miss Cobbe is nearly the last authoress from whom we should have expected a story of the supernatural, but the completeness of her success is equal to the novelty of the attempt. Mr. Bonamy Price contributes a vigorous yet temperate and elaborate article, on the difficulties that beset the Austrian empire. Dr. Aiken's notes on German literature can only be regarded as a prelude to something more comprehensive. "A Night in the Coliseum" is a very successful imitation of Mayhew's "Boy's Life" in an interview of Jerusalem, spiced with reminiscences of Mrs. Browning, Messrs. Moxon advertise Lord Dufferin's "Letters from Ashore," by publishing three of the illustrations. They are by Mr. Arthur Hughes, and excellent specimens of his characteristic combination of refined treatment with realistic principles of art. The landscape in the third is most striking; the young, prostrate figure is reproduced from one of his earliest pictures.

Dr. Dublin University commences a new tale by the author of "Bellladonna," which, unlike the former unsuccessful production, is so far, cheerful, sparkling, and in every way agreeable. There are also some Celtic fairy tales of the right sort; and a paper on American affairs indicates that the conductors are wiser than they were some time since.

Mr. P. F. Andre again relieves the habitual dulness of the Victoria Magazine, this time by a most interesting account of Cornelia Goethe. All the rest is leather and pronella.

The Metropolitan is very contentless, as usual, some most important papers, to which it is impossible to render justice within our limits. Mr. Grant directs general attention to Professor Tyndall's summary of the leading principles of his natural philosophy; to Mr. G. Lefroy's triumphant vindication of the freedom of religious instruction, and to Mr. Hamerton's assertion of the dignity of landscape as a subject of art.

The readers of Temple Bar are this month bereaved of two of their novels, though no doubt the novelists will soon be at work again. Miss Braddon's story proceeds apace, guided by us, though not by us, to be a fair average specimen of her style. The bad practice of publishing novels in parts long before they are finished in the magazines where they appear has enabled the critics to settle Mr. Wilkie's claims to be considered as readers have done with him. Mr. Yates is most graphic and racy as the delineator of the Bohemian classes of society. The atmosphere of his story is this month unpleasant, and the characters, with one exception, are him back upon the ground he knows so well. The miscellaneous papers are not remarkable for any thing but fresh fictitious matter, easily by one well acquainted with the subject. Mr. Mortimer Collins's poetry is pleasing.

The St. James's Magazine has long been publishing a preferred translation from the French, by Mr. Hazlitt, of the novels of Paul de Kock, as Swedish ghost-story should be an unacknowledged appropriation from any known source. Such is by no means the case at any rate. An account of Jamaica is very dismal, but interesting under present circumstances.

We have only space to record the unvarying excellence of Good Words, London Society, the Gentleman's Journal, and the comparative mediocrity of the Churchman's, the Army and Navy, and the Englishman's Magazine.

The Christmas numbers of sundry periodicals have already appeared, in our opinion at too early a period. Reading them now seems as unreasonable as eating mince-pies and plum-pudding in November—in time; and, though partaking of the dainty dishes with gusto, one cannot help thinking that at the fitting time they would be more savoury still. The Christmas number of All the Year Round, entitled "Dr. Marigold's Prescriptions," Dr. Marigold is a worthy successor to Mr. Sam Weller, Mr. Boffer in—whether quite professional or an outsider, whether an allopathist or a homœopathist—is not to be here determined. The Doctor is evidently not an antiquist. Suffice it that the prescriptions, besides being conducive to laughter, are highly characteristic, especially the first. The fun of the composition of which, so exquisite is their flavour, the master's hand has evidently been at work. The second number of the series, "The Seven Poor Travellers," is also full of humour, and very spring naturally from and are well incorporated with the framework ("each giving rise to added interest"), which is not always to be said of most of these attempts to construct tales within a tale. In the Christmas number of Punch we find no attempt is made to put on a batch of short stories, like beads, on one common thread. Nor, indeed, do they require any artificial bond of union, for they are quite comfortable to the public, as will be evident when we state that they are written by Mark Lemon, Tom Taylor, Shirley Brooks, and other wits. This number has illustrations, of which the two others are deficient.

The Paris anglers have resolved to establish a club, and, with that object, have held a meeting to arrange preliminaries.

The newly-finished wing of the Tuileries, on the water side, is now occupied by the Emperor, together with distant relatives, and not common wishe city aloof indeed in water, for the purpose of hardening the soft water-nymphs of the Louvre, who are supposed to require the cold buildings of the New Louvre a few years ago.

The Revue Illustrée announces that the Senate of Carlsruhe has decided on removing the bones of the present lease of the granite-table in that town, which cover the remains of the Margrave Charles Frederick, and of his wife, and that step is, that if public play were to be given up at Baden-Baden, the money saved would be to the dispensation of the paupers of that place, to the profit of other towns where play is permitted."

The diplomatic service cannot complain of being ill paid, as will will see from the following list of the annual salaries of the Continental, we may observe, that the Ambassador to the Court of The Queen receives £10,000 a year; to Austria, Russia, and France £8000; to Prussia, £6000; to Spain, £5000; to Turkey, Rome, and Brazil, £4000; the United States, £4000; Brazil and Portugal, £4000 each; Bavaria and Saxony, £3000 each; Hanover, Switzerland, £2000 each; Electorate Confederation, Greece, Hanover, Japan, and Sweden and Norway, £1000; the Germanic Confederation, Hanseatic Republics, Mexico, Morocco, £2000; Wirtemburg, £2000; and Saxony, £2000. Each of these gentlemen have also a house, and the Ambassador to Turkey more than £400 a year for his lodging £1000.

DR. MARIGOLD'S COURTSHIP.—I courted my wife from the footboard of the cart. I did indeed. She was a Suffolk young woman, and I was a young lad with a donkey and cart under the corn-market at Ipswich. I first noticed her up at a windowed hat Saturday that was, appreciating highly. I had took to her, and I thought she took to me. I'll not deny it. I hadn't till you a that bat. Next Saturday that come, I pitched the cart on the same spot, and I see to my high delight that she was standing at the same window. I was in my best, and getting off the goods was nothing, but I took my time, and sometimes I looked up at her, and sometimes I looked down at my cart paper, and I put it this way (looking up at the window where she stood), "Shall I, Sarah Ann Gibbins, bring Brighton Cabbages, or shall I not?" Sarah Ann Gibbins, she says, "Yes, I will." Then I says,

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

FESTIVITIES in connection with a defeat at the last election may appear slightly anomalous on the face of them; but they may be taken, nevertheless, to be almost more genuine in their intention than meetings for congratulation and triumph. When a member has sat for a place since 1847, and has, by the fortune of an election, been superseded, his supporters are only doing themselves credit by testifying, in the most pronounced way in their power, that they are sorry to lose him. Hence the demonstration in favour of Mr. Herrington at Blackburn must have been peculiarly gratifying to him; while it may be deemed to have been a protest on the part of the Liberals of the borough against the handing over its representation wholly to the Conservatives. Mr. Hibbert, at least, for the present, occupies a unique position; and he has now the avatar of one of the local family of Peels. Mr. Peel, in former years, was considered a model member for Blackburn, caused a swamp of Mr. Filkington, and a unification of principles on which it will appear in the house. Evidently, great efforts were made to make the occasion striking and remarkable, and so, as it were, to strengthen the protest which it was designed to express. A testimonial of a piece of plate was voted; it was to have been presented in solemn form to Mr. Filkington: the terms of the inscription have not been stated, and one is curious to know in what form it was couched. Then Mr. Bright was induced to make Blackburn the scene, and this particular meeting the occasion, of the delivery of that critical examination of men and things political with which he is accustomed to favour the country at the very weighty sessions of the Session of Parliament. Thither, too, were gathered M.P.'s, who are personages in the north, in respectable, but, we may say, not the inevitable Mr. Potter, who, smiling and self-complacent, yet seems always waiting for the idea that, as the successor of Mr. Cobden at Rochdale, he is bound to make efforts more or less vigorous to become a marked man and member; there was Mr. Cheetham, who has in a manner consecrated from South Lancashire to Stockport, but whose success is still so far distinguished as that he represents the largest English constituency to which a single member is allotted; there was Mr. Barnes, of Bolton, a quiet—in the house—but earnest politician; and Mr. Foster, who has gone all the way from Dewsbury to Belfast for a seat; and Mr. Fawcitt, who is a fine man and member for Sunderland; but in that which for the moment was pre-eminently a day of honour, unfortunately, Mr. Filkington was not. So far therefore, as the testimonial proper was concerned, the proceedings were but maimed rites; though, for its practical purposes, it was not to be called a failure. For Mr. Bright said what he had counted to say, and that was in no way to misinterpret to the public generally, in a certain sense, which is applicable to all his speeches, satisfactory to the public. As might have been expected, he was eloquent and genial. Mr. Filkington's claim to the confidence and regard of the Blackburn electors is emphatically placed there by the fact that he represents the house which probably they had only a faint idea that he occupied. "Good service—invaluable service," as Mr. Bright put it, Mr. Filkington was, however, not alluded to; for nothing was said of the fact that the strength to gauge that service was his, as it was not Waterloo-place, was the main cause of the police and legal crusade against the professors of a new and delicate but felonious science, which should be as meritorious as a fine art.

With a certain obviousness taking his clue from the change in the political condition of the borough as it will appear in the house, Mr. Bright preached vehemently against Tortyism, treating it as a kind of political prodigality which had intruded itself into the democratic trend of Lancashire. Probably no man but himself could deliver such a philippic against Tory misrule and misdoing in terms of elegant cursing; but, somehow, that did not strike one as the novelty, or even the point, of his discourse. He was at pains to suggest that the latter part of his speech was delivered as if with a sense of coming trouble; and, with the Fenian Brotherhood in view, nothing was said which could in the least militate against an actual conspiracy in the Ministry; and the prospect of a Right Hon. John Bright seemed to be held up to no distant future. Nor, unfortunately for anything, a pointed recommendation of Earl Russell to the kind consideration of the people he represented in the house. Indeed, with the declining years of that statesman was a covert sarcasm or not one does not precisely know.

If at Blackburn the Tories were gibbeted, at Worcester, one of them, who is more or less distinguished, has, in a manner, received a kind warning and a protest against the very policy of which Mr. Bright sees the ultimate insecurities. The Conservative member for Mid-Staffordshire has been brought to bear on the political situation, and he is said to have been the antidote to Mr. Bright. This latter gentleman spoke at a time when vehement excitement was abroad, and when, less while Lord Palmerston held the reins of power, had been fulfilled; and Mr. Bright was emphatic, and as we may say, fierce in the tone he annexed if he were aware of it, said dirt to Mr. Bright. It was a curious coincidence on the part of a Radical orator's denunciation that the real mainstay of their principles was that chief of the Liberals who had been removed from power by the Tories, and whose solemn was the view which Sir John took of coming events, and the policy which he pursued, was perhaps more nearly allied to that depression and alarm than by Mr. Bright's deliverance of his hopes into the keeping of Earl Russell. What Sir John's views are Sir John Pakington's defect; and when he is inclined to see difficulty for his party, and danger to the sustainment of their principles and the legislative fashion which they have been in the main content for the last few years, it would seem that the time is imminent when Toryism will throw off its disguise, and the restore of the Worcester Conservative feast must have been Sir John Pakington in the flesh.

Mr. Thomas Hughes is essentially member for the working classes, and his second speech was a comprehensive consideration of questions he shall work hard. Like the Frenchwoman with her lovers, Mr. Hughes must have counsel to count the number of constituents who are conspicuous character or else he has attended since he was chosen as representative for Lambeth; and if he does not go into the House thoroughly primed with a sense of the requirements of the legislation—that is, the result of contact—must be exploded as an active agency. The Lambeth labour which Mr. Hughes has to do has been attendances at a dinner given to him by his constituents, and also in his chairmanship of a meeting in Surrey Mr. Charles Dutton presided; and very naturally, looking to his antecedents and to the special interest he manifests in all the name he bears, took the first public opportunity of delivering himself on the vexed question of Jamaica. The characters of this festivity differ somewhat in their account of the spirit in which this episode in the Jamaican political programme was taken; but there is no doubt that the company, which had come principally to hear Mr. Hughes, were unanimous at the discussion of the topic of the day, were naturally out-down, and indulged in certain gaieties de cœur observations while Mr. Buxton unpacked his heart of the feelings which were swelling there on a matter somewhat hazy in its details. Mr. Hughes's maiden word for word, ignore interruption, and give applause to the very echo of his special deliverances; and there is no doubt that the real state of things, one has necessarily to resort to the usual modus vivendi. When Mr. Hughes got to the end of his very modest speech, and really took no credit for the severe training which his electors and others have put him through; and one is inclined to think that, notwithstanding the very special and particular position which he must occupy in the house, he will be found to be a judicious as well as an effective member. One wondered why Mr. Neate should have come from Oxford to Mr. Lambeth's dinner, but his statement of cordial friendship and sympathies with Mr. Hughes gave obvious and creditable reasons for his trip over the water. One is a town, the other a gown, man; and the other member for Lambeth, was present; and it is just possible that he might have been wondering why his constituents have not given him a dinner—although it does not seem such a wonder, either.

The Belgian Government is about to purchase the Grand Central Railway of that country.

Mr. Penna, the Italian traveller of Messrs. G. Barthelmes and Co., of Bradford, was captured by brigands while travelling between Naples and Avezzano, a ransom of £1000 being demanded for his release. Last saturday Messrs. Barthelmes and Co. received from Italy a telegram announcing the release of Mr. Penna from captivity, £810 having been accepted for his release.

MUSIC.

Signor Arditi's Promenade Concerts of the past week have derived extraordinary interest from the selection from Wagner's celebrated opera "Tannhauser," first performed on Monday last, and subsequently repeated on the 30th ult. The music of Wagner, though he certainly holds the highest place among living composers, is literally unknown in England. His operas ("Tannhauser" especially, which is esteemed his masterpiece) have become "stock pieces" in every musical theatre in Germany, and not a week passes in which some of them are not performed and received with enthusiasm. As a rule when our English opera-managers are so anxious to obtain novelty, it seems strange that Tannhauser has not been had, long ere now, to the works of the distinguished a musician. But it is not unaccountable. Wagner is not only a composer, but professedly, at least, a musical reformer: his doctrines are adverse to the general practice of composers; and in his controversial writings he is by no means complimentary to his contemporaries so cavalierly that he has made for himself a host of enemies. He is stigmatised as a fanatical innovator; and his music (even by many of his admirers) is said to be unmelodious, and to be sneered at as "music of the future." Our theatrical managers, therefore, are afraid to bring forward pieces which would certainly meet with much hostility; and it required some nerve in Signor Arditi to produce even so slight a specimen as that which he has now given us. It consisted of two or three of the airs, not sung, but played on the concert-room, and preceded by a description of the story of the drama, for which a considerable strength of choral voices was provided. The instrumental band, too, was of large dimensions, especially in the powerful brass instruments which Wagner employs to an unprecedented extent. The result was certainly a success, though a success to be decided not from the work with the least amount of disadvantage, and from which we must gorgeous performance, received by the audience with the most unequivocal delight. The full merits of the music may be the production of this opera at the one or the other of our great theatres; but it is, at all events, a work of which the English public ought to be enabled to judge for themselves.

Asher Lyons, the "Little Paganini," was performed at the Royal Gallery Polytechnic Opera, Covent-garden, on Wednesday last. We shall speak of it next week.

Mr. Alfredo Piatti, though an Italian singer to all intents and purposes, is not an Italian by birth, and has only now visited Italy for the first time. He has appeared before the Florentine public in her best part, Amina in "La Sonnambula," and, we need scarcely add, has been received with the same enthusiasm which she has excited in France, Germany, and England. The Italian journals are with each other in the highblown style of their eulogies.

The "Lohengrin" of Herr Wagner, produced at Wiesbaden, with the success which it has obtained wherever it has been performed, finishes certainly one of the most remarkable musical works of modern times.

M. Jullien is giving a series of promenade concerts at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, which are described by the local journals as "unique in their character, and, as they have proved in a smaller scale, the famous concerts of the late M. Jullien, and those which have been given at the theatre royal, Drury-lane." The theatre is fitted up in a similar manner. The orchestra is of considerable dimensions, and is composed of the most eminent instrumental performers; and several distinguished solo singers and instrumentalists are employed. The programmes consist of a happy mixture of brilliant dance music with selections from the works of the most classical composers. Miss Madeline Schiller has begun especially successful in the performance of Mozart's "Il Seraglio;" and a Birmingham journal most justly says—"Her touch is at once firm and delicate, and her execution remarkably clear, while the gentleness of finger of her right hand imparts unwonted brilliancy to her playing when the composition calls for the display of power and character which can scarcely be over-rated for concerto-playing." Mdlle. Liebhart, Mr. Lawler, and Mr. Santley have also been very successful. Mr. Paque's fine performances on the violoncello have been highly appreciated. The theatre has been crowded to the doors every night.

The annual concert at Leipzic, dedicated to the memory of Mendelssohn, took place on the anniversary of his birth-day, and was attended by a vast crowd, eager to do homage to the great musician. The first part of the programme consisted entirely of some of his principal instrumental compositions were listened to with the utmost enthusiasm.

In the present dearth of great tenors, no small sensation, it appears, has been created by the appearance of such a desideratum at Munich, in the person of Herr Nachbaur, who has appeared in the "Freischütz," and is described as being little less than a prodigy of vocal power, and of the purest style of singing.

Signor Badiali, once the most popular Italian baritone of his day, died last week at Bologna, at the age of sixty-six.

M. Wilhelm, the violoncello player, died on Sunday morning last, at the Cattle Hotel, Richmond, attracted a crowded and fashionable attendance. The performance of which piece was the last during his command of the instrument is extraordinary, and he is equally at home in every description of music—in the severe and classical works of Bach and Handel, as in the light and graceful compositions of the more modern school. On this occasion his programme was a happy combination of the two styles, and the whole of the concerted performances were received with the warmest applause.

Mr. Sims Reeves departed for Milan, to fulfil a four-months' engagement at the Scala.

The Monday Popular Concerts, which hold so conspicuous a place among the musical entertainments of the London season, are to be resumed in the last week of January.

Mrs. John Macfarren is giving her interesting entertainment, "Evenings at the Pianoforte," in the provinces. Her performance at Faversham, in Kent, on the 29th of November, was eminently successful. She was assisted by Miss Edith Wynne, Mr. Lawler, Mr. Emil Pitt; and her programme—an excellent selection from the works of Handel, Beethoven, Mozart, Weber, Rossini, Meyerbeer, Thalberg, and other distinguished composers—gave great delight to the crowded audience who filled the spacious hall of the institute.

THE THEATRES.

The new drama at Sadler's Wells has attracted more attention than we had expected. Mr. Edward Stirling has certainly had difficulties in the way of constructing a good drama out of Miss Braddon's novel of "Lady Audley's Secret;" but he has not successfully overcome them. The development is intricated too much to merely dramatic purposes, and the interest is not sufficiently sustained. The rapidity of movement in the first part is unnatural, and the scenes in which Madame Catherine atrocious, yet Miss Bellair obtained some effects that might have been produced by a less violent style of acting. Altogether, much applause. Mr. Cowper as Plornpicat was very effective; and in the second act he becomes more than usually natural but suppressed affection which he feels for Marcia Denison—a character that is well sustained and publicly played by Miss Leigh. The comic underplot goes off admirably, the passages between Lieutenant Cashcove (Mr. R. H. Brookes), Dorothy Tringcod (Miss Minnie Byrne), and Adolphus Frederick Tringcod (Mr. Lionel Brough) abound with pathos and humour, and admirably noted by all parties. The scene in which Lemon Fane stimulates her brother to the murder of Arthur Holroyd (Mr. E. F. Edgar) might have been better written and acted. There are in it the elements of a great situation, and a tragic struggle, equal to that between Lady Macbeth and the tempted Thane; but Lemon's passion does not rise to the occasion. Altogether, the play goes well, and will fill the stage admirably until Christmas.

At the New Royalty a young lady, under the name of Miss Kendal, has appeared in the character of Julia, in "The Hunchback," Pauline, in "The Lady of Lyons," and Portia, in "The Merchant of Venice." She is more practised than the generality of juvenile actress. She has been supported by Mr. Ryder and Mr. H. Vandenhoff.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

4th Prussian Guards: M. S. Prior to be Cornet, 5th Hussars, vice Hilding Master T. Miller to be Lieutenant, by purchase.

8th Hussars: Lieut. F. Quelch to be Adjutant, 14th; Quartermaster-Sergt. Kerr to be Quartermaster, 14th: Lieuts Sorg, Gray, Boyer, J. Harrod to be Riding Masters.

Royal Artillery: Staff Assist. Surg. G. A. Carridge to be Assistant Surgeon.

Royal Engineers: Lieut. Hon. A. Stanley to be Captain, vice Fraser, dead.

4th Foot: Ensign A. A. Cobb to be Lieutenant, vice E. L. Mowatt, to be Ensign, 11th: Ensigns G. V. Meredith and T. A. Rumble to be Lieutenants, vice Cudmore, dead: Lieut. and Adjutant H. Wilson to be Captain, vice F. M. H. Jones, to be Adjutant-Surgeon, vice Lieut. R. E. Stannard to be Captain, vice Wilson: Lieut. Hon. C. Hamilton to be Lieutenant: A. E. Smith to be Ensign; Staff Assist. Surg. F. Bell, from 2nd Foot, to be Assistant Surgeon, vice Lieut. R. E. Stannard: Lieut. J. W. Bankhead to be Adjutant, vice Wilson: Lieut. A. H. Boyd to be Lieutenant, vice Bankhead: Ensign J. Hamilton to be Lieutenant, vice Boyd: Lieut. and Adjutant J. W. Bankhead to be Lieutenant, C. H. Wilson, R.A., to be Captain, vice Bankhead: Staff Assist. Surg. A. Fraser, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon, vice Bell: Assistant-Surgeon J. Bell, from 4th Foot, to be Assistant-Surgeon, vice Fraser, M.D., to be Assistant-Surgeon, vice Bell: Ensign R. A. C. Campbell to be Lieutenant, vice Hamilton: Ensign J. Hamilton to be Lieutenant, vice Campbell: Ensign A. Tupper, M.D., to be Assistant-Surgeon, vice Bell: Ensign A. C. Hamilton to be Lieutenant, vice Tupper, M.D.: Lieut. J. Bell to be Adjutant, vice Hamilton: Assistant-Surgeon J. Bell to be Surgeon, vice Bell.

2nd West India Regiment: Lieut. J. Busby to be Lieutenant, 4th: Lieut. W. Grimes to be Lieutenant, 4th, vice Busby.

Royal Canadian Rifles: Lieut. Hon. A. Stanley to be Captain, vice Fraser, dead.

UNATTACHED.—Lieut. J. Bennett to be Captain: Ensign G. Nolan to be Lieutenant.

BREVET.—Lieut.-Colonel Hon. Sir Augustus Nevill, K.C.B., Admiral, to be Major-General.—Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Arthur Cotton, Bengal Engineers, Companion of the Bath, for highly meritorious services during the late operations of Sir Henry Durand in Bhotan.—Lieut. Arthur A. de Salis, 43rd Foot, to be Lieutenant-Colonel.

ERRATA.

Lieut.-Gen. C. E. B. Gordon, R. A., to be Colonel, vice Lieut.-Gen. C. Hood to be Colonel.

Quartermaster-Sergt. Gill, 2nd Foot, to be Riding Master, vice Quartermaster whilst serving as superintendent of the Fire Brigade at Aldershott.

ROYAL MILITARY ASYLUM.

Royal Marine Light Infantry: Col. Sconce Commandant H. Marriott to be Colonel-Commandant: Capt. J. A. Fremantle, R.N., to be Colonel Commandant: Capt. Hon. F. C. Dalrymple to be Lieutenant-Colonel: First Lieut. J. Galbraith to be Captain: Second Lieut. J. Hall to be First Lieutenant.

Commander J. J. Rudmose to be Commander-in-Chief.

Mr. H. W. Westermeyer, Mr. T. H. Jordan, and Mr. J. W. Smeet to be First-Class Assistant Engineers in the Royal Navy.

His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief held a levee on Wednesday.

Colonel G. W. Wood, Royal Engineers, has been appointed by the Duke of Cambridge to command the Royal Engineers in Ireland, in succession to Colonel Sir A. Cotton, who has been appointed to the command of the Royal Engineers in Madras.

VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The competition to decide which small-bore rifles should be used in the second stage of the Queen's prize next year, at Wimbledon, came off lately at the Hythe range, and was won by Mr. Metford, of Hythe, three entries—namely, the Birmingham Small-arms Company, with the Whitworth, Mr. Henry, with the Enfield, and Mr. Metford, with a rifle taken last year to be generally esteemed. Mr. Rigby was disqualified from shooting, as he had entered his rifle after the appointed time. The competition was for the rifle specified, in that for the Queen's prize, to be used at Wimbledon next year. The day was won by the Whitworth, the mean radial deviation of the three shots fired with it being 1.5 inches, that of Mr. Metford's, 2.24, and Mr. Henry's, 2.11.

The first of a series of twelve competitions for the new gold champion badge of the West Middlesex Rifles, and for the silver champion badge of the Victoria Rifles, took place on Saturday last at the Acton Common, the gold badge was won by Private Gurney, Acton, and the silver badge by Private C. Hall, after shooting off a tie with Lieutenant Harrison. Private Gurney has now won three twelve months' champions of the corps for the encouragement of rifle-practice throughout the year, the contests for which are to be decided entirely in each month, the prizes to become the absolute property of the members who win the greatest number of times in the year.

A most exciting contest took place at the range of the North Middlesex Rifles, at Enfield, on Saturday last, on the 500 yds. range, between members of the corps, for the final possession of the beautiful challenge cup, which is valued at 100 guineas, and which has been won three times by Lord Fermoy and Mr. Harvey Lewis three members for the borough (Marylebone), have also been competing for the cup ever since it was first presented for once a month during a period of twelve months; no member to be allowed to compete who has not attended at least twelve times in all, and he should be finally competed for by the members who had been successful in the previous monthly competitions. The final competition last week, in front of Private J. Thornton (No. 1 company).

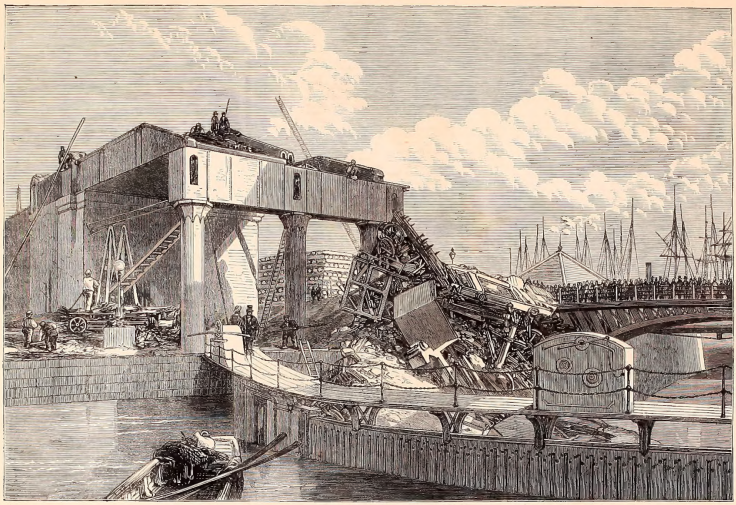
The prizes, which have been won by the members of the London Rifle Brigade in the course of their annual shooting competition were distributed last Saturday by Colonel Lord Elcho, M.P., at the Wormwood Scrubbs, under the command of the regiment. The Handel orchestra at the Crystal Palace was the scene of the distribution of the prizes to the winners in a prominent place in company with a fine set of silken colours presented to the Brigade by Lord Elcho, and which were carried by two of the Majors on each side of the dais. Two strong companies of marksmen and prize winners were formed in front of the platform, and the remainder of the corps, in their under arms, on the left. The prizes were distributed in the name of the head of the brigade played various selections in honour of the occasion. The company at the luncheon was then entertained by presenting five medals of the order cups with prizes for good attendance, and eighty marksmen received badges for their skill in shooting during the season. Previous to being shooting, the exposition of which was made much more difficult during the current year, owing to the new size of the targets and the increasing the number of hits necessary for qualification.

The battalion and officers' prizes of the 1st Administrative Battalion Tower Hamlets were distributed, last Saturday, by Mrs. Beaton, wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Beaton, M.P., commander of the battalion, at St. Mary's School-room, Whitechapel. The prizes, which consisted of a very handsome silver cup, presented by Mrs. Beaton, together with other articles of value, were tastefully arranged, and displayed on a table upon a raised dais. Much amusement was caused by one prize—that for steadiness—the election of the winner, therefore as intending Benedict, why, on coming up to receive it, he was greeted with loud cheers.

The annual inspection of the Inns of Court Rifle Volunteers took place, on Saturday last, in Lincoln's-inn-fields Park. The day was not through the musical exercises, went through some sharp skirmishing practice and other manœuvres, under the direction of Lieutenant-Colonel Shore; and the blank firing, both as skirmishers and in line, deserved especial commendation. The inspection took place in the admirable way in which it was conducted. The final movement was an advance in line in review order, with fixed bayonets, and a charge at the double, when the whole battalion of Volunteers, Colonel Shore, adjutant, the battalion, and the band, proceeded to the Holborn-hill entrance of the park.

The Marchioness of Downshire presented the prizes to the successful competitors in the London Irish corps, last Saturday, at Burlington House, in the presence of a large number of spectators.

The annual distribution of prizes to successful competitors in the 19th Middlesex Rifle Volunteers took place, last week, in Westminster, in the presence of a large number of spectators, Lieutenant-Colonel Hughes, M.P., the commanding officer, presiding. Lieutenant-Colonel Hughes was followed by Colonel Erskine, Inspector-General of Volunteers, and other officers. Colonel Erskine briefly addressed the meeting on the formation of the corps.



Last Saturday the annual distribution of prizes to the 5th Surrey took place in the drill-shed at the head-quarters of its regiment, Dial-place, Kennington-lane. There was a large attendance. The Hon. W. Ashley, the commander of the corps, presided, and distributed the prizes presented by Lieutenant-Colonel Hughes, M.P., and a number of the local gentry.

The members of the 4th Middlesex Rifle Volunteers held their annual field-day, on Tuesday week, in Blenheim Park. After proceeding by train to Hillingdon-heath station, the corps marched to the park and assembled in it, driving an invisible enemy before them. Having dislodged his outposts from their first position, they then advanced in line, and on the enemy making an encounter his main force, on the high ground in front of the palace—the spot where the battle of Blenheim was fought—the commanding officer, Major Hall, who was then formed in column and marched past the Lord Lieutenant, on the usual manner.

An important shooting-match took place last Saturday, on the ground of the 1st Dumbartonshire Volunteers, at Alder's Green, at which a contest between ten representatives of No. 9 company of the 1st Manchester, and ten of the Dumbartonshire, for a handsome silver cup, presented by the officers of the latter corps, was decided in favour of the Manchester battalion. No. 9 won the match by 52 marks over Heywood and 73 marks over Bonhill. The Manchester representatives were respectively 1, Sergeant Bell; 2 Heywood, 399; and Oldham, 388. This is the eighth match that has taken place between No. 9 company and the 1st Lanarkshire. The first was won by the latter company: the remainder were won by the former.

It is announced that the directors of the Star Insurance Company, with whom the life of Mr. Gordon, who has been hanged in Jamaica, was insured for £2000, have unanimously resolved to pay over the amount at once to his widow.

The court-martial or military investigation in the case of Count d'Aldenburg, for the manslaughter of Eugene Ott, has ended in a sentence of seven months' imprisonment, and the Prussian officer is condemned to retire modest reclusion in a federal fortress.

SCENE OF THE RAILWAY ACCIDENT AT SWANSEA.

THE FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT AT SWANSEA.

THE accident which happened, on Wednesday week, close to the Swansea terminus of the Vale of Neath Railway, was one of a very remarkable kind. It appears that the railway there passes over an iron drawbridge, constructed on the telescopic principle, across the lock of the North Dock; this bridge being made with a movable portion in the centre, which may be withdrawn or replaced at discretion, by the power of one of Sir W. Armstrong's hydraulic engines, so as to open the entrance to the dock for the passage of shipping. At six o'clock that morning, when the coal-trains were about to pass, as usual at that hour of the day, the bridge was left open. The line is worked by the most simple and efficient code of signals that modern science and railway engineering could devise; yet, by some strange and inexcusable negligence upon the part of the signalman, on this occasion the signals were made to give information precisely the reverse of the truth. The bridge, we have stated, was open at the time, but the signalman, instead of telegraphing to this effect, gave the signal "line clear." The consequence, of course, was that the train of twenty-three coal-trucks rushed on, and, upon reaching the bridge, fell over into the lock below. The two men on the engine, the driver and stoker, were killed on the spot. The "red" or danger signal was seen by the guard, who was at the end of the train; and it is reasonable to suppose that the men on the engine must have seen it. The red light is inevitably shown when the bridge is open, as the result of the mechanical arrangements of the bridge, and is not in any way dependent upon the attention or inattention of the servants of the company. The bridge is not affected by the accident, and the traffic on the line was resumed in a few hours. John Howells, the signalman, was taken into custody, and will have to stand a trial for manslaughter. Our illustration is from a photograph by Mr. Gulliver, of Swansea.

DESTRUCTION OF COMPTON HOUSE, CHURCH-STREET, LIVERPOOL, BY FIRE.—SEE PAGE 565.

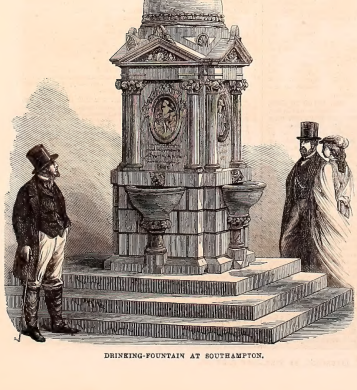
THE MONUMENT OF PRINCE EUGENE AT VIENNA.

THE inhabitants of the Austrian capital were gratified with a splendid festival on Oct. 18, when the Emperor and Empress presided at the inauguration of the bronze statue of Prince Eugène of Savoy, the famous military commander, who led the armies of the Empire, in alliance with the English under the Duke of Marlborough, during the war against Louis XIV. By ten o'clock in the morning of that day, the weather being fine, the temporary galleries or tribunes on the outer "Burg Platz" were completely filled, although it had been announced in the Wiener Zeitung that the ceremony of unveiling the statue would not begin till eleven. As the clock struck the hour mentioned hour the Emperor and Empress, who were accompanied by their two children and several Archdukes, entered the Imperial box, and almost at the same time a great number of officers of rank took possession of the open space in front of it. The galleries to the right and left of the Imperial box were occupied by the great dignitaries of the State, foreign Ministers, high employés, and other persons of note. A kind of "cockloft" at the back of the gallery on the right was set apart for the representatives of the press, and there they had the pleasure of standing, no seats having been provided for them, for two hours, or thereabouts. Behind the statue was posted the "Männer-gesangverein" (Society of Male Singers), who sang a Lied, by M. Weilen, which begins with the words, "Prince Eugène, the noble knight!" and ends with "Austria for ever, for ever!" While the curtains which surround the statue were being withdrawn, there was a great firing of guns and sounding of trumpets, and when the operation was completed "Te Deum" was sung by the choristers of the Court chapel. After the Archbishop of Vienna had consecrated the statue, the Emperor and his suite went to examine it. His Majesty is said to have expressed to M. von Fernkorn, the sculptor, his perfect satisfaction with it; but it is not considered so good as that of the late Archduke Charles, a companion statue erected in the Burg Platz some years ago. The figure of Prince Eugène, who was really a small, spare man, has been made too bulky and massive; and the horse's tail has been pronounced quite monstrous. The pedestal, on which are several inscriptions, is very elegant. Among them are the words Rochstädt (Bienheim), Malplaquet, and Oudenarde, at which places Prince Eugène fought side by side with the Duke of Marlborough. In the evening a piece called "The Battle of Oudenarde" was played in the Burg Theatre; and we may remark that, in this drama, Prince Eugène is made to say that the victory was mainly due to his distinguished ally and friend, the Duke of Marlborough.



STATUE OF PRINCE EUGENE AT VIENNA.

NEW DRINKING-FOUNTAIN AT SOUTHAMPTON.

THE town of Southampton has been adorned by the erection of a handsome drinking-fountain and cattle-trough, the gift of Mr. Councillor Ransom, on the plot of common ground at the entrance to the Avenue. In this spot, which, before the introduction of railways, was the centre of a large amount of the road traffic proceeding to and from Southampton, formerly existed an ancient pond, known as the "Cross Pond," which both man and beast found a very convenient and refreshing bathing-place. Some years since the pond was filled up; and Mr. Ransom, who is in the habit of passing the place daily, seeing repeated evidences of the necessity of providing a similar convenience, conceived the idea of presenting to the town the beautiful fountain and trough shown in our Illustration. Mr. Poole, the architect, was instructed to prepare a design, which was laid before the Council some time since by Mr. Alderman Coles, upon whose application the Corporation unanimously granted permission for the erection of the fountain on that portion of the public lands pointed out by Mr. Ransom. The design having been approved of, the work was placed in the hands of Mr. Stevens, by whom it has been most satisfactorily carried out. The fountain, which is of Corinthian design, is raised on a concrete and brick foundation, approached by three graduated steps, and bordered by a handsome tesselated or mosaic tile pavement, the basement being channel-surfaced, with a weathered plinth and plain band. Each side is furnished with a moulded base supported by marble shafts with Portland stone caps and bases. The structure is capped by an enriched cupola dome, terminating with a richly-carved four-armed cross, indicative of "Cross Pond," or cross roads. On each face is an elliptic moulded and sunk medallion panel, with figure carvings in high relief, representing the four seasons, the festoons over which are carved with characteristic foliage, as are also the capitals. The supply of water, both at the fountain and troughs, will be constant and abundant. The structure has a very attractive appearance, and is a highly creditable specimen of artistic skill.

DRINKING-FOUNTAIN AT BARBADOES.

THE erection at Bridgetown, Barbadoes, of the first drinking-fountain that has been sent hence to the West Indies was completed on the 2nd ult. Its design, by Mr. J. F. Bentley, architect, is cleverly treated in an adaptation of the Early English style of Gothic; and Mr. T. Earp has skilfully executed the structure, which is 24 ft. high, and mainly composed of Portland stone, the basin being of Derbyshire grey bird's-eye marble, the columns of Cornish green serpentine marble, and the spirelet of Whitehaven red stone, with a corona in Portland stone. On a bronze plate surrounding the water-jet is an exhortation from Bishop Ken's Doxology, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." The spaces between the columns, the quatrefoil panels, and cornice are inlaid with Minton's and Maw's encaustic and glazed tiles, in harmoniously-varied colours; the bosses in the spandrils being of opaque green glass; and a delicately-carved string-course of diaper pattern runs beneath the weathering of an octagonal spirelet, the casts of the lower portion of which are slightly splayed inwards to enhance the effect of chiaroscuro. Water-plants, melon, and pineapples are conventionally represented in richly sculptured capitals and finials; allegorical figures, in alto-relievo, of the cardinal virtues ornament the cusped tympana in the canopy, having gilded back-grounds; and additional interest is given to the symbolism by familiar maxims (incised in Gothic lettering) from the Bible, as well as from the poets Shakspeare and Campbell. Thus, for Temperance (on front of the fountain), "Be sober-minded"—temperate in all things; for Prudence, "Look to the end"—weighing results; for Justice, "Do wrong to none;" for Fortitude, "To bear is to conquer." Within an incised band of decoration encompassing the base is stated that, "For the benefit of thirsty wayfarers, this drinking-fountain was presented to the city of Bridgetown, in the year 1864."

DRINKING-FOUNTAIN AT SOUTHAMPTON.

DRINKING-FOUNTAIN AT BARBADOES.

FLINT IMPLEMENTS FOUND IN IRELAND.

We have been favoured by Mr. George Morant, jun., of Shirley House, Carrickmacross, with the following letter :—"In a recent Number of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS reference was made to a treatise by Mr. N. Whitley, 'The Flint Implements from Drift not Authentic.' If the author would argue, as may be inferred, that all chipped flints, whether of the St. Acheul types or such as have been discovered in the cave of Brunigeal and elsewhere, are merely accidents of nature, I can give you what I venture to think good proof that he is wrong. There is, about five miles hence, a lake called Ballybeg, into the centre of the principal bog of which Langfield, and through which runs the River Glyde or Logan. This river has deepened the bed of Wilkin's mountain stream, and the sides of the lake were thereby exposed to a depth of several feet beyond the former water-level. The lake is situated like a horseshoe, and the central peninsula is a flat turf bog, with a greasy coating of some acres in extent, and which has never been brought into cultivation. It is thickly strewn both above and below the surface with the stumps and stems of large trees, the roots of which, and sometimes the trees themselves, lie in the lake—even at the lowest summer level. The boggy shores slope down to the water and are indented by its action into numerous small bays. Flint is not found naturally in this part of Ireland; nevertheless, in certain spots on the shores of this peninsula we have picked up and dug out of the bog several hundreds of flint and chert implements, comprising arrow-heads of highly-finished types, spearheads, scrapers, and other articles, together with two perfect celts or hatchets, several broken 'celts,' a few bones, a boar's tusk, and a glass bead. We have found the flints for the most part just beneath the sod; others deeper in the bog, and generally with a thin layer of stones and gravel above them. One hatchet was in the act of being cut, a lay with its sharp edge just appearing through the declivity of the boggy soil, water-washed at the wider level, and close to the remains of a large tree. The varieties of flint-flakes are numerous, the greater number being of the ordinary 'pressure' type. The lake are two well-developed 'crannoges,' or artificial islands, in one of which we have found some fine specimens of bronze pins. There are indications of other lake-dwellings, one of which is at the spot where the river debouches from the lake. This was the scene of several battles—one in early times between the Danes and the Irish, and again when Lord Gray and the forces of Elizabeth were victorious over the Irish under Tyrone. It would be impossible to persuade anyone who had found, as we have, these flint implements, whether lying on the surface of the boggy margin of the lake or in the bog itself undisturbed for who can say how many ages, that they were accidents of nature, and not worked and brought to the spots where we found them by the hand of man. Many of these flints exactly resemble those found at Brunigeal; nearly all are less rude than those from the drift at St. Acheul. How they got there is a question which I think may be solved in two ways. Red deer (their horns were found at all levels), bear, and wolf, whose bones were having been driven into this thickly-wooded peninsula, were slain with their weapons, and taken by the ancient Hibernians, Picts, fugitives from battle, seeking refuge in the dense forest or in the lake-dwellings, were struck down as they fled, and the flints and arrows whose well-wrought flint tips we have had the good fortune to recover from the shores of this interesting and mysterious lake, I have the pleasure to send you sketches of some of our 'finds.'"

FLINT IMPLEMENTS FOUND IN IRELAND.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE turf aristocracy still continue their dreary labours; but little is to be chronicled from the commencement of the season, except large stakes amount to £260,767. This sum has been divided among nearly 400 owners; but a lottery has been very partial in her favours, as three of them draw no less than £59,445. Of the 816 winning horses, 228 are two-year-olds, 245 threes, 175 fours, 46 fives, and 53 aged. The number of horses that have won one hundred of the stakes, has been won by the stock of three sires—Stockwell, Monarque, and Newminster. Skimmer came back from Hanover, whither he departed in 1861, to Mr. Blenkiron's paddocks. Blair Athol, who, as a whole-coloured colt by Stockwell, will be one of the Eltham sale yearlings next June. Ecrivi, his dam, is twenty-two years old, and not in foal at present. Newminster left forty-two foals in England, and seventeen of them have been winners, the best of them Crisis, Chanter, and Zanbeel. "Little Black," as he was always called, will have a great chance at Eltham, when the four mares are located. Sir Lydston Newman intends, now that the Derby Stakes are no longer to be run for, to offer his yearlings for sale on Hampton-green, after her Majesty's yearlings are disposed of at Mr. Blenkiron's. Considerable is now in the Shefford-lane stud; those who desire Union Jack can have him for 1000 gs.; and Carnival is the name by which the late Mr. Merry's Hooton Park.

The racing season of 1866, which opens, first permitting, with the new year at Manchester, is full of promise. There are already upwards of sixty weeks to the Chester Cup, and the Northampton week will be filled up by a Windsor spring meeting. Doncaster, Newmarket, and other properties have been secured, unfortunately clashes with Warwick; and Croxton Park, instead of following, will precede Northampton. There will be two handicap hurdle-races at Doncaster, and it seems that the public money at the two meetings will amount to nearly £3000. The further changes in "Saunders v. White" will be a warning to welchers that London juries have a very small amount of sympathy for them, and that, if they do not wish to travel back baskets and sockets to London, they and their loyal Administration pins should not venture inside a stand inclosure.

No less than £600 was added to the three days' sport at Croydon, and as the rent of the land was £180, and the wet weather a terrible drawback to attendance, the lessee could not have had a great time of it. L'Africain seemed none the worse for his 120-mile walk; but, owing to the tottering of a pole, he nearly fell in his first race. A blind drain, which had proved "a trap" for one brave already, sent him down in a heap next day in the middle of a field, and he strained himself so severely into the bargain, that it may be some time before he can walk back to Wales again. Of course his friends say, with an eye to Liverpool, that he was dead beat; and mutuals quote a trainer who was near the spot and considered that he was going like a winner when he fell. The ground will be changed next time, and the dreary third day abandoned. It is said that the referee in the "pounding" match recommends that the stakes should be lowered from £5000 to £1000 a-side. Sir Frederick Johnstone has a stable of nineteen horses to choose from, and Mr. Jackson six. If it does come off, it will be a very "do-or-die" affair, as two more defrauded men should go into a saddle.

The "Lays" of the Birmingham Show are the first occupants of a new hall, which has cost about £9000 in its erection. The growth of the show has been very great, as the entries in ninety-days in 1859, to 781 in the present year. Mr. Coven's Druid takes the blue-and-hound dog prize for the fourth year in succession; and Ashley, last year's first-prize dog, retires, as a class of sixteen greyhounds, by Major Robertson's Ocean. The Warwickshire and Mr. Oswald Mills win all the fox-hound prizes; Newman's Bill carries off all the otter-hound prizes; and fox-terriers are in great force, with abundance of Jock blood amongst them. In the English champion setter class two dogs are bracketed for first prize, a plan which might be oftener pursued with advantage. Among the pointers and setters Mr. Jackson's Dash is very great, as usual, and his Wyndham is in front of the female class. The Irish setters have been spanelled, and perhaps, on the whole, this was the best part of the exhibition. King Dick is, of course, head of the champion bull terrier class; and among the curiosities of the show are an Australian dingo and a little foreigner with "hair more resembling sticks of macaroni than any hair common to dogdom."

Lord Augustus W. F. Loftus, her Majesty's Minister at Munich, has been appointed Ambassador at Berlin, in succession to Lord Bodkin. Sir Henry Francis Howard, Minister to Hanover, Brunswick, and Oldenburg, has been appointed Minister at Munich. Sir Charles Lennox Wyke—last employed in Mexico—has been appointed to the mission at Hanover, and will be also accredited to Oldenburg and Brunswick.

THE LATE COTTON FAMINE.

THE final meeting of the Executive Central Relief Committee was held in the Manchester Townhall on Monday—Lord Derby presiding. The executive committee presented the following report to the general committee, and it was unanimously adopted :—

At the meeting of the general committee in March last a hope was expressed that the distress which existed during the summer months entirely to diminish the distribution of relief through the local committees. This anticipation the central executive committee regret to say has not been realised, and since the 19th of June last no grants have been made to the local committees that it will not be necessary to resume the distribution of relief; but, in the still existing distress of the cotton trade, it is thought more prudent to defer the consideration of the disposal of the balance remaining in the treasurer's hands. It is also the opinion of the executive committee that, if it contemplates the extraordinary crisis which has been passed through since 1862. There was then a sudden diminution of crime under circumstances when, from compulsory idleness and poverty, an increase might have been confidently looked for. Statistics have been collected by those who in the early part of the distress expressed their opinion that the distribution of relief through extensive organisation would lead to a permanent increase in the pauperism of the country. Twenty-eight unions prove that the last week in November, 1862, the number of paupers was 24,000. At the last week in November, 1865, the number was 24,000. The number of persons were in receipt of relief, returns have been obtained from 1862, 1863, 1864, and 1865, 130,268 ; 1864, 119,823 ; 1863, 48,307.

Your committee cannot refrain from expressing at this opportunity its highest sense of the credit due to the local committees for the results which it has been their duty to report. To the self-denial, energy, and judgment

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR JOHN NELTHORPE, BART.

Sir John Nelthorpe, eighth Baronet, of Gray's Inn, in the county of Middlesex, who died on the 20th ult., at his seat, Scawby Hall, Lincolnshire, was the elder son of John Nelthorpe, Esq., of Formby, Lincolnshire, by his second wife, Miss Christiana Brown, and was the grandson of Sir John Nelthorpe, the sixth Baronet. He was born on the 27th of September, 1814, and succeeded to the honours and estates on the demise of his uncle, Sir Henry Nelthorpe, the seventh Baronet, on the 12th of May, 1849. He was High Sheriff of Lincolnshire in 1842. He married, on the 24th of April, 1845, Emma, daughter of the late Rev. Robert Sir Charles Dalbiac Dalbiac, Bart., by whom (who survives him) he leaves no issue. As Sir John's only brother, Henry, an officer in the 10th Lancers, died unmarried, in 1840, and as there is no near male relative of the family, the Baronetcy has become extinct in 1866, and the old and honourable house of Nelthorpe of Scawby, which dates from Henry II., will become extinct, unless, indeed, there be still existing any male descendant of the younger sons of the ancient house of Nelthorpe, the second Baronet, one of whom, Richard Nelthorpe, was a goldsmith in London. Charlotte, the only daughter of the Baronet last named, married, in 1847, to the Rev. Robert Scott, M.A., Rector of Bletchley, Bucks.

BARON DUNSANDLE.

The Hon. Thomas Robert Dundas, fourth Baron Dunsdale, of the Russian empire, died at his seat, Camelot-place, Hythe, on the 21st ult. The Dundases are an old Herefordshire family. The first Baron Dunsdale, however, was an eminent physician, whose skill in inoculating for the smallpox was as well known throughout Europe that he was invited, in 1767, by Catherine II., Empress of Russia, to visit her dominions, and the operation on herself, the Czarowitch, and other members of the Imperial family. The invitation he accepted, though such was the risk supposed to attend the operation that the Russian nobles were last by command of the Empress, and a vessel of war was sent to bring him back in case of any fatal failure. When his success was established the Empress evinced her gratitude by treating her visitor with marked distinction, by appointing him Councillor of State and physician to her Majesty. He and his son were ennobled, and the latter, in which the reign reigning Sovereign in England, George III., conferred upon him the honour of the peerage, the prefix of Honourable was granted at the request of the Empress. Thomas Robert, fourth Baron, the subject of this notice, was the eldest son of Robert, the third Baron, by his wife Fiscella, eldest daughter of Thomas Bell, Esq., of Beverley, co. York. He was born on the 5th of August, 1798, and succeeded at Coulsdon in 1841, as second Baron, in 1849. Lucinda, eldest daughter of Henry Manning, Esq., of Wexford House, Dawn, and the issue were two sons and four daughters. The elder son, Robert Charles, born 1826, a Lieutenant 16th Lancers, married Jemima Anne, youngest daughter of Sir James Lamond, K.C.B., he died in 1858, leaving an issue. The Baron's second son, Henry Fraser, born 1828, was Cornet in the 11th Hussars, and died in 1857 from the effects of a fall received in the Crimea. The Baron's daughters were all married; they are Lucinda, married to George Darby Griffith, Esq., Major R.H. 9th Light Dragoons, who died in 1847; Jessie, married to the Rev. Henry Dawnes, Rector of Great Munden, who died in 1861, nephew of the Prime Minister the Right Hon. Spencer Perceval; and Fiscella Bicket, married to John Walter Tarleton, Esq., Captain R.N. C.B., who died in 1862. The Baron's brother-in-law, Sir Thomas Wilde, was created by Daniel Henry Dundas, Esq., Minister to the Argentine Republic, and Lady Lucinda Lascars. Baron Dunsdale was a J.P. and D.L. for the county of Hertford and Lieut.-Col. of the Local Militia, and a magistrate also for Essex; and was High Sheriff of the latter county in 1859. His two sons having died without issue in his lifetime, the title passes to his only brother, Charles John, now Hon. Baron Dunsdale, of Essendon-place, Herts, who was born on Feb. 12, 1801, and married, Nov. 12, 1826, Jemima, daughter of the late Joseph Hargrave, Esq., a Prebendary of Worcester, and has a son, Robert, born on July 4, 1828.

SIR RICHARD M. BROMLEY, K.C.B.

Sir Richard Mark Bromley, a Commissioner of Greenwich Hospital, who died on the 30th ult., after a lengthened illness, was son of the late Samuel Bromley, Esq., a captain in the Royal Navy, and a Commissioner of Lord Chancellor Bromley (temp. Queen Elizabeth). He was born in 1814, and entered the Royal Navy as a midshipman in 1827, became a lieut. in 1829 and in that rank as a coastguard officer in command of a boat's crew and working of dockyard accounts. He was also accountant to the Surgeons' Commission during the famine in Ireland; and in 1847 was appointed secretary to the Audit Commissioners, and constantly acted on Special Committees for inquiring and reporting public accounts. Appointed in 1851 Secretary to the Board he was made a C.B. He became Accountant-General of the Navy in 1856, and administered that department during the Crimean War. In recognition of his valuable services he was made, in 1858, a Civil K.C.B. He retired from the office of Accountant on the 31st of March last, and on the 1st March of that year he was appointed a commissioner of Greenwich Hospital, in succession to Sir Francis Beaufort, who had held the office since its foundation. He married, in 1845, Miss Moser, daughter of Robert Moser, Esq., a barrister-at-law, and leaves a family. He was buried in Kensal's dead-house and deservedly regretted.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL PHILIPS, R.M.

Lieutenant-General John Alexander Philips, a very gallant and distinguished officer of the Royal Marines, who died on the 23rd ult., at his residence near Sandhurst, after a painful illness, entered at a very early age the Royal Navy, soon after his brother, Admiral Philips, had won the rank of Commodore. He was born in 1787, and was settled for many years at Montrose in Scotland. John Alexander, the subject of this notice, was at Middlepman on board the Belleisle, Captain Hargood, at the glorious Battle of Trafalgar. He then joined the Royal Marines, and served on board the flagship of three of the enemy's intrenched batteries and the siege of Santa Maura, in 1810, which capitulated to land forces under the command of Colonel Daniels. In 1811 Lieutenant Philips joined the first battalion, and served with it in Spain and in Aquitaine, and was present at the enemy's intrenched camp at Bayonne, in Virginia, and at the capture of Washington. He was subsequently detached to Canada, and acted under Commodore Sir James Yeo on Lake Ontario. In 1814 Lieutenant Philips was Lieutenant-General Phillips was Colonel commanding the Woolwich division of the Royal Marines. By his conduct in the Burmese campaign he won the warmest praise from his commanding officer, Colonel Sir Miles Nightingall, who was killed at the head of the Royal Marine Battalion, and only saved his life at the expense of a severe wound in the face of all the Burmese army, which, though disorganised, he continued his researches, and from Cairo explored Egypt, Syria, Palestine, Asia Minor, and Greece, and made the round the circuit of the Mediterranean. To 1849 the English Government, through the Foreign Office, had no geographical or statistical information of the countries of Central Africa. Colonel Chesney's scientific companion Dr. Richardson was accustomed to terrible fatigue. Both, since, traversed thousands of miles of the African continent, and the latter published within the six years' lieutenant wandering, much valuable information respecting the geography, natural history, political agency, and commercial capabilities of Central African. In 1857 appeared the result of his labours in a very popular work, entitled "Travels in North and Central Africa." The Athenæum also commenced publishing "A Collection of the Vocabularies of Central African Languages," a book which is stopped, in an incomplete state, by his death.

Letters from Belgrade speak of a collision between the Servians and Turkish troops as imminent, a war feeling only existing on the part of the Turks.

The Grand Duke of Baden, who is suffering from a peculiar brain disease, and has gone to Switzerland for change, is reported to be slowly recovering.

The next Treasury Committee appointed at Constantinople will have to consider, among other things, the best mode of utilising the flesh of worn-out horses, and also of increasing the consumption of mutton in the country.

The list of plans deposited at the Private Bill Office of the House of Commons was officially issued on Tuesday. There were, to the 30th ult., 420 plans deposited, and of that number 264 related to railways. The number of private bills will be increased, as copies will be filed without plans. Of the number already lodged, eighteen relate to railways from London to the suburbs. Last year the number of private bills was 305. On or before the 15th inst. all notices on sewers, bridges, and canals must be deposited; and by the end of the month all estimates, declarations, and lists of owners, lessees, and occupiers must be deposited in the Private Bill Office of the House of Commons.—The Private Bill Office of the House of Lords has given notice that copies of all private bills must be lodged in the Private Bill Office on or before the 17th inst., instead of the 23rd, as hitherto.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

R. T. B., Stoke.—Problem 1033 cannot possibly be solved by 1. Q. to E 8q, 2. Kt. to Q B 5th (ch), &c.—Look at the position again and you will soon find out your mistake.

C. Oswald, Bridge.—It stands as one of various solution in Bell's Life move, beginning 1. Kt to Q 8th.

W. GEORGE, Dr. DAVIS, C. W., of Sudbury, Martin, MINOR, LONDON NEWS.—Received, with thanks.

J. W. Mallins.—If "R to R" is incapable of understanding why the Pawn on being advanced one square is entitled to move two, and why it cannot move two at first, he has certainly yet to learn the moves of the chessmen. He should at once procure an elementary treatise, and master those necessary matters, before attempting to solve another problem.

SENEX.—Many thanks. The blank shall have early attention.

NOVICE.—The "Chess Player's Manual" is published by Bell and Daldy, York-street, Covent-garden.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1134 (sanctioned), R. K. J. Schmidt, Magol, Jas. Pentney, Rev. Matthew Bourke, Beccles, F. K. G., Dover, Eley, Gramyre, R. B., Henry Ruth, T. W. M., 1, of Dover; Van Beuth, Dunwich, Veritas, T. Q., of Hemsgarted, R. L. R., Bridge, Dr. Davis, C. W., of Sudbury, Martin, Minor, London News.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1135 (sanctioned), R. K. J. Schmidt, Magol, Jas. Pentney, J. W. Mayfield and Mrs. Pridley, Rev. C. Ord, B. C. L., M. P., Old Sam, Subscriber, W. R., Eta, J. S., Dreamer, Philo-Knight, Eley, Gramyre, Veritas, Devon Dunstan, T. Henry, Beccles, F. K. G., R. B., W. G., Cecil, Wilky, Toby Tyke, R.M.S., Dover, Van Beuth, Dunwich, Rev. Matthew Bourke, Beccles, Rev. C. Ord, Subscriber, Dreamer, Henry Ruth, Dr. Davis, C. W., of Sudbury, Martin, Minor, London News, Gray, Dr. Forell, Old Sall, Hermodr, Violet, W. W. of Oxford, Veritas, C. Stahl, Hemsgarted, R. L. R., Bridge, T. Q., Rev. Matthew Bourke, Beccles, F. K. G., R. B., Eta, Van Beuth, Dunwich, Veritas, Rev. C. Ord, B. C. L., M. P., A. Groppe, Castle, Felix, R. S. G., of Kingston; J. D., Kilkenny, M'Orath, R. S. W., Jodie, A.M., Nereus, Dr. Forell, Old Sall, Hermodr, R. L. R., of Hemsgarted, Violet, W. W., of Oxford, Veritas.

 BRITISH CHESS ASSOCIATION.—The letters of Mr. R. H. Wormald, Mr. Staunton, Mr. Morphy, Mr. Löwenthal, Mr. Horwitz, and Mr. Kling, have been duly received. We hope next week to find room for them. In the mean time, we commend to all those who are interested in the Association the letter of Mr. Wormald, which will be found in our columns—in the present favourable position of the association, which appears in the December number of the Chess World.

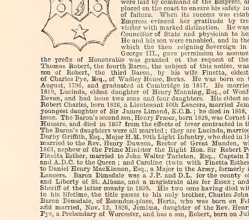
SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1135.



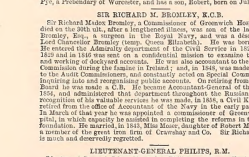
BLACK.	WHITE.
1. B to K 8 sq	1. P to K 4th (discovering ch), and
2. Q to Q 2nd	mates accordingly.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. B to Q 4th	Q R to K 8th	3. Kt to Q 4th	Kt moves
	(best)	4. B to Q R 4th
2. B to K 3rd	Kt takes B	5. B mates

PROBLEM No. 1137.

By Mr. W. COATES.

BLACK.



WHITE.

White, playing first, to mate in three moves.

CHESS IN BERLIN.

The following very elegant little game was played by Messrs. Neumann, De Riviere, and R. Rebedell, against Messrs. V. Knorre, O. Cordel, and A. Gerlach.—(Remove).

WHITE (R. and Rebedell).	BLACK (V. and Gerlach).	WHITE (O. and Cordel).	BLACK (V. and Knorre).
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	(It is somewhat remarkable that, with a position so open as this, Black has yet to make an attack. White are also open to have this rule. We doubt, however, if they could improve upon the following.)
2. P to Q B 4th	P to Q B 4th	12. Kt takes B	B to K 3rd
3. P to Q 4th	P takes P	13. P to Q Kt 3rd	P to Q Kt 3rd
4. P to Q 5th	P to Q Kt 3rd	(Black are capturing material, as usual, to the detriment of their position.)
5. P takes P	P to Q 3rd	14. P to Q 6th	P takes P
6. P to K 5th	Kt to K 2nd	15. P takes P	Q takes P
7. P to Q 6th	P to Q 4th	16. Q to Q 2nd	Q to Q 2nd
8. Kt to K 2nd	P to Q 5th	(Overlooking Black's clever reply. It be has taken the Pawn following a possible continuation—)
9. Kt to K B 3rd	B to Q 3rd	17. Q takes Q	Kt takes Q
10. Kt to Q 5th	Kt to K B 3rd	18. Kt to K 4th	P to Q 3rd
11. P to Q Kt 3rd	P to K 3rd	(If it K takes Kt, then follow B. Q to K 4th, Kt to K 2nd, B to K 3rd, and Black win.)
12. Q to Q 3rd	Q to K B 3rd	19. Kt to K B 6th	Kt to K B 3rd
13. P to K 6th	P to K 4th	20. Kt to K 4th	P takes Kt
14. B to K 5th	Kt to K B 5th	21. Kt to K B 6th (dis. ch.)	K to K B 3rd, and Black win.
15. Q to Q 2nd	Kt to K 2nd	22.
16. Q to Q 3rd	Kt to K B 5th	23. Kt to Q 5th	Kt to K B 6th (ch)
17. Q to Q 2nd	P to K Kt 4th	24. P takes Kt	P takes Kt
18. Kt to Q 5th (dis. ch)		and Black win.

THE PROBLEM TOURNEY OF LE PALAMÈDE FRANCAIS.—A scandal of a very painful nature has arisen on the above composition is just perturbing the chess mind of Paris. Having heard but one side on the subject—that of Messrs. Jaenisch, Harrwitz and his supporters in Le Palamède—we must abstain from expressing any opinion upon the grave charges brought against the Committee of Award. It is to be hoped that the Council will submit that the statements in Le Sphinx, supported as they are by well-known names, will receive from them a full, fair, and impartial investigation, and speedy and penetrating investigation.

BRITISH CHESS ASSOCIATION.—A new chess association is in process of establishment in the eastern counties which gives good promise of success. The objects of the society are to foster and make knowledge and appreciation of the game by affording the members opportunities of friendly encounter with each other, and occasionally by the distinguished players from London and elsewhere, and of encountering the clubs of other towns. The annual subscription is fixed at the moderate sum of 10s. 6d.

The Rev. Thomas Lloyd, Mr. Harrwitz and his opponent in Le Palamède, are most

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

THE CLYFFARDS OF CLYFFE. By the Author of "Dorothy Fox." 3 vols.

ADELE. By Mrs. OLIPHANT. 3 vols. "Superior to any of Mrs. Oliphant's former works."—Athenæum.

PRIDE; or, The Beauty of Mayence. By Sir LASCELLES WRAXALL, Bart. 3 v.

DOCTOR HARDER. By Mrs. GASCOIGNE. 3 v.

CHRONICLES OF HARKMOOR. By Mrs. MARSH. 3 v.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, in 1 vol., with Illustrations, 15s.,

FROM CADET TO COLONEL. Or, Record of a Life of Active Service.

By Major-General the THOMAS SEATON, K.C.B.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

This day, 12mo, gilt edges, post-free, 1s. 6d.,

A KEY ACROSTICS IN PROSE and VERSE.

London: THOMAS BOSWORTH, 215, Regent-street, W.

Now ready, in fcap 8vo, 3s. 6d.,

THE ALCHYMIST; or, Parables in Rhyme.

By ALFRED TOWNLEY, Author of "Dorothy Dodsworth."

London: SAUNDERS, OTLEY, and MARSH, 66, New Bond-street.

CHOICE GIFT-BOOKS.

Illuminated and Illustrated Works.

A Catalogue free on application.

DAY and SON (Limited), 6, Gate-street, London, W.C.

NOW READY, NEW AND REVISED EPIC POEM.

Just published, one handsome vol., 4to, bound paper, 10s. 6d.,

ELIJAH THE PROPHET.

By G. WASHINGTON MOON, F.S.A.L.

London: HATCHARD and CO., 187, Piccadilly, W.

HATCHARD and CO., 187, Piccadilly, London, W., have also the largest stock of Bibles, Prayer-books, and Church Services of any publishers or booksellers in England, including the Polyglot Bible, Illustrated Books for the Table, Juvenile Books, Standard Works, and Books of Reference, in every variety of binding, ancient and modern.

HATCHARD and CO. have also the largest stock of Bibles, Prayer-books, and Church Services of any publishers or booksellers in England, including the Polyglot Bible, Illustrated Books for the Table, Juvenile Books, Standard Works, and Books of Reference, in every variety of binding, ancient and modern.

Seventh Edition, price 3s. 6d., by post 3s. 8d.,

WHIST, THE LAWS AND PRINCIPLES OF. By "CAVENDISH."

BANCKS BROTHERS, 29, Charing-cross, and 57, Cheapside.

This day, price 1s.,

HATCH-UPS; or, STORIES TOLD IN TWO DARK. See "Punch's Christmas Annual for 1865."

Beautifully Illustrated by Leech, Tenniel, Sambourne, and Du Maurier.

Royal 8vo, drawing-room, by F.C. Burnand, Christmas Games, Enlivening Tableaux, &c. Ready Dec. 1.

BRADBURY, EVANS, and CO., 11, Bouverie-street, E.C.

Now ready, the 8th Thousand, post-free, 2s. 6d.,

SOYER'S MODERN HOUSEWIFE, Or, Menagement for the Economical and Fashionable. Published in Imitation of Every Meal of the Day, and for the Nursery and Sick Room. By Mrs. ALEXIS SOYER. With Illustrations and Wood-cuts.

"Should be in the hands of every keeper of a kitchen and larder in the kingdom."—Times.

SOYER'S GASTRONOMIC REGENERATOR; or, System of Cookery for the Kitchens of the Wealthy. With Plates. Ninth Edition. 8vo, 10s. cloth.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, and CO.

PULPIT HELP.—THE HOMILIST. 9d. per part, 6d. per No.

London: W. KENT and CO., Paternoster-row.

Just published, free, price 6d. each,

ON THE MODERN TREATMENT OF SOME DISEASES OF THE SKIN. By J. L. MILTON, Surgeon to the Royal Infirmary for Diseases of the Skin.

London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

Now ready, 18mo. Thousand, 6vo, cloth, 18s.,

HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. DRYSDALE, M.D. Specially adapted for the use of private families, emigrants, and missionaries. An Epitome of the Principles, Practice, and Materia Medica of Homœopathy, subjected to the Test of Experience for 30 Years. "Is, and to the latest period, Light and Rebel, 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st., and 5, St. Paul's-ch.-yard.

Price 9d., post-free, 10d., a superb case, in leather, gilt, 2s. 6d., post-free, 3s.,

CHRISTMAS GIFT.—HOWLETT'S VICTORIA GOLDEN ALMANACK for 1866. This miniature pocket ornament can be had, in 16 pages of appropriate engravings, gold, all the information of the largest pure-book.—London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and CO., Hewlett, 10, Pitt-street, Soho; and all Booksellers.

Just published,

THOS. DE LA RUE and CO.'S INDELIBLE PERPETUAL DIARIES FOR 1866, edited by James Glaisher, Esq., F.R.S., with an Engraving of Lunar Mountains, Price 2s. 6d., post-free, 2s. 8d. Also, THOS. DE LA RUE and CO.'S New Pocket-book for the Year, price 2s. 6d. each, and a great variety of blankings. May be had of all Booksellers and Stationers.

RAPHAEL'S PROPHETIC ALMANACK for 1866, price One Penny, or post-free for Twopence, and Illustrations. In his Almanack for 1866 Raphael predicts of the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Czarina Plague, and the Death in the West Indies.

T. T. LEHARE, 1, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row.

GLENNY'S GARDEN ALMANACK. Seventy-fourth Edition of this popular Work, thoroughly revised and greatly improved. Now ready of publishers far in advance.

T. T. LEHARE, 1, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS. NATIONAL EXHIBITION OF THE HOLY CATHOLIC FAITH. A series of Designs for Church Decoration. 30 full page engravings, 4to, price 1s. 6d., post-free.

A NATIONAL EXHIBITION OF VILLAGE ARCHITECTURE. Parts I and 2, 4to., 2s. 6d. each, post-free, 2s. 8d. each.

LONDON: J. and C. MOZLEY, 6, Paternoster-row.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS for Churches and Houses, Monograms, crystals and other artistic mottoes, on the newest scenes, by O. RASCHEL, 6, Greek-street, Soho-square. The Silver Medal awarded for Illuminated Working, 1862.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ornamental Fans, Ivory Sticks, Tortoise, and Wedding Fans in a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope-cases, Blotting-books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and the NEWEST DRESSING-BAGS, either or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, Dressing Cases. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, 12s. to one hundred, extra large sermons and music books, 12s. to 21s., invoices, visiting, and correspondence. Albums for monograms, crests, and autographs. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and MODEL DIE-PRESSES, designed and engraved on the newest. Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour-relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING-CARD PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, and Note-paper, of the best quality, stamped elegantly with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

GOODALL'S PLAYING-CARDS. New Designs now ready for the present season.

To be had of all Booksellers and Stationers.

GOODALL'S CHRISTMAS STATIONERY, in endless variety and of all prices. Name gratuitous without the trouble.

Manufactory, Camden Town, London, N.W.

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—The Half-yearly Volumes bound in the appropriate Green, with gilt edges, at 7s. each, if not carriage-free 8s. 6d. Cases, 1s.—LEIGHTON, SON, and HODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The only Binders authorised by the Proprietors.

NEW MUSIC.

CRAMER'S GUINEA MUSICAL SUBSCRIPTION enables Subscribers to select and retain at their own property fairly Music published by Cramer and Co. to the value of

FIVE GUINEAS.

This new system is offered to the public under the following limitations:—

1. It is intended for Private Individuals only.

2. Subscribers may select their Five Guineas' worth of Music from any publication issued by Cramer and Co. from the date of Subscription.

3. One copy only of any piece can be furnished during the currency of the Subscription.

4. Subscribers may exchange any piece purchased or returned. S.B. Cramer and Co. desire to have it clearly understood that their new system is not intended to keep, as a rule, every property Five Guineas' worth of their Sheet Music, calculated at the marked prices.

Subscriptions (Number 1, 2, 3, &c.), including Catalogues, 21s.; or 5s. if the Music be sent by post—payable in advance.

Cramer, Beale, and Chappell, 201, Regent-street, and Cramer and Co. (Limited), 50, Regent-street, W.

HANDMAIDS OF IRENE—The confessedly unsound blasphemy of the Rev. Gervase Bushnell's "Irene" for female voices. Price 2s. 6d.

Cramer and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

TRUMPET, BLOW! The grand Chorus, all adapt requests, from Donizetti's "Lucia." Price 2s. 6d.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

DAVID SINGING BEFORE SAUL. This admirable semi-sacred Scena, by ROSELLEN, for all voices, in D, C, and E, Illustrated, 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

NOT ALL FORGOT. The lovely Ballad, as sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, at the end of the season, emphatically.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

MEDJÉ. An Arab Song, just composed, for Madame Rudersdorff, Gardoni, or Santley. By CH. GOUNOD. Illustrated, 4s.

SOLITUDE. An exquisite Pastoral Romance, for Soprano or Tenor. By the composer of GOUNOD. Illustrated, 3s.

THE SYLVAN ECHO. A very pleasing Echo Song by MADDI. Price 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

COURTLY DOVE. Written by Henry Farnie, composer of "Rose of Tyrol." One of the prettiest little Ballad will become the most favourite drawing-room song. Illustrated, 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

THE LEGEND OF TORRINGTON RED. Autumn Song, by W. VINCENT WALLACE. Beautifully Illustrated. 3s. Sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington. Now ever present.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

FATHER OF LIGHTS! Semi-sacred Song, by the late VINCENT WALLACE. Illustrated, 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

HOLY CALM. A PEACE DIVINE. Semi-Sacred Song. By the late VINCENT WALLACE. Illustrated, 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

THE WANDERER. Fine Dramatic Song. Brilliantly Illustrated. Made by MEMBRÉE. Price 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI.—His new Vocal Valse, ILMA, now ready in Cramer's Journal. 3s. A second "Bella."

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI.—His New English Song, as sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington. 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI.—His New Song, DUET, UNA NOTTE A VENEZIA, for all Voices, in Italian and English, as sung by Mdlle. Isabella Ney and Signor Arditi. Illustrated, 3s.

CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street.

KA-FOOZLE-M! The Great New Comic Song. Illustrated. Price 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

EN AVANT. Galop Brillant. FELDER. 3s.

ONDES EN LUMIÈRE. Caprice, ROLLET. 3s.

MA PRIERE POUR TOI. Nocturne. FELDER. 3s.

BRAWLING BROOK. Idyll. FELDER. 3s.

DREAM AT MORN. ROLLET. 4s.

SOUVENIR DE BRIGHTON. Redowa. ROLLET. 3s.

RONDO BRILLANT. ROLLET. 4s.

FLORENCE.—The New Valse, by C. GODFREY, Beautifully Illustrated. Solo or Duet. 4s. The brochure ready on the 4th.

CRAMER and Co., Limited, 201, Regent-street.

THE AMY WALTZ. By J. LEVY. Beautifully Illustrated. 4s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

COUNTRY DANCE RECREATIONS and ARRANGEMENTS, by the best Writers, from CRAMER'S JOURNAL. Numbers 1 to 10, "Pallisses et Bocca," "Sappho," "Le Colonne," &c. For Piano, Solo and Duet. Illustrated.

Each Number is sold for Sixpence, and by all Booksellers.

C. GOUNOD.—In the press, "TOBIAS," a new Oratorio, by GOUNOD. Ready in December. For Voice and Piano. Illustrated.

CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street.

POPULAR MUSIC OF THE OLDEN TIME. A Collection of the Ancient Songs, Ballads, and Dance Tunes of England, with Historical and Critical Notices, and Numerous Illustrations, Musical, Typographical, and Pictorial, now published by the Subscribers to the Percy Society, and for the first time collected into a complete work. In 12 Monthly Volumes, royal 8vo, price 10s. 6d. each. Vol. I. to be published on the 1st of January, 1866. Prospectuses may be had of the Publisher, JOHN PAYNE COLLIER, F.S.A., 24, Old Burlington-street, W.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The 28 Set of Magic Microscopic, and Phantasmagoria Slides, with Lecture, Price 10s. 6d. Dissolving Views, Lectures, and Lanterns, for Sale, Hire, or Exchange. Newly-invented Lanterns, fitted for showing Photographic Portraits; Lanterns, Slides, and Dissolving Views, with changing motion; new phantasmagoria; and one diascope, with view and revolving condenser. Catalogues, 6d. each.—J. SOLOMONS, Optician, Vendor, and Patentee, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by the Microscope, Stereoscope, &c., which will illustrate the features of a man four miles, and line by a church clock ten miles, with the Solar System, Comets, Eclipses, Transits, Meteors, Constellations, and eight sheets of landscapes, by the Author of "Science Simplified," &c. Price 10s. 6d. Sent free by book-post. J. and S. SOLOMONS, Opticians, Vendors, and Patentees, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square. Telescopes Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, invented and manufactured by J. and S. SOLOMONS, and suitable for general purposes, for the Opera, Race, Field, and Marine Glasses. Price 10s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the convenient purpose of the races, and general observations.

J. and S. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

THE MESSRS. SOLOMONS NEWLY-INVENTED TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including the late Viscount Palmerston. They give by day and night extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision.—21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

DEAFNESS.—THE SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. Its fine tone and great power will restore singing voices in the head, and deafness and noises in the ears. Sent post-free, with all particulars, 4s. and 8s. SOLOMONS, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

NEW MUSIC.

TANNHAUSER. By RICHARD WAGNER, The Opera complete, for the Pianoforte, Solo, price 7s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.—CHADRILLES, VILLAGE ROSE, by MICHAEL WATSON. FLOWERS OF BEAUTY, by DALLWOOD. LOVE'S DREAMS, by MARRIOTT. All the preceding are melodious, danceable, easy, and effective. As Solos, post-free for 24 stamps each. Duet for Two Performers, for 30 stamps.

London: J. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

NEW SONG. BEAUTIFUL DEAR OLD VILLAGE. Poetry and Music by J. W. CHERRY. This charming Song is published in three keys, for Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, or Tenor. 24 stamps.—J. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

Second Edition.

IN THE HOUR OF TRIAL, by Mrs. HENRY RUSSELL, price 2s., may be had, post-free, at half price of HALE and CO., 70, Dean-street, Soho, W.

Second Edition.

THE BICESTER HUNT GALOP. By MINNIE. Beautifully Illustrated. Post-free 2s. HALE and CO., Professional and Music Warehouse.

Just published,

THE WAYS OF HEAVEN, Sacred Song. Sir Sterndale Bennett in the Key B, M. Lux., Composer of "O could I learn indifference." So. Post-free, 18 stamps. Also, by the same Composer,

THE LOVE OF GOD, St. Andrew's Day.

CHEAP MUSIC LIBRARY, 21s. per year; six months, 12s.; three months, 7s.; or for town subscribers 1s. per week. 28, Mortimer-st., Cavendish-sq., Oxford-street, W. All New Music half price.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited).—Their new Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, will be opened on the 1st of December, at the end of that period, in addition to Pianettes, at 45 gns. per annum; Pianettes, at 21 gns. per annum; Cottage Pianos, at 30 gns. per annum; Cottage Pianos, at 42 gns. per annum; Oblique Pianos, at 63 gns. per annum. All these Pianofortes will be from the manufactory of Cramer, Beale, and Chappell, 201 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. HIRE OUT HARMONIUMS on the Three-years' System.

CRAMER and CO. EXTEND their THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE to all parts of the kingdom. Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE all kinds of PIANOFORTES, from 21s. per month. Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) exhibit the most complete assortment of Pianofortes in London, by all the most eminent Makers, at which they may select the very finest instruments.

Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S PIANETTES. These favourite Instruments are now in stock at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, in Rosewood, Walnut, and Mahogany, Trichord Treble, 25 guineas; in Black Walnut, 26 guineas; in Figured Walnut, 28 guineas; in Rosewood, 29 guineas; in Rosewood, with Trichord Treble, 30 guineas; in Solid Oak, 31 guineas; in Solid Oak, with Trichord Treble, 32 guineas; in Rosewood, Check Action, 35 guineas; in Rosewood, with Trichord Treble, 36 guineas; in Rosewood, with Trichord Treble, Check Action, and Trichord Bass, 42 guineas; in Figured Oak, with Trichord Treble, Check Action, and Trichord Bass, 45 guineas; in Rosewood, with Trichord Treble, Check Action, and Trichord Bass, 50 guineas; in Rosewood, with Trichord Treble, Check Action, and Trichord Bass, and Trichord Middle, 60 guineas; in Rosewood, with Trichord Treble, Check Action, and Trichord Bass, and Trichord Middle, and Trichord Bass, 70 guineas. The following-up Pianettes, in Rosewood, Walnut, and Mahogany, packed in case and shipped, 28 guineas; Drum, with Rolling-up Keyboard, 32 guineas. Pianettes, with Check Action, 35 guineas. Cramer and Co. have extensive popularity attained by their Pianettes, to manufacture them in such large numbers that they can supply them to the public at a moderate price, and in this case are enabled, by the match the impression with suites of furniture, when that is required. Cramer and Co. have also a large stock of Cottage and Oblique Instruments by the most eminent makers, which, for quality, security, and are all fitted, not with the common, but with the improved, check action. Cramer and Co. are now enabled to offer an instrument having in quality various unique properties, and possessing the power of the Cottage Pianoforte, in a Pianoforte Pianoforte is extended over three octaves, applies to all the above Pianofortes. Pianofortes, Harmoniums, and Concertinas, by the most eminent makers, may be experienced. Cramer and Co. will forward them direct.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, Cramer, Beale, and Chappell.

INDIAN PIANOFORTE—superior upright pianoforte, in solid mahogany, especially made with bolting down to prevent removal, warranted for any climate. Price 50 guineas.—PIANOFORTE GALLERY, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔT for the Sale of Nicole's Celebrated Musical Instruments, removed from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large assortment of the best Musical Boxes always on hand. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank), and 9, Queen's-buildings, New Brompton, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going while winding up, have REMOVED from 54, Cornhill.

Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, seconds fall, and escapes ... £4 14 0
Extra, jewelled in four holes ... 0 15 0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes ... 1 5 0
GOLD WATCHES—SILVER WATCHES.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled ... 11 11 0
Extra, jewelled in four holes ... 14 14 0
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled in four holes ... 14 14 0
GOLD WATCHES—SILVER WATCHES FOR GENTLEMEN.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled in four holes ... £5 5 0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold dial ... 6 6 0
Extra, with extra jewelled movement, 21 in. extra ... 2 2 0
Chronometer Watch, with chronometer escapement, and gold dial ... 21 0 0

LONDON AND RYDER, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street), GOLDSMITHS, SILVERSMITHS, and WATCHMAKERS, have REMOVED from 49, Cornhill, to the above address, and have now on hand a large and choice assortment of Gold and Silver Plate, every article in the best taste and workmanship, at prices which will be found moderate. A set of engravings suitable for bridal presents, illustrated gifts, &c., and a pamphlet containing a list of prices, forwarded free on receipt of a letter stating which will be required.

17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street).

MAGIC LANTERNS: How to Buy and How to Use Them. Fifth Edition. Published by HOULSTON and WRIGHT. Post-free for 8 stamps by A. and R. HOCKIN and CO., 3, Charterhouse-buildings, Goswell-road, Finsbury. Lists of Lanterns and Slides, 6d. each.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The 28 Set of Magic Microscopic, and Phantasmagoria Slides, with Lecture, Price 10s. 6d. Dissolving Views, Lectures, and Lanterns, for Sale, Hire, or Exchange. Newly-invented Lanterns, fitted for showing Photographic Portraits; Lanterns, Slides, and Dissolving Views, with changing motion; new phantasmagoria; and one diascope, with view and revolving condenser. Catalogues, 6d. each.—J. SOLOMONS, Optician, Vendor, and Patentee, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by the Microscope, Stereoscope, &c., which will illustrate the features of a man four miles, and line by a church clock ten miles, with the Solar System, Comets, Eclipses, Transits, Meteors, Constellations, and eight sheets of landscapes, by the Author of "Science Simplified," &c. Price 10s. 6d. Sent free by book-post. J. and S. SOLOMONS, Opticians, Vendors, and Patentees, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square. Telescopes Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, invented and manufactured by J. and S. SOLOMONS, and suitable for general purposes, for the Opera, Race, Field, and Marine Glasses. Price 10s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the convenient purpose of the races, and general observations.

J. and S. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

THE MESSRS. SOLOMONS NEWLY-INVENTED TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including the late Viscount Palmerston. They give by day and night extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision.—21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

DEAFNESS.—THE SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. Its fine tone and great power will restore singing voices in the head, and deafness and noises in the ears. Sent post-free, with all particulars, 4s. and 8s. SOLOMONS, 21, Bernard-street, Russell-square.

JOHN HARVEY and SON, GLOUCESTER HOUSE, LUDGATE-HILL, Sole proprietors of the cloth and lasts superior to indiarubbers, Mantles, Shawls, Dresses, Linens, Flannels, Blankets.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE. Patterns free. Address No. 1,000.

New Evening Glacés, from 2½ to 3½.

New useful Glacés, from 2½ to.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS. Patterns free.

A large assortment. New Patterns, 2½ to 3½ to 4½ to 5½ to 6½ to 7½ to 8½ to 9½ to 10½ to 11½ to 12½ to 13½ to 14½ to 15½ to 16½ to 17½ to 18½ to 19½ to 20½ to 21½ to 22½ to 23½ to 24½ to 25½ to 26½ to 27½ to 28½ to 29½ to 30½ to 31½ to 32½ to 33½ to 34½ to 35½ to 36½ to 37½ to 38½ to 39½ to 40½ to 41½ to 42½ to 43½ to 44½ to 45½ to 46½ to 47½ to 48½ to 49½ to 50½ to 51½ to 52½ to 53½ to 54½ to 55½ to 56½ to 57½ to 58½ to 59½ to 60½ to 61½ to 62½ to 63½ to 64½ to 65½ to 66½ to 67½ to 68½ to 69½ to 70½ to 71½ to 72½ to 73½ to 74½ to 75½ to 76½ to 77½ to 78½ to 79½ to 80½ to 81½ to 82½ to 83½ to 84½ to 85½ to 86½ to 87½ to 88½ to 89½ to 90½ to 91½ to 92½ to 93½ to 94½ to 95½ to 96½ to 97½ to 98½ to 99½ to 100½ to 101½ to 102½ to 103½ to 104½ to 105½ to 106½ to 107½ to 108½ to 109½ to 110½ to 111½ to 112½ to 113½ to 114½ to 115½ to 116½ to 117½ to 118½ to 119½ to 120½ to 121½ to 122½ to 123½ to 124½ to 125½ to 126½ to 127½ to 128½ to 129½ to 130½ to 131½ to 132½ to 133½ to 134½ to 135½ to 136½ to 137½ to 138½ to 139½ to 140½ to 141½ to 142½ to 143½ to 144½ to 145½ to 146½ to 147½ to 148½ to 149½ to 150½ to 151½ to 152½ to 153½ to 154½ to 155½ to 156½ to 157½ to 158½ to 159½ to 160½ to 161½ to 162½ to 163½ to 164½ to 165½ to 166½ to 167½ to 168½ to 169½ to 170½ to 171½ to 172½ to 173½ to 174½ to 175½ to 176½ to 177½ to 178½ to 179½ to 180½ to 181½ to 182½ to 183½ to 184½ to 185½ to 186½ to 187½ to 188½ to 189½ to 190½ to 191½ to 192½ to 193½ to 194½ to 195½ to 196½ to 197½ to 198½ to 199½ to 200½ to 201½ to 202½ to 203½ to 204½ to 205½ to 206½ to 207½ to 208½ to 209½ to 210½ to 211½ to 212½ to 213½ to 214½ to 215½ to 216½ to 217½ to 218½ to 219½ to 220½ to 221½ to 222½ to 223½ to 224½ to 225½ to 226½ to 227½ to 228½ to 229½ to 230½ to 231½ to 232½ to 233½ to 234½ to 235½ to 236½ to 237½ to 238½ to 239½ to 240½ to 241½ to 242½ to 243½ to 244½ to 245½ to 246½ to 247½ to 248½ to 249½ to 250½ to 251½ to 252½ to 253½ to 254½ to 255½ to 256½ to 257½ to 258½ to 259½ to 260½ to 261½ to 262½ to 263½ to 264½ to 265½ to 266½ to 267½ to 268½ to 269½ to 270½ to 271½ to 272½ to 273½ to 274½ to 275½ to 276½ to 277½ to 278½ to 279½ to 280½ to 281½ to 282½ to 283½ to 284½ to 285½ to 286½ to 287½ to 288½ to 289½ to 290½ to 291½ to 292½ to 293½ to 294½ to 295½ to 296½ to 297½ to 298½ to 299½ to 300½ to 301½ to 302½ to 303½ to 304½ to 305½ to 306½ to 307½ to 308½ to 309½ to 310½ to 311½ to 312½ to 313½ to 314½ to 315½ to 316½ to 317½ to 318½ to 319½ to 320½ to 321½ to 322½ to 323½ to 324½ to 325½ to 326½ to 327½ to 328½ to 329½ to 330½ to 331½ to 332½ to 333½ to 334½ to 335½ to 336½ to 337½ to 338½ to 339½ to 340½ to 341½ to 342½ to 343½ to 344½ to 345½ to 346½ to 347½ to 348½ to 349½ to 350½ to 351½ to 352½ to 353½ to 354½ to 355½ to 356½ to 357½ to 358½ to 359½ to 360½ to 361½ to 362½ to 363½ to 364½ to 365½ to 366½ to 367½ to 368½ to 369½ to 370½ to 371½ to 372½ to 373½ to 374½ to 375½ to 376½ to 377½ to 378½ to 379½ to 380½ to 381½ to 382½ to 383½ to 384½ to 385½ to 386½ to 387½ to 388½ to 389½ to 390½ to 391½ to 392½ to 393½ to 394½ to 395½ to 396½ to 397½ to 398½ to 399½ to 400½ to 401½ to 402½ to 403½ to 404½ to 405½ to 406½ to 407½ to 408½ to 409½ to 410½ to 411½ to 412½ to 413½ to 414½ to 415½ to 416½ to 417½ to 418½ to 419½ to 420½ to 421½ to 422½ to 423½ to 424½ to 425½ to 426½ to 427½ to 428½ to 429½ to 430½ to 431½ to 432½ to 433½ to 434½ to 435½ to 436½ to 437½ to 438½ to 439½ to 440½ to 441½ to 442½ to 443½ to 444½ to 445½ to 446½ to 447½ to 448½ to 449½ to 450½ to 451½ to 452½ to 453½ to 454½ to 455½ to 456½ to 457½ to 458½ to 459½ to 460½ to 461½ to 462½ to 463½ to 464½ to 465½ to 466½ to 467½ to 468½ to 469½ to 470½ to 471½ to 472½ to 473½ to 474½ to 475½ to 476½ to 477½ to 478½ to 479½ to 480½ to 481½ to 482½ to 483½ to 484½ to 485½ to 486½ to 487½ to 488½ to 489½ to 490½ to 491½ to 492½ to 493½ to 494½ to 495½ to 496½ to 497½ to 498½ to 499½ to 500½ to 501½ to 502½ to 503½ to 504½ to 505½ to 506½ to 507½ to 508½ to 509½ to 510½ to 511½ to 512½ to 513½ to 514½ to 515½ to 516½ to 517½ to 518½ to 519½ to 520½ to 521½ to 522½ to 523½ to 524½ to 525½ to 526½ to 527½ to 528½ to 529½ to 530½ to 531½ to 532½ to 533½ to 534½ to 535½ to 536½ to 537½ to 538½ to 539½ to 540½ to 541½ to 542½ to 543½ to 544½ to 545½ to 546½ to 547½ to 548½ to 549½ to 550½ to 551½ to 552½ to 553½ to 554½ to 555½ to 556½ to 557½ to 558½ to 559½ to 560½ to 561½ to 562½ to 563½ to 564½ to 565½ to 566½ to 567½ to 568½ to 569½ to 570½ to 571½ to 572½ to 573½ to 574½ to 575½ to 576½ to 577½ to 578½ to 579½ to 580½ to 581½ to 582½ to 583½ to 584½ to 585½ to 586½ to 587½ to 588½ to 589½ to 590½ to 591½ to 592½ to 593½ to 594½ to 595½ to 596½ to 597½ to 598½ to 599½ to 600½ to 601½ to 602½ to 603½ to 604½ to 605½ to 606½ to 607½ to 608½ to 609½ to 610½ to 611½ to 612½ to 613½ to 614½ to 615½ to 616½ to 617½ to 618½ to 619½ to 620½ to 621½ to 622½ to 623½ to 624½ to 625½ to 626½ to 627½ to 628½ to 629½ to 630½ to 631½ to 632½ to 633½ to 634½ to 635½ to 636½ to 637½ to 638½ to 639½ to 640½ to 641½ to 642½ to 643½ to 644½ to 645½ to 646½ to 647½ to 648½ to 649½ to 650½ to 651½ to 652½ to 653½ to 654½ to 655½ to 656½ to 657½ to 658½ to 659½ to 660½ to 661½ to 662½ to 663½ to 664½ to 665½ to 666½ to 667½ to 668½ to 669½ to 670½ to 671½ to 672½ to 673½ to 674½ to 675½ to 676½ to 677½ to 678½ to 679½ to 680½ to 681½ to 682½ to 683½ to 684½ to 685½ to 686½ to 687½ to 688½ to 689½ to 690½ to 691½ to 692½ to 693½ to 694½ to 695½ to 696½ to 697½ to 698½ to 699½ to 700½ to 701½ to 702½ to 703½ to 704½ to 705½ to 706½ to 707½ to 708½ to 709½ to 710½ to 711½ to 712½ to 713½ to 714½ to 715½ to 716½ to 717½ to 718½ to 719½ to 720½ to 721½ to 722½ to 723½ to 724½ to 725½ to 726½ to 727½ to 728½ to 729½ to 730½ to 731½ to 732½ to 733½ to 734½ to 735½ to 736½ to 737½ to 738½ to 739½ to 740½ to 741½ to 742½ to 743½ to 744½ to 745½ to 746½ to 747½ to 748½ to 749½ to 750½ to 751½ to 752½ to 753½ to 754½ to 755½ to 756½ to 757½ to 758½ to 759½ to 760½ to 761½ to 762½ to 763½ to 764½ to 765½ to 766½ to 767½ to 768½ to 769½ to 770½ to 771½ to 772½ to 773½ to 774½ to 775½ to 776½ to 777½ to 778½ to 779½ to 780½ to 781½ to 782½ to 783½ to 784½ to 785½ to 786½ to 787½ to 788½ to 789½ to 790½ to 791½ to 792½ to 793½ to 794½ to 795½ to 796½ to 797½ to 798½ to 799½ to 800½ to 801½ to 802½ to 803½ to 804½ to 805½ to 806½ to 807½ to 808½ to 809½ to 810½ to 811½ to 812½ to 813½ to 814½ to 815½ to 816½ to 817½ to 818½ to 819½ to 820½ to 821½ to 822½ to 823½ to 824½ to 825½ to 826½ to 827½ to 828½ to 829½ to 830½ to 831½ to 832½ to 833½ to 834½ to 835½ to 836½ to 837½ to 838½ to 839½ to 840½ to 841½ to 842½ to 843½ to 844½ to 845½ to 846½ to 847½ to 848½ to 849½ to 850½ to 851½ to 852½ to 853½ to 854½ to 855½ to 856½ to 857½ to 858½ to 859½ to 860½ to 861½ to 862½ to 863½ to 864½ to 865½ to 866½ to 867½ to 868½ to 869½ to 870½ to 871½ to 872½ to 873½ to 874½ to 875½ to 876½ to 877½ to 878½ to 879½ to 880½ to 881½ to 882½ to 883½ to 884½ to 885½ to 886½ to 887½ to 888½ to 889½ to 890½ to 891½ to 892½ to 893½ to 894½ to 895½ to 896½ to 897½ to 898½ to 899½ to 900½ to 901½ to 902½ to 903½ to 904½ to 905½ to 906½ to 907½ to 908½ to 909½ to 910½ to 911½ to 912½ to 913½ to 914½ to 915½ to 916½ to 917½ to 918½ to 919½ to 920½ to 921½ to 922½ to 923½ to 924½ to 925½ to 926½ to 927½ to 928½ to 929½ to 930½ to 931½ to 932½ to 933½ to 934½ to 935½ to 936½ to 937½ to 938½ to 939½ to 940½ to 941½ to 942½ to 943½ to 944½ to 945½ to 946½ to 947½ to 948½ to 949½ to 950½ to 951½ to 952½ to 953½ to 954½ to 955½ to 956½ to 957½ to 958½ to 959½ to 960½ to 961½ to 962½ to 963½ to 964½ to 965½ to 966½ to 967½ to 968½ to 969½ to 970½ to 971½ to 972½ to 973½ to 974½ to 975½ to 976½ to 977½ to 978½ to 979½ to 980½ to 981½ to 982½ to 983½ to 984½ to 985½ to 986½ to 987½ to 988½ to 989½ to 990½ to 991½ to 992½ to 993½ to 994½ to 995½ to 996½ to 997½ to 998½ to 999½ to 1,000½ to 1,001½ to 1,002½ to 1,003½ to 1,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1347.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE.

DEATH OF LEOPOLD, KING OF THE BELGIANS.

THE Nestor of European Monarchs is no more! Leopold, King of the Belgians, died on Sunday last, at his palace of Laeken, His fame of life, which had flickered for some days, cannot be said to have gone out either unexpectedly or prematurely, and yet the announcement of the event excited, far and wide, a sensation nearly resembling a shock. The world parts with King Leopold as an old, familiar, and honoured friend, whose name and presence have been conspicuous in almost every scene of historical interest witnessed by this generation, and it cannot fully realise even yet his final exit from the stage of earthly being. The occurrence which successive warnings, each more emphatic than the last, had prepared everyone to anticipate, took all at last by surprise—as, indeed, such things generally do; and the first impulse stirred by the news of his decease was a kind of wonder, as though some strange thing had happened. This feeling would, no doubt, be more vivid in the Courts of Europe than on her Exchanges, for there are few of the Royal houses that have not lost in the departed Sovereign a relative either by blood or marriage; and it chanced that in him, more than in any contemporary Monarch, centred the threads which connect together the reigning families of Europe.

Leopold, King of the Belgians, was no ordinary man, nor has his life of between threescore and fourscore years been one of an ordinary type. The youngest of a large family reared by a petty German Duke in the troublous days of the first French Revolution, the Consulate, and the Empire, it was the lot of Prince Saxe-Coburg to be watching over the last illness of his father when Bonaparte seized and stripped his ducal territory. Driven from his birthplace, he entered into the military service of Russia, which, however, the imperious will of Napoleon subsequently brought to bear upon the Czar, obliged him to quit, and for the two or three years following he remained in obscurity. Fortune, which tested him with singular severity in the outset of his career without breaking his manly spirit, afterwards lavished her favours upon him without corrupting it. He once more served in the Russian army, entered Paris with the Allied Sovereigns, accompanied them to England, where he attracted the affection of Princess Charlotte, became her husband amid the rejoicings of the British people, and, under the title of Duke of Kendal, settled down in quiet, virtuous, and blissful domesticity at Claremont. The happiness which gilded his married life, and the brilliancy with which it lighted up his prospects, proved, however, but too evanescent. The Princess was snatched from his embrace by death, and Leopold suddenly found himself a widower, bereft of wife, of babe, and of the position to which he seemed to have been destined. Thenceforth, until his acceptance of the Belgian throne, he lived in sorrow and retirement, but not without endearing himself to the people of England by his private virtues and his unostentatious exercise of public duties.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION OF FRUIT AT THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S GARDENS, SOUTH KENSINGTON, ON SATURDAY LAST.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

The revolution at Brussels, in September, 1830, separated the two peoples who, since the peace at Vienna, had submitted to the sway of the King of the Netherlands. Prince Leopold, who had previously declined the Crown of Greece, gladly bowed to the invitation of the Belgians that he would become their Constitutional King. He reigned over them for nearly five and thirty years. During that long period he had his troubles and his perils, as no doubt, he expected to have: but such was the wisdom of his rule that from first to last the admiration and attachment of his subjects steadily increased. He won their confidence by his single and disinterested pursuit of their advantage, in all things the friend of liberal progress, but took precedence of his own, not merely in his professions, but in his practice. Better than most men he understood the art of governing a high-spirited nation, for he ruled them by allowing them to rule themselves. An important element in their political contests, a sagacious counsellor, an affable, genial, kindly Monarch, he commanded their respect while he elicited their affection, and as well by his personal qualifications as by his prudent policy he secured the allegiance, while he promoted the interests, of his subjects.

But Leopold was something more than King of the Belgians. He held a pre-eminent dignity among the Sovereigns of Europe, allied with the family of England by a double tie; and by that of Russia by his sister's marriage, with that of Austria by the marriage of his eldest son, with the Emperor of Mexico by that of his daughter, and with the house of Orleans by his second wife, he counted a band of connexions which increased for and, having been honoured and trusted by all, it was his good fortune to be able to serve them in their mutual relations by his influence and delicate mediation. They willingly made him the arbiter of their minor differences, trusted him with their secrets, sought the assistance of his counsel, and recognised the prestige of his character and position. His success in the government of a State with clear and comprehensive vision, his calm and logical habit of mind, his disinterestedness of motive, his vast political information, and his long experience gave peculiar weight to his opinions, and tended to bring his influence to bear upon a far greater than he could have acquired by numerous battalions. In this regard he has left behind him no successor. His unique supremacy has passed away with him, and there is no survivor of the period with the fallen mantle of which the new Europe is indebted to him for his pacific influence, and for the gentle but effectual restraints it imposed upon restless ambition, it is reserved for posterity to learn. The present generation can only vaguely estimate the force of that moral power which he exerted, and may deem itself highly favoured if it have not to measure its strength and its extent by the change which the extinction of it will occasion.

Yet Mr. Leopold will not be ranked among the great men of the age. There was in him none of the innate force of genius. He gave birth to no grand conceptions. His intellect was rather shrewd than powerful, and he was more distinguished for averting good work by failing to originate it. His moral qualities did more than his intellectual to obtain and secure for him the confidence of Europe. Nor, perhaps, would these have raised him to the position he occupied but for that felicitous combination of circumstances which gave him a kind of patriarchal connection with so many reigning houses. The credit, however, is due to him, and it is of no mean order, that his merits never to the full height the summit of his elevation, and that he repaid by suitable conduct every advance of his position. In his case, the old adage which asserts the blindness of fortune appeared inapplicable: for in almost, and not without success, to justify by his personal bearing the happy chances which, one by one, extended the area, and added to the weight of his influence in the several Courts of Europe.

The death of this able and amiable Monarch will, doubtless, be painfully felt by our beloved Queen. To a considerable extent, of course, she must have been prepared for the event, since the advanced age of King Leopold, and the serious illnesses which, within the last few years, have shaken his vigorous constitution, precluded all reasonable hope of the protraction of his life beyond a few more years at furthest. Yet the bereavement which her Majesty is in this instance called upon to sustain, even though not without its mitigating features, has for her an aspect of special sadness. It cannot but reopen the wounds, hardly yet healed, which the loss of her mother and her Royal consort inflicted on her heart, and it will carry her back in thought and feeling to scenes of sorrow which, it was hoped, time had deprived of their most vivid colours and of their most distressing distinctness. We earnestly hope, however, that it will not affect the gracious intention of our Sovereign to restore her queenly presence to her people. She has become familiar with grief and sometimes its later billows dispel the depression caused by those which preceded it, perhaps by bringing the mind more completely within sight of the consolations which are appropriate to its trials. Her Majesty's subjects will deeply sympathise with her in this renewed breach in her circle of relationship. They will regret her loss as well for her sake as for the sake of high international interests; and if their Monarch should find her spirits equal to the resolution which has been announced in her name, their thankful hearts will be doubly gratified, and as much on her own as on their account they will proffer her, if possible, a welcome of enhanced cordiality.

INTERNATIONAL FRUIT AND VEGETABLE SHOW AT THE ROYAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S GARDENS.

THE International Fruit and Vegetable Show opened at the gardens of the Royal Horticultural Society, South Kensington, on Saturday. As might be expected at this season of the year, the exhibitors assisted principally of apples and pears. There were, however, some fine pine-apples and grapes contributed by the nurserymen of the metropolis. The following medals were awarded:—The gold medal of the society for the best collection of fruit and vegetables produced in the garden of a Sovereign—awarded to Mr. Thomas Ingram, gardener to the Queen, Windsor. The gold medal of the society for the best collection of fruit and vegetables grown by any botanic or horticultural society in any part of the world—to the Horticultural Society of Copenhagen. The gold medal of the society for the best and most complete representative collection of fruit and vegetables from any of the colonies—to the Fruit Growers' Association of Nova Scotia. First Banksian gold medal for the best and most complete representative collection from the Presidencies of India—to collection from Presidency of Madras. The first gold Knightian medal of the society to the exhibitor who shall obtain the greatest number of first-class certificates—to Mr. Lewis Solomon, Covent-garden. There was a large assemblage of visitors, who appeared to enjoy the excellent music played by the band of the Royal Horse Guards.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS,

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PARIS, Thursday, Dec. 14.

SINCE the first issue of the bulletins announcing the dangerous state of health of the King of the Belgians, the news of his death has been watched for with a degree of anxiety almost amounting to fear so much the fashion a few years ago to look upon this event as the certain signal for the disintegration of the Belgian kingdom, that people read the telegrams this morning as if Monday had come with the liveliest interest. The words "the city is tranquil" had, however, the effect of reassuring the public, and a considerable reaction in the direction on the part of the Belgian people; and a kind and cordial message sent by the Emperor of the French to the Queen of the Belgians, showed that there is at any rate no immediate danger from without. The Duke and Duchess of Brabant left Vichy at 10 o'clock this morning, at Compiègne; the Prince and Princess Holzendalern at once took their places in the train. The Duke of Brabant appears to be quite lonely for a few hours, and crossed over to England to pay a visit of condolence to Queen Victoria. The French Court has gone into mourning for three weeks, and the Paris world will do the same, of course, put back for a time.

The French Government has given the agreed six months' notice of their intention to determine the existing extradition treaty between France and England. The object in view in giving so long a notice is that the formalities required by the British law are so numerous and complex that during the interval the Government will have time to negle French criminal has been surrendered to the authorities by reason of the irregularities.

A new preacher has sprung up in Paris, on whom the mantle of the celebrated Lacordaire seems to have fallen. He is a Père Dominique Hyacinthe, a Carmelite friar, who draws crowded audiences to Notre Dame and interferes to listen to his discourses, generally upon moral themes, which he delivers in a style of elegance, and sometimes eloquence, that impresses equally the dispassionate as well as the more impulsive section of his audience. He is a man of personal appearance, whose eccentricities should extend beyond his pulpit whenever he preaches.

We learn from the Federal General Schofield has been for some little time past, and, as a matter of course, the French newspapers were not slow to find out the cause of it, and to give a wide range in connection with some important diplomatic mission. First it was the Mexican question; then it was the Chilian difficulty; next a commercial treaty; and finally the Monroe doctrine. But now that all doubts upon the subject, one of the most indefatigable of Parisian gossips has discovered that General Schofield and the Emperor's brother would have acted under similar circumstances, boldly called upon the General to explain the reasons which led him to depart of his visit to France. The General civilly informed his interrogator that he came over to France to see the fine arts, especially the fine arts which had a powerful and melodious voice and striking, if not always graceful action, he alluded to the General as the Grand Duke ratification, on the part of the local Legislature, of the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery.

General Grant has set out upon a Southern tour of inspection. It is reported that he will visit the Rio Grande.

Twelve hundred negroes have left Charleston to return to the employment of their former masters on Sea Island.

A collision had, we are told, occurred at Grenada, in Mississippi, between the soldiery and some armed negroes who were discovered concealing a large quantity of arms.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

The death of Burgevine, who it is now stated was drowned while in irons, is likely to give trouble to the Chinese Government. Piracy was greatly increased, but a successful attack of the junk-boats on the pirates near Amoy is likely to check the nuisance.

It is satisfactory to learn from Japan that the other murderers of Major Baldwin and Lieutenant Bird have been discovered and executed. The foreign Ministers have come to an expedition to open foreign trade at some not a place, the name of which has been forgotten.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

There are at length hopeful signs of a settlement of the dispute between the Legislative bodies at Melbourne, a conference between the Legislative Council and the Assembly having been agreed to, and the terms of an agreement drawn out. The New South Wales Parliament was opened on Oct. 24. The Governor, in his speech, said that the revenue would report for the year a deficit, but hoped to pull the back lands of the colony, in order to promote immigration.

The news from New Zealand is unsatisfactory. The natives are determined to carry on the war; they laughed at the Governor's peace proclamation, and have written to the messenger bearing copies of it. They had also committed other atrocities.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

William Davey died, on Sunday week, at the Fishmongers' and Poulterers' Asylum, Wood-green, in his ninetieth year.

Mr. Thomas Baring was on Wednesday unanimously elected a director of the Bank of England in place of Lord Revelstoke, deceased.

The annual distribution of medallions, medals, certificates of free education, and prizes to the students of the Royal Naval (Keyham) School of Art, took place, on Tuesday, at the school buildings, Hillfort-road.

The annual report of the Art-Union of London, with a list of members, has been issued, and bears witness to the continued prosperity and extended operations of the institution.

A society was formed, on Tuesday evening, at the Russell Literary and Scientific Institution, Great Coram-street. The attendance was large, and the union embraces a number of persons connected with the press.

The metropolitan main drainage system is complete, with the exception of the short link of low-level sewer which is to run under the Thames Embankment and the Embankment Railway.

On Thursday week the Toxophilite Society held its anniversary dinner in the Lower Hall, Regent's Park. Colonel Alexander Hamilton, Bart., C.B., was in the chair.

By the will of Mr. George Cox, of Coleshill-street, Belgrave-square, the Royal Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital, Charing-cross, receives £500, free of duty.

At a soirée given to the fellows of the Medical Society of London, on Tuesday evening, Dr. Alexander Morison, the Rev. Dr. Wilkinson Brewn, the president for the year, there was a large attendance of the most distinguished members of the medical profession and science.

The members of the Royal London Yacht Club held their annual dinner on Tuesday evening at Willis's Rooms. A very large number of the members and friends assembled, and the chair was filled by Admiral Rodolph Lake Lake-Lake.

The distribution of prizes to the London candidates for Oxford Local Examinations took place on Saturday last, at Willis's Rooms, St. James's. The hall was filled by the friends of the successful and unsuccessful candidates. The distribution was made by the Dean of Westminster, who congratulated the boys on the success which every year attended the London district, and it is numerous.

A densely-crowded meeting, under the auspices of the National Reform League, was held in St. Martin's Hall on Tuesday evening. A number of those who were present had dined together at the Holborn, and there held another meeting. In the hall Mr. Edmund Beales, the president of the league, occupied the chair, and delivered a long address. He was followed by fourteen or fifteen others, all of whom addressed the meeting, and resolutions and a memorial, to, according to the report, be forwarded to the Queen, were unanimously carried.

The Working Men's College, in Great Ormond-street, having more than doubled in number since its commencement, is greatly in want of a large lecture-room and other accommodation, and it is hoped that a handsome memorial to the late lamented founder may be the result. It is intended to place in the working class an enduring one over the fireside. The college has never before appealed to public support. Its present Royal Ground-street, governs private efforts, including the gift of £500 by the Principal, the Rev. F. D. Maurice, exceeded in public munificence any of such an appeal, and now it may fairly be regarded as a public institution the value of which is tried and known. There is no room for theological and other collections of the college, there is no room for Mr. Ruskin's classes, and to hold for the general meetings. Ten thousand pounds is wanted, and £2000 for a new building adapted for the purpose. Contributions may be sent to the "Working Men College Account," at the London and County Bank (Oxford-street branch).

A meeting of the Jurisprudence Department of the Social Science Association took place on Monday night, at their rooms in the Adelphi—Lord Brampton in the chair. A paper on "Trade Combinations" was read by Mr. H. J. Leppoc, of Manchester. He urged that the existing courts and procedure of litigation were inadequate to meet questions of business—1. The judges were not experienced in commercial matters and were liable to be misled by the evidence of witnesses. 2. Trade disputes were, in fact, not so much matters of litigation as of arbitration. Litigation was excessive. As a partial remedy for these evils, he urged that the members of the different Chambers of Commerce throughout the kingdom should unite in establishing courts of arbitration for deciding upon all commercial disputes, the decisions of which should be final from the courts of the several chambers. A discussion took place, in which Mr. Dennison, Q.C.; Mr. F. Hill; Dr. Furlonger; Mr. Hastings, Q.C.; Mr. Bigham, Q.C., and others took part. Lord Brougham said he felt the great difficulty which attended the question of the restriction of interference by the courts in commercial disputes.

The returns of 2162 children (1074 boys and 1088 girls) were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years, 1889-98, the average number registered in London was 2160, and 2162 in the last week. The deaths registered in London during the week were 1453. It was the forty-sixth week of the year, and the average number of deaths in that week in the 10 years, with a correction for increase of population, was 1468. No case of cholera was registered in London during the week, and the disease was not fatal in any of the seventeen districts in which the total number of deaths was under the average. Eighty-five deaths were returned as caused by typhus, typhoid, and enteric fever, which were also under the average. There were sixty-three deaths from scarlatina. Four deaths by carriage accidents were registered in the week, and the average number of the present year 215 persons of various ages have been killed by horse conveyances in the streets of London. Fifty-seven deaths were registered in London in the week that ended last Saturday the births registered in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom were as follows:—In London—births 2162, deaths 1453; in Edinburgh—births 316, deaths 190; in Glasgow—births 518, deaths 390; and in Dublin—births 173, deaths 134. The annual rate of mortality per 1000 persons living in London was 18·9; in Edinburgh, 21·8; in Glasgow, 23·4; in Dublin, 20·1; in Birmingham, 19·8; in Bristol, 18·1; in Leeds, 18·6; in Sheffield, 18·1; in Hull, 19·6; in Liverpool, 31·1; in Manchester, 30·0; in Salford, 30·8; in Portsmouth, 17·0; in Leicester, 16·0; in Bristol, 18·1; and in Norwich, 19·8.

LAW AND POLICE.—The Lord Chancellor gave judgment, last Saturday, in the case of Hamilton v. Graham, which was an appeal by the latter, who was charged with obtaining fees for his office to which he was not entitled. The Lord Chancellor, in giving judgment, said that the case was very complicated, explained that Mr. Graham had misunderstood the terms of the recent Act, and supposed that it gave him what in fact it did not. He must, therefore, pay over what he had retained.

William Slattery, with whom Mr. Rex, of Rotspell-street, Lambeth, had such a desperate struggle for his life a few days ago, was taken before the South-west Police Court on Monday. Mr. Rex was also in attendance, and detailed the circumstances of the attempted murder and the struggle for possession of the revolver. Slattery was fully committed for trial at the Central Criminal Court, as it has already been told. The prisoner was remanded for trial.

Another action for damages, arising out of the Brighton railway accident, was tried in the Court of Exchequer, on Tuesday, before Baron Pollock. The case was tried before Mr. Moss Jeffries, a member of the firm of Messrs. Defries, jury at glove manufacturers. The jury awarded him £1000 damages.

THE COURT.

THE QUEEN, accompanied by the junior members of the Royal family according to the latest arrangements, will leave Windsor Castle early in the coming week for Osborne, where the Court will pass Christmas. The Queen's sojourn in the Isle of Wight will not exceed many weeks, after which her Majesty will return to Windsor Castle.

On Thursday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louise, and Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, left Balmoral in a carriage and four. Countess Gleichen and Major-General and Lady Emily Seymour had the honour of dining with the Queen.

Yesterday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louise and Prince Christian, drove Mary Lascelles, deer-stalking, in a pony and four. Later in the day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, drove in the grounds of the castle. Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein visited the infantry barracks at Windsor. Earl and Countess Granville entertained at dinner the honour of meeting their Majesty.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and rode in the castle grounds. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in a pony and four. The Royal demesne. Princess Louise and Prince Leopold, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Byng, took a drive. Earl and Countess Granville left the castle for London.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and Princess Hohenlohe attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Rev. C. Kingsley, Chaplain in Ordinary to her Majesty, officiated. Subsequently the Queen received, with profound sorrow, the announcement of the loss which her Majesty and the Royal Family have sustained in the death of the King of the Belgians, the Queen's last surviving uncle and the last of his generation of the Royal House of Coburg. The death of the venerable and beloved Monarch, although not unexpected, is keenly felt by her Majesty and by the people of the Belgians. He was an affectionate relative and a most sagacious adviser, and when from childhood the Queen has recognised him as a friend. The deep interest in her Majesty's welfare was unceasing, and his memory will be ever revered by the Queen and her family. The King was always a wise counsellor of the Prince Consort, to whom his Majesty was warmly attached.

On Monday, it being indispensably necessary for the despatch of public business, the Queen held a Council, at which were present Earl Granville, Earl Cadogan, Lord Knutsford, and Mr. A. J. Balfour. Earl Granville had an audience of her Majesty. Mr. Arthur Helps was Clerk of the Council in Waiting, and attended her Majesty.

On Wednesday Princess Louise, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, went to Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park, and visited Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, attended by Count de Bastiani, with the castle for the Christmas season.

The Queen, accompanied by Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein and Princess Helena, has visited the Royal mausoleum at Frogmore, for the purpose of inspecting the two Roman tombs recently discovered upon Mr. Alice's farm at Old Windsor. They have now been restored, at much expense, by the Duke of Buccleuch.

The preparations for the bridal trousseau of Princess Helena are in course of progress. Her Majesty's gift to the bride-elect remains, as yet, not yet been announced.

The following appointments have been made:—Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat, attached to the Prince Consort's Own Rifle Brigade, to be Equerry in Ordinary to Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, attended by Count de Bastiani, with the castle for the Christmas season.

The Queen, accompanied by Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein and Princess Helena, has visited the Royal mausoleum at Frogmore, for the purpose of inspecting the two Roman tombs recently discovered upon Mr. Alice's farm at Old Windsor. They have now been restored, at much expense, by the Duke of Buccleuch.

The preparations for the bridal trousseau of Princess Helena are in course of progress. Her Majesty's gift to the bride-elect remains, as yet, not yet been announced.

The following appointments have been made:—Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat, attached to the Prince Consort's Own Rifle Brigade, to be Equerry in Ordinary to Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, attended by Count de Bastiani, with the castle for the Christmas season.

The following appointments were issued through the Lord Chamberlain for the Court's going into mourning on Thursday, the 14th inst., for his late Majesty King Leopold of the Belgians:—Ladies and gentlemen in dresses, white gloves, black or white shoes, feathers, and fans, pearls, diamonds, or jet. Gentlemen in uniform are to wear dress coats, or wear black Court dress, with black swords and buckles. The Court to change into mourning on Thursday, the 14th inst., the ladies to wear black dresses with coloured ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments, or grey or white dresses, with black ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments. The Queen and Royal Family will go into mourning. And on Thursday, the 28th of January next, the Court to go out of mourning.

The following is the Deputy Earl Marshal's order for a general mourning for the late King of the Belgians:—Her Majesty's commands, these are to give public notice that, upon the melancholy occasion of the death of the late King of the Belgians, the Most Excellent Prince, uncle to her Majesty the Queen, it is expected that all persons do put themselves into decent mourning. The Court will go into mourning, the 14th inst. The Queen does not require that the officers of the Army shall wear any other mourning than such as may be ordered on occasion of the death of Field Marshal his late Majesty the King of the Belgians than a black crape round the left arm, with their uniforms. The Master-General of the Ordnance and the officers of the Royal Marines should wear any other mourning than a black crape round the left arm, with their uniforms.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales, accompanied by Lord Suffield and the guests staying at Sandringham, left Norwich, on Tuesday week, for the grouse on the Suffield side of the estate. The "bag" numbered 1079 head of game of various kinds. The Prince and Princess, accompanied by Lady Suffield and the ladies visiting at the house, joined the Prince and party during the day. The Prince was in command of the Norfolk regiment at which the band of the East Norfolk Militia played. Later in the evening a ball was given, at which a distinguished company assembled.

On Thursday week the Prince joined the meet of Lord Hastings' pack of harriers at Elsham Hall. Their Royal Highnesses, accompanied and Lord Suffield and party, rode to the "meet." Lady Suffield and numerous ladies drove to the meet in carriages. The field numbered 300 horsemen. A large assemblage was also present in carriages. The Antiquarian, Lord Hastings, the Prince's host, was seen drawn blank, and the run fell incessantly throughout the day. At halfpast three o'clock the Prince and party left the meet for the house. This was the first "blank" the Prince had had during the season. In the evening there was a dinner party at the house, at which about sixty members of the aristocracy were present.

Yesterday week the Prince, accompanied by Lord Suffield and party, joined the meet of Lord Hastings' harriers at the house of the estate. The "bag" numbered nearly a thousand head, making a total of 1079 head of game killed by the Prince's party.

On Saturday last the Prince and Princess, attended by the Marchioness of Cholmondeley and Lieutenant-Colonel Ripley, left Gunton Park en route for Sandringham. It had been previously arranged that the Prince and Princess should visit Lord and Lady Suffield at Elsham Hall and partake of luncheon with them. Their Royal Highnesses, however, on receiving the extreme danger of the King of the Belgians, his Royal Highness immediately decided upon proceeding to Sandringham, for postponing the visit. The Prince and Princess, upon leaving Gunton Park, were received by Lord and Lady Suffield at the Hall of Dunmore, Viscount Hamilton, the Hon. and Mrs. F. Stonor, and the Hon. Harbord Harbord. The party proceeded in a drag and two open carriages and four to Elsham Hall, where Lord and Lady Suffield upon the box of the drag. At the village of Hunworth, and Alby, and at Aylsham, the Prince and Princess were received by a number of the gentry of their Royal Highnesses. At Reepham horses were changed at the King's Head Hotel for Lord and Lady Suffield, and travelled by a special train to Dereham, where a halt was made for the Prince's servants to join the train. The journey was continued thence to Wolferton, whence the Prince and Princess drove to Sandringham House.

On Sunday their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service at Sandringham church. The Rev. G. R. Mason officiated. The Princess received intelligence of the death of the King of the Belgians. The union jack upon the tower of the church was lowered half-mast. The Prince and Princess observe the utmost privacy, and no visitors are staying in the house in consequence of the melancholy event. The death of the King has caused the postponement of several visits which his Royal Highness had arranged to pay to noblemen in the neighbourhood.

The Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, arrived at Marlborough House on Wednesday evening from Sandringham House. His Royal Highness, accompanied by his brother, Prince Arthur, left town yesterday (Friday) morning, by the South-Eastern mail express, from the Charing-cross railway station, en route for Brussels, to attend the obsequies of the late King of the Belgians. His Royal Highness is expected to return to England on Tuesday next.

ARRIVAL OF THE KING AND QUEEN OF PORTUGAL.

King Louis I., King of Portugal, who is known in connect, the daughter of King Victor Emmanuel, and attended by a limited suite, arrived at Folkestone from Boulogne, at 4 P.M. on Monday last, by special train from the Albert Edward steam-packet, Captain Jenkins, South-Eastern Railway service. On the arrival of the boat at the pier, the Portuguese and Brazilian Ministers went on board to pay their respects and to escort their Majesties on shore. Captain Bacon superintended the landing. The King and Queen were received at the pier by Mr. J. F. Knight, traffic manager of the South-Eastern Railway Company, and Mr. S. Martin, secretary. These Majesties were received by Mr. Knight to the refreshment-room. At seven o'clock the King and Queen left the South-Eastern Railway, travelling in a state saloon by a special train upon the South-Eastern Railway. The train was under the charge of Mr. J. P. Knight, M.I.C.E. Mr. Tenton and Mr. Walker also travelled with the train, taking with them a portable telegraph instrument, for communication along the line, if required. A large number of persons assembled, who warmly greeted their Majesties. The King and Queen arrived at Victoria at seven o'clock, and proceeded, in one of Queen Victoria's carriages, to Claridge's Hotel, where they passed the night.

On Thursday the King and Queen went to Claremont and paid their respects to Queen Marie Amelie and the ex-Royal family of France.

Yesterday (Friday) morning their Majesties left the London and Railway station by the special tidal train of the South-Eastern Railway for Dover-Admiralty Pier, at 10.30 A.M. Their Majesties will embark at Folkestone on board the South-Eastern Railway Company's special steamer Albert Edward for Boulogne.

THE EX-ROYAL FAMILY OF FRANCE,

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince de Joinville, the Duke d'Aumale, and the Count de Paris, arrived at the Grosvenor Hotel, on Thursday evening, from Claremont. Their Royal Highnesses, who, with their suites, left town yesterday (Friday) morning by the South-Eastern mail express, en route for Brussels, to attend the funeral of their kinsman, the late King of the Belgians.

DEPARTURE OF PRINCE CHRISTIAN OF SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.

Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, attended by Count de Bastiani, left Windsor Castle on Wednesday, upon his return to the Continent. His Serene Highness travelled to London and proceeded thence, upon the South-Eastern Railway, by the twenty-minutes-past-twelve train, from Charing-cross station to Dover, arriving thither at a quarter past three P.M. He was met and received by Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat, attached the Prince to Dover, and afterwards received the Prince. His Serene Highness was received at Admiralty Pier, by Captain Bruce, R.N., the Admiralty Superintendent; Sir Luke Smithett, and Mr. W. Cook, the Dover Harbour Superintendent. He was on board the Government paddle-yacht Victoria and Albert, and crossed the Channel to Calais, en route to Berlin.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Somerset and Captain Purvis, were expected to arrive at their residence at St. James's Palace yesterday (Friday) from Cambridge.

His Excellency the Prussian Ambassador and Countess Hatzfeldt left the Prussian Embassy, Carlton House-terrace, on Monday, on a visit to Lord and Lady Rosslyn at their seat, Thornham Hall, Suffolk.

His Excellency the Russian Ambassador has returned to the French Embassy, Albert-gate, from visiting Viscount and Viscountess Hardinge, at Penshurst Place, Kent.

His Excellency the Austrian Ambassador returned to Chandos House, Cavendish-square, on Saturday last, from visiting the Marquis and Marchioness of Ailesbury at Savernake Forest, Hants.

Queen Emma of the Sandwich Islands has arrived at Rome, her physicians having recommended her to winter in the sheltered valley, on account of the remarkable mildness of its climate.

Mr. W. B. Young, of Florence, has given £100 to the funds of University College Hospital.

From Rome we learn that the Pontifical grenadiers have captured several land chiefs.

A telegram from Teheran, dated Nov. 14, reports that the choice of the Persian Ministry has engaged the attention of the Shah's Government because of the incidence of the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Turkey has contracted a new loan of £6,000,000. The contract has been made with the Credit Mobilier of Paris, and will be issued at the rate of 90. Constantinople, Smyrna, and Paris stock-jobbers.

King Louis I. of Bavaria, travelling under the name of Count de Sponheim, expired on the 29th ult. at the Chateau des Mollisons-Cannes, where apartments have been secured for him for the season.

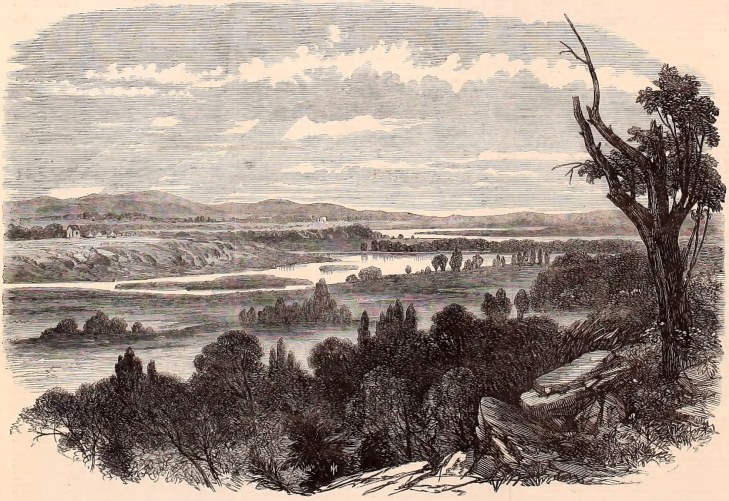
A series of the most complete field-day evolutions, representing a siege fight, in which the whole of the cavalry, mounted, and the artillery, horse and field, of the Aldershot Division, engaged, took place, at Bentel-heath, near Pirbright, in the presence of Major-General Wauchope, C.B., commanding the Brigade of Guards.

Cambridge House, so well known as the town house of Lord Palmerston, and, more recently, as that which many continental princes have been circulated, has been let to the Naval and Military Club, which at present has premises in Piccadilly. The rental is understood to be £1200 a-year—an increase of £1000 per annum.

A permanent post-office has been set up between the Boers and the central telegraph office at Berlin. Between the two there have been placed two stations, at a distance of 10 miles each, and by means of fly or of them telegraphic despatches deposited at the Boers are carried to the nearest station, and from there are sent on to their address. A reverse takes place from our minute to a minute and a half.

The distribution of prizes to the successful students at the Royal Academy of Arts took place on Saturday last. The gold medal for the best historical picture was awarded to Mr. Cuthbert Rossiter; the gold medal for the best composition in sculpture to Mr. Percival Hall, the gold medal for the best painting from the antique to Mr. Frederick Cayley Robinson, and the gold medal for the best painting from the life to Mr. Hall. The first premium ever awarded by the council to a lady was that year gained by Miss Edith Corbet Fellowes. Other prizes were made for the encouragement of the school of painting.

On Tuesday the Lord Mayor, attended by the Sheriffs of London, left the Mansion House to the Guildhall, and thence to the Bridewell Hospital, where he presided at a meeting convened by the governors of Bridewell and Bethlehem Hospitals, a meeting which takes place once a year in the presence of the civic authorities. The meeting was for the purpose of considering a report of the Corporation, and affords maintenance and instruction, either to their children in life, or to their memories after death, of both sexes, the offspring of the London Orphan Asylum, and was accompanied by Mr. Cockerell, the chairman, and other members of the committee.



A meeting of clergy and laity was held on Monday at the Westminster Palace Hotel, Victoria-street, Westminster, for the purpose of considering the propriety of supporting a society having for its object a revival of lay orders in the Church of England. It is proposed that the society shall consist of members of the Anglican Church, and that it shall be governed by a president and council and other officers. It is urged by the promoters of the new society that the time appears to have arrived for the formal recognition by the Church of lay agents or assistants to the clergy, or ministers, inasmuch as there are many laymen who would be willing to serve as lay deacons, to help the clergy in their parochial work with their pastors, provided that they were not obliged to a perpetual performance of the duties of the diaconate, but were to such daily labours as are instructed to baptize catechise, and preach. Many communicants, it is stated, of various religious bodies, have offered their support to the proposed society, and several of these are willing at once to take upon themselves the duties of lay deacons.

BOTANY BAY, NEW SOUTH WALES, WITH BOTANY HEADS IN THE DISTANCE.

BOTANY BAY AND COOK'S RIVER, NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE beautiful winding river named after the celebrated navigator, Captain Cook, flows into the upper or western extremity of Botany Bay. Across this sheet of water, at a distance of six miles from Sydney, a dam has been constructed, the road over which leads to Illawarra, with its lovely tropical scenery, and the fertile districts of Kiania and Shoalhaven. On the banks of Cook's River the artist meets with many romantic scenes, one of which is shown in our Engraving, from a sketch by Mr. Samuel Elyard. In some places the river passes through low and thickly-wooded groves, whilst in others the banks are bold and rocky. Here and there is a pleasant villa, with its orchard, arrayed at times with blossoms of exquisite hues. The river may be traced to its source a few miles inland. The dam, which forms the subject of one of Mr. Elyard's sketches, is about eight miles from Botany Heads. The view presented in our first Engraving is a continuation of the other, and shows the Heads of Botany Bay, with the waters of Cook's River winding into that bay.

COOK'S RIVER DAM, BOTANY BAY, NEW SOUTH WALES.

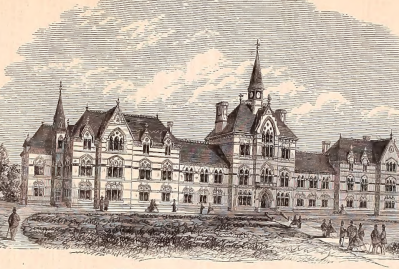
THE PROPOSED ST. THOMAS'S HOSPITAL, AT STANGATE, WESTMINSTER BRIDGE.

Our Illustration shows the design of Mr. Henry Currey, architect to the governors of St. Thomas's Hospital, for the proposed range of buildings at Stangate, on the Lambeth side of the Thames, but above Westminster Bridge. The ground which has been obtained for the site, including a portion of the south-side Thames embankment, to be constructed by Mr. Thomas Webster for the Metropolitan Board of Works, extends no less than 1760 ft. in length, from the gardens of Lambeth Palace to the abutments of Westminster Bridge. The boundary of the ground in Palace New-road and Crosier-street is very irregular; but the depth of the ground in the centre, where the head-quarters of the hospital, the staff of resident medical officers, and the operating theatres are located in the building with the entrance-hall, is 285 ft., and the depth at the Westminster Bridge end is 220 ft., whilst it is much less at the opposite end. The several blocks of building, it will be seen, are placed at a distance of 125 ft. from each other, the centre court having a width of 300 ft. Corridors run the whole length of the hospital on the ground and one-pair stories, and connect the several blocks. These corridors are lighted by large windows on both sides; and, in the event of its being deemed necessary to isolate any particular block, it can be done by putting screens across the corridors and removing the sashes from the windows. These corridors are not carried higher than the one-pair story, but the flat roof over forms a means of communication to the several blocks on the two-pair story. The blocks are placed at right angles to the corridor, from which a passage leads direct to the wards, and on one side of which is the staircase.

The wards are designed to be 28 ft. in width by 120 ft. in length, and 15 ft. in height, and will accommodate twenty-eight beds, giving a cubic capacity for each patient of 1800 ft. The beds are placed at distances of 8 ft. from centre to centre, and the windows are arranged alternately with the beds, at a level, to enable a patient to look out of them. Small wards for two beds, immediately contiguous to, but not communicating with, the general wards, are provided in each block for the reception of special cases, which it may be deemed desirable to separate from the other patients. These wards will have a cubic capacity of 1800 ft. per bed, or of 3600 ft. when used for a single patient. On the other side of the passage are placed the sisters' room, the bales of the staircases are occupied by large lifts and ventilating-shafts. The closets, lavatories, and bath-rooms attached to each ward are projected from the main building, and are cut off from the ward by intercepting lobbies, with windows on both sides.



The main hospital may be said to commence on the first floor, and consists of three tiers of wards, there being four smaller wards provided on the ground floor for the reception of accidents. The accommodation will be sufficient altogether for 588 patients. All applicants for relief at the hospital will enter at the covered porch in Palace New-road, near to Crosier-street.

The general entrance to the hospital is placed in the centre, and will be approached from Palace New-road. The entrance-hall is capacious, forming the substructure of the chapel. The steward's, or superintendent's offices are placed immediately in front of the entrance-hall.

On the right of the entrance-hall is placed the principal staircase, which leads direct to the corridor on the first floor, and communicates with the resident medical officers' apartments, which consist of sixteen rooms, including a common-room for the use of the medical and surgical staff of the hospital. Two operating theatres are provided, of ample dimensions, to admit of a large attendance of pupils, with private rooms adjoining. The dispensary and surgery are in the main corridor; the laboratory and store-rooms are below. The kitchen is in the ground floor of the first block of buildings to the right of the centre, and the matrons' and nurses' apartments in the first block to the left.

The administration department, including the board-rooms, committee-rooms, and treasurer's offices, will be lodged in the block of buildings at the Westminster Bridge end, approached from the bridge. The houses of some resident officers will be in Palace New-road. The chapel, in the centre of the building, is designed to give 300 sittings. The museums, school buildings, and lecture-theatres are proposed to be placed at the southern end of the whole range.

The building is to have fireproof floors throughout, formed with wrought and rolled iron joists and concrete. The floors will be of oak, and the wall-surfaces finished with Keene's or Parian cement. The terrace towards the river is proposed to be kept 4 ft. above the public footway. This, with the height of the parapet (3 ft. 6 in.), will prevent overlooking. The whole building, or rather pile of buildings, will probably be faced with stone, and the cost is estimated at £360,000.

THE WAREHOUSEMEN AND CLERKS' SCHOOLS, CROYDON.

THE WAREHOUSEMEN AND CLERKS' SCHOOLS, CROYDON.

One of our Engravings represents the building at Russell-hill, Croydon, now approaching its completion, erected for the Warehousemen and Clerks' Schools, on behalf of which an effective appeal was made by Mr. Leaf, the chairman at the dinner which took place on Tuesday week at the London Tavern, the Lord Mayor and Mr. S. Morley, M.P., being likewise among the guests and speakers on that occasion. Mr. Leaf, who is treasurer to this useful institution, remarked that he was induced to accept that office by the fact that the originators of it, the young men themselves, showed their sincerity and earnestness in the cause by subscribing amongst themselves the sum of £3000, as a pledge of their determination to carry it through. He was also further induced by the fact that the constitution of the school was based upon the broadest principles of Christian benevolence, its benefits being limited to no sect or denomination, but open to all creeds. It was little more than eleven years since these schools were first founded, and many there were who anticipated their failure, but happily there were others who, relying on the success of sound and liberal principles and the earnestness of the promoters, determined to surmount all difficulties, not the least of which was the providing of a suitable building in which to conduct the schools. Their progress had been most successful and most encouraging, more than 150 children had been already received into the schools; and at present there were ninety-five on the books, being twenty more than at any former period. All who had testified their interest by their presence that evening would, he was sure, be gratified by the measure of success already attained, and would look forward to the opening of the schools on Burnell-hill as the most interesting period in the history of the institution. He had made it his business to visit the work himself from time to time, and he thought they would all have reason to be satisfied. As to the cost, they had the assurance of the builder that it would not materially exceed the estimate; but those who had dabbled in bricks and mortar would rather wait till the end of the year before praise was awarded to the architect, which, it was hoped, he would then be justly entitled to. He was sure that which the building was to be paid for and completely finished, he thought he might rely upon those who were Anglicans to give a willing, liberal, and hearty support to an institution so eminently calculated to conduce to the well-being of the people—a most generous effort was all that was required to complete the work that had been begun, and encouraged so far. He felt assured that they would not only feel it their interest, but their proud duty and pleasure to carry it to a successful issue, and he called upon them to make this effort now. As men of business they knew the value of what was worth doing at all was worth doing well. He therefore commended this noble institution to their generosity, believing that they would liberally contribute to maintain the orphans of that class with whom they were most intimately connected, and by whose ability, industry, and fidelity their affairs had been conducted.

PROPOSED NEW BUILDINGS OF ST THOMAS'S HOSPITAL AT STANGATE, LAMBETH, ABOVE WESTMINSTER BRIDGE.

BIRTHS.

On the 15th inst., at China Lodge, Forest-hill, the wife of F. J. Angier, of the London and China Telegraph, of a son.

On the 9th inst., at Dundalk House, Ireland, the wife of Captain Henry Marshall, 18th Royal Lancers, of a son.

On Sept. 14, at Stanley, Falkland Islands, the wife of the Hon. William Rawdon Fytze of a son.

On Aug. 31, at Rock Cliff, Monmouth, the wife of Captain George Campbell Ross, of Daughters.

On Oct. 28, at Buenos Ayres, the wife of Robert Barclay, Esq., of a son.

On the 6th inst., at Bedford-square, the wife of Dr. R. H. Brandt, Esq., of Hong-Kong, Plenipotentiary, R.S., of a daughter.

On the 6th inst., the wife of Thomas Johnstone Wilson, Esq., of Straguhan House, Dumfries, N.B., of a son.

On the 7th inst., at Stone-cot Hill, Sutton, Surrey, the wife of Henry B. Stone, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 10th inst., at 3, Shandwick-place, Edinburgh, the wife of John B. Brown-Sheffield, of Findrette and Huntly Hall, Aberdeenshire, of a son.

On the 12th inst., at Woeburn House, Bucks, the wife of Alfred Gibby, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 30th ult., at the parish church, Brighton, by the Rev. G. Scarisbrick, Minister of St. John's, Woolwich, assisted by the Rev. J. Arnott, M.A., of Morriston, Swansea, Harry Mainwaring Symonds, Esq., H.M. Military Store Staff, to Louisa Ellen, daughter of the late George Hutridge, Esq., No. cards.

On the 31st inst., at Christ Church, Saffron Hill, by the Rev. Russell, M.A., assisted by the Rev. R. T. Ridyard, Curate in charge of Christ Church, John Lewis Roy, Esq., late of the 1st Royal Dragoons, to Elizabeth Wilcocks, eldest niece of Mr. and Mrs. Horsbrin, at The Grescent, Brighton.

On the 14th inst., at St. John's, Paddington, by the Rev. E. M. Goulburn, D.D., assisted by the Rev. Joseph W. Ayre, Charles O. F. Cator, Esq., of 8, Byron-terrace, son of Lady Lucinda Cator, to Isabella Maria, eldest daughter of Sir George Baker, Bart., of 4, Hyde Park-square.

DEATHS.

On the 3rd inst., in Deuia, South Australia, the infant son of Robert Rankin, Esq., of that city.

On the 5th inst., at St. Asaph, Flintshire, Sarah Brooks, aged 76, relict of John Saunders, Esq., of Cleve Hill, Weston, near Bath.

On the 6th inst., at Bedford-square, Elizabeth Hodgson, Ernest Stuart, infant son of James M'Henry, Esq.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 23.

SUNDAY, Dec. 17.—Third Sunday in Advent. Death of Thomas Guy, founder of Guy's Hospital, 1724; and of Bolivar, liberator of South America, 1830.

MONDAY, 18.—Sir Thomas Gresham died, 1579. Sun rises, 8.8; sets, 3.53. Length of day, 7h. 45m. Moon's changes: New moon, 4h. 51m. a.m., Oxford Michaelmas Term ends.

TUESDAY, 19.—Fierce Battle of Dreux (Montmorency defeated the Huguenots, under Condé), 1562. Died, 1851, Duke of M. W. Taunton, Independence, 1851.

WEDNESDAY, 20.—Ember Week. First General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, 1560. Louis Napoleon Bonaparte elected President of the French Republic, 1848.

THURSDAY, 21.—St. Thomas the Apostle. Battle of Fernechai (the Sikhs defeated by Gough on this and the next day), 1845. Sun rises, 8.9; sets, 3.53. Winter quarter begins.

FRIDAY, 22.—Alexandria taken by the Caliph Omar, 640. Ismail stormed by Suwarrow, with immense slaughter, 1790.

SATURDAY, 23.—St. Victoria, virgin and martyr. Annunation of Henri de Lorraine, the Great Duke of Guise, 1588. Antwerp taken by the French, 1832.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 23.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
5 m. 5 h. 35 m.	6 m. 6 h. 5 m.	6 m. 6 h. 35 m.	7 m. 7 h. 5 m.	7 m. 7 h. 35 m.	8 m. 8 h. 5 m.	8 m. 8 h. 35 m.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 16′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY READ OF THERMOMETER.					WIND.		RAIN in 24 hours.
	Barometer reduced to 32° and Sea Level.	Dew Point.	Solar Radiation.	Terrestrial Radiation.	General Direction.	Miles.	Hours.	Inch.
	Inches.	°	°	°		Miles.	Inches.	Inch.
6	29·760	49·2	47·0	·92	E.	208	ESE. SSE.	·007
7	29·521	39·5	49·1	·93	10	49·3	51·9	SSW. WSW.	256	·020
8	29·243	46·5	44·3	·81	10	49·3	51·9	W.	227	·000
9	29·156	49·9	48·5	·76	10	42·0	46·9	E.	70	·020
10	29·437	44·1	41·2	·71	10	38·2	45·7	E.	110	·000
11	29·647	41·1	37·4	·71	9	39·7	45·7	NE. NNE. N.	141	·000
12	29·610	40·2	39·1	·76	9	39·7	45·7	NE.	141	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at 10 a.m. and 10 p.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29·760	29·521	29·243	29·156	29·437	29·647	29·610
Temperature of Air	49·9°	47·7°	46·5°	49·2°	44·1°	41·1°	40·2°
Temperature of Evaporation	47·0°	46·1°	44·3°	48·5°	42·7°	39·4°	39·1°
Direction of Wind	N.E.	N.E.	N.E.	E.	E.	N.E.	N.E.

PICTURE-FRAMES for the TRADE.—BIRCHWOOD, Manufacturer, Gill Frame, Glass, and Back, 3s. by the dozen, 9s. 6d. 9-in. Frame, Glass, and Back, 1s. each. Portrait Frames, Oval and Square, Glass and Back, 6d. each. Sconce and Bracket, all Gold, 21s. each. Every Article, and 20 St. Martin's-lane. Established 1803.

WAVERLEY PEN.—"Writes with the ease and facility of a quill."—Vide Standard. Sold by all Stationers, or sent for 14 stamps.—MACNIVEN and CAMERON, No. 97, Newgate-street, London, E.C.; 23, Blair-street, Edinburgh.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze. Medieval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
F. M. WILLIAMS and CO., Manufacturers, Grand Depôt, 31, High Holborn, W.C.

DENCUALITY.—PORTRAITS, 12 for 2s. 6d., within 14 days. Send a Carte-de-visite and stamps. EXACT COPIES returned, with original. Order, MOUNTED and FINISHED.—NATIONAL PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPANY, 55, Bedford-row, London.—W. ANDERSON, Manager.

MONEY ADVANCED, at 5 per cent, without unnecessary publicity or delay, on freehold, reversionary, or Company property, and on personal security, from all parts of town or country.—Mr. MORRIS, 11, Bouverie-buildings, Fleet-st.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Managers, Messrs. BUNN and FALCONER. Every Evening, during the week, at Seven, PUTS MORNING PERFORMANCES, on Wednesday, Dec. 27, Thursday, 28; Friday, 29; and Saturday, 30; and every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, during the month of January, 1866, at Seven, a MORNING PERFORMANCE, written by E. L. Blanchard, Esq., entitled LITTLE KING PUTTER; or, Harlequin Hop o' my Thumb and the Ogre and Walking Cap. The gorgeously-beautiful discharge of the decorations, inclusive of more than the usual amount of Scenic Surprises and Transformation Wonders on account of the Christmas Holidays. The Grand Ballet of Nations, arranged and produced entirely by Mr. Oscar Byrne. Every scene entirely new. The Costumes by Mr. Thomas, unrivalled exclusively for the Theatre Royal Drury Lane. The general action of the Pantomime by Mr. Harry Boleno. The Music by Mr. Frederick Clay. Harlequin, Mr. Harry Boleno; Clown, Mr. Charles Thompson; Pantaloon, Mr. Harry Payne; Columbine, Miss Emily Soldene; Miss E. Farnsbee, Miss Clara Morgan, Mr. G. Belmore, Mr. Barsby, Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Bland, Mr. Elliot Galer, Master Percy Roselle, Miss Rosina Wright, and the whole of the Company. Preceded by a Comedietta, entitled A Double Conquest. Harry Dalton and Mr. C. Millward. Box-office open from Ten till Five. Private Boxes, £1 1s. to £3 3s. Orchestra Stalls, 10s. 6d. Dress Circle, 7s. First Circle, 5s. Upper Circle, 3s. 6d. Pit, 2s. Lower Boxes, 2s. 6d. Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Carriages at Eleven. Tickets and places to be obtained at the Box Office of the Theatre from Ten till Five.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Last Week of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mathews.—Every Evening, at Seven, the Comedy of MR. NIGHTINGALE'S DIARY. Mr. Buckstone in his original character of Mr. Lovibond.—MONDAY and Tuesday, THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO.—Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, MR. NIGHTINGALE'S DIARY.—Saturday, THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO.—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, next week, MR. and MRS. CHARLES MATHEWS, in which Mr. Charles Mathews, for the last time, will appear in his Entertainment entitled AT HOME. Followed by the Farce entitled MR. NIGHTINGALE'S DIARY.—Thursday, Mr. Charles Mathews's Last Night but One.—Box Office open from Ten to Five. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Dress Circle, 7s.; First Circle, 5s.; Upper Circle, 3s. 6d.; Pit, 2s.; Lower Boxes, 2s. 6d.; Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Carriages at Eleven. Tickets and places to be obtained at the Box Office of the Theatre from Ten till Five.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Kean. Every Evening, at Seven, the Play of THE CORSICAN BROTHERS. Mr. Charles Kean. LAST TIME BUT ONE. TO-MORROW (Saturday) and MONDAY, Dec. 18, LAST NIGHTS. To conclude with the Farce of MASTER CLARKE. Mr. Charles Kean. Tuesday, Dec. 19, and during the Week, Shakspeare's Historical Play of KING JOHN. Mr. Charles Kean. Box-office open from Ten to Five. Private Boxes, £1 1s. to £3 3s. Stalls, 10s. 6d. Dress Circle, 7s. First Circle, 5s. Upper Circle, 3s. 6d. Pit, 2s. Lower Boxes, 2s. 6d. Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Carriages at Eleven.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—On SATURDAY, DEC. 23, will be produced a New Drama with local and topical features, entitled THE LIFE OF LONDON. Written by Mr. Tom Taylor. Scenery by Mr. Beverley. New Scenery by Mr. T. Grieve. For the purpose of stage representation some slight alterations have been made in Pierce Egan's "Life in London," but the thinking of the piece throughout is faithful to the text of Sir Walter Scott.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Kean.—Every Evening, at Seven, the Play of THE CORSICAN BROTHERS. Mr. Charles Kean. LAST TIME BUT ONE. TO-MORROW (Saturday) and MONDAY, Dec. 18, LAST NIGHTS. To conclude with the Farce of MASTER CLARKE. Mr. Charles Kean. Tuesday, Dec. 19, and during the Week, Shakspeare's Historical Play of KING JOHN. Mr. Charles Kean. Box-office open from Ten to Five. Private Boxes, £1 1s. to £3 3s. Stalls, 10s. 6d. Dress Circle, 7s. First Circle, 5s. Upper Circle, 3s. 6d. Pit, 2s. Lower Boxes, 2s. 6d. Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Carriages at Eleven.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER. Every Evening, at Seven, the Drama of FRANCIS—No. 7.1. Tools. At Eight, HIS VAN WINKLE; or, The Story of Penny Pickle. Mr. Webster, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Wright, and Mr. Fawcett. Box-office open from Ten to Five. Private Boxes, £1 1s. to £3 3s. Stalls, 10s. 6d. Dress Circle, 7s. First Circle, 5s. Upper Circle, 3s. 6d. Pit, 2s. Lower Boxes, 2s. 6d. Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Carriages at Eleven.

NEW SURREY THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Shepherd. The Opening of the New Surrey Theatre, Dec. 18, under the management of Mr. Shepherd, with a Grand Pantomime, entitled HARLEQUIN AND THE FAIRY QUEEN; or, Harlequin and the Seven Sisters of the Rainbow. Harlequin, Mr. Shepherd; Clown, Mr. Conquest; Pantaloon, Mr. Rogers; Columbine, Miss Rosa Leo. Preceded by a Comedy, entitled A Sack of Potatoes. Box-office open from Ten to Five. Private Boxes, £1 1s. to £3 3s. Stalls, 10s. 6d. Dress Circle, 7s. First Circle, 5s. Upper Circle, 3s. 6d. Pit, 2s. Lower Boxes, 2s. 6d. Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Carriages at Eleven.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—NEXT WEEK (Specially Attractive), Every Evening, Concerts of Vocal and Instrumental Music, by Mr. Manns and Full Orchestra. Grand Display of Fireworks, by Messrs. Brock, at 9 o'clock. Ascent, Anne Gosman, the Wizard of the North, Frederic Macaire, Grand Organ, Palace Band, Handel Festival Choir, Gymnastic Exercises, Illuminated scenic Fountains, Crystal Palace Library, Museum, Picture Gallery, with many recent additions to the extensive collection of modern Paintings, Sculpture, Models, &c. Open from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; on Saturdays, 2s. 6d.; season-tickets, the Handel Festival and other Attractions of the Crystal Palace. One Sailing Trip Every Week from Hungerford Bridge to Crystal Palace and back, Wednesday, at Half-past One. Fare for the Trip, including Admission to the Palace, 2s. 6d.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—NEXT WEEK.—Unusual Combination of Specialties and Attractions.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.—GREAT PREPARATIONS.—Christmas Holiday Announcements Everyday.—More fun than ever.—Admission, 1s.; on Saturdays, 2s. 6d.

THE FIELD OF THE CLOTH OF GOLD, AGRICULTURAL HALL.—CHRISTMAS WEEK.—Twice daily.

GRAND TOURNAMENT, AGRICULTURAL HALL, Twice daily.

CHRISTMAS TREAT for JUVENILES.—AGRICULTURAL HALL.—Twice daily.

TWENTY THOUSAND SPECTATORS and FIVE HUNDRED PERFORMERS.—AGRICULTURAL HALL.—Twice daily. Commencing on Boxing Day.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, in their Popular Entertainment, A PECULIAR FAMILY; after which, Dec. 18, and every Evening during the week, MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight, Saturday at Three.—ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street.

MR. and MRS. HOWARD PAUL'S Last Week but One on the LARGE EGYPTIAN HALL, in their New Comic Entertainment, RIPPLES on the RIVER, by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Paul, Every Evening (except Wednesday and Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday at Three. "The Prince of the Revellers." Every Night (except Saturday), and on Saturdays at Three, the Entertainment entitled MY MOTHER-IN-LAW'S MAID. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Manager, Mr. Frederick Bennett.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS."—Mr. Thurton will appear at the QUEEN DOG and MINE THE BACK DOOR, at the COBURG EXCHANGE, Edward-street, Hackney-road, To-MORROW Afternoon, in the Morning, Downstairs Lodge, Woodbridge, Suffolk.—Manager, Mr. J. Merthy.

GREAT ST. JAMES'S HALL.—THE ALLEGHANIANS, the Original Christy Minstrels of the ARE, and Acrobatic Gymnasts, EXCLUSIVE and SOLE PROPRIETORS. The troupe was organised in 1846. They will give their Entertainment EVERY EVENING (except Saturday) at Eight, and on Wednesday and Saturday at Three. Stalls, 3s.; Balcony, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Manager, Mr. Frederick Bennett. Secretary, Mr. Stalls, 3s., which may be obtained at Mr. Mitchell's Royal Library, Old Bond-street, and at the Hall. Business Manager, Mr. J. Merthy. Acting Manager, Mr. Frederick Bennett.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight; WEDNESDAYS and SATURDAYS at Three and Eight.—The only original and unrivalled Entertainment of MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, entitled PRIVATE BOXES, and their popular Entertainment, entitled A PECULIAR FAMILY. Mr. John Parry will appear in his Musical Entertainment, entitled MUSICAL CHAIRS, and his Musical Sketch, entitled MY WIFE'S LODGERS. Stalls, 3s.; Balcony, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; Keith and Prowse's, 48, Cheapside; and Chappell's, 50, New Bond-street. Business Manager, Mr. Frederick Bennett. Acting Manager, Mr. Arthur Lewis. Secretary, Mr. Hall, Piccadilly, and on account will they appear at any subsequent hall.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS, ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. SPECIAL NOTICE.—During the Christmas Holidays, commencing BOXING DAY, the ALLEGHANIANS will perform Every Evening at Eight, and Wednesday and Saturday at Three. Stalls, 3s.; Balcony, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places to be obtained at the Box Office of the Theatre from Ten till Five. Tickets and Places may be secured at Mitchell's Royal Library, Old Bond-street, and at the Hall. Manager, Mr. Frederick Bennett.

SODARE.—271st REPRESENTATION.—THEATRE of MYSTERY, EGYPTIAN HALL.—MARVELS in MAGIC and VENTRILOQUISM. Every Evening, at Eight, and Wednesday and Saturday at Three, Mr. J. N. Maskelyne, Mr. George Cooke, and Mr. Cecil Lewis, in their Entertainment, illustrated by the mysterious Illusions of THE SPHINX, and by the celebrated Indian Basket Feat; as early as Tuesday next, Dec. 19, Wednesday, Every Evening at Eight, and Wednesday and Saturday at Three, Stalls, at Mitchell's, Old Bond-street, and Box-office, Egyptian Hall. Admission, 1s., 2s., and 3s. Manager, Mr. John Nevil Maskelyne.

DAVENPORT BROTHERS and Mr. FAY, having returned from Paris, where they have performed before the Emperor and Empress, the FIVE PUBLIC SEANCES, at the BANQUET-HOUSE ROOMS, on MONDAY, DEC. 18, 19, 20, 21, and 22, at Eight o'clock precisely. Stalls, 5s.; Reserved Seats, 3s.; Back Seats, 2s. Tickets at Mitchell's Royal Library, 33, Old Bond-street. Admission at Eight. Private Seances to be made to Mr. E. Cox, 11, Northumberland-street, W.C.

MDME. TUSSAUD'S EXHIBITION, Baker-street.—New Addition—a Full-length Portrait Model taken from Life, of CHARLOTTE WISEMAN. Open from Eleven till Dusk, and from Seven till Ten p.m. Admission, 1s.; Children under Ten, Half price.—EDGAR SHEPPARD.

SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The ANNUAL WINTER EXHIBITION of SKETCHES and STUDIES is NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 5, Pall-mall East, from Nine till Dusk.—R. HARTLEY, Sec.

MRS. CAMERON'S FIRST EXHIBITION of PHOTOGRAPHS, OPEN until the End of THIS MONTH, at the GALLERY, 3, Pall-mall East.—Entrance free.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL.—Conductor, Mr. MICHAEL COSTA. THIS EVENING, Dec. 16, the Thirty-fourth Annual Christmas Performance of THE MESSIAH. Vocalists, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Weiss. The Band and Chorus, the most extensive available in Exeter Hall, will consist of, as usual, 500 performers.
Tickets—Numbered Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Reserved Area or Gallery, 5s.; Unreserved, 3s. Should be secured at once.

EXETER HALL.—DEC. 20.—THE MESSIAH.—Christmas Day performance by the NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 20, and Chorus 700. Conductor, Mr. G. W. MARTIN. Miss Louisa Pyne, Mr. Leigh Murray, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Weiss. Band and Chorus, 700. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 5s., 3s., and 2s. Every Ticket admits to the Grand Rehearsal on Saturday next, Dec. 23. Ladies and Gentlemen wishing to fill vacancies in the Choir should attend this Rehearsal.

EXETER HALL.—The NEW TENOR in "THE MESSIAH" NEXT WEDNESDAY.
Conductor, Mr. COSTA.—SECOND PERFORMANCE.
"He exceeded a reasonable expectation, and was enormously called upon to repeat: 'If with all your hearts' and 'Thou shalt break them.' Mr. Weiss is a tenor singer of the first class."—Vide Times, Dec. 14. "Mr. Weiss, the new tenor, fully justified the expectations that were formed of him. His voice is of fine quality, and his style unaffected and genuine. 'If with all your hearts' and 'Thou shalt break them' were given with a degree of finish and expression that left little to be desired, and there were sung with such truly fine taste as to win the vehement applause of the great audience."—Vide Morning Post, Dec. 14. "Mr. Weiss, the new tenor, possesses a voice of fine quality, and sings with much taste and expression. He was encored for 'If with all your hearts.' He secured one of the most hearty re-demands ever heard within the walls of Exeter Hall for 'Thou shalt break them.' Mr. Weiss's voice is a tenor of fine quality, and his style unaffected and genuine."—Vide Daily Telegraph.—Conductor, Mr. Willcox. Had a great success."—Illustrated London News. "A tenor singer of the first class."—Vide Times. "Mr. Weiss, the new tenor, possesses a voice of the highest degree of excellence, and sings with much taste and expression. He was called upon to repeat Handel, if not in musical history generally. Mr. Weiss gave evidence of a thorough knowledge of the principles of vocalisation, and accomplishment which, with proper training, will make him a first-rate tenor."—Illustrated London News. "A tenor singer of the first class."—Vide Times. "Mr. Weiss, the new tenor, fully justified the expectations that were formed of him. His voice is of fine quality, and his style unaffected and genuine. 'If with all your hearts' and 'Thou shalt break them' were given with a degree of finish and expression that left little to be desired, and there were sung with such truly fine taste as to win the vehement applause of the great audience."—Vide Morning Post, Dec. 14. "Mr. Weiss, the new tenor, possesses a voice of fine quality, and sings with much taste and expression. He was encored for 'If with all your hearts.' He secured one of the most hearty re-demands ever heard within the walls of Exeter Hall for 'Thou shalt break them.' Mr. Weiss's voice is a tenor of fine quality, and his style unaffected and genuine."—Vide Daily Telegraph.—Conductor, Mr. Willcox. Had a great success."—Illustrated London News. "A tenor singer of the first class."—Vide Times. "Mr. Weiss, the new tenor, possesses a voice of the highest degree of excellence, and sings with much taste and expression. He was called upon to repeat Handel, if not in musical history generally. Mr. Weiss gave evidence of a thorough knowledge of the principles of vocalisation, and accomplishment which, with proper training, will make him a first-rate tenor."—Illustrated London News. "A tenor singer of the first class."—Vide Times. Conductor, Mr. Charles Salaman. Mr. Weiss's Second Appearance this Season at Exeter Hall

THE ENGLISH INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE, near London.—Mr. ALLEN APPLICATIONS respecting NEW PUPILS must now be made to the Principal, the Rev. RICHARD, Hanwell College, Middlesex.

ROYAL INSTITUTION OF GREAT BRITAIN, Albemarle-street, W.
LECTURE ARRANGEMENTS.
CHRISTMAS LECTURES adapted to a JUVENILE AUDITORY.
Prof. TYNDALL, F.R.S.—On Lectures, "On Sound," on Dec. 26, 28, 30, 1865; Jan. 2, 4, 6, 1866.
BOTANIC LECTURE, 1866.
Prof. TYNDALL, F.R.S.—Two Lectures, "On Heat," on Tuesdays and Thursdays, Jan. 23 to Feb. 22.
Prof. FRANKLAND, F.R.S.—Eight Lectures, "On the Non-Metallic Elements," on Saturdays, Jan. 27 to March 17.
Prof. H. WARINGTON SMYTH, A.M., F.R.S.—Six Lectures, "On the Way to Observe in Nine Acts," on Saturdays, Jan. 20 to Feb. 24.
Rev. G. HENSLOW.—Four Lectures "On Structural and Systematic Botany, considered with reference to the Principles of Natural Selection," on Mondays, Jan. 29 to Feb. 19.
The Friday Evening Meetings will begin on Jan. 19. The Discourses before Easter will probably be delivered by Prof. TYNDALL, Mr. G. W. HUNT, Prof. STANLEY, Mr. ARCHIBALD GEIKIE, Prof. ODLING, Dr. FRANKLAND, Dr. HOFFMANN, Sir JOHN LUBBOCK, Mr. Justice PLANCHÉ, and Captain DOUGLAS GALTON.
To the Friday Evening Meetings members and their friends only are admitted.
ALFRED RICHARDS, Secretary.
Prof. FRANKLAND, F.R.S.—Four Lectures, "On the Non-Metallic Elements," on Tuesdays and Thursdays, April 10 to April 19.
Sir RICHARD OWEN, F.R.S., Superintendent of the Natural History Collections.—Six Lectures, "On Natural Selection," on Saturdays, April 14, 21, and 28.
Prof. TYNDALL, F.R.S.—Two Lectures, "On Light," on Thursdays, April 26 and May 3.
Prof. HUXLEY, F.R.S.—Twelve Lectures, "On the Methods and Results of Ethnology," on Tuesdays and Thursdays, May 1 to May 24.
Prof. ARCHER HIND, M.A.—Six Lectures, "On the Application of Physical Geography and Geology to the Fine Arts," on Tuesday, May 1 to June 5.
An Extra Meeting will probably be given by Prof. ROLLESTON, "On Human Remains," on Wednesday, April 11. Monday, April 30; and Wednesday, April 25.
The Rev. H. H. MILMAN, Librarian and Secretary.—The Library will be Closed from Dec. 20, to Jan. 2, inclusive. Alexander Herschel, Esq., Henry Drummond, Prof. Archer Hind, Prof. Odling, and Prof. Frankland.
The Library will be open for admission to all those Courses of Lectures to Two Guineas. To a single Course of Lectures, One Guinea or Half a Guinea, according to the length of the course.
The Guinea academical membership members are requested to apply to the Secretary.
Non-members can be proposed at any meeting by Members. When proposed they are admitted to all the lectures, to the Friday evening meetings, and to the library and reading-room; and their families are admitted to the lectures at a reduced charge.
Payments—First year, Two Guineas; afterwards, Five Guineas a year; or a composition fee of Twenty Guineas.
Prospectuses when prepared may be had in the hall. H. BENCE JONES, Hon. Sec.
December, 1865.

LAY or SUB-DIACONATE.—The time appearing to have arrived for the formal recognition by the Bishops of the Order of Lay Agents as auxiliaries to the ordained Ministry, and it being believed that there are many Laymen who would gladly enter the Order if they knew that there was a fair prospect of their being ordained—provided that they were not themselves in a position to desire it—the Committee of the duties to be interested to form—a body of Laity and Clergy have joined this public invitation, recommending applications to any members of the Union of Bodies of every rank, nobleman, gentlemen, men in professions, trades, and trade, or may be addressed to the Rev. Dr. Hoffmann, Secretary, 1, Old Bond-street, London, W.; to the Rev. Archdeacon Cooper, who has been authorised to receive them; or to the Rev. Edward Monro, Vicar of Gorton Mary Brook, 7, Godliman-street, Doctors-commons, London, E.C.
The Committee, in making this appeal to the Laity, feel that, in order to their utmost performance, the interest this advertisement will be sufficient to call forth a large number of offering supposed to exist, and so forming a judgment as to the duty and expediency of taking further proceedings.

THE ENGLISH AND FOREIGN LIBRARY COMPANY, LIMITED.
(Late Hookham's), established 1814.)
DIRECTORS.
The Rev. G. B. Gidly, Chaplain-General to the Forces, 8, Warwick-square.
Arthur Hill Hassall, Esq., M.D., 1, Lincoln's-inn-fields.
Andrew Tod Heiton, Esq., 3, Victoria-street, Parliament-street.
Augustus Hare, Esq., 18, Chesham-place, Belgrave-square.
The Rev. William Law, Minister, Trinity Chapel, Conduit-street.
The Company continues to guarantee the circulation of ALL THE NEW WORKS immediately on their publication.
Shareholders subscribing are entitled to special profits.
Terms, Guineas per New Books and of Surplus Stock, and Lists of the Depôts in Town and Country, Forwarded Post Free on Application.
RICHARD HEAD, Jun., Secretary and General Manager.
Chief Office, 19, Old Bond-street, London, W.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established 1845), 10, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.
ARTHUR B. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not represented. Liverpool: Georging Hewitt.

EAST LONDON BANK (Limited), 52, Cornhill.
Capital £1,000,000; Issued, £1,000,000.
Charles Gilpin, Esq., M.P., Chairman.
Charles Cooper, Esq., Deputy-Chairman.
Every description of English business transacted.
R. J. LE THIER, General Manager.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND
Incorporated by the Legislature of New Zealand.
Established in the Colony of New Zealand, 1861.
PAID-UP CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVED FUND, £110,000.
At Auckland, Christchurch, Dunedin, Hokitika, Nelson, Napier, Newmarket, New Plymouth, Picton, Queenstown, Russell, Taranaki, Timaru, Tuapeka, Wellington, Wanganui, and Wellington.
Auckland Invercargill New Plymouth Queenstown
Russell Kaipara Onamaru Tuapeka West
Nelson Lyttelton Otago Rangitikei Wellington
Christchurch Napier Timaru Waikouaiti
Dunedin Nelson Wanganui Mount Ida Wellington
Hokitika Picton
This Bank grants Drafts payable on any of the above-named places, and transacts every description of Banking business connected with New Zealand, on the most favourable terms.
The London Office receives deposits at interest for fixed periods, on terms which may be learned on application.
No. 76, Old Broad-street, City. GEORGE GISBORNE, Manager.

BURGLARY IN MANCHESTER.
Gentlemen,—I am instructed by Sir E. Antrobus, the Chairman of the Conservative Committee, to inform you that your Patent Strong Rebutter lids (supplied by you about two months since) to the doors of the Carlton Club, in this city, have this day been the most resolutely resisted attempts of burglarious entry. Had it not been for these lids the thieves must have been at work for many hours, as they left several broken instruments behind them. The lids were forced open at the top, but the bolts were not shot back, so as to open the door, which would be heavy and spoiled all the locks, and, after repeated efforts, they only succeeded in doing so after upwards of four hours additional work on Monday, when the valuable contents of the lids were found perfectly secure.
I am, Gentlemen, yours respectfully,
HENRY THOS. MILNER and SON, Florists to the Queen. To Mr. ROBERT SCHERF, Glazing Director.

CATTLE PLAGUE.—Public Notice.—Report of the Royal Commission.—The DISINFECTING POWDER referred to is M'DOUGALL'S, sold in Packets of 1 lb., 2 lb., 5 lb., and 20 lb. each. The Chemical Works, Norfolk-street, Strand. M'Dougall's Patent Disinfecting Soap. For full particulars apply to Alex. M'Dougall, 95, Finsbury-pavement, London, E.C. Agents wanted. Sold by Barclay, 11, London-bridge; Sanders and Sons, Glasgow; Mr. M'Leod, 19, Sloane-street; or Dublin, Mr. Alexander, Mary's Abbey.

A. FORBER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square.

HAIR JEWELLERY for CHRISTMAS PRESENTS. Gold Lockets for Hair, from 9s.; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Albums, from 21s. each. An Illustrated Catalogue sent free by Post. A. FORBER, 2, Hanover-street, W.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE.—Corporate and Official Seals, Diplomas, Presentation Addresses, Engraved Dies, Illuminated Addresses for Presentations, Book-plates, Visiting Cards.—PUGH BROTHERS, London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.—Arms painted and emblazoned, and engraved on seals, &c.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.

MONOGRAMS designed and engraved on dies, seals, &c., in the Heraldic Office, Lincoln's-inn.—Sketch, 2s. 6d.—Crests engraved on rings, dies, and seals.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.

NEW GAMES for CHRISTMAS, consisting of Holborn-hill, Cavalry Charge, Polo, Tournament, and Lancers, with Cross Country Steeple-chasing Games, and can only be had of FARLING and SOTTO, 27 and 28, Oxford-street, London, W.

CROQUET (indoor), at PARKINS and GOTTO'S.—For the Drawing-room, or equal, from 21s. Portable and superior Croquet Lawns for sale or hire and popular indoor Games. Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—Parkins and Gotto, 27 and 28, Oxford-street, London, W.

BILLIARD and BAGATELLE TABLES, all Sizes, at very moderate Prices. Miniature Billiard Tables of the best make. Price-list post-free. Economy and every requisite for billiard-playing obtained at PARKINS and GOTTO'S, 27 and 28, Oxford-street, London, W.

BRADY'S NEW "YOWEL" WASHING MACHINES. A remarkable success. Approved by gentlemen. Awarded seven Prize Medals this year (the only medals at Dublin and Glasgow International Exhibitions). The letters of unqualified approval received from purchasers daily (many with orders) prove that BRADY'S NEW "YOWEL" is the highly satisfying article, which is offered here at one-third the ordinary cost. Carriage free per rail.
65, Westbourne-street, London, S.E.; Manchester, and Dublin.

FURNISH your HOUSE with the best ARTICLES; they are the cheapest in the end.—DEANE and CO.'S priced FURNISHING LIST, grants and post-free, enumerates the leading articles from all the various departments of their Stock, which is the largest and most economical in London. Bedsteads, in brass, in mahogany, table cutlery, electro-plate, lamps, baths, fenders, furniture, iron bedsteads, bedding, Britannia metal, copper, tin, and brass goods; culinary utensils, turnery, brushes, mats, &c.—Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge.

THE CHRISTMAS DOUBLE NUMBER
OF THE
ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS,
TO BE ISSUED NEXT SATURDAY, DEC. 23, WILL CONSIST OF A COLOURED ILLUSTRATION, ENTITLED
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD,
FROM A PAINTING BY CHARLES LUCY,
AND
FORTY PAGES OF ENGRAVINGS AND LETTERPRESS.

ENGRAVINGS.

Special Heading for the Number and other Designs. Drawn by H. NOEL HUMPHREYS.
Uncle Everard's Comic Song. By C. ROBINSON.
Origin of the Wassail Bowl. By J. GODWIN.
All Prizes and No Blanks! By A. B. HOUGHTON.
Christmas at the Court of King Arthur. (Two Pages.) By J. GILBERT.
The Private View. By J. A. FITZGERALD.
The Bachelor's Christmas Dinner. By J. T. LUCAS.
Under the Mistletoe. By A. HUNT.
Three Illustrations of Papa's Story. By C. ROBINSON.
Outdoor Relief. By G. D. GODARD.
Christmas Amusements—The Tournament. By A. HUNT.
AND A NUMBER OF NEWS ILLUSTRATIONS.

TALES AND SKETCHES.

Mr. Griscellwaite's Christmas Dinner. By MARY HOWITT.
A Christmas Holiday Lesson. By MARK LEMON.
Papa's Story. By GEORGE MACDONALD.
Birds in Winter. By THOMAS MILLER.
The Mistletoe (Poetry). By GEORGE MACDONALD.
A Page of Christmas Nonsense.
Christmas at the Court of King Arthur.
The Children in the Wood.
The Saxon Wassail.
The Private View.
Uncle John with the Young Folk. &c.

A NEW CHRISTMAS WALTZ,
Written expressly for this Journal by DANIEL GODFREY,
Bandmaster of the Grenadier Guards, Author of the "Guards," the "Mabel," and the "Hilda" Waltzes.

ALL THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Price of the Christmas Double Number, consisting of Two Sheets and a Half of Illustrations and the Coloured Engraving, One Shilling: Stamped, to go free through the Post Office in the United Kingdom, Twopence extra.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.—Advertisements for the Christmas Double Number must be received before clock-work on Wednesday, the 19th inst. The lowest charge for an Advertisement—not exceeding four lines (about thirty words)—in the Christmas Number will be Twelve Shillings; and for every additional line—swerging ten words—the charge will be Three Shillings.
Office, 198, Strand, W.C.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1865.

It seems almost unnecessary to congratulate the country upon the fact that moderation has again triumphed. No reasonable person could suppose that her Majesty's Government would be either tempted or terrified into taking, with reference to the Jamaica rebellion, any other course than one which would be approved by every humane and, therefore, unprejudiced mind. A number of angry meetings and acres of furious writing, the result of honest but uninformed sentiment, if the Premier has indorsed the sentence, "Wait and hear." An order in the Gazette announcing the appointment of an official extraordinary, who is at once to proceed to Jamaica, and, armed with the full authority of the Home Government, is to institute a complete investigation into the history, incidents, and circumstances of the rebellion, into the mode in which it has been crushed, and into the question whether the repressive measures have or have not been in excess of necessity. Such a decision on the part of the Government was, of course, that to which common-sense pointed when the first appalling details reached England; but the frenzied character of the reclamations which have been addressed to the authorities and the public may have contributed to give to this practical and obvious course a commonplace and disappointing character. After being favoured with pictures of vastly painful interest in which the tender of words are depicted in the attitude of martyrdom, wilds her Majesty's representative, her soldiers, and the white population are shown as savage huntsmen cheering on the Maroon hounds to carnage, it is doubtless chilling, not to say in the nature of anti-climax, that the next tableau in the series should represent nothing more imposing than a council board, presided over by a gentleman of calm and impassive bearing, whose business it is to elicit from witnesses, toned down by the solemnities and penalties of an oath, a truthful and detailed story of the tragedy of Jamaica.

The single question which will have been asked by rational people, who have no system to maintain, no theories to vindicate, but who are anxious that the honour and humanity of Englishmen shall be shown to have been untarnished, relates to the selection of the individual charged with the investigation. Happily, there was within call, if not actually at hand, on of the very best men—perhaps the best man—for such a service. Sir Henry Storks goes out to Jamaica. This gentleman would appear to have a special faculty, especially cultivated, for inquiring into and adjusting difficult and disputed questions. At the Cape, in Mauritius, and in the East this gift has been called into exercise, and Sir Henry Storks has in each case returned with the honours due to a wise umpire; but the country will be glad to understand that Sir Henry is no mere arbiter of contents, a well-meaning arbitrator ready to allow any amount of faults on both sides provided both sides will unite in forgiving the past and complimenting the urbanity of the referee. Sir Henry Storks is known to be a judicial mind, and has no idea of compromises which involve a surrender of truth. Armed with powers, he will use those powers, and those who endeavour to impose upon him traditional prejudices or revolutionary fanaticism will alike find themselves baffled by his judicial mind. The scornful colonist and the ranting sealot will equally be heard without favour or affection, and small mercy will be shown to the absurdities of either. Sir Henry Storks's commission, if we read it aright, is based upon the assumption that Jamaica is a dependency of the British Crown, and that the great duty of a British Governor is to see that the authority of the Sovereign suffers no infraction in the territory committed to his charge. His second duty is to administer that territory with due regard to the balanced interests of all her Majesty's subjects resident therein. For English officers are likely to fall in the fulfilment of the first of these conditions, the degree in which the full measure of the second may be attained depends upon ability and upon temperament. Sir Henry Storks is now on board a commission. We have no doubt, will be composed of cool-headed and unprejudiced gentlemen, will have to ascertain whether there is any truth in the allegation that Governor Eyre has failed in his duty in either particular.

Earl Russell and Mr. Cardwell, certainly speaking the sentiments of Englishmen, have rebuked the discreditable attempts to prejudge Governor Eyre; and, in full conformity with the instinct that dictated the rebuke, have resolved that the investigation shall be more searching and complete than it could have been had Governor Eyre retained his dignified functions during the inquiry. That he may be enabled to confront his accusers, he will repair to Sir Henry Storks the office of Governor until the evidence shall have been taken and the opinion of the Home Government shall have been signified; and if Governor Eyre should find a handle for the party at home to demand a Parliamentary debate, that ceremonial will also be performed while Sir Henry Storks acts as Captain-General of Jamaica. For all who have any regard for equity, the case is now closed until a new stage in the proceedings shall be reported from Jamaica.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

St. Andrew's Church, Croft-lane, Higher Blackley, was consecrated on Wednesday, by the Bishop of Manchester. The site was given by the Earl of Wilton.

On Wednesday week the new schools in the parish of Billingley, Suffers Moor, were opened. The cost of the site, &c., was £1,000. The building is in the Early English style, and the design is by Mr. Ernest Shaw.

The reports from Bishopstowe of the Bishop of Exeter's health are favourable; his Lordship is much improved. His Lordship has sent a cheque for £100 to the Rev. Mr. Bullock, Rio, in Patagonia, where the Christian and heroic conduct of the life-boat crew of that place during the recent storm.

The memorial church of St. Mary, Shackleford, recently built by a gentleman connected with the parish, and the rector of Godalming, from the design of Mr. George Gilbert Scott, was consecrated by the Bishop of Winchester on Thursday, in the presence of a large congregation. The site is picturesque, and the church itself a noble structure in the transition Early English style.

On the 24th ult. the parish church of Evenley, Northamptonshire, was re-consecrated by the Bishop of Peterborough, after having been completely rebuilt, at the cost of nearly £4000, by the Hon. Mrs. Pierrepont, as a memorial of her late husband, Hon. H. T. Pierrepont. The plans were prepared by Mr. Woodyer, the style being Early English in its later development; and the work was completed in June, 1865, at a cost of £4000. It is a very beautiful village church.

The parish church of Church and church accommodation in Yorkshire was laid before an influential meeting in Leeds on Thursday week by the Bishop of Ripon. The population of the new districts included in the last twenty-seven years, the needs of the still increasing populations have not been met, and the Bishop of Ripon appealed to the wealthy residents with very inadequate. Subscriptions in aid of the Ripon Diocesan Church Building Society were announced to the extent, amounting to more than £1000.

The reopening of St. Andrew's Church, Weybread, Suffolk, took place on Dec. 5. The church, having undergone complete restoration, both within and without, under the direction of Mr. R. M. Phipson. The repairs of the fabric and the new roof have been defrayed at the sole expense by the parishioners with the utmost readiness and unanimity, and the fittings of the interior have been given by various members of the congregation by Mr. Bovington, the builder, were the offering of the Vicar, the Rev. F. A. H. Fitzgerald, and his family, and the font by friends.

The Rev. Edward Goobegan, M.A., Incumbent of Bardsea, Lancashire, has built at the entrance of the churchyard of the church, to hold by him for upwards of fourteen years, an address by parishioners of Hawkshead and other friends, together with a silver vase and plate for the holy communion; also, a silver tea-urn, silver salver, and ladle; and, from the children of the Hollobed School, a purse containing upwards of £20. The Rev. G. Venables, formerly Vicar of St. Paul's, Chatham, now Incumbent of Christ Church, Southend, was, on Saturday last, presented with an address and a purse containing twenty-five guineas, by the parishioners.

THE SCHOOLS AND PUPILS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—Cambridge has conferred an honorary degree of Master of Arts upon Mr. Samuel Baker, one of the explorers of the Nile Valley.

The 424th anniversary of the foundation and endowment of Rion College was celebrated on Saturday last at Guildford. The school, at which a banquet was given by the Rev. the Provost and Fellows in the ancient college-hall, sat six Governors, viz., Lord Midleton, Lord Onslow, Mr. Mount Ely Godfrey, Mr. Goodford, Provost, presided. After the dinner the company assembled at the Provost's residence, when the ladies resident at the college joined the party, which included some one hundred guests.

On Monday the Bishop of Oxford distributed the prizes to the successful students at the Diocesan Training College, Culham, near Abingdon, in presence of a numerous body of visitors. The company were entertained to luncheon, which was laid out in the hall, the Bishop of Oxford presiding.

Tuesday was the 182nd anniversary of the death of Thomas Sutton, the founder of Charterhouse, and was celebrated in the usual manner. Mr. William Henry Pember delivered the Latin oration, which was received with much applause.—Two tablets in memory of the late distinguished ornaments of Charterhouse School, William Makepeace Thackeray and John Leech, were, on Monday, placed side by side in the corridor leading to the chapel, and were erected in the square of Carthusians.

"AN IMPERIAL SHOOTING-PARTY AT COMPIÈGNE."

AMONG the favourite routine amusements of the French Court during its autumn sojourn at Compiègne the shooting-parties in the preserves of Buissonet, Berne, and "la Faisanderie" may certainly be classed. At these meetings the Emperor, and those of his guests who take part in the sport, are all attired in what may be styled fancy costume. The other day, for instance, he wore a violet velvet shooting coat and breeches, with boots and leather leggings; while the Prince de Metternich was dressed in a suit of grey, and the Prince de Moskowa in a costume of brown velvet. The preserves, which are generally lopped to the uniform height of between 2 ft. and 3 ft., are intersected by a series of footpaths called lopons, each about a yard wide, with the exception of that reserved for the Emperor, which is double this width. These paths, which are beautifully kept, have their surface covered with a coating of fine gravel. A company of the Empress's dragoons has generally confided to it the task of keeping the ground and of performing the office of beaters, in which they are assisted by the forest-guards, under the direction of M. de Dampierre, sub-inspector of the Forest of Compiègne.

The provision-waggons, with all the requisites for breakfast for the day, are generally the first arrivals on the ground; next come the attendants in charge of the guns or fowling-pieces; afterwards the master gunsmith, accompanied by eight non-commissioned officers, whose duty it is to load the guns used by the Emperor and to examine every gun fired off by him before it is reloaded; following these, comes Dr. Desforgeraus, médecin de la vénerie, who is required to be always present on these occasions, in case of accidents.

At ten o'clock a flourish of trumpets announces the approach of the Imperial char-à-banc, from which in a few minutes the Emperor and his favourite dog Nero, who invariably accompanies his master on these expeditions, are seen to descend. The other members of the party arrive in quick succession, and take up their respective positions in the particular "layou" assigned them. Baron Lauge, Lieutenant of the Imperial shooting-parties, now hands a loaded gun to the Emperor, which is the signal for the trumpets to sound again, summoning everyone to hold himself in readiness. The first shot, as a matter of course, belongs of courtesy to the Emperor, but no sooner has this been fired than report after report follows in quick succession, and when once the discharge has become general, and roll after roll of musketry is heard resounding through the forest, it seems as though it of an English sportsman stand on end, and which, allowing for the time occupied at breakfast, usually last for something like a couple of hours and a half—no less than 2000 head of game, including, of course, not merely pheasants, but partridges, hares, rabbits, and even kids, for all is game that comes to the net on these occasions, have been brought down by eight expert guns.

"A SHOOTING PARTY AT COMPIÈGNE," FROM A PICTURE BY M. JANET LANGE.

M. Janet Lange's admirable picture, from which we give an Engraving on another page, furnishes a faithful representation of one of there chasses à tir, when the Emperor is firing the opening shot. By far the greater number of the individuals represented in this clever picture are actual portraits. M. Janet Lange is a well-known French artist, who will be remembered by English connoisseurs for a very spirited work contributed by him to the Paris Exhibition of 1855—namely, "Nero Contending for the Prize in the Chariot-races at Rome." Since then he has painted several important works, notably an episode of the Battle of Koughil, in the Crimean campaign, for which he received a medal; two pictures relating to the late war in Italy, both of which are in the possession of the Emperor; a picture of the Emperor visiting the sufferers by the Lyons inundations; another of an incident in the recent Mexican war; and, lastly, the subject we have engraved of "An Imperial Shooting-party in the Pheasantry at Compiègne." This Engraving, we should state, has been made from an excellent photograph by M. Richbourg, of Paris.

LEOPOLD, THE FIRST KING OF THE BELGIANS.

LEOPOLD GEORGE CHRISTIAN FREDERICK, Duke of Saxony, Prince of Saxe-Coburg, seventh child of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Saalfeld and of the Duchess Auguste Caroline Sophia de Reuss-Ebersdorff, was born, in the city of Coburg, the 16th of December, 1790.

Since the Battle of Muhlberg, in 1547, the Ernestine branch of the illustrious house of Saxe had been severely persecuted; but the hour of reparation approached. By degrees its worthy representatives recovered a considerable portion of their ancient heritage, and the future King of the Belgians, the godson of the Emperor Leopold II., infused a new vigour into its dynasty.

Even at the age of fifteen years the Prince was possessed of the most various and extended information. Besides the ancient languages of Greece and Rome, he spoke and wrote English, French, Italian, and German with the greatest fluency. He was also well acquainted with the literature of Europe, and was far advanced in the study of history, geography, music, and drawing, as well as of mathematics and the military arts. But it was especially in the matured his knowledge, tempered his character, and rendered himself capable of initiating worthily that magnificent mission for which God had destined him. At the period when the French arms carried the war into the Prussian territory, and had achieved the victories in the double battle of Jena and Auerstadt, the invasion of the duchy of Saxe-Coburg had, as it were, the effect of completing the military education of the young Prince by the rude teachings of misfortune. Retained, at the age of seventeen years, by the side of his sick father, in the citadel of Saalfeld, he longed for the power of taking an active share in the war. Filial piety and the will of a dying father, however, confined him to the spot. The Duke Francis having expired, Dec. 9, 1806, the sorrow of the Prince was greatly aggravated by the contemplation of the ruin of his country's independence.

At length the Peace of Tilsit, on the 7th of July, 1807, restored to Duke Ernest, the elder brother of Prince Leopold, the patrimonial estates, and, in the year 1808, when the Duke visited Russia, Leopold was charged with all the cares of the government of the duchy. Having worthily fulfilled those important functions, he entered into the Russian army, where his talents and abilities obtained for him rapid promotion, and, at length, the position of General of a brigade of Cuirassiers. In this capacity he accompanied the Czar Alexander, in September, 1808, to Erfurt; the object of the visit being to obtain from the Emperor Napoleon confirmation of the engagements contracted by him at Tilsit. The ardent aspirations of the Czar after Constantinople alarmed his then powerful ally, who did not like to yield up to him that which he called the throne of the empire of the world. The commercial interests of Russia, threatened by a system of Continental blockade, tended materially to alter the relations of the two great Potentates. Napoleon demanded that the Princes of Saxe-Coburg should leave the services of Austria and Russia. Prince Leopold, indignant at this attempt to dictate a course of conduct to him, at first peremptorily refused to obey this injunction, and went to Paris for the special purpose of protesting, in the presence of the French Emperor, against this Imperial demand. At length, seeing that his continuance in the Russian service would seriously endanger the sovereignty of his brother, he reluctantly resigned his position in the Russian army. Leopold sought to forget the pain which this step occasioned him, and to make up for the inaction to which he was now doomed by a course of travel. He visited Switzerland, Italy, and many other parts of Europe, taking care during the whole time to make himself personally acquainted with the political bearings of each country, their military and financial resources. The whole of Germany having risen to the cries of independence and liberty, the Prince resumed the command of his brigade of cuirassiers in the Russian army. At Lutzen Gersdorf, Walhden, Etzdorf, Limbach, Bautzen, and Wurchen the young General performed many daring deeds, and covered himself with glory. Always occupying the post of honour, whether at the head of the advanced guard or covering the retreat of the allied army, he had ever shown himself both the sagacious General and the gallant soldier. In an engagement of five consecutive hours he saved the corps-d'armée of the Prince of Wirtemberg at Peterswald, and with sword in hand opened for himself a bloody passage through a division of French infantry.

THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS, LEOPOLD OF SAXE-COBURG.

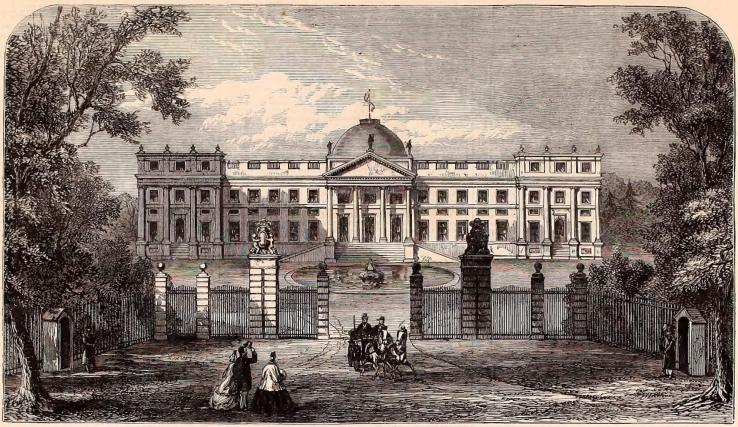
The 30th of August, 1813, at Kulm, Prince Leopold participated gloriously in the defeat of the intrepid General Vandamme, who was made prisoner, with Generals Haxo, Guyot, 6000 men, and the whole of the artillery of that corps-d'armée. The orders of Marie Theresa and St. George, the Black Eagle and St. Andrew were conferred upon him for his brilliant conduct in those terrible combats.

During a temporary armistice between the belligerents the illustrious young General assumed the office of negotiator. The tender attachment which the Czar Alexander felt for him, his eminent military services, his precocious talents and enlightened mind secured to him a high influence in those réunions where diplomacy appeared still to seek for a pacific solution. Austria having united herself to the coalition, Paris became the main object of the allied armies.



On the 16th of October commenced the famous Battle of Leipsic, Leopold was charged with a most dangerous post—namely, to cover the Russian batteries, which were vigorously cannonaded by the French army. During the day they fearfully depleted the Russian perfected prodigies of valour. He subsequently formed part of the advanced guard which entered Erfurt; and on the 30th of January, 1814, he was sent to reinforce Blucher, and entered into France, where the war had penetrated. On the 1st of February he joined the grand army of the Allies, which had hirvanicked at Bar-sur-Aube, and took part in the battle of Brienne. The allied army having effected a junction at Arcis-sur-Aube, another great battle took place in that neighbourhood on the 20th of March. During the conflict, which was a fearful one, the town of Arcis, where Napoleon was intrenched, was almost entirely destroyed. Leopold, with the Prussian artillery and cannon, succeeded in protecting the communication between the troops left in the town and the Prince of Wirtemberg's army. The French retired upon Vetry, and on the 6th the allied army marched for Paris. On the 25th the advanced guard attacked the Duke of Raguse at Fere-Champenoise. Leopold engaged the left flank of the enemy, threw it into disorder, and took five pieces of cannon. The Prussian general attached the French rear-guard, which was instantly surrendered as a prisoner of war. The last engagement of this campaign took place under the very walls of Paris. The city was a capitulation, and on the 31st of March the allied army entered Paris, where they were received by the inhabitants with demonstrations of welcome and respect, the feelings of the citizens towards Napoleon being expressed by numerous emigrant princes and aristocrats.

After a short stay in Paris the allied Sovereigns, who had been assembled, crossed over to England, accompanied by Prince Leopold, who was then twenty-three years of age. His fine, manly figure, the numerous brilliant decorations which covered his breast, and his many graceful accomplishments, won the admiration of all with whom he came in contact. He was received at the Court of St. James's with the highest distinction. At this period all eyes were turned towards Princess Charlotte, the only daughter and child of the Prince of Wales, heiress to the throne of England. With much beauty of person, she possessed a highly cultivated mind and a heart overflowing with virtue. Although a crowd of suitors was then contending for the hand of the British Princess, attracted by her personal charms and the situation its pastures won at Paris; but it was fully a third less than the bristles of Mr. Cox, one of which was lent and the other fed by Sir Bruce Cole of Sutherland. The biggest of them girthed 8 ft. 6½ in.; and the other, which was eventually the grey-winner in line, in the former was purchased for £51 a year ago by Sir A. P. G. Cumming, from Mr. Harris, the celebrated Forres feeder, and was only commanded after all. The Duke's was bred by Dr. Gilchrist, of Marnoch; and certainly for depth we have never seen him excelled, although there is a certain leanness forward, which his opponents did not fail to make the most of. His is certainly the new, and Mr. Eastwood's first-prize Highland heifer the old, style.

Mr. M'Combie's six-years'-poll chatter was broken at last, but by such a great one of Mr. Longmore's (now Lord Fife's) calf (with Colonel Furnant bought), that he was second on his judges' list for the cups—no slight honour for Scotland. In the polled female class, Mr. M'Combie had a walk over with his ten-year-old cow, Mayflower, the first-prize Highland Society's two-year-old, and the first and third of the first-prize Highland heifers. Accordingly, they became and then put the two against each other. Accordingly, they became and then put the two against each other. Accordingly, they were elected to stand respectively upon the West End and Strand pens, and as each time stood their ground, the stewards requested Mr. Martine Sherborne-Angus and Mr. Allan Pollok, on Saturday, to say in which of the two they considered the best built, but found it took another first with a very neat and good Shorthorn heifer calf, which Mr. Martine's excellent heifer and Orchess, the first-prize two-year-old former, the cup, with Fame standing on tipsie, passed to Colonel Furnant's heifer calf, which a gentle curve, and then by the sheer straight descent of the Boulevarde Botanique. Crossing the Rue Royale, with its vistas of St. Jacques and Sainte Marie at each end, this boulevard has to the left some of the finest houses in Brussels; and to the right the gardens, with their statues, fountains, geometric "plats," shady shrubberies (frequented in spring by nightingales), and the glass conservatories to which it owes its name. To the right also, further down, is the handsome Station du Nord, well-known to all English travellers; and the road finds its level at length in the Basse Ville. A short way through this brings us to a railway. We hear the melancholy horn, which serves in Belgium instead of the English bell, when a train is arriving. We cross the railway, and we are in the walk planted with four rows of fine limes, known as the Allée Verte. One avenue is devoted to carriages and equestrians, the other to pedestrians. A canal beside these extends its silent highway, on which are gaudy barges, drawn along, not by horses, but by men, women, and children, harnessed in Indian file, and perhaps some light boats rowed by Belgian youths, very lightly clothed, and emulous of English aquatic skill. Leaving this shady alley, a paved road and steep ascent leads us, through a straggling village, to the summit of a hill, where, in the midst of a well-timbered park, is the palace shown in our Engraving—Laeken, the residence of the King of the Belgians. This building, one of great architectural pretensions, was erected in 1782, under the Austrian Archduke Albert, and ran great risk of utter demolition during the vicissitudes that marked the last years of the eighteenth century. To preserve it from destruction Napoleon bought the estate in 1803 and, restoring and embellishing it, placed it at the disposal of Josephine. It was here that Napoleon conceived the idea, which he afterwards so disastrously realised, of the invasion of Russia. In 1815 it became the property of the Crown of the Netherlands; and since then the Dutch King William, and Leopold, King of the Belgians, have considerably enlarged it. The church of Laeken, an illustration of which was published by us some time ago, dates from 1200; but having been restored in the barbarous style of the seventeenth century, retains little of its original proportions. The cemetery is remarkable for the beauty of its situation, its size and order, and for the renowned statues of Malibran, executed by Geefs, and placed over the tomb of the songstress. Shrined in a small temple, where the light is admissible only by the small apertures through which the visitor looks, the face with its upturned rapt expression, the clasped hands on the bosom, the heaven-aspiring élancement of the whole figure, are exquisite; the dazzling purity of the marble throws into relief by the surrounding gloom impart to it an almost unearthly beauty. Close by, and in strange contrast with its white stone and delicate tracery to the blackened and bare walls of the old church, rises the new one, now in course of erection, which was intended by King Leopold as the resting-place of the beloved and lamented Queen Marie Louise. The architecture is Gothic—not, perhaps, of the severest character; but the elaboration, at once delicate and rich, of the ornamental details, particularly noticeable in an exquisite rose window; the solidity and massiveness of the whole, and the pious profusion with which money and pains have been lavished to render the spot and the church worthy of the memory it should preserve, cannot fail to win our praise. A fine, straight road, planted with trees, forming an avenue, is being constructed from the city to the church. The relations between the members of the Royal family resident at Brussels and their venerable parent at Laeken were most cordial and intimate; so that this route was often enlivened with the passage of their equipages to and fro. In our Engraving the Duchess of Brabant, now Queen of the Belgians, is seen driving the toy-phaeton which, with its pair of little ponies no larger than Newfoundland dogs, was lately presented to her by her brother, the Archduke Stephen.

THE PALACE OF LAEKEN, BRUSSELS, THE RESIDENCE OF THE LATE KING LEOPOLD.

INAUGURATION OF THE NEW HEAD-QUARTERS OF THE 1ST MIDDLESEX VOLUNTEER ENGINEERS.

MR. S. W. BAKER'S EXPLORATIONS IN CENTRAL AFRICA.

COMMORO, CHIEF OF THE LATOOKA TRIBE.

MR. BAKER'S EXPLORATIONS IN CENTRAL AFRICA.

A SORROW of Mr. S. W. Baker's journey up the country of the White Nile, and his discovery of the Lake Nyanza in 1863, was given, with a portrait of that gentleman, and an illustration of native African life, from one of his sketches, in our Paper of the 2nd inst. We have now engraved two more illustrations of the same kind; one being taken from Gondokoro, and the other from the Latooka country, about a hundred miles eastward of that place. The people inhabiting the Latooka country are the most powerful tribe Mr. Baker has found in Africa; and their Monarch, in the illustrious warrior, Commoro, whose likeness is here delineated by Mr. Baker's pencil. Their country, situated in latitude about 4deg. 24 min. north, is a very fine one, producing ample supplies of grain and supporting large herds. The men are large and thinly populated, and the inhabitants are a warlike but friendly race, who go naked, and whose chief distinction is their hair, which they train into a kind of natural helmet. The bodies of those of the tribe who are killed in fight are not buried; but those who die naturally are buried in front of the house in which they have dwelt, and at the expiration of a fortnight the bodies are exhumed, the flesh removed, and the bones put in earthen pots, which are placed at the entrance of the towns. Like all the tribes of the White Nile, the Latookas seem entirely devoid of any idea of a Supreme Being. Indeed, the only difference between them and the beasts is that they can cook and light a fire. There are forests abounding with elephants. The chief was an old man, who was held to possess the power of producing or restraining rain by a magic whistle; but one day, Mr. Baker happening to whistle upon his fingers in a loud key, the natives assumed that he had a power to control the elements, and frequently called upon him to exercise it.

The second Illustration represents the homesteads of the natives of Gondokoro. These are the Bari tribe, who are very warlike, being armed with lances and bows. Their arrows are poisoned, and they are hostile to all strangers. They go stark naked, except a flap of mail formed of small iron rings worn by the women as an apron. The men are clever blacksmiths, although they have no tools but stones for both hammer and anvil. There is much fine iron in their country.

HOMESTEAD OF NATIVES OF GONDOKORO.

NEW BOOKS.

CHOICE GIFT-BOOKS.
Illustrated and Illustrated Works.
A Catalogue Free on application.
DAY AND SON (Limited), 6, Gate-street, London, W.C.

IMPROVED, BY PERMISSION, TO AUGUST.
Now ready, price 2s. 6d., bound in cloth, second Edition of LITTLE BY LITTLE. A Series of Graduated Lessons in the Art of Reading Music. Especially intended for the use of Young Musical Students.
London: NOVELLO and Co., 69, Dean-street, Soho, and 35, Poultry; HOULSTON and WRIGHT, 65, Paternoster-row.

Price 1s., with 16 Lithographic Plates; post-free, 1s. 1d.,
DESIGNS for WINDOWS, of different styles, to be executed in DIAPHANIE, with full Instructions.
London: WINSOR and NEWTON, 38a, Rathbone-place.

Eighth Edition, with 21 Lithographic Plates, post-free, 54.
CUTLER'S WINDOWS: the Improved Transfer Process of DIAPHANIE, newly post-poised, as well as Original Designs. By CUTLER and SON, 6, Gough-square, E.C.

Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 2d., with 12 Lithographic Plates, ALPHABETS and DESIGNS, of different Periods, Particularly those of Mediæval and Renaissance Times. By W. WESTCOTT.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Second Edition, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 2s. 10d., illustrated with Drawings printed in Colours, Wood Engravings, &c.,
LANDSCAPE PAINTING and SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.I.W.C.P.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Second Edition, with Plates, printed in Gold and Colours, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 2s. 10d., illustrated boards,
SUGGESTIONS for ILLUMINATING, Text and Initial Embellishments.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, and all Artists' colourmen.

Price 1s. 6d., with numerous Illustrations,
HERALDRY and HERALDIC PAINTING. By W. WESTCOTT.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

OUTLINES FOR ILLUMINATING.
The new Designs, by TUDOR HUGHES, are now ready. Lists may be obtained on application. Testimonials.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS TO COPY.
Sixteen Subjects, Progressively Graduated, for the use of home and country students. Terms on application.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

THE PARISH MAGAZINE,
Edited by the Rev. J. ERSKINE CLARKE, M.A.
Established to meet the urgent circulation of any of the cheap serials distinctly Church of England in tone.
EDITED BY THE REV. J. ERSKINE CLARKE, M.A.
The peculiar interest of this Magazine is that the inside sheets can be obtained at wholesale prices, from the Publishers, and any Clergyman can have his own name and address printed on the cover and the Magazine after the manner of a Quarterly, and can print on the cover any sentence of local interest, e.g.—Hours of Service, Lectures at Mechanics' Institute, a Monthly Calendar, Advertisements, Extracts from Sermons, Statements of Accounts of Clothing Clubs, Penny Banks, Coal Clubs, Lying-in Charities, Sick Visiting, Lists of Marbles, Hymns, Lessons, &c. Large Sales for Parochial Purposes. Additions to Parish Library, Notices of Parish Work-rooms, Parish Offices and Parish Nurse. Lists of Subscribers to Schools, Lists of Prizemen, Lists of Servants, Train or Steamboat Sailors; Parish Births, Deaths and Marriages.
The Magazine is used in many districts of the three kingdoms, in South Australia, and New South Wales, and is found to answer as a means of uniting Church folk, and enlisting members of the congregation in the good works of the parish.
To guide those who wish to make a trial of the Magazine in this way, the Publishers undertake to supply a three years' supply of 1,000 for £10 10s. and other quantities, a Prospectus,
"Hints on Locating "The Parish Magazine," will be sent on application. Any Clergyman can have it with some specimens and can secure a sample in every local centre of circulation.
The Parish Magazine," in crown wrapper, for general circulation, One Penny Monthly, with full-page Illustrations.
Lord Bishop of London. Rev. Canon Champneys.
Lord Bishop of Oxford. Rev. Ashton Oxenden.
Lord Bishop of Ripon. Rev. Dr. Cumming.
Very Rev. Dean of Canterbury. Rev. Dr. Hook.
Very Rev. Dean of St. Paul's. Rev. Sir W. H. Gillman.
Very Rev. Dean of Windsor. Rev. R. Waldron Hove.
Very Rev. Dean of Ripon. Rev. Dr. Vaughan.
Very Rev. Lord A. Hervey. Rev. E. C. Whitehead.
Ven. Archdeacon Denison. Chisholm Batten.
Ven. Archdeacon Allen. Mrs. Alfred Gatty.
Ven. Archdeacon Sinclair. Author of "Tom Brown's School Days."
Ven. Archdeacon Farrar.
Rev. Canon Ainley.
Vol. I., Vol. II., Vol. III., Vol. IV., Vol. V., Vol. VI., Vol. VII., Vol. VIII., each, cloth; 1s. 6d. Vols. IX. and X. (Volumes for Prizes and Gifts), each 2s. 6d.
Most popular Monthly Serial for Prizes and Gifts.
Vol. I. ready on 1st January.
Vol. II. ready on 1st February.
Vol. III. ready on 1st March.
Vol. IV. ready on 1st April.
Vol. V. ready on 1st May.
Vol. VI. ready on 1st June.
Vol. VII. ready on 1st July.
Vol. VIII. ready on 1st August.
Vol. IX. ready on 1st September.
Vol. X. ready on 1st October.
Vol. XI. ready on 1st November.
Vol. XII. ready on 1st December.
Most popular Monthly Serial for Prizes and Gifts.
Sold Bulk or in Numbers.
London: BELLAMY and SALTER, 16, Fleet-street.

THE HOUSEHOLD. A Magazine of Domestic Economy and Home Enjoyment. NUMBER ONE, now ready, price 3d., post-free, 4d.
CLIMBING BOYS. A New Story by the Author of "A Trap to Catch a Sunbeam," will appear in THE HOUSEHOLD.
London: BELLAMY and SALTER, 16, Fleet-street.

SUITABLE CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR THE YOUNG.
Handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges, 8s. 6d.; by post, 9s. stamps,
OFFEN'S POSTAGE-STAMP ALBUM AND GUIDE. With Descriptions and Illustrations of nearly all the recent Stamps, a full description of the Arms of every Country, and a Table of Comparative Value. By the Author of "Sporting Sketches."
London: HARRISON, 59, Pall-mall.

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE.—"OLD SIR DOUGLAS," a New Story by the Honourable Mrs. NORTON, will be commenced in the JANUARY Number of MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE. Price One Shilling Monthly.
MACMILLAN and CO., London.

EYRE, the AUSTRALIAN EXPLORER. Full Particulars of his Early and Later Australian Explorations and Discoveries, with Illustrations, in the REV. H. CRESWICKE'S new and Enlarged Edition of "Australia," now ready, price 2s. 6d., by post, 2s. 8d. London: GRIFFITH and FARRAN, West Corner of St. Paul's.

THE ROYAL NURSERY.—This splendid Work, Water-Colour Painting-piece away with the Grand Christmas Number of the LONDON READER. Price Sixpence. Now ready, price 6d.—G. ROUTLEDGE and SONS, Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE ENGLISH GIRL'S CHRISTMAS BOUQUET.—Now ready, price 6d., in richly Illuminated Cover, printed in Colours and Gold Paper. At all Booksellers' and Railway Stations.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS, at Prices ranging from 6d. to 25s. at J. GILBERT'S (Successor to HENRY and DAVID MARR), 147, Aldersgate-street, E.C. The new Book Illustrated Catalogue for 1865 is now ready.

BOOKS FOR PRESENTS, arranged in Showrooms, so as to facilitate selection, and supplied at the most liberal Prices, at J. GILBERT'S, Queenborough-terrace, Bayswater.

BIBLES, from 10d. to £6 6s.; Prayers, from 1d. to £5 5s.; Church Services, from 1s. 6d. to £4 4s.; some of these are elegantly bound in ivory, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41,

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, and DINING-ROOM, consisting of Vases, Figures, Groups, Candlesticks, Inkstands, Obelisks, Inlaid Tables, Work-Boxes, Envelope-Cases, Cabinets, Tazzas, Card-Trays, Papier-Mâché, Clocks Bronze, marble, and gilt, Inkstands, Bronze, Lustres, Candelabra, Candlesticks, and Bohemian Glass.

ALFRED B. FRANKE, 32, Cockspur-street, S.W. Established 1851.

CHRISTMAS, 1865.—SEASONABLE PRESENTS.—Modernized Lamps, Clocks, Bronzes, Gilt and Leather Screens, Goods in the present possible variety.

CHRISTMAS, 1865.—TRAVELLING and DRESSING BAGS.—The largest selection of Dressing-Bags, Writing-Cases, Dressing-Cases, Stick-in-the-barrel Umbrellas, at the lowest prices.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street; or 71 and 72, Cornhill, London, Manufacturers, The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 14, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, Plate (electro), Cutlery, Dressing-Cases, Dressing-Bags, Writing-Cases, Envelope-Cases, Tea-Trays, Tea-Kettles, Candelabra, Lamps, &c.

	£ s. d.		£ s. d.
Table Forks, per doz.	1 4 0	Queen's Pattern, do.	2 0 0
Table Spoons, do.	1 4 0	Queen's Pattern, do.	2 0 0
Dessert Ditto	0 17 0	Dessert Ditto	1 5 0
Tea Ditto	0 8 0	Tea Ditto	0 12 0
Dessert Ditto	0 17 0	Dessert Ditto	1 5 0
Gravy Spoons	1 0 0	Gravy Spoons	1 4 0
Soup Ditto	1 0 0	Soup Ditto	1 4 0
Sauce Ditto	0 8 0	Sauce Ditto	0 12 0
Sauce Spoons (pair)	1 0 0	Sauce Spoons (pair)	1 8 0
Fish Slice (pair)	1 0 0	Fish Slice (pair)	1 8 0
Tea Spoons	0 10 0	Tea Spoons	0 14 0
Tea Kettle	3 15 0	Tea Kettle	5 5 0

A pamphlet, with Engravings, forwarded by return of post. Orders executed in the Show-room. It contains the weights and prices of every article of Plate, and the Illustrations are from Photographs. Estimates of cost forwarded for private use or presentation. Also, of the best silver-plated nasr-silvered, gold and silver watches, sizes and weights. Every article applicable, and guaranteed to wear well for many years.

For the use of exhibitors, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of Plate kept ready for presentation.

SPOONS and FORKS.—RICHARD and JOHN SLACK, manufacturers and electro-platers, solicit an inspection of their stock of Spoons and Forks, which they believe to have a stronger deposit of pure silver over Nickel Silver than that of 30 years' wear is ample proof of its durability. Table Spoons and Forks, full size, per dozen, 30s., 40s., 50s., 60s., 70s., 80s., and 90s. Tea Spoons, per dozen, 12s., 16s., 20s., 24s., 28s., 32s., 36s., 40s. Sugar Sifters, Sugar Tongs, Mustards, and the Engravings post-free.—Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London. Established 1830.

NOSOTT'S LOOKING-GLASSES and Gilt Decorative Articles in endless variety. Drawing-room Cornices, Console Tables, Chimney Glasses, Picture Frames, Mirrored Doors, Upholstery and Decorative Furniture. Choice materials for Curtains. Nosott's Tea Show-rooms, 326, 328, 330, Oxford-street, Manufactory, Dean-street, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6, Chapel-street; and Newman-street. Established 1760.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS, USEFUL and ORNAMENTAL.—NOSOTT'S has fitted up a room filled with all kinds of Articles suitable and desirable for Christmas presents. The prices moderate. Terms, Cash. 326, 328, Oxford-street, London.

NOSOTT'S LOOKING-GLASSES. Gilt Decorative Articles in endless variety. Show Rooms for Inspection of the Public. Purchasing Terms optional. 326, 328, Oxford-street, London. Established 1760.

D. HULETT and CO.—GASELIERS in Ormolu, Antique Bronze, and Crystal Glass. Chandeliers for Candles made, of the Newest Designs. Every article marked with plain figures. 49 and 50, HIGH HOLBORN, W.C.

FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE, at Moderate Prices.—English and Foreign Carpets, Damasks, Brocades, Cretonnes, and every description of Furniture. Inspection of the Artistic Arrangements of the Interior and Exterior of Mansions, Halls, Staircases, Libraries, Drawing-rooms, Dining-rooms, Bedrooms, &c. HENRY and CO., Decorators, Furnishers, and Upholsterers, 70, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of rooms, to form two sofas and two easy-chairs—a great improvement on all FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. An illustrated Price-list post-free.

CHALLENGE SAFES.—WORKMAN, SON, and HANCOCK, 27, Duncannon-street, solicit the public to inspect their new Safes, which are unrivalled for security and strength of material, marked in plain figures. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

FURNITURE.—F. J. ACRES, having REMOVED from his late SITE to the GENERAL FURNISHING COMPANY, invites attention to his magnificent Stock of Furniture, Bedding, Carpets, &c., which, for extent, variety, and most moderate prices, has no rival trade, and enables every purchaser to feel—how Furniture, at the most satisfactory prices. Illustrated Catalogues free.—F. J. ACRES, 70a, 71, and 72, Oxford-street, W.

THE NEW SHUTTER WARDROBES, Lockable Doors, Interior fitting complete, by HOWARD and CO., Patentees of the Bedstead Chair, to commend for economy, durability, and style, more than 500 have been sold, by 27, Buckingham Furniture Galleries, 26, Goodge-street, Bond-street, W.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER, by Appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-free. It contains upwards of 850 Illustrations of his Illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro Plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia Metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gasaliers, Tea Trays, Urns and Kettles, Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-hangings, Mattresses, &c., with lists of prices and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1a, 2, and 3, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

KAMPULICON.

Price, 5s. 1d. per square yard. Thick, 3s. 9d. ditto.

TRELOAR, Manufacturer, 97, Ludgate-hill.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, W., Sole Agents for the Sale of the Celebrated LOCK-STITCH FAMILY SEWING-MACHINES, combining the elasticity, strength, and beauty of hand-work with unexampled rapidity. Prospectuses and Samples of Work sent free. For Family Use or Fine and Manufacturing Purposes, the Machines are very handy, and not liable to derangement, and have hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every Machine is guaranteed unconditionally. Instruction Gratis and Prospectuses and samples of work free.

Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

The present to a Lady can be purchased at BAKER'S, 244, Regent-street, W., Sole Agents for the FAMILY SEWING-MACHINES, Warranted to do better, stronger, and handsomer work, with less trouble, than any other.

Embroidering Machines for a Lady.

Instruction Gratis.

Prospectus Free.

Sewing Machines Lent.

Sewing-Machine Company, London: 150, Regent-street, W.

Manchester: 16, Cross-street.

These machines, and the work done upon them, have never failed to give the first premium over all competitors, wherever exhibited.

GENERAL GASFITTING and GASWORKS of COMPLETE CHANDELIERS for candle or gas Glass Lustres and Ormolu; Electricity, Bronzes, Pall-stove, Heaters, and Apiaries. Proprietors free.

HEDGES and BUTLER, 155, Regent-street, London, W., and 76, King's-road, Brighton, invite attention to their varied Stock of WINES, amongst which will be found:—

Sherry	at 18s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 72s.
Claret	at 18s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s.,
Port	at 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 72s.
Champagne	at 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 72s.

Lists on forwarding name and address. Originally established A.D. 1667.

PALE DINNER SHERRY, 24s., 30s., 36s.; Pale Old Sherry, 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 72s. per dozen. Sherry in wood, 30s. per gallon. Port in wood, from 30s. per gallon. Sherry in bottle, 3-year old, 30s., 72s., 96s. Chests, champagne, 42s. Claret, 18s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 72s. per dozen. Hennessy's Brandy, in cases. Pale Gin forwarded on application. W. S. and A. GILBEY, 357, West Strand, and 31, Piccadilly, W.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest importation, 24s. per gallon, 30s. per dozen, including bottles and packing. One gallon per dozen. A genuine fine old Port, 30s. per gallon, 36s. per dozen. Sherry, 30s. per gallon, 36s. per dozen. Cash. Wine Merchants, 26, Duke-street, corner of Bloomsbury-square, London, W.C. Established 1841.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY, DUBLIN DISTILLERY.—Pure Pot-still Whisky, 16s. per gallon. Kinahan's Irish Liqueur Whisky, 42s. per gallon. Delivered free. Sold in bottles, 9s. 6d., at the retail houses in all principal towns in the principality of Wales, and at the wholesale at A. GRAY, Wholesale Agent for London, 27, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W. Observe the address.

ALLSOPP'S PALE and BURTON ALES. The Ales of the above brewery are supplied in the finest condition, in Bottle and in Cask, by F. F. HILLYARD and CO., Sole Consignees for London, 155, Regent-street, W., and 76, King's-road, Brighton. Lists and Prices sent free on application. Established 1760.

LEA and PERRINS' WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, pronounced by Connoisseurs "The Only Sauce." Stone pauntie without cases or wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper, as WILL BE SEEN BY THE SIGNATURE of LEA and PERRINS on every such Genuine Sauce.

J. R. CLARK and CO. invite an inspection of their CONTINENTAL NOVELTIES for Christmas, Bronzes, Clocks, Lamps, Vases, Figures, Groups, Candelabra, Inkstands, Chimney Glasses, Cabinets, Tazzas, Card-trays, Papier-Mâché, Fancy Boxes, Pastilles, Surprises, Comic Figures, Bonbons, Crackers, and Toys. Wholesale Warehouse, 5, Foster-lane, Cheapside. English and Foreign Commodities. Sole Agents for Bruce's Patent Lamps. Established 1760.—J. R. CLARK and CO., 5, Foster-lane, Cheapside, E.C. Retail Warehouse, 32, Cornhill, E.C. Priced Lists on application.—Foreign Warehouse, 97, Jermyn-street, S.W.

HORNIMAN'S TEAS are Righteous in Strength and Delicious in Flavour. Sold in Packets and Chests in every Town. Genuine Packets are signed Horniman and Co. Wholesale Warehouses, 90, Fenchurch-street.

MOORE BROTHERS' TEAS. The Tea Trade is now in a transition state. Moore Brothers are first at their Forest Tree, as to fresh and responsible Tea direct from the Growers. Sold in Packets, Chests, and Lead. 2, Queen's-road, Willesden-street, London Bridge.

MENIER'S CHOCOLATE PREMIUM, Manufactory at Noisiel-sur-Marne, near Paris. Office at 16, Boulevard Bonne-Nouvelle. The annual consumption exceeds now 12,000,000 lbs. Medals obtained at the London Exhibition, 1851; New York Exhibition, 1853; Paris Exhibition, 1855; London Exhibition, 1862; Dublin Exhibition, 1865. "Menier's Chocolate is particularly good."—Morning Advertiser, 30th November, 1865.

THE ONLY GENUINE FRENCH CHOCOLATE. Sold in London by all Grocers and Chemists.

CHOCOLA-MENIER, FRENCH, THE MOST AGREEABLE FOOD FOR BREAKFAST. Yellow Wrapper ... 2s. 6d. per lb. Chamois ... 3s. per lb. Pink ... 3s. 6d. per lb. Blue ... 4s. per lb. Sold by VANILLA PASTILLES. Green Wrapper ... 2s. 6d. per lb. Pink ... 3s. per lb. Brown ... 3s. 6d. per lb. White ... 4s. per lb. Sold by all Grocers, Tea and Chocolate Houses. 16, Boulevard Bonne-Nouvelle, Paris.

EXCELLENT QUALITY of CHOCOLATE. The Dublin Model was obtained by S. FRY and SONS a Prize Medal for excellent quality of Cocoa and Chocolate. The Jury added, "Purity of Flavour, Fry and Sons is a Model Manufacturer."—Dublin Exhibition, 1865. J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

Medals, London, 1851; Paris, 1855; New York, 1853; Dublin, 1865.

FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA. Pure Cocoa, with the excess of fat and starch removed, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the delicate aroma, preserved. Fry and Sons' Homœopathic Cocoa is specially adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly recommended by medical men.

FURTHER MEDAL AWARDED to GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

J. C. and J. FIELD, (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT BROWN COMPOSITE OIL, guaranteed as the most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, INFLUENZA, THE COLDS and GENERAL DEBILITY. Universally recommended by the Medical Authorities to be THE PUREST, MOST AGREEABLE, and Invariably most uniformly excellent. Sold in Bottles, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 8s. 6d., and 14s. each.

Dr. LETHEBY, Medical Officer of Health, and Chief Analyst to the City of London, reports that he has analysed Messrs. J. C. and J. Field's Light-brown Cod-Liver Oil, procured by the name of, purchased from their Agent, and found it to be genuine, of pale colour, and free from rancidity. Dr. LETHEBY, 15th January, 1864.

Dr. LANKESTER, F.R.S., Coroner for Central Middlesex, says that he has analysed Messrs. J. C. and J. Field's Light-brown Cod-Liver Oil, purchased it at their Establishment, and found it to be genuine, of pale colour, and free from rancidity.

J. C. and J. FIELD, 23, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W. Sold by all Chemists. Wholesale, 114, Southwark-bridge-road, S.E. Quarts, 10s.; by superstition Chemists.

ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO.'S PATENT SAFES, 72, Cornhill, and 168, Strand, W.C.

CONSUMPTION.—DR. CHURCHILL'S concentrated Treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Chest, Throat, and Lungs, by Inhalation, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Inhaling Apparatus, with Instructions for Use, 21s. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Consumption, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Hypochondria and Nervousness, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Hysteria, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Hydrophobia or Rabies, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Epilepsy, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Spasmodic Asthma, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Skin, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Stomach, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Liver, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Kidneys, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Bladder, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Urethra, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Prostate Gland, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Rectum, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Uterus, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Ovaries, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Vagina, Post-free, 1s. 1d. Dr. CHURCHILL'S Treatise on the Nature and Treatment of Diseases of the Womb

NEW MUSIC.

A NEW QUADRILLE BY D'ALBERT.

SICILY QUADRILLE. A new and charming Quadrille, by CHARLES D'ALBERT. Played at Astley's Rotunda with the greatest possible success. A composition qualified by his celebrated "Coon" and "Palermo." Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.; Solo or Duet, 3s. each.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW WALTZ BY D'ALBERT.

TWILIGHT DREAMS. A new Waltz, and one of the prettiest ever written by that celebrated Composer CHARLES D'ALBERT. Price 4s. Illustrated. Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HILDA WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, Conductor of the Grenadier Guards' Military Band. Played every evening at all the Concerts, also with immense success by the band of the Grenadier Guards during the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Knowsley, and dedicated, by permission, to the Baroness Rothschild. Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.; Solo or Duet, 3s. each; Orchestra, 5s. Mr. Godfrey, we certainly must congratulate you, and we are not surprised to learn that the Prince of Wales especially complimented the Grenadier Band on the performance of your Waltz.—"Liverpool Mercury," March 31, 1865.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HOME, SWEET HOME. Waltz, by CHARLES D'ALBERT, on the favourite melody of "Home, Sweet Home." Played at the Holborn Casino, Orchestra, 5s.; Solo, 3s.; Duet for 2d postage-stamps. Orchestra, 5s.; Solo, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grenadier Guards. Mr. Godfrey's new waltz, "Mabel," has been played with great success at the Crystal Palace and Weeks' during the last fortnight.—Orchestra, 5s.; Solo or Duet, Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 2s.; Brass Band, 1s. 6d.; Military Band, 1s.; Full Orchestra, 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. By DAN GODFREY. Played with the greatest possible success at Lord Dudley's Ball, in honour of the Prince of Wales's visit. Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.; Solo or Duet, 3s. each; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 2s.; Cornopean and Cornet, 1s. each.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL. Song, written by Henry Farnie, adapted to the melody of "The Maid Waits," by G. GODFREY. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TU SCENDESTI DAL CIEL. The celebrated Cavatina, arranged with Italian Words for Mezzo Soprano. Price 3s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-st.

KUHE'S HILDA WALTZ. The new Waltz by Kuhe, just published. Illustrated; arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S TANNHAUSSER. Fantasia on Airs from the Opera, including the celebrated Minstrel March played every evening at Adelina Patti's Concerts. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MABEL WALTZ.—The celebrated Waltz composed by D. GODFREY. Brilliantly arranged for the Pianoforte by KUHE. Price 4s., net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S 'WEARIN' O' THE GREEN.' Beaumont's celebrated song in "Arch-as-pupus," arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s., net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SILVER TRUMPETS, played at St. Peter's, Roman Christmas and Easter Days, arranged for the Pianoforte by F. H. COWEN. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K LOSS'S LA CHARMANTE. Landler pour le Piano. Price 3s. net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

K LOSS'S LIEBESWORTE. Romance sans Paroles pour le Piano. Price 3s. net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S NEW PIECE.

BONDERRYLLUP.—The beautiful Welsh Melody, arranged for the Pianoforte, by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Brilliant and not difficult. Price 3s. Just published.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD SEA WAVE. Beautiful favourite Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BARNEY O'HEA. Lover's touching Song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANISTS PORTFOLIO: A selection of sparkling and enchanting voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, for the Organ. Edited and arranged for the use of Amateurs, by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly for each publication, and each number is printed on fine toned cream-laid paper, each containing six numbers, price 12s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES. For the Pianoforte. Solo or Duet. Each number contains one of the "Dances" set to music by D. Godfrey, arranged for Violin and Flute. Price 1s. 6d. net.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVOURITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by F. F. BIMBAULT. Price in each, No. 1. The Maid's Wish. No. 2. The First Quadrille. No. 3. The Maid Waltz. No. 4. The Barker Galop. No. 5. The Barker Quadrille. No. 6. The Barker Waltz.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SANTLEY'S SONGS.
ONE GRANDE FROM THEE. Song with luscious essays at Agility and Execution. Sung by SANTLEY. 4s.
ADELAIDE. Beethoven's Sublime Song, as Sung by SANTLEY. 4s.
THE MESSENGER. Sung by SANTLEY. In E, F, and G. 3s. 6d.
THE SPRING-TIME CAME. Composed by SANTLEY. In C, D, and E flat. 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

I HAVE A LITTLE FAIRY BOAT. New Song. Sung by W. H. HOOPER. Composed by G. A. MACFARREN. 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SUMMER DEW. Composed by MACFARREN. In D and E flat. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MELODIA DIVINA; or, Sacred Companion, for the Pianoforte. Containing Sacred Melodies, New Edition, much enlarged, price reduced from 10s. 6d. to 5s. Forming the most complete collection of sacred music for the family circle.—Review.
London: JOHN BROWNING, 66, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music, although only a small per centage above the cost of production, is a complete bar to the general introduction of music into the home circle. Catalogues gratis. METZLER and Co., 37, Soho-street, Portman-square, London.

CHEAP MUSIC LIBRARY. 21s. per year; six months, 12s.; three months, 7s.; or for town subscribers only, 5s. for per week. HARRIS, 89, Holborn-bars, Oxford-street, W. All new Music half price.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOSEY AND CO.'S CHRISTMAS PUBLICATIONS.
All post-free from 28, Holles-street, London.

THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND. This day, in paper cover, 3s.; or beautifully bound in green cloth, emblematically gilt, and gilt edges, price 5s., suitable for a Christmas present, THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND. Forming the first of the most renowned Songs, with the Original Irish Music, including "The Wearing of the Green," "The Coolinan," "Kate Kearney," "Rory O'More," "Garry Owen," "Paddy Carey," "Kate Dalton," "Molly Carew," "Shela na Gig," "My Lodging is on the Cold Ground," "Groves of Blarney," &c.

THE ST. JAMES'S ALBUM for 1866 is now ready, very handsomely bound, with gilt edges and elegant design, price 10s. 6d., containing Songs by Balfe, Wallace, Benedict, Lindsay Sloper, Balfour, Reed, Cusy, Galeini, Marriott, &c.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE MUSICAL SCRAP-BOOK contains nearly 300 compositions of every description by all the most celebrated composers, in 24 Numbers, price 1s. each, or 4 vols. cloth extra, handsomely bound, 5s. each.
BOOSEY and CO.

BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS.—BOOSEY and CO.'S Original Editions, the most accurate, gift edge, with Moscheles and Piatti's fingering.

MOZART'S SONATAS.—BOOSEY and CO.'S New Edition in half morocco, gilt edges, with Moscheles and Piatti's fingering.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS.—BOOSEY and CO.'S collected Edition, in crimson cloth, gilt edges, price 5s. Contains all the Numbers, with Piatti's fingering.

OPERATORIOS as PRESENTS.—BOOSEY and CO.'S Editions in crimson cloth, gilt edges, price 5s. 6d. each. Costa's Messiah, Last Judgment, Israel in Egypt, Judas Maccabæus, Twelfth Mass, and Stabat Mater.

BOOSEY'S NATIONAL GLEE-BOOK. Containing 100 Glees with Accompaniment, from Half a Dozen; or handsomely bound in cloth, with frontispiece, 4s. 6d.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE DRAWING-ROOM PIANOFORTE BOOK, in one vol., royal 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, price 7s. 6d.; in two vols. 4s. each; contains 55 of the most renowned morceaux de salon by Ascher, Brinley Richards, Cramer, Goria, Jaell, Kuhe, Lindahl, Osborne, and other original pianoforte writers. Balfe, Auber, Talexy, Faccaggio, Kube, Coote, Rosellen, Cramer, Beaumont, Brinley Richards, Wallace, Lindsay Sloper, Barton, Godfrey, Boyer, &c.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE NEW BOOK OF SONGS.—BOOSEY'S NEW BOOK, price 5s., superbly bound, gilt edges, containing 100 Choice Modern Songs, with Pianoforte Accompaniments; 1 or in two vols., at 2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MERRY CHRISTMAS QUADRILLE. A Set, by W. H. HOLMES, on all the popular melodies of the day. Price 4s. Very beautifully Illustrated in Colours. Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE SONG OF THE HOLLY. A New Song for Christmas by VINCENT WALLACE. The Words by the Author of "The Postman's Knock," the Music by W. C. LEVEY. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S WINTER EVENINGS. A Suite for Children. Illustrated in Colours. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE LATEST NUMBERS OF BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET.
Price 1s. each.
90. Twenty Songs of Scotland.
91. Twenty of Mozart's Best Songs.
92. Sir Julius Benedict's Popular Songs (4th Selection).
93. Eight Favourite Songs by Lover.
94. Eight Favourite Songs by Balfe.
95. Balfe's Pronouncées d'un Bolivien.
96. Balfe's Puritani.
97. Ten Vocal Duets by Mozart.
98. Twelve National Anthems by Haydn.
99. Twelve Songs by Stephen Glover.
100. Twenty Short Pieces for Beginners.
101. Twenty Popular Melodies, Played by Modern Pianists (2nd Selection).
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE LIFE-BOAT. By CLARIBEL. New Song. The Music by BOOSEY. 3s.

THE SHOWMAN. By J. L. HATTON. New Song for Christmas. Price 3s. This day.

IN THE SUMMER TIME LONG AGO. By J. L. HATTON. Price 3s. This day. The Author's most popular style. This day. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

WINIFRED. By GOLLMICK, Author of "The Dripping Well." The prettiest of all Mr. Gollmick's Pianoforte compositions. Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.

THE WEARING O' THE GREEN, and forty-nine other old Irish Songs, with the Original Words and Music, in a handsome volume, entitled THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND. Price 5s., or in cloth extra, handsomely bound in green cloth, gilt edges. Suitable for a Christmas present.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE OF THE SEA, and nineteen other Songs, including seven by J. B. Thomas, in BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET. Price 1s. Forming the 102nd Number.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, and all Musicsellers.

DOLORES.—THE FOOLISH SHEPHERD. A Ditty. By the Author of "The Brook." This day.
BOOSEY and Co.

NEW SONG BY TENNYSON and BALFE. The Words by ALFRED TENNYSON, the Music by Mr. W. Balfe. This day. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE ADIEU WALTZ. By H. J. SNELLING, Pianoforte Professor to the Royal Conservatoire, Birmingham, with remarkable success. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. By CLARIBEL. The most successful Song of the season. Miss Emilie Dolby, Twelfth Edition. Miss Poole, Miss Messent, and all Vocalists and Musicsellers in town and country.

BOOSEY and CO.'S SIX CHRISTMAS CAROLS. Simpson, Rooney's Six Christmas Hymns, Simple and Effective.

A GARLAND OF SONGS, OR ENGLISH LIEDERKRANZ. Edited by JOHN L. HATTON. A collection of the most admired and easy four-part Songs, adapted to popular English words, suitable for Choral Societies, Private Character, rehearsals for Village or School use. Price One Shilling.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CARNAVAL DE FLORENCE. Impromptu de Concert. By CHARLES COWDEN. Author of "Orpheus" and "Castellinella." Published this day. Price 3s. A piece to the taste of the best style, as pretty as "Cujas," and likely to become as popular. To be had everywhere.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE POPULAR NEW SACRED SONG,

IN THE HOUR OF TRIAL, by Mrs. HENRY RUSSELL, price 3s., may be had, post-free, at half price of HALE and Co., Chichester; and all Musicsellers.

A WILD, HIS-STORY. An Illustrated Comic Giant by CHARLES HALL. Sent post-free for thirty-seven stamps.—HALE and Co., Chichester; and all Musicsellers. "There is so much a thing so clever."—Punch. "Finest moral ext."—Illustrated Times. "I take it."—Punch. "Capital."—Telegraph. "The illustrations are quite worthy of anybody."—Fun. "Are Inspired. "This song ought to immortalise its composer."—Chat's Hall.

NEW MUSIC.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Editions, at half the publishing price, sent post-free for postage-stamps. Catalogues gratis.—JOHN JOHNSTON, 67, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

THE GREATEST SONG OF THE SEASON.

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 3s. 6d.—BOOSEY and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

TO PIANOFORTE PLAYERS.

BAINLEY RICHARDS'S 'OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD!' Price 3s. 6d.—BOOSEY and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS' FAVOURITE SONGS, sung nightly, at St. James's Hall—Beautiful Isle of the Sea, Mabel, Sweet Dreams, Is 6d. Happy as the day is long. Ethiopian serenading. Jane Ann Jones. Little Maggie May. I'm lonely without you. Each sent post-free for fifteen stamps. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW AND BEAUTIFUL SONG, WHEN I AM GONE. Written by Scaliot. Price 3s. Likely to become even more popular than his celebrated "Cheer, Boys, Cheer."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COMIC SONGS FOR WINTER EVENINGS—
Edith's pure own name. Lily Dale. Mabel's Daughter. Harriet and her Harp. Billy Cook. Jack of the Fortnum. The really cozy mysterious. The Parlor Heifer. The Swell and the Slave. Is. Each. Barney Brallaghan. Thou'rt still remember me. Sent post-free for eighteen stamps.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COMIC SONGS FOR WINTER EVENINGS—
Cabin-pendent Chair. Mrs. Brallaghan's Daughter. Harriet and her Harp. The Lavender-Girl. The Lily of Laguna. My Mother-in-Law! (Advice to Persons about to marry). Is. Each. Barney Brallaghan. Thou you 'll remember me. Sent post-free for eighteen stamps.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S CADIZ QUADRILLE.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW GALOP.

COOTE'S ECHOES OF LONDON LANCERS. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW GALOP.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

COOTE'S HUMMINGBIRD VALSE.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW ALBUM OF DANCE-MUSIC, containing the Quadrilles, Waltzes, and Galops of the season, beautifully Illustrated. Sent post-free for thirty-six stamps.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O-LINK POLKA. Arranged by GEORGE MOLLOY. With the Bird-call.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SONGS FOR THE SEASON.—"He that will not love is not worthy to live." Sung by Mr. Santley. Price 3s. "Hail the Day." Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. Price 3s. "Ride and Remember." Sung by Mr. Lee. "I love a true old country face." In C or E flat. Sung by Mr. Lee. Price 3s. "Sweet Dreams." Each post-free for 18 stamps.—London: R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

NEW SONGS.—MUSIC.—Quadrilles—"The Village Belles," by Muller. "Flowers of Beauty," by Godfrey. "Sophia," by Marrick. Polka—"Little Rosebud." "Pet of the Village," both by Small wood. "Dolphin and Boy," by Godfrey. Waltzes—"Sweet Dreams," by Godfrey. "Tankerel," Sergeant Galop, by Vanderval. All the dancing are published in Richault's Edition, and are Illustrated in Colours. Sent for 19 stamps.—London: R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

NEW COMIC SONGS.—"The Will of Mike Hart." Sung by Mr. Lee. "Mary Ann's Valentine." Sung by Mr. Lee. "Mary Ann's Advertisement." By the "pretty girls of London." Each post-free for 18 stamps.—London: R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

THE BOYS OF MERRY ENGLAND.—New National Ballad. Poetry by B. S. Montgomery; music by W. H. Montgomery. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. Sent post-free for 24 stamps.—London: R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

OVERTURES for VIOLIN, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, as "Tancredi," "Gazza Ladra," "Cenerentola," "Calsch of Bagdad," "Anacreon," "Il Barbiere," "Don Giovanni," "Zauberflöte," "Figaro," "Don Pasquale," "Lucia," "Norma," "Sonnambula," "Puritani," "Guglielmo Tell," "Fra Diavolo," "Dame Blanche," "Masaniello." At Solos, each 3d. Accompaniment, each 3d. post-free. R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

S. GLOVER'S New Vocal Duet—THE SEA-BIRDS ARE SCREAMING. The Concerts of the Season. Encored!!! "I Hear a Voice." Post-free for 19 stamps.—R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

FAREWELL DEAR OLD VILLAGE. Poetry and Music by J. W. CHERRY. This exquisite is published in two keys, for Tenor or Soprano.—London: R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

NEW CHRISTMAS SONG.
UNDERNEATH MY WINDOW. Poetry by J. Read. Music by COLLINSON. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. Sent post-free for 19 stamps.—London: R. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

A NIGHT ABOUT TOWN; or, the Concerts of the Season. Price 3s. Sent post-free. Three of the most favourite Concerts Polkas by W. DUERDEN. Melodious and effective. Free for 24 stamps.
J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place, S.

60 POPULAR COMIC MELODIES for the PIANOFORTE, arranged in an easy and effective manner. Price 2s. 6d. Sent post-free for Postage-stamps.
J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place, S.

COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. A most lively set, easy, elegant, and costable. Splendidly Illustrated. Sent post-free for 24 stamps.
J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place, S.

COOTE'S GOLDEN WAVES WALTZ. A most elegant set; one of the happiest productions of this celebrated Composer. Supremely enchanting. Solo, Duet, or Septet, free for 24 stamps.—J. ALCOCK, Bankhouse-place.

COOTE'S FLOWER OF THE VALE WALTZES should be heard by Visitors. Solo to be secured, for they cannot be equalled. Duet, or Septet, free for 24 stamps.—J. ALCOCK, Bankhouse-place, S.

THE LAST NEW BALLAD.
THE FOOTSTEP ON THE STAIR. Words and Music by W. WEST. A most charming little ballad. Free for 19 stamps.—J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place.

NEW MUSIC.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S GREAT COMIC SONGS—
The Ballet Girl. Cockney Sports. Constantinople. The Fortman. The Volunteer. Sweet Darlings. Don't you remember me? Jack Tar. Nothing. Is. each. Sent post-free for fifteen stamps.
I won't that I never would have! The ill-used Organ-man. Each free for 18 stamps.—J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place, S.

HARRY SYDNEY'S NEW SONG, MY UNCLE'S WILL. Words, Full of fun. Music, Tuneful. Price for 18 stamps.—J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place, W., where all lithergy may be had.

THE GREAT VANCHE NEW SONG.

WHAT'LL MITH WOBBINTHON THAY? Sung by Mr. Lingard. Sung by Mr. Lingard. Illustrated. The only triad to "Billy Dog." Free for 15 stamps.
J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place, S.

Price 4s., limp cloth,

OLD ENGLISH CAROLS AND HYMNS; or, the Loving Cup Well. Sung by Mr. Lingard. Illustrated. The only triad to "Billy Dog." Free for 15 stamps.
J. ALCOCK, 6, Bankhouse-place, S.

OLD ENGLISH CAROLS AND HYMNS, by A. REMMETT, M.D. Price 3d. each.
1. God Rest You, Merry Gentle-men. 2. The Lord at first had Adam made. 3. Hark! the Herald Angels sing. 4. Sing Hosanna. 5. The Shepherds' Song. 6. Thy Kingly Throne. 7. Ye Christian Heralds. 8. A Virgin Most Pure. 9. Hark! the Herald Angels sing. 10. While Shepherds watched their flocks by night.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR CHILDREN.

50 NURSERY SONGS AND HYMNS, Arranged in a simple form for Voice and Piano. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 2s. 6d., cloth extra.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS.

THE CHOIR AND MUSICAL RECORD for DECEMBER contains the following anthems, composed expressly by J. L. HATTON: HOSANNA TO THE SON OF DAVID. Price 1½d. THE LORD IS KING. Price 1½d. THE LORD IS KING. Price 3d. THE LORD IS KING. Price 3d. LEMON. Full Anthem for Christmas. By J. L. HATTON. Price 3d.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published.

THE WAYS OF HEAVEN, By R. M. Jun., Composer of "O could I learn indifference," &c. London: HARRIS and Co., 89, Holborn-bars, Oxford-street.
Manchester: Bunny and Co., St. Anne's-place.

ANTOINE COURTOIS' CORNETS-A-PISTON. Solo Cornet, Class A, Manufacturer to the Queen's Private Band, Inventor of the Patent Compensating CHAPPELL, 45, New Bond-street, of whom prize-class may be obtained.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE MODEL.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ROOMS.—Semi-cabinet Semibrood Grand Pianofortes, from 30 guineas; Cabinet Grand Pianofortes, from 40 guineas; Semi-Grand Pianofortes, from 50 guineas; Semi-cabinet Grand Model Grand Pianofortes, from 60 guineas; Semi-cabinet Grand Oblique Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood cases. Semi-cabinet Collard College Pianoforte in rosewood or walnut cases.—50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM HARMONIUMS, the best in the world, from 20 guineas; other varieties at 15 and 12 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums may be had of CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SILVER'S NEW HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and 16 stops. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Prospectuses sent on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly as good as new, at greatly reduced prices.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the Drawing-room. A set of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the knee of the right foot, in one case, 48 guineas. Illustrated Lists of Harmoniums may be had of CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, check action, full compass, and all the latest improvements. An immense number of these and all other harmoniums at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. Pianofortes by these eminent makers, including also the Semi-cabinet Grand Pianofortes, in rosewood, with trichord treble, in ebonised and gold case, with centre of parchment at the new Show-rooms of CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO of the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded.—Class 30, International Exhibition, 1862. Full compass, trichord treble, check action, repetition wood, solidly built, with Broadwood, Yaskie, Brodmann, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be fit for any climate. Illustrated Lists of these and all other harmoniums at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE MODEL of CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANOFORTE.—No pianoforte, excepting the Model Pianoforte of Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street, can be guaranteed. The Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price, ever yet produced. Messrs. Chappell and Co. invite the closest scrutiny, and will be happy to show the Model to any one who will favour them with a call. Testimonials and references are unobtainable to many of the Pianofortes sold at the Exhibition, but Messrs. Chappell and Co. will be happy to refer to many respectable purchasers, at prices between 30 guineas and 100 guineas.—50, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS.—The COTTAGE, price 6 guineas; the SCHOOL HARMONIUM, price 10 guineas. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

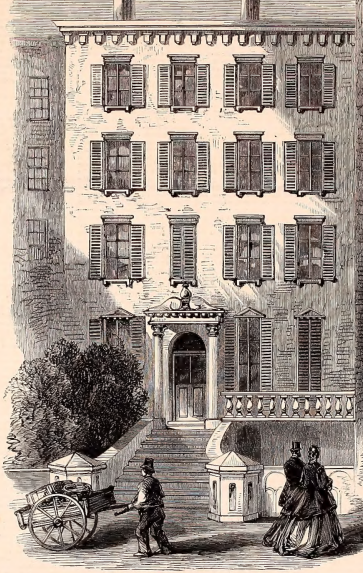
HARMONIUMS for CHURCHES and DRAWING-ROOMS, from 12 guineas. All MOODY and CO.'S Harmoniums have the Percussion Tone.
91, Hatton-street, N.W.

DIANOFORTES.—The Miniature, price 27 guineas. The 25-guinea Piano has the Check Action.
Albert Hall, 2, Regent-quadrant, Piccadilly.

DIANOFORTE (The Model Cottage), price 16 guineas. All MOODY and CO.'s Pianos are of the best English manufacture.
91, Hatton-street, W.

BRATTEN'S PERFECTED FLUTES. Illustrations of Fingering, from 4 guineas. Also, the 7-guinea Boehm Flute.
BOOSEY and Co., Manufacturers, Holles-street, London.

CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINAS still maintain their unrivalled popularity. These instruments remain unique in tone than other Concertinas.—CASE, 20, Princes-street, Manchester-square, Oxford-street.



MUSICAL BOXES.—A New Assortment, containing nine different and most popular Music, just arrived from Nicole, of Geneva. Lists on application to BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted, with double action, to keep well in tune, from Two Guineas to Twenty-five Guineas each.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HEAD-QUARTERS OF THE FENIANS AT NEW YORK.

OUR New York Correspondent writes as follows, under date of the 20th of November :—

I send you a sketch of the new Club House, or, as it is termed, "Head-quarters," lately established here by the Fenian Brotherhood. The locality chosen by them is a central and very fashionable one, their large and commodious mansion being situated on the north side of Union-square, next door to the Everett House Hotel. Formerly it belonged to a celebrated "clairist" known as "Dr." Moffat, who made a large fortune by the manufacture of "Phœnix Bitters"—a potion with which, under the present tenure of the building in question, a suggestive coincidence seems to be connected. The leading spirit of the Fenians is no longer termed the "Head Centre," but is now President, and the constitution of the brotherhood is based upon that of the United States. Within a week or two there has been some little excitement on the Canada border arising out of an expected Fenian "raid," and proper precautions have been taken by the Canadian authorities to regulate any attempts that might be made upon the banks by parties of stragglers such as the termination of the civil war here has thrown "upon the loose." It is quite probable that the real object of the Fenian organisation is to centralise Irish influence in this country. Already a common subject of complaint among Americans is that America is "too much governed by the Irish," and, should the efforts now in motion to make Fenianism take root here prove successful, the revival of the Native American, or "Know-nothing" party will probably be the consequent result.

THE HEAD-QUARTERS OF THE FENIAN BROTHERHOOD AT NEW YORK.

THE PONTEFRACT AND GOOLE LIFE-BOAT.

THE new life-boat which has been provided by a public subscription in the towns of Pontefract and Goole, Yorkshire, to be stationed, under the auspices of the Royal National Life-boat Institution, at the Black Middens, Tynemouth, was named by Lady Houghton, and launched in the waters of the Aire and Calder Navigation at Ferrybridge, Knottingley, on Wednesday week. The Mayor and Corporation of Pontefract, at noon that day, with some of the principal inhabitants of the town, assembled in front of the Townhall, where the procession which was to accompany the life-boat to Ferrybridge was formed. First, there was a banner bearing the arms of Pontefract; secondly, a banner appropriately inscribed, "God, our refuge in distress, this our offering deign to bless;" thirdly, a banner announcing that "England expects every man to do his duty." These were followed by the united bands of the West York Rifle Militia and the Pontefract Volunteer Corps; the crew who were to man the boat (consisting of a dozen smart fellows from Knottingley in cork jackets, and picturesquely adorned with ribbons; the rifle corps, the borough police, the Mayor, and the Rev. Dr. Bisset, the Vicar designate; the Rev. Sir T. Blomefield, the Rev. S. W. Newbald, the Town Clerk, many of the Town Council, borough magistrates, and others; the procession bore a flag (which was carried by the boat itself, were decorated with banners and ribbons), was manned. The hymn "For those at sea" was here sung by the parish church choir, and the life-boat then took up its position immediately in front of the Corporation. In this order the procession again passed through the town, on its way to Ferrybridge. Nearly all the people turned out to see what was certainly a novel sight for an inland town, and large numbers accompanied the procession to Ferrybridge. There was but little to attract attention along the route; the day, though cloudy, continued fair until after the launching, and the monotony of the journey was relieved occasionally by the music of the bands.

The procession having arrived at Ferrybridge, the launch took place near the bridge, where a large assembly had congregated, and were joined by Lord and Lady Houghton, who were accompanied by Lord and Lady Cathcart, the Right Hon. J. Parker, Mr. Shaw, Mr. T. D. Bland and party, the Rev. E. D. Bland, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, and others. They were received most cordially; and, all the preliminaries having been settled, the Mayor ascended the platform and briefly stated the object of the meeting; he then formally presented the life-boat, in the name of the town, to Captain Ward, R.N., the official representative of the Royal National Life-boat Institution. Lord Houghton, in the name of the other local subscribers, joined in the act of presentation, and made some appropriate remarks upon the utility and beneficence of the Life-boat Institution. Captain Ward, Inspector of life-boats to the institution, who had accepted to superintend its operations, said that he received the gift with thanks, and assured the donors that the institution felt great gratification in receiving such presents from inland towns, and that such marks of sympathy operated as a great encouragement to the brave fellows who manned the life-boats. Lord Cathcart then briefly addressed the meeting; after which the Rev. Dr. Bisset read a psalm and a prayer, and pronounced a benediction on the boat; and Lady Houghton then, in a gracefully-worded address, named the boat "The Pomfret and Goole." The blocks being knocked aside, the vessel glided easily, rapidly, and gracefully into the water, amid the cheers of the thousands of assembled spectators and the firing of cannon. Several short trips were then made by the boat to show her capabilities, and, having been taken to the crane, she was turned over to test her self-righting properties. Lord and Lady Houghton, accompanied by the Mayor and Corporation and the committee, afterwards partook of refreshment in the marquee, where the health of Lady Houghton was drunk, and likewise that of Mr. A. Hale, of Linden House, Pontefract, to whose exertions the success of this undertaking is to be chiefly ascribed.

The life-boat was taken to Goole the same evening, and was publicly exhibited there on Friday; when Mr. William Potter, Mr. John Wells, and Mrs. Wells took a leading part in the proceedings, which seem to have excited as much interest as at Pontefract. There was a procession, which was in every respect a success. We regret, however, that we have not space to go into the details of the proceedings at Goole. We may add that the Pontefract and Goole life-boat is 32 ft. long and 7 ft. 4 in. wide, and rows ten oars, double banked. She was built of solid mahogany by Messrs. Forrestt, of Limehouse, and is now stationed near the Black Middens Rocks, at the mouth of the Tyne, where, in conjunction with the Constance life-boat, we have no doubt, she will be the means of rendering most important service to shipwrecked crews.

THE CENTRAL WALES RAILWAY.

THE opening of the Central Wales Railway from Knighton to Llandrindod, in Radnorshire, in October last, with the approaching completion of the extension line from Llandrindod to Llandovery, bringing the midland counties of England into more direct communication with the mineral districts of South Wales, and making the pleasure-watering-places and the picturesque scenery of South Wales more accessible than they have hitherto been, is an event of general importance to the whole country. This new line of communication between Shropshire and South Wales has been constructed in three parts; the first section is the Knighton Railway, with the north junction connecting a small portion of Radnorshire and Hereford line at the Craven Arms; the second section is the Central Wales, running through Radnorshire from Knighton to Llandrindod, a distance of about twenty miles; and the third section is the Central Wales Extension, from Llandrindod to with the Shrewsbury and Hereford Railway, which will be opened for traffic on the 1st of January next. The Central Wales Railway, which is a single line, has been constructed by Messrs. Jackson and Co., of Derby, and the Central Wales Extension by Messrs. Lucas and Aird, of Westminster, under the superintendence of Mr. Henry Robertson, C.E., of Westminster, the engineer of the whole line. The contractors have had to encounter many difficulties, owing to the mountainous character of the country, and the severity of the weather during the past winter. The line is worked by the London and North-Western Railway Company, and the Shrewsbury and Hereford Railway Company, and the Cambrian Railway Company, and the Mid-Wales Railway Company, and the Mid-Wales Railway Company, and the Mid-Wales

Llandovery, a distance of twenty-six miles. The Knighton line has been open for two or three years past; the second section has now been opened; and on the third section the works are progressing rapidly, by which Llandovery will be reached. From Llandovery the Vale of Towy line opens up communication with Llandilo, and with the busy town of Llanelly on the South Wales line; but the promoters of the rival design to carry a short line from Llandilo to Carmarthen, thus avoiding the detour via Llanelly, Kidwelly, and Llangunnor. The importance of thus shortening the distance, in a through line between the railway and Milford Haven, is apparent from the fact that at present at the Central Wales scheme beyond Llandovery will be obtained with less expense than Llangammarch on the Mid-Wales Railway, which is the nearest direct access to South, and open up the Senny Bridge, Trecastle, and other districts of Brecknockshire, whose future has very great advantages. Radnorshire, too, will participate in the benefit of communication with South, as a junction will be formed with the Mid-Wales and Central Wales lines at or near Builth. With these lines completed and Rodrey the Central Wales Company promises to obtain a large amount of traffic and to be very useful to the public, especially to the Welsh Slavers should have a port of large American trade.

The contractors, Messrs. Battersby and Co., have had to perform from some heavy works in deep cuttings and high embankments. Starting from Knighton, the line skirts round the base of the Hill Cop valley route, which it follows to Knucklas, where it is carried over by a bow string 70 ft. high, and consisting of lattice girders of 150 ft. span each. This structure, which is massive and imposing, has at each approach made a handsome castellated column, and commands a good view of the hilly village of Knucklas, lying in the valley beneath. It has been built entirely of local stone. The second on this part of the line is very ground, with the Castle Hill (a very prominent object in the Craig-y-nos Castle (known as the pleasant resort of pienic parties. After passing the viaduct, the line has a heavy cutting in the face of a hill, and then the valley so looks back on the inner side of the segment of the circle gains a beautiful view of the lofty structure which it has passed. The next great work is the Llwynocch tunnel, 700 yards in length, cut through a ridge rock; and the next important work of interest to Eyrcomer, a traversed, then the Lugg valley is entered, succeeded by the Glyn Cwm Valley, crossed by the Cyllyllwyd Viaduct, through Nantymelan and Dolau, and along the flat, passing the Red Lion, Rhaeadr, a half-mile tunnel to the Llandrindod Station, which is 600 yards in length. From this point the line goes on, passing Cefn Llys and Cwmlas, until it reaches Llandrindod.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

COURTESIES to a persalent notion, there is really a tolerably high hill in the county of Essex, on the south side of which the parliament of Maldon is perched. Owing to its commanding position, no doubt, this town for many years been the chosen spot from which the political mesenrie have been accustomed to cry aloud to the surrounding country to listen to the voice of the more sincient creed, and how practicable it is to be their people. Hence the Conservative and Liberals of Essex alternately cry to testify to the principles they espouse, and to acquaint their tactics against each other. As we have often had occasion to observe, the circumstance of a Member having returned the one liberal member for the county obviously gives a certain predominance to the views of that party in the progress in the place, and there was a considerable amount of gratification among the usual gathering about town having got the end of the wedge into the hitherto impassable Tory fortress, when the Liberal Member appeared in the fortunes of the last election the Conservatives managed to oust the Liberal member, and to put Mr. Philip Earle in as the champion of the ineffable Mr. Peacocke. Doubtless this was many autumnal meeting; whereas the Conservatives have come in force, especially as they have been singing small about their loss as they can with their rather small voices. Of course Mr. Du Cane was present on these chief points, and he is one of the most pronounced orations, bringing out in perfection all the Sawmay-Montgomery "dodges" for which he is so famous. The new Tory numbership was necessarily exhibited, and Mr. Ralph Bernal Osborne, M.P. for Wycombe, Mr. Peacocke, as usual, strutted and fretted his hall hour; Mr. Selwin was modest and unassuming; and the point of view Lord Eustace Cecil gave "his impression" of the prospects of his party; and Captain Jervis, R.N., who was evidently the uncomfortable mood, was mainly remarkable for a prophecy of an early dissolution of the present parliament, which is based on the fact that most follow the passing of a Reform Bill. The characteristic of the meeting was decidedly defiant; if the Reform Bill was necessary it was to be taken as representative men we are on the eve of a great party struggle. The meeting has been blown from the hill of Maldon, and that is terribly significant.

It may be easily understood that in the column the rights or wrongs of the vexed Jamaica question are not likely to be discussed, or the merits and demerits of the controversy which is carried on between a few friends of Governor Eyre and the philanthropists of the aboriginal name who is the main spokesman on the part of the body which opposes him. Nor is it to be philanthropic purposes to be alluded to, for the purpose of introducing a brief notice of the forthcoming of the meeting of Englishmen and their sentiments of any color, or rather to judge, this subject. According to the avowed testimony of Mr. Buxton, nothing is more invigorating to his political system than a visit to Brighton. One well remembers the story of the man, who, with all the appearance of being of Schiller's Diver upon his, he stated that he had just emerged from the sea at Brighton, and the gentleman was naturally pleased that the honourable gentleman had had a good liberty; and by his manner and gesture they understood how he had disported himself in it. There is no question that the oratory of the honourable member is in excellent keeping with the marine features of the borough which he represents. Epic and lyric are not his peculiar character; but, on perusing his speech at the recent meeting, one could almost get a clear idea with regard to its delivery in manner. There came over one an inevitable sense of identity with that famous amateur who was in the habit of "drawing" before the Court of Theseus, and whom, in a state of translation, he was pleased to unwisely. Here was a translation of one of the ardent wishes of that eminent performer: here was "a part to tear a cat in." Probably, the character of the hero also, was within the orbit of the senior member's wishes; but, as certainty, that was appropriate to the junior representative, who has studied and played the part for some time, and has mastered the business of it. Let it be understood that he is about to rear in the most esteemed fashion; and, as one contemplates on the scene in the mind's eye unfortunately one adopts, as a matter of course, the alarmed apprehension of the Athenian clown—"Should us 'uoich him monstrous well as to the roaring?" Should us have to receive the effect which will be caused when one of the newest members of the House proclaims in that unconvincing language which he so subtly used at Brighton, that, unless he is personally and personally satisfied with the conduct of Ministers on the Jamaica question, he will incontinently withdraw his confidence from them. It is to be hoped that by some pneumatic agency those terrible words will be conveyed through the labial corridors of the palace of Westminster, to the ears of Lord Russell in the Lords, as he sits making his usual efforts not to sleep during the earnest state of affairs. Conceive the agony to imagine Mr. Gladstone shrinking, cowering and collapsing, beneath this crushing declaration! Mr. Gladstone, indeed, has committed so many difficulties to contend with in establishing his claim to leadership, and if this fresh demunciation be launched at him early in his new career, who shall say what will be the withering consequences? The theme is too ghastly to be pursued.

The political fortunes of the Peels have been rather in the descendant of late. Poor Mr. Frederick has succumbed to a series of sorrows and misfortunes which seem to have driven him from public life, at a time when he might well have been supposed to have reached the highest office to which his ambition could have pointed; while Sir Robert, that "same mighty man," has ceded the Secretaryship for Ireland, and has been relegated to the back benches, whence, however, it is quite probable he will be heard anon: There has, however, been returned to the new Parliament another of the family, Arthur, the youngest of old Sir Robert's sons. It is he who ensured Coventry a while ago, and who has now won the borough of Warwick for the Liberal interest from Mr. Greene, a local Conservative, who has represented it in the place. Searching for reasons why Mr. Arthur Peel should cross from Staffordshire into Warwickshire to look for a seat, one discovers that by marriage he is allied to a family of somewhat famous name in the latter county, and so would come with some grace before a constituency there. He has been assisting at a celebration in one of the contested elections, the heats which have been so epidemic of late, and placation, at least, something may be expected; speaking his speech with a good deal of point, and indicating that he had gained from the House not a little parliamentary polish, with a certain modest assurance. As political friend, though having no family connection with him, Mr. Arthur Peel who is essentially a Kentish man and sits for the Kentish borough of Sandwich, where the Cinque Ports Warwickshire are by virtue of a residence the pleasant town of Lessington. To be sure, he would make a speech, and that is all that need be said.

FINE ARTS.

THE National Portrait Gallery, Great George-street, Westminster, has just acquired a most interesting purchase five portraits of rare and curious interest. The gift is a half-length portrait of Queen Elizabeth, in all her stiffness and splendour, almost grotesque bravery of richly-jewelled stomacher and head-dress, with the Crown of England and sceptre, and the Garter ring and holding a flower in one hand. This portrait, though of little artistic merit, is valuable for its historical accuracy, is valuable for the internal evidence it presents of minute fidelity to the features as well as costume. If not by Mark Gurrard, it must be closely the portrait by that painter at Hampton Court; and as the Craig-y-nos Castle picture is the most prominent of the three, must be one of the latest portraits for which she sat. The features are modified in their delicate shadow, they have not the regular story that the Queen forbade any shadow being introduced in her portraits, except which was impossible in the representation of her extant commands to Sir Nicholas Hilliard, the miniature painter. The arrangement of the hair, the pearls and jewels, the ruff, completed in Elizabeth's reign, and for whom the portrait was painted, has presented this interesting picture is one that a souvenir of the ancient importance of the society may be satisfactorily traced. The gift of the Queen is a half-length portrait of the famous Countess, known as "Bess of Hardwick," second wife of the Earl of Shrewsbury, the builder of Hardwick Hall, had Mary Queen of Scots committed to his custody. She is dressed in black, and has a long string of pearls hanging from her neck; her face is symmetrical, but with little feminine charm; the expression of her face is calculating. Sir Thomas Heneage, Vice-Chamberlain to Queen Elizabeth, Captain of the Guard to Queen Elizabeth, who was very rich, was led by his extravagance into considerable difficulties, and was forced to let bitter prejudice of his daughters by a former wife; and now, Elizabeth, Lady Hatton, and Lady Cecil, he finished her conquests by marrying the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Countess of Lennox, and Lady Cecil. The portrait is a fine one up her character, she was women of a masculine understanding and temper, proud, furious, and of a violent temper. She was a builder, a buyer and seller of estates, a money-lender, and a speculator in lands, a farmer and timber. She lived to a great old age, and died, in 1607, immensely rich. The fifth portrait is that of Sir Thomas Hoby, which was purchased of Mr. Graves. Another portrait, a small, full-length, half-length portrait, and three heads, engraved in the work of 1813 in a long strip of panel, represents George II. when very young; and, on the reverse, Queen Caroline. The portrait represents the Prince having had a special aversion to sitting in the early part of his reign, and Caroline was obliged to command his sister when the print of Hogarth's "March to Finchley" was shown him—"Amongst," says Horace Walpole, "the rest, the young King stands with his hand on the Royal crown and arrayed in the robes of the Roman Emperors, which he assumes and upright, but unfortunate, Whig leader somewhat younger than in the picture, and with a countenance more open and manly than Bedford. There is much of Lely's manner in the painting; but the careful modelling of the character of the features and expression, and the absence of bravura in the little drapery shown, gives the picture a quiet—if by comparatively very meretricious painter—among his most manly and best works. The head is in the same position as in Bestair bust-portrait (by Lely unmistakably) of Henry German, Earl of St. Albans, in the Royal Collection. Queen Caroline is also represented ultimately married to Henrietta Maria, or not, the less, perhaps, that it had old Lely painted for Charles I. Queen Henrietta Queen of Charles I. the better. His features, which are blunt and anything but handsome, have a certain dignity and intellectual expression. He looks a sort of ugly male Nell Gwynn.

A meeting of the council and a movement is on foot to erect a monument to the late Lord Palmerston in Guildhall.

The second Annual Exhibition of Water-Colour Drawings at the Dudley Gallery, Egyptian Hall, is announced to open on Monday, Feb. 7. Works intended for exhibition must be sent in on the 8th or 9th of January.

The experimental half-length portrait of her Majesty in the Queen's Robing Room, for which the name objection exists, and which has also appeared. The proposed series of portraits of English Kings and Queens for the Victoria Gallery, commenced in the Robing Room Palace, and which were to have been executed by the late Mr. Dyce, would in addition to the portraits of Sovereigns, include the Princes beneath, illustrative of the Arthurian romances, and may therefore well be opened. The late Mr. Dyce was commissioned to paint the portrait of Prince Arthur, and had made considerable progress with it when he was cut short in his career. The ceiling, is a great expense, and is otherwise one progressing more satisfactorily than when we last saw it, the colouring seeming to be of a richer hue than formerly, and the treatment, as well as Mr. Maclise's last great picture "The Death of Nelson," will surely attract the attention of visitors to the Royal Gallery as well as public on Saturdays after, at latest, the opening of Parliament.

We regret to hear that Sir Charles Eastlake remains at Pisa, with hardly any hope being entertained of his recovery. He has appointed Mr. Layard to act for him as Director of the National Gallery.

An important picture by Vittore Carpaccio, a distinguished master of the early Venetian school, containing lifesize figures of the Virgin and Child, two saints, and the Doge Leonardo Loredano, who was a descendant of the Doge, for the National Gallery, for the sum of £3400

Mr. Gambart has published a large and very beautiful engraving principally by Mr. Jeens, after Mr. Frith's picture of the marriage of Princess Royal to Prince Frederick William of Prussia, January, 1858. Opinions will always differ as to individual portraits in paintings of this class; but Mr. Philip's great work, on its exhibition at the Royal Academy in 1860, very harmoniously combined portraits to be artistically one of the most admirable pictures of state ceremonial ever painted in this country. The engraver, Mr. Blanchard Jerrold, who executed the capital plate of Mr. Frith's "Derby Day") has reproduced all the best qualities of Mr. Philip's picture within the scope of his art. The artistic arrangement of the figures, the choice of the point of view, and even the beautiful colour of the original—as far as may be in what is technically called the "colour" of the engraver—are all preserved.

A Cincinnati jury has awarded a negro of that city 800 dols. damages for having been ejected from a street car in pursuance of a general rule of the Corporation.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

CHRISTMAS GIFT-BOOKS.

The Works of the Ettrick Shepherd, revised, at the instance of the Author's family, by the Rev. Thomas Thomson. (Blackie and Son.) Those whose estimate of James Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd, is derived from an acquaintance with the "Noctes Ambrosianæ," and whose private opinion it is that the "Noctes Ambrosianæ" are necessarily reading for one who is not warned by the subtle influence of nationality, will be at a loss to account for the high estimation in which those enthusiastic admirers call the poet of Burns. But whether his "shepherd" were or were not due to the "ettrickman," whether James Hogg were really a great genius or only a self-complacent and conceited man of mediocre abilities will be a self-complacent and conceited man of mediocre abilities but of transcendent presumption, simplicity or of egotistical vanity, and whether what he wrote is verse and prose deserving to live for ever, it is late in the day to consider. The "shepherd" has, no doubt, obtained for himself a certain niche in the Temple of Fame, and his works are in high esteem, especially amongst a certain class of Scotchmen. In England and amongst Englishmen he is not much read, and his writings are little known; but his admirers are not likely to have a chance of seeing him to better advantage than in the handsome volumes in the form of two fine volumes, finely illustrated. The volumes are emminently adapted for given of gifts; and a one volume contain the poems and the other the prose, each is complete in itself, and may be obtained separately. Hogg's, the volume containing the poems has the recommendation of containing the "Queen's Wake" complete.

Alice's Adventures in Wonderland. By Lewis Carroll. (Macmillan and Co.) This is a very elegant gift-book of fancy-work and of a very high order for the amusement and even instruction of children. Externally and internally it is a book for the nursery, in which children receive if they do not expect all manner of gifts, amongst which books are not the least conspicuous. The present volume contains forty-two illustrations due to the practised pencil of John Tenniel, and that fact alone is a high and deserved recommendation.

Tales from Dreamland, by the Author of "Seven Little Sisters," and Stories Finished, Fragments Restored, Wanderings in Fairy Lands, and Devotional, edited and selected by J. E. Carpenter. (Longmans.) Also selected by Mary Russell Mitford; Petsnet Henry, by the Author of "The Little Drummer;" Wanderings for the Cherubim Year; The Christian Year and Future Book; The Book of Nursery Tales; The Boys of Every Where; Bible and Missionary Stories, illustrated; or the Adventures of a Prince, by the Author of "The Little Drummer," Little Edye's Journal, with illustrations by S. M. P., and Stories by Oscar Fletcher; In and Out of School, illustrated with Twenty-seven Original Designs by Harrison Weir, and Stories from the Bible, by "The Popular Alphabet-book, with Thirty-six Pages of Coloured Illustrations from Designs by Kronheim, Gospel and His Brothers (Frederick Warne and Co.) The titles of the books sufficiently explain for the most part the nature of the books themselves: they are intended as gift-books for children and inform children. Highly-coloured engravings are a remarkable feature in nearly all of them; and the children will be pleased with the pictures, and interested, or even alarm, at the liberal outlay of hints which, in the case of Joseph and his brethren, appears to have been required by the story about the coat of many colours. Some of the books must be excepted from the recommendation of suitability for the nursery, and yet sober volumes entitled respectively "The Guardian Angel's Book," "Wanderings for the Cherubim Year," and "Watchwords for the Christian Year" are suitable for old men and women, middle-aged men and children, and who have sufficient education to read the Psalms in which they are bidden to "raise the Lord."

What the Moon Saw, and other Tales, by Hans C. Anderson, translated by H. W. Dulcken. (Routledge and Co.) Illustrated by A. W. Bayes, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel; Elsie Montgomery's Childhood, by the Author of "Mabel Vaughan," "Wide, Wide World," "Queechy," "Speculation," &c.; The Standard Dooley Book; The Two Schools; Girls, and other Tales; Lucy Ellerton; Stories about Dogs; Stories of "My Brother's Keeper, &c.; The Boy Pilgrims: by Anne Bowman; Little Edye's Journal, by the Author of "Arthur Arlton;" Uncle Solon-Chair and Sir Wilfred's Seven Nights, by Mdme. de Chatelain; Aunt Bessy, by the author of "Aunt Ethel;" The Island of the Rainbow, a fairy tale, and Stories from the Bible, by Mrs. Henry Bliss; and "Mrs. Blake," "Hildred the Daughter," &c.; Ernie Elton, the Young Navy, by Harrison Ainsworth; George Routledge and Sons). The name of Hans C. Anderson is an earnest and beseeching voice, and with pleasure will be received by children both of incomplete and of full growth; the author of "Queechy" (though it be more than a little like "Barbara") and of contemptious transmutation "Symsky") is certain to command some attention. The "Standard Dooley Book," a selection of exquisite poems, from the works of the best English writers, is full of beauties, with which the children should become intimately familiar; and the other books, of which the titles have been given, have all more or less claim to the notice of caterers for children. There is good store of engravings, coloured and uncoloured, of fun and frolic, worthily and of Scriptural doctrine.

The Fairy Tales of Science, by John Cargill Brough; Fatherland; or, How the Beds Lived at Greenlawn, by George Manville Fenn; The Australian Babes in the Wood, by the author of "Lost in the Bush;" What Became of Tommy, by Emilia Marryat Norris: Peck's Land, or, Scenes from Juvenile Conversation, by the Rev. Thomas and Jane Hood, their Son and Daughter, &c. (Griffith and Farran.) The first of these books is a book at, indeed, unpretentious; but both in spirit and in execution it is of considerable merit, and the latter one more scientific and more laden with hard words than the young idea conceive it should be, but to take off the edge of that sour fact, it has sixteen novel illustrations by Alfred Concanen as well as prettier pictures of C. H. Bennett. "Fatherland" is a very pretty little book, in which are described some of the delights of country life and well to observe the birds doing: it is nicely illustrated by F. W. Keyl. "The Australian Babes in the Wood" is a true story (in fact) of two children who, incredible as it may seem, "wandered the dreary heath, without a morsel of bread to eat for three days and a night, and were (save over) to quench their thirst," during a period of "some long days and cold" (page 109). The book is "illustrated" by Hugh Cameron, A.R.S.A., J. M'Whirter, G. Hay, J. Lawson, &c., and engraved by R. Paterson." "What Became of Tommy" has been carefully stated; but it must suffice to say that he ultimately found himself "in clover," and that his history is embellished by illustrations bearing witness to the skill of Gilbert and Dalziel. "Peck's Land," a collection of 'Childish Articles' written for the 'rising generation,' which is dedicated to Mrs. Gilpin, of the second volume of the "Memorials of Thomas Hood," lately published;" it is illustrated—sometimes very humorously—by Henry J. Boddy.

The Lighthouse, by R. M. Ballantyne; John Hotherton, by the author of "Ellen Rhodes;" The Royal Wells Open Door, by the author of "The Wide, Wide World." (James Nisbet and Co.) The first of these books describes the great fight between man and the sea, and is enlivened by many illustrations. The second is a particularly pretty book and has an excellent moral, which may be guessed from certain words of the preface, to the following effect:—The aim of this story is not commendatory nor fictive. It is, in the strictest form, truth. The Bible narrative is a skeleton. We wish, by the aid of collateral facts, to clothe the skeleton in its living flesh and blood, so as to set forth the Bible incidents and course of history, with its train of actors, so as to see them in the circumstances and colouring the light and shade of their actual existence.

Jingles and Jokes for Little Folks. By Tom Hood. (Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.) Whether one can pronounce the jingles and rhymes of this nice little book, there cannot be any other opinion than that it is a very pretty present for little folks, by reason of its elegant outfit and its illustrative embroidery, furnished by C. H. Bennett, W. Brunton, Paul Gray, and T. Morten.

The Complete Works of Oliver Goldsmith, with a Memoir by William Spalding, A.M.; Poems by Thomas Chatterton, with a Memoir by Frederick Martin. (Charles Griffin and Co.) These books both call for a longer notice than can be conveniently given to them; their contents are what everybody should be acquainted with, and the manner in which each is presented to the public by the publisher is an honour to the authors' memories and can scarcely fail to please the authors' faithful adherents and newly-enlisted followers. The "Chatterton" is decorated with some exquisite illustrations, and the "Goldsmith" does not lack illustrative embellishment.

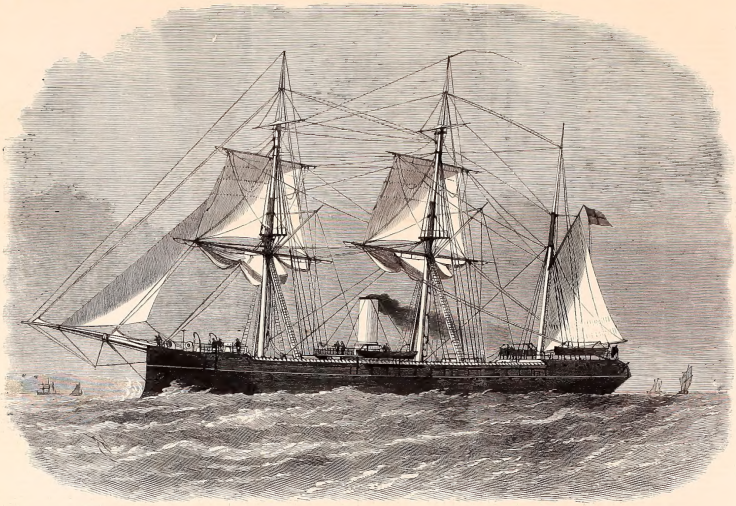
A Lesser Annie; or, The Wounded Lamb, by a Clergyman: The Children's Pride, edited by J. Erskine Clarke, M.A. (Willing Macintosh and Co.). The strength of these two volumes lies, to a considerable extent, in the illustrations, which are numerous and striking; if they cannot be pronounced more than ordinarily good. There is, however, to be found in them that which is worth reading and taking to heart.

Stories and Lyrics. By Adelaide Anne Procter. (Bell and Daldy.) This noble-looking book has not only the recommendation of its intrinsic merits, but has yet no mean claim to be set down as a genial preface by Mr. Charles Dickens, and of illustrations furnished from the designs of such admirable artists as W. P. Frith, R.A., J. R. Herbert, R.A., Palmer, J. Tenniel, George H. Thomas, Lecrew Frohlich, W. H. Millais, G. Du Maurier, F. Walker, W. Fisher, H. Thomas, J. Mahoney, J. M. Carrick, M. E. Edwards, and T. Morten. Those who are acquainted with a certain short drawing-room ballad will not be slow to hail Procter wrote in a strain worthy of her father, who was known to fame as "Barry Cornwall."

Attention is also requested for the following works:—A one-volume edition of St. Olave's, by the author of "Janita's Cross" (Hurst and Blackett); Poems, by Frances Anne Kemble (E. Moxon and Co.)—an elegant volume of elegant verse; Diamond Dust, by Eliza Cook; Last and Found, by J. Crawford Wilson; Bible Pictures, by the Rev. the author of "Our Eternal Homes;" Parish's, or Divine Poesy, illustrations by Theodore and Monkes, by A. Bennett (T. Fisher Unwin); Little Children's Friend (Seeley, Jackson, and Halliday); Poems of Purpose, or Sketches in Verse, by the Rev. Canon Hemingway (Church Missionary and Co.; London: James Nisbett);—which is remarkable, if for no other reason, for the fact that it is the product of a man who, since he has reduced almost to blindness, and who, nevertheless, dictates to her son what she would have written; Sermons Preached in Country Churches, by E. B. Denston; Australia, with the History of its Colonization, by Charles Leigh, for the use of schools (published by Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge), the first being, of course, of a scientific and, to a certain extent, elementary character; the second being historical and geographical; and the third belonging to the "goody style of fiction not unsuitable for children.

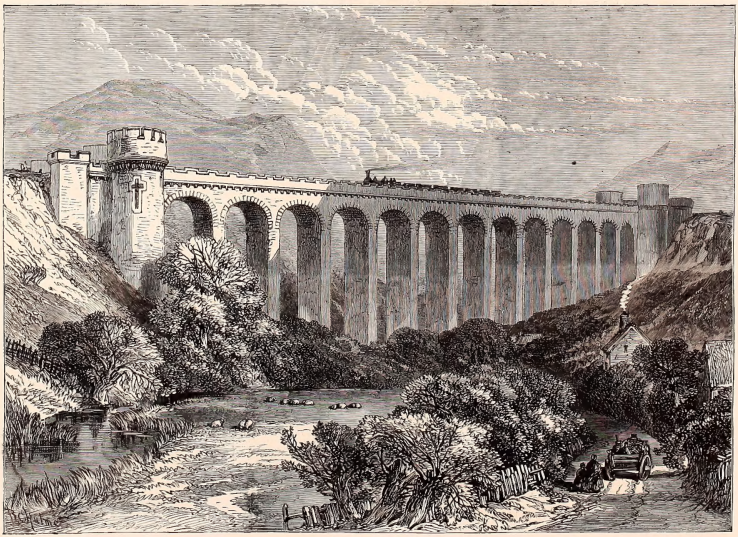
A History of the Commonwealth of Florence: from the Earliest Independence of the Republic to the Extinction of Liberty in 1531. By T. Adolphus Trollope. Vols. III. and IV. (Chapman and Hall.) We noticed the previous instalment or publication of this valuable work, at the time of the sexcentenary festival of Dante at Florence. In these days, when the recent republication of Mr. Trollope's History in that city has again recalled our attention to Florentine history, we may congratulate Mr. Trollope on the completion of his task. The latter portion of his narrative he has had to deal with the long conspiracy of the Medici and many subsequent events of which the effect of these fellow-citizens, during a period of rather more than one hundred years, from the death, in 1429, of Giovanni de' Medici—the plain, unassuming merchant and banker who was the first to acquire influence—to that of it, as well as the prudence of his councils and his unassuming demeanour, but for much of the respect and deference with which he claims that the inheritors of his name—Cosmo, his son, and Lorenzo, his great-grandson—were enabled, by the most unscrupulous and cruel means of corruption, to make themselves, in fact, the absolute despots of the State. The narrative of this history is occasionally, though interrupted by popular revolutions, into an avowed monarchical sovereignty. Of these, indeed, take place, after the death and exile of Lorenzo, in 1527, by the army which the Emperor Charles V., in pursuance of its agreement with Pope Clement VII., had placed at the disposal of the House of Medici for their nefarious purpose. But, with the exception of two short intervals, when the latter of the fatal family were driven out by the will of the nation, soon to find their way back reopened by the factions and intrigues of the citizens of Florence, the Medici, as hereditary Grand Princes in all but the name, may be dated from the middle of the fifteenth century: since Cosmo himself, during his lifetime, as "the Country," had but imitated the example of Augustus Cæsar in pretending to maintain the ancient republican forms, while really controlling the entire government of the Commonwealth. The elegant but very superficial English biographer of Lorenzo de' Medici, in the last century over this period of Italian history, which Mr. Trollope, with a ruder but honester hand, remorselessly strips of its disguise and shows to the world as it was, has not even the merit of having written that modern Europe has experienced and survived. The mournful misconception of Lorenzo the Magnificent as a model of wisdom, cruelty, and treachery, and the perfidious craft with which he debauched and enslaved his native city, are matters of history. Mr. Trollope's judgment, by his ostentatious patronage of the fine arts or by the favour he showed to a set of pensioned scholars and poets, is beyond to flatter him in the most classical style. We remark, indeed, with much satisfaction the honesty of condemnation with which Mr. Trollope in thus rubbing off the delusive gilding laid on by Roscoe, and in exposing the true character of the Florentine tyrants as well as the principles of the Florentine people, who only lost their freedom when they no longer deserved to keep it. The whole story is, of course, very humiliating, and even disgusting, as we are forced more inclined to rely upon the forms and institutions of political self-government, although in Florence from very early times the only effective security for the liberties of a people, in the absence of public and private morality, was found in the right of insurrection, exercised on a subsist. This tecnon, which is enforced by Mr. Trollope in his frequent references to the wise and sagacious counsels of Machiavelli, unanimity is general, as well as of the ambitious chiefs and leaders of faction, who were more or less servants of the Medici, and who were the result of a perusal of his book. Even in that part of it which relates to the brief dictatorship of the Puritan friar Savonarola, and his efforts to establish the practical supremacy of Christian principles and to inculcate the sacred virtues of primitive Christianity, we are impressed with the melancholy fact that it was not even possibly come of such an experiment among a people who coveted an unjust dominion over their neighbours, and who worshipped the Black Virgin of Impruneta. The story of Savonarola, which forms the most striking and dramatic narrative of the gradual destruction of the Florentine Commonwealth. Some of Mr. Trollope's former published statements, as to the character of Catherine Sforza and Filippo Strozzi, have partially occupied the ground covered by the remainder of his history, which includes the story of the re-establishment of the Medici at Florence by the intervention of Pope Julius II., in 1512, and of the second expulsion of Giovanni de' Medici and Remo Baglioni, the subsequent Pontificates of Giovanni de' Medici as Leo X., and Giulio de' Medici as Clement VII., ending in the last suppression by the Imperial arms. Among the incidents of that heroic defence, which almost redeems the degradation of the history of the Florentine people, yet which could not save them from their subjugation to the overwhelming armies of the Empire, we may mention the first the Medici, then the Hapsburg-Lorraine, we may still discern the grand figure of Michael Angelo Buonarroti, the painter, the poet, and the sculptor of princely sepulchres, but as a military engineer and patriot soldier, directing the citizens how to fortify their walls, and to keep out the detested enemy of their freedom. With this noble recollection, which fully closes the history of the Commonwealth of Florence, we may now congratulate the beautiful city on its promotion to be the capital of a free and united Italy.

Travels in Indo-China, Cambodia, and Laos, &c. By the late M. Henri Mouhot. (John Murray.) Science has its victories no less than war; and, alas! science has its victims no less than war. There is "the pestilence that stalketh in the noon-day" and the fever that lurks invisible in the jungle. These, with their attendant or antecedent ills—hunger, and thirst, and cold, and heat, and weariness—lie in wait for the scientific traveller and cut him off in the flower of his days. Englishmen have good reason to know this, and Henry Mouhot was in almost everything but birth an Englishman. His wife was English, and his darling passion, on which his native France looked coldly, not with fostering smiles in more sympathetic England. He yearned for and gained distinction as a naturalist. He was a Frenchman who was born where he was born, for Montbliard is the birthplace of Cuvier and Lamarck. To the regular records of this journal the name of Henri Mouhot will be familiar: for in the Number for Aug. 2, 1862, there appeared a portrait of the traveller, together with a notice of some of his discoveries and scientific services. On the present occasion, therefore, there remains only for us to express satisfaction at the publication of these interesting volumes, in which all that can be known that the public should know about the dead and his labours has been carefully collected by his brother from private letters, journals, and other documents. The value of the collection made, during travels in Siam, Cambodia, Laos, and Lone by the late M. Mouhot, is announced by competent authority to be great; the autobiographical part of the narrative is interesting and the private letters full of info[illegible] and the appended translations of Chinese tables, the Cambodian vocabulary, and the notes on the geology, the botany, the ornithology, and learning of the naturalist, whose name, although he was stricken down at the early age of thirty-five years and the seven of science will not allow to perish. It would be difficult to overrate the importance of the illustrations with which the work is enriched—some of them are not only numerous and graphic, but some are exquisitely graceful, many are really noble, and all a charm to very readable pages.



The Gates of Paradise, and Other Poems. By Lucy Gordon. (W. H. Allen and Co.) The author of "Rex et Regina" is a lady who is not only a poet, but a poetess. By Leo Hartley Grindon. (E. Pitman.) The author of this book has presented the private and public aspects of some of the most familiar facts of natural history and science in a form which, we are assured, has been successfully adopted and teacher of botanic science; and reverul of his former publications, "The Manchester Museum," "Life: its Nature, its Varieties, and Phenomena," have gained the notice of a wider circle of readers, while the latter volume has won the praise of philosophic inquiry and observation, as tending to explain the great problem of life. The present work is, in addition to this, a considerable branch of physical science. As for "The Little Things of Nature," it is just such a book as the meditative and pure-hearted country gentleman will delight to read, and from which he will receive pleasure and delight, in the quiet hours of Sunday evening, or at any other season of serenity and repose. It describes, in a pleasing manner, the nourishment of plants, the habits of insects, the distribution of land and water, the formation of rocks, the laws of the economy of chemical decomposition and recomposition of all the particles of matter, by which the earth is kept in a state of purity and health. A thoughtful discourse, always leading the mind "to look through nature up to nature's God."

Aleph: A Poem. By G. Washington Moon. (Hatchard and Co.) A noble volume, as far as subject, covers, paper, print, and certain commendable qualities in the verse, is this work. Considerable learning required more of that sublime spirit which inspired Isaiah and other great masters of the lyre than the author of "Aleph" appears to have written in castes, and has chosen a modification or amplification of the Spenserian stanza for the metrical medium of his poem, is, in our opinion, by no means an improvement. The author seems to be better at home in the "Ode to Science," which is the best of the poetical pieces.



Alchemist the Karol, and other Tales, from Eastern Sources. By Charles Wells. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) This is the student of King's College, London, some few years ago, devoted himself, with extraordinary diligence and success, to the study of the Arabic and Persian languages, and probably to those practical uses in the diplomatic and consular service which were officially commended by his Majesty's Government. Mr. Wells is a Fellow of Trinity in his public schools and Universities at the period of the Crimean War. His translations, which are from Arabic sources, are not of very choice Turkish, which obtained the high approval of Professor Fraser, Mr. Wells's tutor. The "Alchemist" is a romantic narrative entitled to judge of its style and diction, is a performance such as we should have looked for from a scholar and man of letters, indeed who had not personally resided in the Levant. The present volume, being a collection and translation of stories from the Arabian Nights and John Strait will to the uncivilised minds of the Turks. The principal of these, entitled "The Story of the Three Apples," is no less able to utter wisely and agreeably for the taste of English readers than the well-known "Story of Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp." Of the uncivilised minds of the Turks, Mr. Wells has assigned to it, being one of the most charming stories of Oriental fiction which we have ever perused, and quite as interesting as 999 of the Thousand and One Nights' Entertainments. The other stories are "The Prince Tailor," "The Cobbler," "The Disputed Maiden," "The Prince Tailor," "The Wife with Two Husbands," and "The Lover." It is, of course, impossible to do justice to such many amuse readers of every class. A Turkish love-letter, full of the peculiar metaphorical eloquence of Asiatic sentiment, will be found particularly interesting to those persons who when he calls the lady "the blood of my veins"—is appended to the collection of stories, and is followed by a number of Turkish and Persian short pieces of verse, with a brief essay, by Mr. Wells himself, on the poetry of the Ottoman Turks.

Hoyle's Million of Money. By Amelia B. Edwards. (Tinsley.) Miss Edwards's name is not to be found in the list of our contributors; but will hardly be increased by the three volumes devoted to "Half a Million of Money." It is, of course, a novel. Novels are usually written, although the poor relative meets with a little ill-usage, as it generally does at the hands of that ex-officio guardian of the family honour, the legitimate heir, and concluding pages contain well-directed, and well-delivered, and well-deserved satire. The tale, however, is, in the present instance, not that of the poor relative of fortune inherited by the hero; the incidents are not particularly original or striking, and the style is not above the average even as all occasions is indelicate; and the manner in which he woos and wins his blooming bride is not to be commended to the study of the fair lover. The discovery that a man does belong to the genus "home" and has interests in the world beyond his own soul, here and hereafter, is of solitary; but it would have been as well, so far as truth is concerned, if, instead of being a second time put forward, it had been left to speak for itself.

Cancer; its Allies and Counterfeits. By Thomas Weeden Cooke. (Longmans, Green, and Co.; Hospital, Langman and Co.) This book has the merit of having been written by a specialist who does not overestimate the value of his own views. The proposition is not uncommon error, produced by a long and laborious study, by which the mind becomes engrossed with a single subject, to the full, its proper extent, indifferent to all others. The author of the present work has studiously avoided this error, while he has devoted himself to cancer is, he has also, with no less ability, treated of its allies and counterfeits. Mr. Cooke's theory of cancer is that of a constitutional disease, entirely upon hereditary predisposition, and developed in obedience to some exciting influence. In commencing his investigation of cancer

H.M.S. WYVERN, DOUBLE-TURRETED IRON-CLAD STEAM-RAM.—SEE PAGE 591.

THE KNUCKLASS VIADUCT, CENTRAL WALES RAILWAY.—SEE PAGE 589

PIGEONS:—No. 1, Mr. T. D. Green, Saffron Walden, Essex; 2, Mr. T. H. Ridpeth, Poplar House, Rusholme, Manchester; 3, Mr. Mathew Wicking, Blackheath park, Kent; 4, Mr. Mathew Hedley, Redhill, Surrey; 5 (Lozed Fantails), Mr. Arsenio Pinto Leite, Manchester. GEESE:—No. 6, Mrs. Seamons Hartwell, Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire; 9, 10, Mrs. Ferguson Blair, Inchmartine Incture, N.B. FOWLS:—No. 7 (La Flèche), National Poultry Company (Limited), Bromley, Kent; 8 (Crevecœur Fowls), Mr. W. Blinkhorn, Waterdale, near St. Helen's, Lancashire. DUCKS:—No. 11, Mrs. Seamons Hartwell, Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire.

PRIZE BIRDS AT THE BIRMINGHAM POULTRY SHOW.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

FIRST-PRIZE BIRDS AT THE BIRMINGHAM SHOW.

DESPITE the protests which at one time seemed to be looming in the future, the poultry and pigeon fanciers were as faithful as ever to Bingley Hall. If there be one proof more than another of the great national use of a poultry show it is in the enormous weights which have been attained. Two pairs of geese, white and grey, for instance, weighed 38 lb. and 36 lb.; a trio of white Aylesbury ducks 30 lb., and another 28 lb., which are 4 lb. and 1 lb. respectively over last year; and four pigeons were "quoted at" 4 lb. 12 oz., which is nearly half a pound more than the greatest of last year's weights. The cockerel which bears proud by winning with a La Flèche pen. This fowl resembles the Spanish in having jet-black plumage, white face and ear-lobes, and single legs; but unlike the Spanish fantastic adornment, two horns bending forward, with a third horn on the beak, said to liken the bird to a rhinoceros. They are the largest of French breeds, the weight attained by fat chickens being 8 lb. to 10 lb.; the skin is particularly white and transparent, and the flesh of delicate flavour. They are somewhat of a very early maturity, and they are bad sitters; but they lay an abundance of eggs. The Houdan, another favourite breed, is a very fine fowl, as well known to frequenters of exhibitions by its crest of feathers, with a duplicate horned comb at the back of the head, five toes to the right leg, and is recommended as a prolific laying breed, and good also for the table. The pullets are said to outweigh the cockerels at stated period attenuates at a wonderfully early age. The hens do not sit. Both these varieties will be found in our Illustration; and it may be noticed that the owner of the first-prize hen, Mr. Ferguson Blair, the celebrated hen-wife, and authoress of the "Chaos of Gowrie," was hurried, during the week of the show, to see Mr. Edmund Yates, Mr. Arbuthnot, Captain of the Forfar Militia Artillery. The pigeon show was not quite up to the last-named special show-season, and the prize-list by the judges, Messrs. Harrison Weir and T. F. Cottle, "the eighty-feet rule" in drawing attention to the excellence of the present show of pigeons.

THE DOUBLE-TURRETED SHIP WYVERN.

THE science of the two steam-rams built by Mr. Laird, at Birkenhead, for the service presumably of the Confederate States in the American war, and their subsequent purchase by her Majesty's Government to prevent any further litigation, will be still in the memory of our readers. The two vessels having since been converted into the Scorpion and Wyvern, a pair of the most remarkable ships lately added to the British Fleet, we present this week Illustrations of each, and one of them, which may serve almost as well for the other, since they are very nearly alike. The Wyvern, built of the best iron, will be 225 ft. 6 in. in length, 42 ft. 6 in. in breadth, 20 ft. in depth, and has a measurement of capacity of 1857 tons. From the plating of the upper deck to the bottom plates below the water-line she is coated externally with ammoni-plating, 41 in. sandships, and tapering to 8 in. and 3 in. round the bows and stern. This armour-plating is backed by 18 in. of teak backing, having an "inner skin," or inner lining of the hull, of 3 in. best boiler-plates, and, internally, the ship is divided into water-tight compartments, so as to isolate each of her turrets, her engines, her boilers—in short, each of the large internal arrangements. There are six of these main athwartship compartments in the main body of the ship, besides smaller ones in the bow and stern. In addition to this provision for the ship's security, in the event of damage to her bottom, the Wyvern has a double skin over the entire bottom, including her engines, engines, and boilers. As the Wyvern was built in this subdivided manner expressly to guard against the effect of any stray shot getting into the vitals of the ship, we may mention the fact to the notice of Mr. G. W. Reed, whose torpedoes made such a hole in the Captain, internally the ship is to be fitted with in Committee. As a lodger qualification was a feature of Mr. Darnell's bill, it is probable that the Whigs will not hold out any longer against it, and that it will find a place in the next Ministerial Reform Bill.

11. The Vesting of Seats by Ministers.—The bill did not repeat the proposition of the bill of 1854 to repeal the statute of Anne.

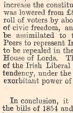
The bill was read a second time without encountering the formal opposition of the Conservature party, whose tactics seemed to be rather to oppose its progress by prolonged debates and repeated adjournments—tactics in which they were zealously aided by a section of the usual supporters of the Ministry. The bill, however, succeeded in getting into Committee, where it lingered through a three-nights' discussion. After 200 members had voted, it ought only to be proceeded with pro tanto with those for the sister kingdoms, it was withdrawn by its proposer, in the middle of June.

THE BILL FOR SCOTLAND.

This bill, introduced by the Lord Advocate, on March 1, proposed to give an additional member to Glasgow and to confer the right of returning a member on the four Universities of Scotland united into one constituency. It conceded a £5 household franchise and a £10 occupation county qualification, and reduced the freehold qualification for counties from £10 to annual value to £5, and maintained the clauses against the manufacture of fictitious votes. The registration machinery of the Reform Act was ratified for Scotland; the number of members of counties and boroughs were made the lists of voters in the first instance. This bill and that for Ireland never reached a second reading.

THE BILL FOR IRELAND.

This bill, introduced by Mr. Cardwell, abolished the two additional seats for Ireland to the county of Cork and the city of Dublin. Mr. Cardwell stated that the disfranchising clauses of the bill, as regards boroughs in the contemporaneous English bill had nothing to operate upon in Ireland, where the smallest borough returning two members was Wexford, a city of 30,000 inhabitants. By the Irish Reform Act of 1850 the limit for the county suffrage had been fixed at £12 annual value; the bill of 1860 proposed to reduce it to £10; this would increase the constituency by 20,000 voters. The borough qualification was lowered from £8 to £6, including the tenants of holdings and the poll of voters by about 6000. The Irish law relating to the acquisition of civic freedom, and which is more lax than that of England, was to be assimilated to the English law. Lastly, the disability of Irish Peers to represent Irish constituencies in the House of Commons was to be repealed in the cases of those Peers who are not members of the House of Lords. This clause, however, aroused the united opposition of the Irish Liberal members, who objected to it on the ground of its tendency, under the power of creation, to increase the already excessive preponderance of the Irish Peerage over the electorate.



CENSUS OF 1861.

In conclusion, it must be borne in mind that since the framing of the bills of 1854 and 1860, the figures of the seventh decennial census have been published, showing an increase in the population of South Britain of 12 per cent, an increase of 10 per cent of Scotch and 4 per cent, and a decrease of that of Ireland of 12 per cent, as compared with the totals of the previous census, materially affecting and altering the position of several boroughs towards the disfranchising standards of the bills of 1854 and 1860, and the relative positions of counties and boroughs towards each other.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR CHARLES SULLIVAN.

Sir Charles Sullivan, fourth Baronet, of Thames Ditton, in the county of Surrey, who died on the 3rd inst., at the family residence in Molcomb-street, Belgrave-square, was the elder son of Admiral Sir Charles Sullivan, K.C.B., the third Baronet, by his wife, Jean Anne, only daughter of Admiral Sir Thomas Byam Martin, G.C.B., of Leeds Castle, in the county of Surrey. He was born on the 11th of January, 1802, and succeeded his father as fourth Baronet on the 21st of December, 1850. He was never married, and, by his death, the baronetcy passes to his only brother, now Admiral Sir Edward Stopford Sullivan, K.C.B., who was born on the 1st of October, 1826, and married, on the 29th of September, 1851, Mary Augusta, second daughter of Henry Curric, Esq., of West Horsley-place, Surrey, late M.P. for Guildford, and niece of Sir Frederick Currie, Bart., by whom he has had two children, a son and a daughter. This family of Sullivan, which is one of the most ancient and honourable of Irish names, also ranges in Ireland, traces its descent from Cillen, King of Munster: it is from Dermod, second son of Owen, the fourth in succession of Cork and Clare. Sir Edward Sullivan, the first Baronet, was created a Baronet of the United Kingdom in 1804, and was the first Baronet, being so created. He died in 1809. His eldest son, Sir Edward Sullivan, the second Baronet, was born in 1774, and married, in 1801, Miss Lucy Catherine Coldstream Goodin, who fell in a sortie from Bayonne, April 14, 1814, whereupon the baronetcy passed to his brother, Captain Charles Sullivan, Admiral of the Blue, father of the Baronet just deceased. Sir Richard Sullivan left also twelve sons and daughters, married to General Gordon Forbes, Governor of Ceylon, the 29th Regiment, and Harriet, wife of John Balfour, Esq., of Trenaby, M.P. for Orkney and Shetland, who died in 1844; another, Mrs. Lindsay, of Balcarres, Fife, Admiral Sullivan, Sir Charles Forbes, Bart., who married, 1789, Lady Harriet Anne Stewart, daughter of the Earl of Galloway, General Sir Joseph Sullivan, and his sister Maria, Lady Dundonald, Sir Benjamin Sullivan, and the "O'Sullivan More," of Wilmington, Isle of Wight, is a nephew of Admiral Sullivan, the first Baronet, and represents the senior male branch of the family.

ADMIRAL MINGAYE.

Admiral William James Mingaye, who died on the 30th ult., aged eighty, entered the Royal Navy in 1798, and commanded a boat at the capture of Java in 1805, was nominated a Sub-Lieutenant, and was appointed to the Belvidera, 46, Captain Hon. George Elphinstone, in the Channel and off the Irish Brigade under that able officer (afterwards an Admiral and sixth Viscount Keith), at the capture of the Cape of Good Hope. He subsequently served as Commander in October, 1817, and obtained his post rank in January, 1822. He was made a Companion of the Bath, and a Captain of the Navy, 19th July, 1841. Had the command of the Romney, 50. He became a Rear-Admiral in 1852, a Vice-Admiral in 1858, and Admiral in 1865. He was in the receipt of a good-service pension since December, 1858.

MISS TALBOT.

This lady, Miss Anne Talbot, who died on the 30th ult. in London, in her eighty-sixth year, was a near relative of the Talbots of Lacock, Wilts, and Penrice, Esq., of Lilleshall, in the county of Wexford, daughter of William Talbot, Esq., of Castle Talbot, who was born in Ireland, and was the youngest sister of the late Martin Theron, Dowager Countess of Shrewsbury, widow of John, fifteenth Earl of Shrewsbury, whose marriage with Miss Talbot, daughter of Sion, and the children of Prince Doria Pamphili. Miss Anne Talbot was also half-sister of William Talbot, Esq., who, by the Shrewsbury peerage, appeared as claimant to the earldom; and she was aware of the half-blood of Mr. Talbot, of Castle Talbot,

NEW BOOKS.

NEW AND SPLENDID GIFT BOOK.
Dedicated by permission to the Princess Royal. Elegantly bound in cloth, gilt edges, royal 4to, price Two Guineas,
THE YEAR: its Leaves and Blossoms. Illustrated by EDMUND STALEY. In Thirteen beautiful Plates, executed in the highest style of Chromolithographic Art, after Original Designs. "The Year" is a work which will, by the refined public, be valued, it is intended."—Art-Journal, Dec.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Now ready, with Seven Illustrations, post 8vo, 6s., cloth,
STRANGE STORIES OF THE ANIMAL WORLD. By the Rev. J. G. WOOD, Author of "Common Objects of the Sea Shore," "Common Objects of the Country," &c.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Just published, price 6s. 6d., cloth, elegant; 5s. gilt edges,
ALMERIAS' CASTLE; or, My Early Life in Africa. By the Lady LINDSTROM, Author of "Under the Desert," &c. With 12 Illustrations.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Just published, price 6s. cloth; 3s. 6d. coloured,
WHAT ARE WE MADE OF? By EMILIA MARYATT SONRIS, daughter of the late Captain Marryat. With Illustrations by John Absolon.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Just published, price 6s. cloth, gilt edges,
FEATHERLAND; or, How the Birds Lived at Greenlawns. By G. W. EVENS. With Illustrations by F. W. KEYL and ALFRED CROWQUILL, and Chromo-Lithographs by EDMUND STALEY.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Just published, fcap. 8vo, cloth, 3s. 6d. coloured, gilt edges,
MAMMA'S MORNING GOSSIPS; or, Little Bits for Little Birds. By Mrs. BRODERIP. With Illustrations by her brother, Thomas Hood.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Just published, beautifully illustrated, 8s. 6d. cloth; 4s. 6d. coloured,
FAIRY LAND; or, Recreation for the Rising Generation. By the Rev. THOMAS and JANE HOOD and FAMILY. Illustrated by T. HOOD, jun. "Some of the pieces are genuine nursery classics."—Athenæum, Dec. 2.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Now ready, with Forty Illustrations, 5s., cloth, elegant,
MERRY SONGS FOR LITTLE VOICES. By the RECTOR and THOMAS HOOD, Set to Music by C. MORLEY. This volume contains Thirty-eight original songs, with accompaniments for the Piano-forte.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Price 2s. 6d. each, with 300 Illustrations, cloth,
THE BOY'S OWN TOY MAKER. By LANDELLS. Sixth Edition.
THE GIRL'S OWN TOY MAKER. Third Edition.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Just published, Second Edition, price 5s., cloth,
FAIRY TALES OF SCIENCE. By JOHN CARGILL KNOX. With 16 Illustrations by Charles Bennett.
"Science, perhaps, was never made more attractive and easy of comprehension."—Morning Post, Dec. 2.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

ANYTHING BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS PARTIES.
SPECTROPIA; or, Surprising Spectral Illusions. Any person can perform and see the Ghost. By J. H. BROWN. Fourth Edition. Price 1s. 6d. No apparatus required.
WONDER-WORKERS; a Choice Collection of Marvellous Counsels, Conundrums, Parlour Games, Forfeits, &c. Price 1s. 6d.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's churchyard.

Now ready, in fcap 8vo, 3s. 6d.,
THE ALCHYMIST; or, Parables in Rhyme. By the Author of "Proverbial Philosophy."
London: ALEXANDER STRAHAN, 56, Ludgate-street, W.

DELAMOTTE'S PRIZE MEDALS for ILLUMINATORS, Decorative Painters, Heralds, Engravers, Carvers, &c.
ORNAMENTAL ALPHABETS, Ancient and Mediæval, from the Ninth Century. Price Edition. 12 Plates, containing 360 Examples, 4s. 6d. post free.
MEDIÆVAL ALPHABETS and INITIALS. A Picture Book to Quill and Colour, small 4to, 6s., post-free 6d.
A MANUAL of MODERN ALPHABETS. Plain and Ornamental. 26 Plates, printed in Colours, oblong royal 8vo, cloth, 4s., post-free.
A PRIMER of the ART of ILLUMINATION; with Directions for its Practice in Gold and Colours. Royal 8vo, cloth, 4s., post-free.
THE EMBROIDERER'S BOOK of DESIGN. Initials, Cyphers, Diapers, Powderings, Borders, Corners, Emblematical Devices, Monograms, Alphabets, National Emblems, &c. In Colours, oblong royal 8vo, cloth, 4s., post-free.
London: DELAMOTTE, Engraver, &c., 37, Great Queen-street, W.C.

HATCHARD and CO., 187, Piccadilly, publish an inspection of their new CHRISTMAS STOCK, which includes Bibles, Prayer-Books, Church Services, Illustrated and Gift Books for the Drawing-room, Juvenile Books, Periodical Works, and Books of Reference, in every variety of morocco, calf, and cloth bindings.
Hatchard and Co. have also the largest stock of Bibles, Prayer-Books, and Church Services, in every quality, bound in the newest styles. A Lists forwarded free on application.

METROPOLIS WATER SUPPLY.
Just published, demy 8vo, 3s. 6.
SUPPLY OF WATER TO LONDON FROM THE SOURCES OF THE RIVER THAMES. By CHARLES ATCHISON, C.E. F.G.S. F.R.S.E.
YACHTS and BOATS, 39, Parliament-street, London, S.W.

Second Edition, price 3s. 6d., by post 3s. 8d.,
WHIST, THE LAWS AND PRINCIPLES OF. By "CAVENDISH."
BARNES BROTHERS, 23, Haymarket-street, W.

Demy 8vo, price 1s.
WHAT FOOD EAT. By W. W. IRELAND, M.D., late of M.M. Bengal Army.
"Full of good sense."—Lancet, 25th ultimo, page 744.
LOVE: a Selection from the best Poets. By T. SHORTER.
Extra cloth, price 1s. 6d.
THE LITTLE THINGS OF NATURE. By Leo H. GRINDON. Second Edition, revised.
London: V. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster-row.

Nineteenth Thousand, 8vo, cloth, 16s.,
HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. Specially adapted to those who prefer families, emigrants, and missionaries. An Epitome of the above, Twenty-fifth Edition, price 5s. The Case of Medicines adapted to the former work, price 16s.; and to the latter, price 8s.
LAURIE and BOSWELL, Booksellers, and 1, Old Cavendish-street, W.

MR. WEEDEN COCKS' OC CANCER.
In 1 vol., 8vo, with 12 Coloured Plates, price 12s. 6d.,
ON CANCER, ITS ALLIES AND OCCURRENCES, affecting the Breast, the Tongue, the Lips, the Face, the Genital Organs, the Arm, the Hand, the Eye, the Rectum, the Bones, and other Parts of the Body. By WEEDEN COCKS, Surgeon to the Royal Free Hospital, &c.
London: LONGMANS, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

GLENNY'S GARDEN ALMANACK, containing Gardening Operations, Horticultural Record and greatly improved. Price 1s., post-free for 1s. 1d.
GLENNY, 4, Exmouth-street, Spencer-square.

Just published,
THOS. DE LA RUE and CO.'S INDELIBLE RED LETTER DIARIES FOR 1866, edited by James GLAISHER, F.R.S., assisted by Members of Lodge Number Seven, and an original article on the Moon by Professor Phillips, F.R.S. Also their Series of Pocket Diaries, Pocket-books, and Cards in every variety of bindings. May be had of all Booksellers and Stationers.

TWENTY THOUSAND ILLUSTRATED GIFT-BOOKS, Juvenile Books, Bibles, Prayer-Books, and Church Services, in elegant bindings, at an immense reduction in price. The largest stock to select from in London.—At JOHN FIELD'S great Bible and Book Warehouse, 65, Regent-quadrant.

FIELD'S GUINEA Ivory-bound CHURCH SERVICE, best quality, with best gilt rims, clasp, and corner ornaments; sent post-free. The largest stock in London of these beautiful gift-books at FIELD'S great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent-quadrant, next to St. James's Hall.

FIELD'S GUINEA FAMILY BIBLE, large bold type, best morocco binding, beautiful plates, and 32,000 references.—65, Regent-quadrant. The largest, cheapest, and best-bound stock of Bibles, Prayer-Books, and Church Services in the world.—At JOHN FIELD'S, 65, Regent-quadrant.

NEW MUSIC.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM. New Song. By W. H. WILLY. Campbell's celebrated poem wedded to an exquisite melody. Price 3s. 6d.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS. Book the Sixth complete, with Portrait of the Composer. Elegantly bound for presentation. Price 10s. 6d.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

NEW CONVIVIAL SONG for CHRISTMAS. By J. L. HATTON. "I'M VERY FOND OF WATER. Sung with great success by Mr. Sims Reeves. Price 3s. Also by the same, "A SMILE AND A TEAR." Sung with immense applause by Mr. Montem Smith. Price 3s. 6d. each.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST, may now be had in Thirty-seven Books, 1s. each, or in Six Volumes, 5s. each, containing the whole of the Voluntaries, Interludes, and Services. The celebrity, purity, and musical public are most respectfully informed that this is the only complete edition.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

OPERATIC GEMS for the VIOLIN—with Accompaniments for the Pianoforte. Second Violin, and Violoncello, ad libitum. Every Opera—selected from the following for Opera.—Sonnambula, Lucia di Lammermoor, Trovatore, Norma, Puritani, Ernani, Don Pasquale, Martha, Rigoletto, Attila, Favorita, Don Giovanni, and Linda Mille.
Full staple size. Not price, 6d. each; Accompaniments, 3d. each.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

GEORGE LINLEY'S JUVENILE ALBUM contains 30 Songs, adapted to Familiar Tunes and the Nursery Rhymes of Childhood. Elegantly bound for presentation. Price 10s. 6d.
London: BROWNE and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

WINTER NIGHT. Words by J. E. CARPENTER; Music by SIDNEY NELSON. "A most telling and appreciative song of the season."—Vide p. 36.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

JEANNE. By ADRIEN TALEXY. "A most charming and effective melody, worthy of Auber's favourite ballad, 'My Pretty Jane.'" Price 3s.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BINK'S PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL. New Edition, with the Pedal part printed on a separate Staff, and the Pedal Notes introduced in the Exercises. In 2 vols., 4to, 21s. each. Also, Price for Harmonium, 12s. each. Elegantly bound, 10s.
London: BROWNE and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

MELODIES OF ALL NATIONS, for the HARMONIUM. Arranged by JOHN BINK, Organist to the DUCHESS CALVOTTI. All the most popular Airs of the following Nations:—Great Britain and Ireland, Scotland, Wales, France, North and South European, Asiatic, African, and American; Sacred Airs, Christmas Carols, Hymns, &c. Price 5s. each Book. Elegantly bound, 7s. 6d. each. "Mr. Bink has done his work well by this, and genuine effort, that a constant variety can be obtained."—Vide p. 36. Also, Bink's Practical Organ School, complete, price 10s. 6d. each; or complete in Two Volumes, bound, 21s. each.
London: ROBERTS and CO., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STANDARD ENGLISH SONGS, Published by MESSRS. BROWNE and CO.—

Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life	...	...	3s. 6d.
Ask Me Why	...	...	3s. 6d.
My Fatherland	...	...	J. Barnett ... 3s. 6d.
The Evening Chapter	...	...	Miss Lindsay ... 3s. 6d.
Forget Thee	...	...	Miss Lindsay ... 3s. 6d.
The Fairy Maid	...	...	Miss Lindsay ... 3s. 6d.
I'd what is the use of repining?	...	...	C. Kingsley ... 3s. 6d.
The Old Soldier's Banner	...	...	... 3s. 6d.
The Sea Hath Its Pearls	...	...	... 3s. 6d.
What shall I sing to thee to-night?	...	...	... 3s. 6d.
Welcome, my bonnie lad	...	...	George Linley 3s. 6d.
The Best of All Goodness	...	...	Hatton ... 3s. 6d.
The Return of the Admiral	...	...	... 3s. 6d.
The voice that breathed o'er Eden	...	...	Wrighton ... 3s. 6d.

London: BROWNE and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS QUADRILLE, Arranged for the Pianoforte by JULLIEN. Splendidly illustrated in Colours. Price 4s. Also, Orphée Waltzes, Galop, &c.
London: BROWNE and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

GANZ'S NIGHTINGALE'S TRILL, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Also, Ganz's Galop for 2 or 4 hands, and all the principal Concerts with enormous success. Price 3s.
London: BROWNE and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

KUHE'S EXTRAVAGANZA for the PIANOFORTE, a brilliant Fantasia on the Popular Ballads of Balfe. Price 3s.
London: BROWNE and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BENEDICT'S New Song, THE BIRD THAT CAME IN SPRING. Sung with immense success by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington. Price 3s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S GRAND GALOP DE FASCINATION. Just published. One of the most brilliant and effective pieces this eminent composer has written. Price 4s.—ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S CHANT DES OISEAUX. "Just published, a most charming and characteristic piece. Exceedingly effective. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S OBERON. Just published. A grand brilliant Fantasia on the most melodious subjects in Weber's Opera. Exceedingly effective. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. On the universal "Sign, Sang! here we are again." The successful composition of the season. Also, Marriott's Mazurka Brillante. Price 3s. Both exceedingly effective.
London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS GALOP. 3s. Marriott's Mazurka Brillante. 3s. Both exceedingly effective. Marriott's Jolly Dogs Polka, 3s. Universally successful. Now in the Quadrilles performed at the Crystal Palace.
London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

BINLEY RICHARDS' SACRED PIECES. Nearer, my God, to Thee. Safe in Thee. 4s. each.
Sweet Hour of Prayer. Rock of Ages. 3s. each.
20 universally popular Sacred Pieces. Price 4s. each.
BRADBURY TURNER'S SACRED PIECES.
Sweet Hour of Prayer. Rock of Ages. 3s. each.
20 universally popular Sacred Pieces. Price 4s. each.
London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

CHRISTMAS CHIMES.—What Bells are Those? By HENRY RUSSELL. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves in G. 4s. ed.; in A Flat, 3s. 6d. Also, arranged by the Composer as a Duet for Soprano and Tenor, 4s. Also, arranged by the Composer as a Duet for Soprano and Contralto, 4s. Also, arranged as a Trio for Soprano, Tenor, and Bass, 4s.—HAMMOND and CO., 13, Hanover-st., W.

GALOPS OF THE SEASON.
ROOSENDEVILLE (Dublin), by PIERRE CLINTON, and GLORIANA (Dublin), by ROSELLEN. Two of the most successful Galops of the season. Solo and Duet, 4s. each; Septet, 5s. Orchestra, 2s.—HAMMOND and CO., 13, Hanover-st., W. Vide p. 36.

WALTZ of the SEASON.—SOLDATEN WALZER, by GUNGL. Solo and Duet, 4s. each; Septet, 5s. Orchestra, 2s. Also, Gungl's Galop, Solo and Duet, 4s. each; Septet, 5s. Orchestra, 2s. Both played by Brinsley Richards, and for upwards of sixty nights at Gye-Musard's Promenade Concerts.—HAMMOND and CO., 13, Hanover-st., W. Publishers of all the New Compositions of Herr Gungl.

THE FIRST EDITION of MARK of all MUSIC PUBLISHERS is not post-free at HALF PRICE in all parts of the Kingdom on receipt of postage-stamps, or P. O. O. Issued weekly gratuitously. Catalogues gratis.
BATH'S Music Warehouse, 76, Regent-street, Regent-circus.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS. Cornets, Saxhorns, Drums, Flutes, Concertinas, &c., to suit all parts of the kingdom, giving universal satisfaction. Butler's Artist Model, the most perfect Cornet ever made, with double-water-key, in case, £7 7s. Price Current Free.—W. MANNERING, Manufacturer, London. Prizes, with drawings, post-free.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by a NEW TELESCOPE for £1, which will also delight the inmates of a man four miles, and like for a church clock on which Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, to the Manufacturer, Mr. Thomas Harris, 244, High Holborn, London, including Lord Lunar, lunar time-keeper, and pocket compass. Optician, 20, Aldermanbury, London. Opera Glasses, Pocket Telescopes Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The Q fan of Magic, Microscopic, and Photo Apparatus, and Slides. Dissolving Apparatus, Lanterns, and Slides for Sale, Hire, or Exchange. Improved magic lantern, a screen and master; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight moveable figures, complete in box, 21s. Catalogues, containing 1,000 subjects, sent for two stamps. Exhibitions fitted up and revolving waterfall, 4, and 5, SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Aldermanbury, London.

MAGIC LANTERN: How to Buy and How to Use it. Sent FREE. Dissolving Views by Hockins and Carpenter's Model. Sent post-free for twelve stamps by S. and H. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Aldermanbury, London. Catalogues, containing 1,000 Subjects, with 16 pictures, in two examples, 2s.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the weather, time, the points of compass, direction of winds, and temperature of the air. Guaranteed for twelve months. Price £1 5s., sent free. Manufactured by HICKS, Mathematical Instrument Maker, 63, Holborn-hill, London.

THE REGISTERED ACHROMATIC and ACHROMATIC TELESCOPES, only to be had of S. and H. SOLOMONS, 39, Aldermanbury-street, Finsbury. Patronised by the Lords Lieutenant of Ireland, Lord Clyde, the Earl of Lindsay, the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, Barons Rothschild, and numerous others of distinction. Opinions from the hospitals and free.

DEAFNESS.—THE SOUND MAGNIFIER (Patented), for the Deaf and Dumb, Invisible. Its features, in the ear-act perceptible, remove singing noises in the head, and restore hearing. Can be had of the Inventor, Mr. Hinton, 4, Argyll-street, Regent-street, Manufacturer, 39, Aldermanbury, Finsbury.

THE BEST CHRISTMAS PRESENT for a YOUNG LADY is an elegant and accurate GOLD WATCH and CHAIN, manufactured by the Inventor, and sold by him, for £5 5s., at his establishment, which is also an assortment of the newest designs in Bracelets, Rings, Brooches, and every description of Jewellery. T. CRAVEN, 2, Cheapside.

LONDON AND RYDER, 19, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street), GOLDSMITHS, SILVERSMITHS, and JEWELLERS, beg to announce that their Stock is now replete with Novelties for the Present Season; every article in the best taste and style, and of sterling quality. A variety of elegant Bijouterie suitable for bridal presents, Christmas gifts, &c., and a large assortment of Diamond Ornaments, Rich Gems, and Pearls in every style. On view—the largest stock of Silver Plate in London, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street).

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS and New-Year's Gifts.—Messrs. ASPREY and CO., 165, New Bond-street, and Ormolu Halls for the Benefit, Toilette, and Writing-table; a large assortment always on view and for SALE.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH - BOXES and PORTMANTEAUS, fitted complete, of rosewood, the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope-case, Blotting-Book-case, Writing-desk, or Reading-desk, 21 Pounds.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING-BAGS, fitted with silver or steel fittings, in every variety. Certain Bags, Bathing, Naval Cases, Tiger Cases, and Ladies' Dressing-bags. 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, with handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in the newest designs, with Gilt Clasps, Corners, and Lock and Key. Best and cheapest extant. 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art, without any charge when required to mono-relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', Piccadilly.

A VISITING-CARD PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, with Arms, Crest, or Initial Plate printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

PARKINS and GOTTO'S LIST of ORDERED ITEMS.
Dressing Cases,
Dressing-bags,
Writing Cases,
Work Boxes and Tables,
Envelope Cases,
Work Boxes and Baskets,
Envelope Cases, Blotting Books,
Inkstands, Desks,
Card Trays and Cases,
Bibles, Prayer-books, and Church Services,
Albums,
Gilt and Electro-plated Goods,
Purses, Cigar Cases,
Pocket-books, &c.
Papier Mâché Trays,
Indoor Games, all kinds,
and an endless variety of other useful and fancy articles.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, Oxford-street, London, W.

Nice Large Show-rooms, No. 27, and 30, Oxford-street, London, W.

GODALL'S PLAYING-CARDS. New Patterns and Colours for the present season.
To be had of all Booksellers and Stationers.

GOODALL'S CHRISTMAS STATIONERY, in endless variety and at all prices. New goods without the Manufactory, Caxton Town, London, N.W.

CHANGE for a SOVEREIGN.
A New and Instructive Card Game.
Is. 6d. and 2s. 6d. each, of all Booksellers.
Sold by all Stationers and Fancy Repositories.
Wholesale—GOODALL and SON, Newgate-street, London.

NOTICE.—Professor BROWNE respectfully informs Ladies and Gentlemen, that, in respect of the Rise of Real-drawn, Persian, Swiss, and Ornamental Hair of every description, he has made large purchases, at his well-known Establishment, 47, Fore-street, City. Material and workmanship guaranteed unsurpassed by any House in the Metropolis. Wholesale and retail.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of the Metropolis, begs to inform the Ladies of England that she has returned to London, and is now ready to execute any orders for the HAIR and EYES in the most brilliant style, with other perfect likenesses. Miss TALBOT, 3, Princes-street, Hanover-square, Private Entrance, Brook-street.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY, Messrs. LEWIN and SIMSON HOWELL and SONS, 36, Soho-square, London, W., Surgeon-Dentists (established 1760). These teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any other system of dentistry. They are efficient, whether for one tooth or a complete set. The Dairy situations at 15, Whitechapel, Hull; 19, Norfolk-street, Sheffield; 10, Bridge-street, Hull; and 31, St. Nicholas-st., Scarboro'. No connection with anyone of the same name.

LOVE AMONG THE ROSES.
PIERSSE and LUBIN,
Perfumers and Flower Growers,
New Bond-street, London.

OPOPONAX.—PIERSSE and LUBIN'S NEW PERFUME.—Opoponax is a native flower of Mexico, of a fragrance, like the Jessamine of Florence, in New Bond-street.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really promotes the growth of whiskers, moustaches, eyebrows, and hair. Price 3s. 6d. per bottle. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers. Depôt, 2, Princes-street, Hanover-square, W.

OLDRIDGE'S BALM of COLUMBIA. The best preparation for the hair. Is. and 2s. per Bottle.
The best soap for the complexion and beautifier for the hair. Is. Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

GREY HAIR RESTORED to its ORIGINAL COLOUR and BEAUTY, without dye, by PROFESSOR HUNTER'S ORIGINAL PATENT MIXTURE. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers. They require no preparation, are always ready for use, and cannot get out of order. Brushes, 10s. and 15s.; Combs, from 4s. to 8s. Grey Hair or Whiskers prevented by PROFESSOR HUNTER'S ORIGINAL PATENT MIXTURE. Sold by all Perfumers and Chemists. Depôt, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W. 10 and 15, Gray-st. W.C.

TWIN ODOURS.—PIERSSE and LUBIN'S Twin Perfumes are Bella, Very pretty. 2s. Quadruple Odour, Four Scents in one Bottle, 10s. 6d., for the flowing-room.—A New Bond-street.

LLLICHAPP'S SEALSKIN CLOAKS.
LLLICHAPP'S ASTRACAN JACKETS.
LLLICHAPP'S VELVET MANTLES.
LLLICHAPP'S CARRIAGE WRAPPERS.
LLLICHAPP'S FUR COATS.
LLLICHAPP'S VESTS for HUNTING.
LLLICHAPP'S DRIVING GLOVES.
LLLICHAPP.—SKINS DRESSED.
LLLICHAPP.—SKINS MOUNTED.
LLLICHAPP, Furrier by Appointment to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 76, Piccadilly, Regent-circus.

SHETLAND OPERA MANTLES, By This Novelty in every Colour, large size, very warm, weighs only one ounce. 21s.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

NEW FRENCH FANCY SILKS, from 2½ Guineas. Patterns and Sketches sent to match any Costume. Patterns forwarded free.
CHANT and CARR, 58, 59, 60, 61, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

REAL SEALSKIN JACKETS, 5½ gns. each. Velvet Mantles, trimmed with Fur or Swansdown, 2½ Guineas. Velveteen Costumes, Velvet Jackets.
Patterns of Material, with Illustrations, forwarded free.
CHANT and CARR,
58, 59, 60, 61, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

BEST SEASONED FURS at moderate prices, A Set of the Best Sable, 7 guineas.
Ermine, Sable, Chinchilla, and Squirrel.
All other kinds in proportion.
CHANT and CARR,
58, 59, 60, 61, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADE-UP SKIRTS, FANCY DRESSES, SUITS, &c., in every possible variety of New Material. Best Aberdeen Linsey and the New Stripe Flannel, 1s. 6d. per yard. Patterns forwarded free.
CHANT and CARR,
58, 59, 60, 61, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
By appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess Royal,
117, 119, and 120, Oxford-street, London, W.,
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Driving Cloaks, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, Scarfs, Hosiery, Gloves, Flannels, Blankets, Woollens, for Ladies' Dressing and Gents' Shooting Jackets.
Patterns forwarded free.

G. POLAND AND SON, 22, FITZROY-STREET, and 6, CHARLOTTE-STREET, Fitzroy-square, Manufacturers of Cabinet Furniture, Bedding, Upholstery, Carpets, Curtains, Bronzes, Clocks, Lamps, Glass, China, Plate, Electro-plate, Cutlery, Turnery, Brushes, Mats, Matting, &c. All Furniture and all the establishment as Natural Colour are warranted free from Paint, Stain, &c.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY CLOCK and WATCH PACKING JACKETS, and Gentlemen's OVERCOATS. Patterns post-free.
J. and T. MEREDITH, 71, Mansion-house-street, London.

SILK BEPPS (L'Epaugle de Roubaix) at 2s. 6d., 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., and 4s. 6d., with the richness of Silk, and wearing equally well. Patterns post-free.
HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

FRENCH MERINOS in all the Brilliant Colours of the Season, 1s. 6d. per yard, wide width and being essential to the dyeing of bright and durable colours, the Trade supplied. Patterns post-free.
HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

REAL ABERDEEN WINSEYS.—The Cheapest and Best Article for Ladies' and Children's Dresses at the present season. Patterns post-free. Wide width, nearly 1s. 6d. the yard. A thousand pieces to select from. Patterns post-free.
HARVEY and CO., LAMBETH HOUSE, Westminster Bridge, S.

JOHN and JAMES SEWELL and SON, GLOUCESTER HOUSE, LUDGATE-HILL, Silks, patterns free, of rich and useful fabrics for mantles, Marseilles, Shawls, Dresses, Linens, Flannels, Blankets.

NEW SILKS, NEW PATTERNS FREE. New Dress Goods, Patterns free.
New Costumes, Patterns free.
New useful Gloves, from 2s 9c.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
A large assortment of New Patterns, 1s. 6d. to 14 yards.
SOUTH MIMMS and CO., Ludgate-hill.

WINTER DRESSES.
Patterns free. Wide Widths and New Goods.
Double-wood Serges, Plain and Striped Linseys.
SOUTH MIMMS and CO., Ludgate-hill.

WINTER JACKETS, Real Sealskin, Black Velvet, Velveteen, and Cloth.
Black Gros Velours, Gros Astracan, and Black Cloth.
Patterns free. SOUTH MIMMS and CO., Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen Sheetings, Linen Diapers, Linen Damasks, Linen Drills.
Irish and Scotch Linen Sheets, Shirting, and Shirts.

REAL SEALSKIN JACKETS, and other Choice Furs,
Of the Best Quality,
at POPE and PLANTER'S, 4, Warwick-place, Pall-mall.

SILKS, MANTLES, SHAWLS, and DRESSES.—JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill, have the honour to invite the inspection of Ladies to their Patterns post-free.
Velvet Jackets, lined throughout with Silk and quilted, 2 guineas.
French and Paisley Wove Long and Square Shawls, 2 guineas.
Black Silks, 1s. 6d. to 14s. per yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

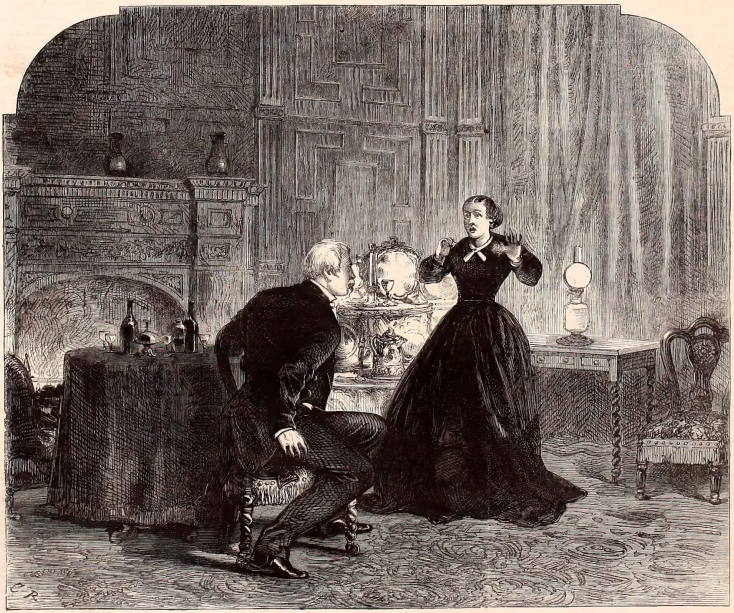
STAYS, Crinolines, Baby-Linen, Juvenile and Ladies' General Outfitting Warehouse, Wholesale and Retail.—Prices for Summer and for the above Establishment Wedding and Baby Outfits Manufactured to Order.
MADAME ROUSSEL, 214, Regent-street, Quebec-street.

CHOLERA.—DIXON and CALVERT'S DISINFECTING FLUID is the best preventive and disinfectant. ADMIRALTY, BOARD ordered to warn by all. As a perfect deodorizer, it is unequalled. Sold by all Chemists. Depôt, 1, Great Marlborough-street, Regent-street, W.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. L. DAVIS, 4, Great-castle-st., Baker-st., attends Ladies and Gentlemen personally to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, an immediate Cash Remittance is made. Ladies waited upon at the utmost value by each female attendant. Established 1760.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. ISAACS, 84, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street. Parcels sent the utmost value by each female attendant. Established 1760.

London: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1865.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

Nos. 1348, 1349.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1865. THREE SHEETS AND COLOURED SUPPLEMENT | 1s.

CHRISTMAS.

AWAY with politics! They have had their season, and will have it again quite soon enough. But this is Christmas-time, when men think, not of their differences, but of their points of concord, and when all the families of Christendom do homage, in such fashion as may best suit their sympathies and their means, to their household divinities, Christmas! Full to the brim as we are with home associations, we personify it as "Old Father Christmas!" Who does not greet him with hearty welcome, revisit us in what guise he will! Hale, genial, sparkling, laughing, but withal tender-hearted, his approach causes a flutter of our affections; his presence suffuses gladness; his departure leaves behind it bright and soothing recollections. He is the favourite of all ages. Childhood rapturously clasps its tiny hands before him. Youth hails him with outbursts of merriment in chorus to some softer melody of love. Manhood lays aside its cares, and quarrels, and daily toils, and smilingly shakes hands with him. Age delights to gossip with him over the "days of auld lang syne," and to snatch a few hours of rejuvenescence from among the gifts which he brings with him. The family hearth glows with even unwonted brightness when he enters, and, while he stays, there is a sweet communing of hearts in the joyous festivities celebrated in his honour. Christmas is close at hand once more. We bid him "all hail!"

There is something in the very bleakness of the season which contributes to give intensity to the emotions which Christmas awakens. The contrast between the deep sleep of Nature out of doors and the bounding life of family sympathy and love within heightens the consciousness of bliss; and, just as the holly and the mistletoe fairly represent the prickly troubles and the tender joys of life, so does the severity of winter combine with the gentle charms of the household festival, thereby enhancing their witchery of attraction. It is well that the whole circle of charities should occasionally meet and kiss each other into fresh warmth; and even if they are impelled to it by external cheerlessness, the result of their closer intercommunion is so beneficial that for the sake of it we not only forgive but bless the harsh energy which drives them to their common trysting-place. Blithesome spirits are made all the more blithesome when hedged round, as it were, with the sternness of winter, and the fire in the heart as well as on the hearth burns all the brighter when there is frost outside. Pleasures as well as pains are increased by the juxtaposition of their opposites, and it has ever seemed to us a happy circumstance that our great annual family festival should occur in the dreariest of our seasons—so true it is that, as Tom Moore sings,

SCENE FROM "HENRY DUNBAR," AT THE OLYMPIC THEATRE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

> Darkness shows us worlds of light
> We never see by day.

Fully satisfied that there is virtue in mirth, so long, at least, as it is not mistaken for happiness, most of our readers, no doubt, will gratefully accept the invitation of "Old Father Christmas" to partake of the festivities around them and be merry. Let them forget for a while, if it be possible, the losses and crosses of the year just drawing to a close; or, if unbidden they will come to mind, let the recollection of them only intensify the desire for the blessings that remain. The household festival asks of us, during its continuance, that all that there is of sunshine in our lot should be reflected from our hearts, and warm into new life the affections of those who are about us. Again, for these day's space and least, we should be children — trustful, hopeful, self-abandoned, rollicksome. So let us lock up our cares in the most out-of-the-way closet of our souls and forget their existence, and let us set to it that our tongues be swept and tidied in such manner as may enable us to give a meet and appreciative reception to the joys of the season. The old faces round the festive board—and may they all be there!—with perhaps some few ones, dear for others' sakes as well as for their own; the old bill of fare, set off with the old garnish; the old interchanges of family love; the old games, as full as ever of innocent fun; may our readers have them all in their hearts' content! And when the festivities, and the amenities, and gaieties, and gushes of renovated life have subsided, may they return to their round of duties freshened by the recreation, even as a close, damp chamber is freshened by a sunny look the curtains, throwing open the window, and letting in the sunshine and the breeze!

But Christmas has also its higher order of duty to be done and pleasure to be enjoyed. A time for reflection, for we think, de—tend to awaken in those who observe them the spirit of beneficence; for all of them enforce the sacred exhortation, "Freely ye have received, freely give." The remark is emphatically true of Christmas-tide. It is the season of quickest compassion for the needy and the homeless. It has always, and rightly, been associated with the exercise of liberality. It would not be what it is apart from its charities. Open-handedness on the part of those who have means towards those who have them not is naturally, almost of necessity, associated with open-heartedness towards all. The year, on the whole, has been a prosperous one; but it should not be lost sight of that the recent harvest have reaped the scanty by the greater cost of provisions under peculiar disadvantage. As, for the most part, the bountifully-disposed have richer resources at their command, so the occasion for bountiful practice is more urgent than ever. We cannot entertain even a doubt that sense of obligation will rise with the opportunity for its discharge; and that along with the customary wish that each of our neighbours may enjoy "a merry Christmas," there will be given to those who most need it the means of making it such.

SCENE FROM "HENRY DUNBAR," AT THE OLYMPIC THEATRE.

The performance, at the Olympic Theatre, of Mr. Tom Taylor's play of "Henry Dunbar," which is, of course, a dramatic adaptation of Miss Braddon's novel of that name, has already been noticed; but the following scene, which we illustrate from a sketch by our artist, requires a word of explanation. Joseph Wilmot, having murdered Mr. Henry Dunbar, a wealthy Real India merchant, and committed an absence of many years in Calcutta, has assumed the name of his victim, and usurped his fortune, which it has made in general, that the deed body found where the murder was perpetrated was that of Joseph Wilmot himself. Margaret Wilmot, sharing this belief, has been making the most strenuous efforts to discover and pursue the supposed murderer of her lost father; till, in the present scene, she has an interview with the person whom she at last recognises him with a shriek of amazement and horror at the dreadful truth which suddenly breaks upon her—that the man for whose fate she had sought to avenge, the guilty author of that deed which she had striven to expiate and punish. The part of Margaret is notably performed by Miss Kate Terry; while Mr. H. Neville deserves almost equal praise for his acting in the character of Wilmot.

Sir Henry Storks left Southampton on Monday for Jamaica.

There is a controversy as to how Mr. R. D. Milnes's new title, Lord Houghton, is to be pronounced—whether as Houghton, Hoffton, Huffton, Hatton, or Howton. Some amusing lines in the last number of Notes and Queries, are added by Lord Houghton himself, which will settle the matter for the last-named school.

The New York Times states that a second part of Captain Hall's report on his search for tuller information about Sir John Franklin's fate is expected to have been received. The whole, with other documents, is to have been visited, the remains of a large number of their crews sent, frozen and mutilated, and the valuables left in the ships scattered about with Esquimaux. They encourage Captain Hall to believe that some of the men may still be living.

Besides the gold medals awarded by the Royal Academy of Arts, announced in this Journal last week, two medals were also awarded as follow:—To James Rolfe, for the best painting from the life in chiaroscuro, the subject being "Venus Rising from the Sea;" and to Mr. Ernest Willis Crewe, for the best drawing from the life; the drawing from the life; to Percival Ball, the second medal for a model from the life; to Charles Bennett, the second medal for an architectural drawing; to Theodore Blake Wirgman, for the best drawing from the antique; to Vivian Crewe, for the next best drawing from the antique; to Edward Lovett, for the next best drawing from the antique; to Horace Mountford, for the best model from the antique; to G. Unwerth, for the next best model from the antique.

The members of the Metropolitan Board of Works, headed by Sir John Thwaites, the chairman, paid a visit last Saturday to the next on the Plaistow Marshes where the River Lea passes through the Abbey Mills, for the purpose of laying the foundation-stone of the Abbey Mills pumping station—a building which is to rival the works at Crossness, and in which will be the means of raising the sewage of the low level of London to the great high and middle level sewers. Mr. Bazalgette, the engineer, read a statement, which was engrossed for insertion in the stone, showing that the sewer of which this was the month would drain 78 square miles, and would have to raise about 5,000,000 cubic feet of sewage a day and that the engine power to be employed for the purpose would be of the united of 11,000 cubic feet per minute, so that all storm would be safely carried off. Mr. Freeman then laid the stone. The works are being carried out under Mr. Edmund Cooper, the resident engineer.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PARIS, Thursday, Dec. 21.

The Imperial Court is at length installed in the Tuileries again—the Emperor, Empress, and Prince Imperial having arrived at Paris from Compiègne on the afternoon of Saturday last. The King and Queen of Portugal, who have returned to Paris from England and taken up their old quarters in the Pavillon Marsan, dined on Sunday with the Emperor and Empress. Prince Napoleon and Princess Clotilde arrived at the Palais Royal on Monday.

The long-talked-of marriage between the Duke de Mouchy and Princess Anna Murat was solemnised in the Chapel of the Tuileries on Monday at noon. The bride came, accompanied by her father, in one of the Imperial state carriages, with four horses. Among the distinguished personages present were, of course, the Emperor, the Empress, and the Prince Imperial; also the Prince and Princess of Hohenzollern, Prussian Ambassador and Princess Metternich, and Princes Murat, and Princess Christine Bonaparte. All the officers of the Emperor's household and the Ladies of the Imperial Court, together with the principal members of the suites of the above-named high personages, were also present at the ceremony. The archbishop of Paris pronounced the nuptial benediction, which he followed by a brief exhortation to the newly-married pair, after which a grand musical Mass was performed. The wedding breakfast was given at the Palais Royal, and, early in the afternoon, the Duke and his bride were en route to Mouchy-le-Castel, the Duke's country seat.

The stories in the Boulevards—some amusing and those devoted to the sale of "articles de Paris"—are just now undergoing a complete transformation, putting on their handsomest looks in anticipation of the approaching new year. "Etrennes pour 1861" meets one's eye at every step.

On Saturday last died in Paris an ex-Minister of the Republic of 1848, Alexandre Dixio, brother of General Dixio, Garibaldi's friend, and a prominent figure in the revolutionary agitation for Italian freedom. Though the deceased had, to speak, grown up in politics, and had for a long period held his talents and his energies to commercial and financial pursuits, he was still a firm adherent to the advanced party of the Prince Napoleon, to show that he does not hesitate to identify himself with the party in opposition. The latest of the many rallies with the Emperor is not the accomplished fact it was thought to be, followed the body of his late friend to the grave as the last act in the festivities. On the 24th inst., the Princess Anna Murat, was being solemnised at the Tuileries in the presence of all the other members of the Imperial family. Among the remaining mourners at the Dixio funeral were General Dixio; M. Emile Ollivier, the republican deputy; Count Jules Sandeau, the distinguished author; John Lemoine, of the Débats; Garnier-Pagès, formerly member of the provisional Government; Eugène Pelletan, one of the Liberal Opposition in the Corps Législatif; Rouher, and Havin, the latter a leading financial and commercial interests, such as the Credit Mobilier of Paris, with which the deceased was in intimate connection.

SPAIN.

The Queen made her entry into Madrid on Thursday week, and was received by the Cortes at Atocha. She was cheered, and perfect order prevailed. The Council of State has approved the report of the commission condemning the Bishops who protested against the sovereignties of Italy.

PORTUGAL.

THE FUNERAL OF KING LEOPOLD.

The funeral obsequies of the King were celebrated on Saturday last, the body being removed from Brussels to Laeken, where it was interred in the royal vault.

The façade of the palace was draped with black tapestry, studded with golden bees. The interior was hung with black cloth, with white cords.

At 10.30 a.m. the Duke of Brabant entered the room where the body of the deceased King had been exposed. The King and Queen of Portugal, and followed by the Count of Flanders and the Prince of Wales (King of Portugal and Prince of Wales in uniform of Field Marshal), the Crown Prince of Prussia and the Archduke Joseph of Austria, Duke of Modena, the Prince Arthur, and the Duke de Nemours. After the Royal Princes came the Envoys Extraordinary from the different Courts of Europe, including Lords Grey and Derby.

At eleven o'clock precisely the funeral cortège started. The hearse, drawn by eight horses caparisoned, is followed by a very imposing appearance. Crowds, silent and collected, thronged the streets, windows, and roofs of the houses. Every shop and office in Brussels were closed.

The cortège reached the cathedral at 2.30 p.m. The Duke of Brabant, with the King of Portugal on his right and the Prince of Wales on his left, took his place in the chair of state prepared for them, in front of the sarcophagus, followed by the other Princes and representatives of foreign Powers.

The funeral service having been performed, the coffin was lowered into the family vault, and placed to the right of the Queen of the deceased monarch.

THE INSTALLATION OF KING LEOPOLD II.

On Sunday King Leopold II. took the oath to the Constitution before both Houses of the Belgian Legislature.

Upon leaving the palace at Laeken the Queen, in deep mourning, preceded the King in a carriage drawn by six horses. The King followed a few minutes afterwards. His Majesty received the congratulations of the Diplomatic corps, and of whom are met with an enthusiastic reception.

His Majesty then made a speech, in which he stated that Belgium, as well as himself, had lost a father. He was moved by the homage of the nation and the Legislature, and by the Royal Princes, and thanked them in his own name and in the name of his country. His Majesty continued:—

I shall religiously follow the example and the precepts of my father, and will never forget the duties imposed upon me by this precious inheritance. I will be a Belgian King from my heart and soul. I love those great institutions which have made us a free people, and which are the best safeguard of the throne. My constitutional position keeps me aloof from the conflict of opinions, leaving the country to decide between them. I desire to give those who devote themselves to the crowning of the national edifice the assurance of my most complete impartiality. I am sure of finding in them the support of foreign Powers.

His Majesty's speech was received with great enthusiasm.

The Queen also presented her son to the Chambers, and their Majesties took their departure amid shouts of "Vive le Roi et la Reine!" "Vive la Comte de Flandre!"

The presentation of the addresses of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies to the young King took place in the evening. His Majesty, in his reply, declared his attachment to Constitutional principles.

The city was adorned with flags, the houses being hung with decorations. A general illumination took place in the evening.

At noon on Monday a Te Deum was sung in the church of St. Gudule, Brussels, at which his Majesty, the Count of Flanders, and the foreign Princes were present.

[Illustrations of the lying in state and funeral of King Leopold I., and of the inauguration of King Leopold II., from sketches by our Special Artists, will appear in this Journal.]

ITALY.

On Tuesday, in the Chamber of Deputies, a debate took place upon the Provisional Budget. Some members demanded that the decree according to which the National Bank would transact business for the State treasury should be discussed separately from the bill for the Provisional Budget, which they approved. The Minister of Finance opposed this proposition. The Chamber, however, finally approved, by 197 votes against 1, an order of the day inviting the Minister not to give execution to the decree above mentioned without the sanction of Parliament.

Signor Chiaves has accepted the portfolio of the Interior, hitherto temporarily held by Signor Rattazzi, who remains the ministry of Public Instruction.

AUSTRIA.

A Vienna telegram says that a supplementary convention to the treaty of Commerce has been concluded between Austria and Prussia, relating to the garrison arrangements at Bendsburg.

Another piece of news from Vienna is that the articles of the treaty of commerce between England and Austria were signed on Saturday last.

GREECE.

The proposal of the Ministry that the Chamber should be prorogued has been rejected by the Assembly by 84 to 70 votes. The Ministry resigned, and a new Cabinet has been formed, composed as follows:—Rodios, President of the Council and Minister of Justice; Kalergis, Minister of Interior; Scalzas, Minister of War; Sollopoulos, Minister of Finance; Rudinis, Minister of Marine; Balsaopulos, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Diamantidis, Minister of Public Worship.

UNITED STATES.

The first session of the thirty-ninth Congress opened on the 4th inst. We gave in a great part of our Supplement last week an outline of President Johnson's Message to Congress. The President says that the reconstruction of the Union must be effected by the North's allowing past disorders to sink into oblivion, and by the South's adopting the three Constitutional amendments already offered for ever. Persons charged with treason should be fairly tried by a civil court, and should be publicly notified that no State can secede from the Union. It is proposed to reduce the army to a peace establishment of 50,000 men, with the power to increase numbers may in case of need, be raised to 82,000 men. The army estimates have been reduced from 516,000,000 dollars to 33,000,000 dollars. The currency should be reduced, and a plan should be devised to pay off the national debt within thirty years. The President's aim will be to promote peace and to live on friendly relations; and he believes them to be actuated by the same disposition. A sincere desire for peace induced the President to suggest that the question between the United States and England respecting the outfit and depredations of Confederate cruisers should be referred to arbitration; but England rejected that offer, and proposed a commission to settle claims "excluding those arising from premature recognition. That proposal had been declined as very unsatisfactory. The claims had not been brought forward by the United States with the primary object of obtaining compensation, but with the purpose of establishing important principles of international law. The President does not advise any violent attempt at redress by legislation; and the future amity of the two countries must rest on the basis of mutual justice. The United States Government had abstained from interfering with forms of Government in Europe, 'and will regard it as the duty of all Governments to abstain from any attempt to change the American people as it were to defend Republicanism against foreign interference.' The correspondence with France will at the proper time be laid before Congress.

The Secretary of the Treasury's report recommends contraction of the currency, and provision for the reduction of the debt. There will be a deficiency of 112,000,000 dollars for the financial year ending in June next; and that sum must be provided by taxes in the financial year ending in June, 1867, there will be an estimated surplus of 11,000,000 dollars.

None of the Southern members had been admitted to take their seats in Congress. A joint committee of the Senate and House of Representatives was expected to be appointed to report whether any of the rebellious States were entitled to representation in Congress.

The Georgia and Alabama Legislatures had adopted the Constitutional amendment abolishing slavery, and the Louisiana Legislature had declared slavery for ever abolished.

Mr. Brayton Colfax, of Indiana, has been elected Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The Fenian President at New York has got to loggerheads with his sham senate.

THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

At the Cape, the Basuto war continues, and is likely to last. Another engagement took place between them on Oct. 25, resulting in the death of forty Basutos and the capture of three cattle and several thousand sheep and horses. After the engagement the Free State and the Transvaal Boers quarrelled about the booty captured. The Transvaalers left the allied camp and returned to their homes on Oct. 30. Eleven of the Basuto chiefs had been taken prisoners at Drakensberg, and were gone to the Free State, taking with them their horses and accoutrements. The deserters met with a hearty reception from the people of Harrismith.

The Basutos had published a manifesto charging the Boers with plundering their property, and with cruelty to their women, and declaring that the Basuto army had not been in any way imperilled; also charging the Boers with barbarity to their wives and children. Another Basuto raid on British territory was alleged to have been made.

INDIA.

By the peace recently concluded with Bhootan, a subsidy of 25,000 rupees is to be paid annually to the Bhootean, and will be increased to 50,000 rupees when the treaty shall be faithful to the treaty.

A conspiracy has been detected at Cabul, in consequence of which the Governor has been imprisoned.

The extension of the Indian Peninsula Railway to Bubnapore was opened on Nov. 29.

The joint financial committee of the Swedish Parliament have agreed by nine to six votes to propose that the Franco-Swedish treaty of commerce should be rejected.

We have advices from Rio de Janeiro to Nov. 25. No disposition of the Emperor to make warlike demonstrations. Peace between Paraguayans, and the Emperor had returned to the capital.

St. Paul's Church, Bolton, was consecrated on Saturday, by the Bishop of Manchester. It affords accommodation for 1119 persons, 702 seats being appropriated, and the rest free for ever.

The Times states that the good offices of England and France have been accepted by the Government of Mexico, and that, unless child shrewd prove more implacable than Spain herself, the differences of modern war will be settled in the most friendly manner.

The Swiss want another revision of their Constitution. Large meetings have been held in the canton of Berne and in the Grisons, at which resolutions were passed in favour of calling together the Federal Assembly for the purpose of revising the Constitution.

The following is the list of appointments in the Church which have been made:—Rectories: Rev. T. M. Carr to Barningham, Kent; Rev. W. J. Lovett to Ellen Brant, Bucks; Rev. C. T. Shipman, Rector of Sudeley, Cumberland, to Nether Denton. Vicarages: Rev. J. F. Gardo, to Patrick-Isle of Man; Rev. S. E. Gregory, Vicar of Market Basin, to Bungh-on-Baine. Incumbencies: Rev. F. Brown, to Barnard Castle; Rev. R. Shaw Clow to Kirkby-Ravensworth; Rev. A. Connell, to St. Mark, Gorton; Rev. T. Jenkins, Curate of Landeragh, to St. Martin's, Caerphilly; Rev. F. J. C. Morse to the Perpetual Curacy of Ellel, Lancashire; Rev. J. Pearson, to Christ Church, Bolton; Rev. R. Tudor to Penmynydd, Denbs; Rev. G. S. Whitbeck to Christ Church, Chelsea. Perpetual Curacies: Rev. W. C. de Lacy, Curate of St. Thomas, Pendleton, to Etherley, Durham; Rev. R. Cromwell to Hawkshead, Lancashire; Rev. F. Keeling to Asbiston, Northants. Curacies: Rev. J. L. Hulbert to St. Anne's, Limehouse; Rev. T. W. Richardson to the parish church, Sephton, near Liverpool; Rev. F. Shaw to Staunton Long, Salop. Rev. A. Jones to be Chaplain of Westminster Hospital; Rev. T. R. Dickinson to be Sunday Evening Lecturer of St. James, Aldgate, London, and one of the Preachers of the National Society.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

ILLUSTRATED GIFT-BOOKS.

Pictures of Society, Grave and Gay, from the Pencils of Celebrated Artists and the Pens of Popular Authors. (Sampson Low, Son and Marston.) Beneath a cover gay as a spring garland, the publishers have presented the buying public with a collection of pictures, poems, and prose, the chief part of which has gladdened the hearts of guests at former banquet, and is now rounded up afresh and strengthened with a few piquant additions, intended to give a taste of novelty. The practice is becoming somewhat too common among publishers of serving up again the good things from a dinner at which the public have already feasted to repletion. It rests with the public to decide whether or not enjoying their fare ad. they will take it with a pinch of pickles. In this volume there is much that is good, and much that re-minds one of the rumbly pantyboys of the old comedies.

Military Illustrations. A Collection of Drawings on Wood. (Alexander Gray.) It would be a great pity to suppose that this volume contains all that the public pencil of Mr. Millais has been doing in the way of artistic research. Such a book is employed on many a work that has no representative here; and yet this publication is pretty full of work that he has done on the way of wood-drawing. The extremely sketchy way in which some of the subjects are treated, while it disfigures the artist's drawing, does not conceal his intention; and it is impossible to look through the volume without being struck by the power and daring originality displayed. Nobody, we think, but Mr. Millais would have ventured to have touched the sea as he has represented it in No. 70, illustrative of Tennyson's lines,

Many an evening by the waters did we watch the stately ships,
And our spirits rush'd together at the touching of the lips.

Nobody has ever done the feeling of Moses as Mr. Millais has been done it, though it has been done as often ; and in No. 72, entitled "Love" (from "The Poets of the Nineteenth Century"), he has produced both a poem and a picture. As the overpowering sense of love seems deep and exhaustless, this is a remarkable work.

Mrs. Caudle's Curtain Lectures. (Bradbury, Agnew, and Co.) Who has not heard of Mrs. Caudle and the long-suffering Job, her husband? She is as much a British institution as Mrs. Partington, Punch, and even Punch himself. Our elder readers will remember how eagerly Mrs. Caudle's weekly lecture was looked for in the forthcoming number of Punch, and how, for the moment, it was the property belonging to the Times or even the London Gazette. Books might have fallen, but Mrs. Caudle lit none the less on her feet. Jerrold and Robinson were only eager to know what Mrs. Caudle had to say to her husband before penning a second word. It is the fate of both husbands and British wives (and we imagine the race is far from becoming extinct) "The Caudle Lectures" will be welcomed by many, and the publishers have done good service in bringing out this compact edition, with Mr. Charles Keene's effective and characteristic illustrations. The coloured frontispiece, representing Mr. Caudle returning home late at night, is the best picture of Mrs. Caudle on the window-blind, is worth all the price of the book.

Gems of Literature, Elegant, Rare, and Suggestive. Illustrated. Pen and Pencil Pictures from the Poets. (Ibidem.) W. H. Davies. It is not a new thing for the modern Athens to compete with the modern Florence in the matter of Christmas books. The example was placed by the press of Auld Reekie have little of the merit that distinguished the Christmas volumes of Messrs. Blackie and Sons a few years ago. The first of the volumes before us is adorned with numerous engravings on wood, some of which are extremely artistic, over its pages. The second is also profusely illustrated with some very pretty designs. The former original bearing are two by Mr. Hugh Cameron.

The number of books illustrated by photography is increasing every year; and that great artist the sun must have enough to do to supply the numerous mouths to accomplish all the work that is brought to him. He does the work with unerring accuracy and with great delicacy; it is the fault of his human coadjutor. We have before us the Record Adopt of Lincoln, by Mr. Photographic Illustrations, Ancient and Gothic; and the Record Abbeys of the Border, with photographic illustrations by William Jeffrey. Archibald Scott, 37, Bernard-street.) There little volumes, unpretending as they are, contain some excellent photographs, but on too small a scale to do justice to their subjects. Jedburgh Abbey, for instance, is much too fine an old pile to be put down on a scale of a one or two inches; and the other views are so cramped in the small space allotted to them that the Oliver Twist, we feel impelled to cry out "for more." Memoirs: A Tale of Love and Life, with photographic illustrations by Thomas Annan (Bennett), gives more substantial satisfaction. It is engraved in Bennett, but the pictures are good, and the story is the grandeur of the subjects. There are also some notable omissions. The line of coast that has the grey walls of Tantallon Castle and the Auldborough Castle hanging over the sea, loses none of its picturesqueness by the beautiful scenery of Tynemouth Priory and Northumberland Castle, both mentioned in "Marmion," and both absent from the present volume.—Round Rydye, Antiquities, Ancient and Modern, Pictorial, as connected with Police Buildings in Belgium. Illustrated with photographic views by Mendel and Hemley. (Bennett.) This is a work of great interest and beauty. The photographs themselves are startling in their reality, having all the vividness of nature.

The Birthday Book. By James Greenwood; with thirty-six illustrations, drawn on wood, by Ernest Griset, from his original designs. (Ward, Lock, and Co.) Ten and twenty years ago, and even later in pleasant extravagance; writing and illustration are nearly knit together as of humour make another and a more delightful book, and of all the books designed to satisfy the appetites of marvel-loving childhood "The Birthday Book" must be placed in the front rank of the appreciated. The subventures are figuratively and the engravings literally coloured to a height which would, perhaps, exceed the expectations of a Munchausen and of a Red Indian on the war-trail.

Notes and Tunes, and How They are Collected. Edited by T. Hood. (Greenhedge and Co.) A nice-looking little volume, containing the stories, connected or disconnected, after the fashion of the tales in the Christmas number of Punch, and the third of the series that has been able to do with the stories. The volume is clad in blue and gilt, which is talking of much preachest in appearance, and is adorned with the "nigger" a blue coat and brass buttons is a favourite costume for a tale. The six stories are by various hands—Mr. Hood, Mr. Sambrook, J. Prowse, T. Hood, T. W. Robertson, W. S. Gilbert, and Clement W. Scott, who, it may be recollected, last year contributed the amusing efforts "A Bunch of Keys," and who, it is gratifying to learn from the preface to their appearance, found their key to success in search for general use, have swapped "discord and a darker shade," and have been encouraged to "come more miles their bow to an indolent public." There are to be found in the second volume examples of tragedy, whereof the spirit cannot be described as "above proof."

The Illustrated Book of Nursery Rhymes. (Ward, Lock, and Co.) Illustrations by Keely Halswelle; Sacred from Egypt, by A. L. O. E. Fairy Know-a-Bit, by Mrs. Molesworth. Illustrated by Walter Crane. Novelty—if, indeed, it be a novelty—about Messrs. Nelsons' book of nursery rhymes, is that the rhymes are accompanied by illustrations (it may strike some objectors) inappropriate music. "In every instance in which it was necessary," the publisher tells us, "alterations have been retained; in some instances, well known and favourite melodies have been adopted, while several original airs have been added, composed in that spirit of simplicity which, from time immemorial, has given their charm to the songs of the nursery. They are not in every parts, so that, while the voice is required for the melody, the second part may be taken by mamma or nurse, which in these days, when the pianoforte is considered necessary, should prove not to be found a difficult task." At any rate, it is a very desirable little book. "Sacred from Egypt" has two hundred pages, and contains a sketch of the life of Moses wrapped up in a tale. Fairy Know-a-Bit appears suddenly to a spoilt, sulky, insolent boy, who thinks he can do everything without the help of "dirty" people, such as honest workmen are wont to own (although the believers in the Turkish bath will tell you that those who perspire freely over the plough, the sickle, the forge, &c., even if they do not use water and do not change their clothes, are really cleaner than the fastidious lady who avoids perspiration), convicts him of ignorance, and enlightens his mind with scraps of knowledge gleaned from the "English Encyclopædia." "Miss Twining's Lectures on Plants," "The Child's Guide to Knowledge," Mr. Lev. H. Waldelle's "Twenty-nine Years in the West Indies and South Africa," and other authorities. Fairy Know-a-Bit abides in books, and a first acquaintance with the fay may be pleasantly made in A. L. O. E.'s neat little volumes.

Nursery Rhymes, Old and New; with numerous clever and characteristic illustrations. (Ward, Lock, and Tyler.) There are in this thick volume of jingles many ditties which do not fall strictly within the range of nursery rhyme. Anthony Gilpin may be mentioned as one of them. All of them, however, are well calculated to amuse and bewilder the British infant, and in their motley repertory contain with false ideas about poetical license and the exigences of rhyme.

Memoirs of Thomas Bewick. Written by Himself. Printing Broderip. Illustrated by her brother, Thomas Hood. (Routledge and Sons.) Here is presented a very nice little book to teach little children the rudiments of spelling, reading, and writing, and to initiate into a story (in which the words do not go beyond disyllables), an exercise in drawing. The story is somewhat in the style of Punch and Judy (probably) by heart. In the authentical part matters are so stated that the reader is led to suppose that Punch is the originator of first principles, for we read (page 2) "two boys and two girls make four"; but, perhaps, Punch is the only one of the quartette given to ruling principles to false. The illustrations are of various degrees of merit, but the best are those of Punch himself, whose face a blot upon the human race.

Bible Stories. Illustrated by C. A. Doyle. (Edinburgh: William P. Nimmo.) The "citizen of credit and renown" is welcomed wherever he goes, and is more quite welcome than when his grotesqueness is, as in the present instance, relieved by the pencil devoted to the sin drawings of Mr. C. A. Doyle.

Block Tales and Stories for Country or Town, with Appropriate Rhymes for all Ages and Times; Geoffrey Gambado, or a Simple Subject Made Interesting, &c. By the Author of "Modern Physiology." (Dean and Son.) A Roman lyrist has declared that "it is sweet to play the fool in season"; and, perhaps, Mr. Dean's publication at Christmas the season when it is not only sweet but a bounden duty to do so. Of the above-named books, "Block Tales and Stories" claims brave perhaps rather than indulgence, for a more denseness piece of printing we have not met with, the cases of both rhymes and illustrations even do not often behold. The "Block Tales and Stories" are intended to be a collection of fanciful sketches, written to suit certain caricature drawings, the latter coming first. "Block Tales" "Some years ago sixteen original sketches, by Henry Bunbury, Esq., were given to the world in a volume of like book. . . . Bunbury's peculiar costume of fashion or fiction long since exploded; but they represented not only the costume of the day, but with considerable likeness." It should be added that the idea of the book "was originally suggested by the publication of those sketches, and not as such," and that the style of the drawings reminds one of "Dr. Syntax."

Scenes from the Winter's Tale. (Day and Son.) Among all the illustrations of Shakespeare whose pictures from the "Winter's Tale" will certainly take rank as the most remarkable. The "Winter's Tale" they will suit the popular taste is another question; but when we say the figures are drawn by Mr. Henry Warren, and the accompaniments borders by Mr. Owen Jones, the whole being transferred to stone by Mr. A. Warren, we think that we have said enough to show that they will find excellent drawing and harmonious colours.

Notes from Nature in the Fields and Woods. Described by J. H. Mercy D'Aubigne, D.D.; illustrated by P. H. Lalouette. (Day and Son.) "Notes from Nature" is a book of essential events in Luther's life, with explanatory letterpress.

Sketches in Architectural Symbolism. By W. Scott Ardley, architects. An Alphabet of Monograms. (Day and Son.) Both good works, well done, want of space alone preventing us from saying more.

Drawings from Modern English Poets. Illustrated by the Junior Etching Club. (Day and Son.) This is a book of a very agreeable mixture of the professional artist and the cultivated amateur. We have the evidence of the Junior Etching Club, represented by the name of Mr. Millais, the "Nora Creina" of Lord G. Fitzgerald to balance Mr. Watt and Mr. Lewis Fildes. The "Drawings from Modern Poets" (a name) contains some dexterous work with the etching-needle, quite up to the standard of the Junior Etching Club.

The Pictorial Times of Mercury. (S. Low, Son, and Marston.) "The large illustrated volumes are produced by a new method, without the aid of an engraver; and the artist's drawing is asked for them, on the plea of the inexperience of the artists in this process." We have the evidence of the Junior Etching Club against the illustrations on pages 16, 24, and 26 are engravings on wood executed in the usual manner. The "new method" has been discovered the indulgence asked.

Sketches of Servants; or, Tales for Sunday Reading. (Warne and Co.) A little book of pleasingly-written tales, founded on Bible history and illustrated with pleasing engravings.

Great Fun. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) "Great Fun" is here divided into six volumes of Jokes, Comic Stories, and "excellent fooling," especially so far as the coloured illustrations are concerned. As for the literature, it is both prose and verse; it inclines the grown man to a smile, and the boy to a broad grin; it plays upon the little child, and it inculcates good behaviour in an insidious way by holding up a moral to ridicule. It is a book of incongruities with the attraction of mischief. This hint may be serviceable "to whom it may concern."

The Annual Creature. By Thomas Ryper Jones, F.R.S. (Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge.) "The Annual Creature" is well suited to December as to May, and to Christmas as to any other season. A new edition of the volumes of Jones's "Annual Creature," in accordance with the idea which connects gift-books with pictures; and, therefore, with illustrations. Abstracted from an excellent society to entertaining and instructive literature be issued by the Society, is needed to grown of gifts.

A gilded cup is bestowed upon the following works :—The Friend, a Series of Essays, by Samuel Taylor Coleridge (Bell and Daldy). Fourth edition of the volumes of Lord Tennyson's Poems. Poems by Three Sisters (Moxon and Co.), a simply elegant little volume of old imprisonment. Poems of Wordsworth, chronologically by David Thomas, D.D. (F. Pitman); and Arithmetical Tables, by the Rev. J. C. Davies (Bell and Sons), "carefully designed for the young," and "put into rhyme to be chanted or sung."

Mr. Marquis, the governor of the prison from which Stephens, the Fenian, escaped, has been dismissed by order of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

A working men's exhibition was opened by the Mayor of Manchester on Monday, in the room of the Working Men's Institute, City-road. Eighty-five exhibitors have sent in specimens of their handiwork, and the display is quite creditable article shown in it cannot fail to interest visitors of all sorts.

A notice issued by the Postmaster-General states that parcels containing samples of merchandise or articles of the nature of merchandise addressed to Belgium may be forwarded, on the 1st of January of next year, through the post, subject to the conditions and regulations which the same general regulations as by the direct mail vid Ostend. Packets of patterns or samples of merchandise for Belgium may be registered on payment of the fee of 2d. in addition to the ordinary postage.—Not exceeding 4oz.; above 4oz. and not exceeding 8oz., 8d. No article is admissible by registration which is liable to duty on importation into Belgium.

The inquest on the bodies of the five persons who perished through the collision between the American barque Fanny Dock and the Dover mail-packet Empress, in the Channel, on the night of the 15th inst., was resumed at Dover on Tuesday night for Calais, the weather being thick and foggy. Mr. Stewart, the engineer of the Empress, said that when he was approaching the Goodwins he saw a light on the port bow, and the captain had hardly given the order "Starboard" when the Fanny Dock struck the steamer. The jury returned the following verdict :—"The jury find that the deaths of the persons in question were accidental; but that the accident in question might have been avoided if the barque had shown a better light. In recording this verdict the jury cannot separate without expressing their admiration of the conduct of Captain Bennett and the crew of the Sampshire for the prompt and efficient assistance rendered them in their trying position, which, under God's providence, was the means of saving many lives; also that great praise was due to Captain Bennett, the pilot, and engineer, for his ready assistance. (One of our staff at Calais, who went aboard the Sampshire on his way to Brussels, to illustrate the funeral ceremonies on the day of the King of the Belgians and his grandson, Prince Leopold II., sent us two sketches of the collision, which, however, we were unable to engrave.)

NATIONAL SPORTS.

WEATHERBY'S Book Calendar takes note of 148 meetings during the past season, of which nine were held in Ireland, ten in Scotland, five in Wales, and the rest in thirty-five English counties. The races announced in 1862, and were contested by 2042 horses, or ninety-four more than last year. The two-year-olds number 630, or five less than last year, and the principal increase is in the four-year-olds. The returns of one large stud has not been received in time; but, without them, there are 711 colts and 720 fillies entered on the foal list, which also shows that very nearly a fourth of the blood mares are in foal to horses that commence has 53 foals, of which 10 are Mr. Cookson's; Newminster 38, Knight of Kars 26, Bend'Or 24, Albert 19, Birdcatcher 14 (including an own sister to Voltigeur 3), Wild Dayrell 28, and Young Melbourne 36, with 21 each to Lord Lyon and Lord Clifden in the list. Lecturer by Buccaneer, retains the list name; and we find Rich Wine, Hampton Court stud, which reserves ten out of his twenty-five subscriptions. He has won nineteen races (four of them walks over) out of thirty, which amount to more than £11,000. With the exception of The Hero, in 1847, no other horse ever won both the Ascot and Goodwood Cups in the same year. He met Casabianca seven times, and beat him four times; but he had no chance with Blair Athol either time he met him, at Ascot or Goodwood, or a mile. It is said that he is for three seasons. Whitefield, a favourite performer of his in Ascot Cup honours, has fared very differently, as we read that he went last week to the knacker's yard "apparently running away and knocking his knees in the cart of a Mitcham butcher, who bought him originally for thirty shillings." The Derby and Oaks candidates still furnish hundreds hedging to sporting writers, who generally take their cue from the betting ring all round, so as to be enabled, for fear of mischance, to refer back after Epsom to "the very favourable opinion I expressed in the early winter." Such prophesying to that effect. It seems that 276 are still left in the Derby, and that 165 of them been out in public.

John Scott has pursued the dignified and proper course of standing on his character, and of "leaving" Lord Glasgow "alone most severely," to his own devices and his own indignation. The last form in which he brought out General Peel and Stradford for their races at Ascot and the way in which he managed them on the day that was needed. His lordship, in a second advertisement-letter, taunts his old trainer with "bad management, mismanagement," an answer which, in the eyes of spectators, is tantamount to saying that Lord Derby and Mr. Gladstone were responsible for the Derby. Mr. Lordship has now, it is rumoured, engaged a twenty-fourth trainer in Golding; and why he should the public can only think, four months after date, with charges against his twenty-third? It is true enough that Golding's horse Wise Man won a three-year-old, but then it may be urged that at the Derby the latter was not on his mettle, and that the Sir St. Leger he was never persevered with because he could not beat Blair Athol, and a pulled Wise Man's head down in order to make the penalties it entailed for future races. The way in which General Peel was made to "run" at Ascot, and the Doncaster Cup, which was barely run a mile, convinced the general public that he had no heart, and were not sorry to see the unfortunate animal who wielded the whip. Two Thousand were of opinion that he was "soft," and profited by their belief. We should think he would shun Mr. Lordship's name upon his three-year-old form.

The Alpine mountaineer is not the most of their forbearing opportunities, for fear that Lord Portarlington may prove as good a prophet as of trust as he was of drought. Mr. Drake has declared his intention of giving up the Bicester, and Mr. Selby Lowndes has followed suit, so that we trust that Captain Percy Williams may find one of them to his mind. We hear that he may have the Bicester if he will. That once celebrated lunatican Tom Ball died last week. In early life he was with fowlsmouth, but his fame was in the Bicester field, which country he had been Rothschild. For some years past he had kept an inn and huntingstables at Lamport, in Northants, but, if any, could look over the doubles of the Vale of Aylesbury, especially if he was on Grouse, Harkaway, or Rory O'More. Tom Ball seems to was the hero of his celebrated sayage jump, and died under him one day, as the hounds were laid on to their stag. His manner of throwing himself far back in the saddle when he took a leap was very peculiar. We believe that he was still under fifty, and it will be "Jolly fifty years" before we see his equal, either with hounds or harness' steeplechases, will be forgotten in the Vale.

The Islington Cattle Show will take place this year in the week between Epsom and Ascot.

Annabella, Lord Zetland, Tullochgorum, Lambie Cop, Beckford, King Tom, and other Waterloo dogs, came out for the Bridekirk Cup, the total value of which is £50. Lord Zetland's son Tom was one of the course very cleverly by Good Idea, and the owners of Tullochgorum and Cambrian, the latter by Lord of the Beacon, ultimately divided the first and second money, and got £50 each. The Brigg Cup was won by Mr. G. Blenkinsop's Bewick, and it is announced on authority that Fieldfare, the Champion Stakes winner at Newmarket, is the favourite for the Waterloo Cup. Barcheston by Gabriel won the North Lancashire Stakes at the Aintree Meeting, and Fortuna's Pride, by Abdel, was run up for the South Lancashire Stakes by Sea Sprite, another of the Eaglehurst Kennel. Mr. Hulme's Lottery, by Lord Lyon—Old Tamar, the winner, in the first round for the Ridgway Cup; and Mr. Blundell's Bessie, by Seagull (founder of the illustrious departed), carried off the Rossleth Cup.

PRIZE ANIMALS AT THE SMITHFIELD CLUB SHOW

FOR four years in succession the shorthorn heifers have carried off the Smithfield cup for the best female in the yard; and now Earl Radnor's Octavia Grand Duchess of Oldcastle 2nd, which Mr. Thomas Swaisland's heifer, and Mr. Taylor's Trinket held in 1862-4. She is a roan of three years and seven months old, bred by her noble owner, and it says not a little for the excellence of the stock and the judgment of his Lordship's servants that Octavia 2nd has already proved to have taken two cups for cattle and pigs, as well as a first prize for Southdowns, a silver for Southdowns, and the extra pig medal with their eight entries.

A Hereford ox was a Pollock challenge cup against all breeds at Dublin last week; but beside the Herefords and the shorthorns were quite out of it here. In 1862-4 a Shorthorn-Devon, a Hereford, and a Shorthorn have been the three winners of the cup, the first-named being between a Devon and a West Highlander, and Mr. Sunday, the Shorthorn of 1864, was bred by Mr. Cruickshank, the grand brindle is the property of his Grace the Duke of Sutherland, who is keeping up the line of the Dunrobin dairy, which has been in the family for more than a hundred years. Those who have been accustomed to ordinary West Highland cattle will be surprised at the great improvement which this five-years-and-eight-months' ox, whose depth and size generally was twenty-one months old, or a month younger than Mr. Drucce's, and were bred by his Grace, who has always been a great admirer and patron of his country sort.

At a meeting held in Birmingham on Monday—the Mayor in the chair—it was resolved to establish a gymnasium on a large scale.

PRIZE ANIMALS FROM THE SMITHFIELD CLUB CATTLE SHOW.

PIGS, AGED 17 MONTHS, BRED BY THE EARL OF RADNOR, COLESHILL, HIGHWORTH.
WETHER SHEEP (OXFORDSHIRE DOWNS), AGED 21 MONTHS, BRED BY THE DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH, WOODSTOCK.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

PRIZE ANIMALS FROM THE SMITHFIELD CLUB CATTLE SHOW.

SHORTHORN HEIFER, OCTAVIA, AGED 3 YEARS AND 3 MONTHS, BRED BY THE EARL OF RADNOR.
SCOTCH HORNED OX, AGED 5 YEARS AND 8 MONTHS, BRED BY DR. GILLIVRAY OF BARRD, BELONGING TO THE DUKE OF SUTHERLAND.—SEE PAGE 590.

BIRTHS.

On the 12th ult., at 2, Waterfield-terrace, Blackheath, Frances Laura, wife of Mr. J. T. Stone, of a daughter.

On the 14th ult., at Frome, Jamaica, Mrs. William Vickers, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 16th inst., at St. James's Church, Notting-hill, by the Rev. T. P. Hankey, M.A., Incumbent, assisted by the Rev. R. Neville Buckworth, Augustus William Langdon, Esq., M.A., of Lincoln's Inn, eldest son of Augustus Langdon, Esq., of 15, Norland-square, to Catherine Mary, only daughter of the late Major H. C. Baker, of Tuscany Villa, Lansdown-road, Notting-hill. No cards.

On the 14th inst., at Longton, Staffordshire, by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Lichfield, assisted by the Rev. G. Johnston, Rector of Broughton, Hants, father of the bridegroom, and by the Rev. Adam Clarke, Rector of Longton, Staffordshire, uncle of the bride, George Thomson Johnston, to Edith, second daughter of the late Rev. J. B. B. Clarke, Rector of West Rudham, Somersetshire.

On the 14th inst., at St. Mary's, Bryanston-square, by the Rev. William Forbes Leith, M.A., of Worcester College, Oxford, brother of the bride, William James Leith, Esq., of Burnbrae, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, eldest daughter of the late Colonel James John and Williamina Helen Stewart-Forbes Leith, of Whitehall, and granddaughter of the late Colonel James Stewart, of the 42nd Royal Highland Regiment.

On the 19th inst., at St. John's Episcopal Church, Edinburgh, by the Very Rev. Dean Ramsay, John Gordon, Esq., of Cluny, to Emily Eliza Stoate, daughter of the late John Robert Pringle, Esq., Madras Civil Service, and granddaughter of Sir John Pringle, Baronet, of Stichell and Newhall.

DEATHS.

On the 13th inst., at Forest, Thomas Nightingale, Esq., late Post Captain, of Sussex Hall, Esq., Cape of Good Hope, second son of the late Sir Charles Nightingale, Bart., of Kneesworth Hall, Cambridge, aged 55.

On the 15th inst., at her residence, 31, The Grove, Hammersmith, near Bridge, beloved and respected by all who knew her, Jane, widow of the late Solomon Dwyer, Esq., of Grenville Field, in the county of Limerick, and youngest sister-in-law of the same city, in the 84th year of her age.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 30.

Sunday, Dec. 24.—Fourth Sunday in Advent. Death of Vasco da Gama, the navigator, Viceroy of the Indies, 1525. Birth of G. Crabbe, poet, 1754.

Monday, 25.—Christmas Day. Sir Robert Walpole died, 1745. Moon's first quarter, 6h. 33m. p.m.

Tuesday, 26.—St. Stephen, martyr. Treaty of Presburg signed (Austria lost Venice, the Tyrol, &c.), 1805.

Wednesday, 27.—St. John, evangelist. Birth of John Zepler, the great musical reformer, 1685. Birth of Sir Christopher Wren, architect, 1632.

Thursday, 28.—Innocents (or Childermas). Death of Queen Mary II., 1694.

Friday, 29.—Sunday after Christmas-day observed at Canterbury, 1170.

Vincent Stafford executed on charge of participation in Gates's Popish plot, 1680.

Saturday, 30.—Carlisle taken from the Scots by the Duke of Cumberland, 1745. Lord Mansfield, Chief Justice, died at Kenwood, 1793.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 30.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
2h 34m	3h 19m	4h 4m	4h 49m	5h 34m	6h 19m	7h 4m
3 0	3 45	4 30	5 15	6 0	6 45	7 30

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Managers, Messrs. F. Falconer and P. B. Chatterton.—Notice.—FOUR SPECIAL MORNING PERFORMANCES of the PANTOMIME, on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday next, at Two o'clock precisely. Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Rouse. Doors open at One o'clock precisely. Commencement of the Performance at Two o'clock precisely. Private Boxes and Stalls may be secured at the Box-office of the Theatre, which will be open daily from Ten o'clock till Five. Acting Manager, Mr. Augustus Harris. Treasurer, Mr. Hodson. Stage Manager, Mr. Wilmot. Musical Conductor, Mr. Tully. Scenery painted by Messrs. Grieve, Telbin, Pitt, and Hemsley. Machinery constructed by the Messrs. Brunt, Drury Lane. The grand scenic action of the Pantomime produced by Mr. Beverley. Dresses designed by Mr. Lee. Wigs by Mr. Clarkson. Properties by Mr. Cuthbert. The Opening Overture Rehearsed. Miss Marie Wilton, Miss Rose Leclercq, Miss Eliza Pelerier, Mr. Glen Murray; Mr. G. Schoncr, Mr. Bewley, Mr. Fitzjames, Mr. G. Vincent, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. Harry Cox, Mr. Paulo, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Wilton, and Mr. Paul Bedford. Mr. Beverley will introduce a Double Grotesque Pas Seul. Mr. C. Lauri, Clowns; Mr. W. A. Barnes and Mr. J. Morris, Pantaloons; Mr. Greenbank and Mr. J. Sedden, Harlequins; Miss Rosina and Miss Kate Loseby, Columbines; Mr. Lauri, Mr. Dobbin, and Trevino, from Drurio by the humorously-renowned Pulcynighan. The Music by Mr. Tully. Scenery by Messrs. Grieve, Telbin, Pitt, and Hemsley. The Ballet Arranged by Mr. J. Beverley. Properties by Mr. Cuthbert. Dresses by Mr. & Mrs. Lee. Wigs by Mr. Clarkson. The Dances and Action of the Ballet arranged by Mr. Beverley. Machinery constructed by the Messrs. Brunt, Drury Lane. Doors open at Seven. Performance to commence precisely at Seven o'clock precisely, and terminate by Eleven o'clock. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. Sothern will appear as DUNDREARY in OUR AMERICAN COUSIN SAM. Every Evening, after and Every Tuesday, after which Odbobbard's celebrated Opera Buffe "Ortlo aus Krimml." Every Thursday and Saturday, at Two, Mr. J. R. Planché's Grand Christmas Pantomime, at SOUTHEY'S OLD WIVES RETOLD.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—On SATURDAY, DEC 23, Tuesday, Dec. 26, and during the Week, a New Drama, entitled THE MASTER OF RAVENSWOOD, the Master of Ravenswood—Mr. Fechter. Supported by a numerous Company.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—BOXING DAY and CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.—Unrivalled Attractions. More Fun than ever. Amusements from Morning till Night. The Holiness Family; the Wonder; Little Hellen, the Fairy Queen; the Cingle Seamar; the Brothers; Bellman; Dentist and Doctor; the Dumb Gymnast; Mr. Leon, the Great Wizard; Mr. Hamilton, the Great Ventriloquist; Mr. Corri, the Great Clown with Inexhaustible Christmas Pantomime; by Mr. Corri, Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Shamrock, and Thatch", with Head to Charm, and with Comic Scenes, &c.; the whole Company. Grand Display of Fireworks in the Evening.

The Palace is the Resort, in Variety and Beauty, are unequalled in the World. The Decorations of the Palace, with the Great Christmas Tree, should be seen by all.

The Great Christmas Entertainments, supported by Mr. Corri, Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Leon, the Swings, Roundabouts, Switchbacks, and other Popular Amusements. The Battery of Guns will be fired at Intervals throughout the Day. Open at Nine. Admission, Sixpence. All Trains from all Stations to the Crystal Palace the day of Performance.

In addition to this extraordinary list of Attractions, Fullery's Hippodrome and Circus, and Leotard, the Prince of Gymnasts, will perform Twice Every Afternoon and Evening, and Leotard's Flying Trapeze.

Admission, One Shilling; Children, Half-price. One hundred and fifty regular Railway Trains will run from the Stations of Victoria, Pimlico, Victoria, and Kensington, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday next, and Extra Carriages to the New High Level Station, running from the Crystal Palace Station, Sydenham, to the Palace, will be in attendance. Special Trains will leave Victoria for Sydenham every half an hour. In addition to the above regular trains, special trains will be run as required.

Open at Nine. Admission, One Shilling.

A splendid Bouquet with a Canary to Surround to her."—Vide Newspapers.

SEE THE CHRISTMAS PANTOMIME — CRYSTAL PALACE.—Every possible Amusement.

BOXING DAY.—CRYSTAL PALACE.—More fun than ever. Keep of scenes and easy for return. See Railway arrangements above. Come early.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WARM and DRY throughout the Day.—Spacious. The Palace of hot-water pipes throughout the building heat it to an agreeable temperature. All approaches under cover.

CHIANG, the great CHINESE GIANT'S CHRISTMAS LEVEE, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.
Christmas eves are bad ones for Chiang, and he is a lifetime.
Chiang not since he is a lifetime.
* An entirely new Temperance Entertainment, by Mr. Lesse Levée, embracing for the first time in London, A CONCERT of CHINESE MUSIC, and a LECTURE on the Celestial Empire, to which the Tartar Rebel Donnel "Chang Hee" will sing his new song, "Chi-Ne-Chang Chang Chong." The days have now gone by of Dissolutions and Comic Histories, and every juvenile should see Chang, the most prodigious of Giants, with his Chinese Band, Chinese Dresses, Chinese Instruments, Chinese Songs, Chinese Dances, Chinese Lectures, and altogether the most novel and instructive exhibition in London. For the Christmas Week Five Levées Daily: Afternoon, Two, Three, and Four: Evening, Seven and Eight. Admission, Is., 2s., and 3s.

EXETER HALL.—Grand Repetition Performance of THE MESSIAH. WEDNESDAY, JAN. 3. Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.

EXETER HALL.—The New Tenor, Mr. LEIGH WILSON'S Second Appearance in THE MESSIAH, JAN. 3.

EXETER HALL.—Miss LUCY FRANKLEIN'S Second Appearance in THE MESSIAH, JAN. 3.

EXETER HALL.—Miss LOUISA PYNE in THE MESSIAH, JAN. 3.

MDME. TUSSAUD'S EXHIBITION, Baker-street.—New Addition—Full-length Portrait Models of the late KING of the BELGIANS, the late Lord PALMERSTON, President JOHNSON, and General GRANT. A full-length Model of the Prince of Wales, in his Robes as a Knight of the Garter. Admission, 1s.; Children under Ten, Half-price; Extra Room, 6d.

ST. JAMES'S GREAT HALL, REGENT-STREET and PICCADILLY.
Christmas Entertainments on the Original
CHRISTY MINSTRELS.
The Management have much pleasure in announcing that they have secured the Great St. James's Hall for the Christmas Holidays, and have arranged for the production of a series of entertainments for their numerous Patrons. Their performances in the minor hall will be resumed on Monday, Jan. 1.
THE GREAT CHRISTMAS DAY PERFORMANCE every Afternoon at Three, in addition to the usual Performances.

Tuesday Afternoon, Dec. 26	at Three.	Thursday Evening.	Dec. 28, at Eight.
Wednesday Evening, 27	at Eight.	Friday Afternoon,	Dec. 29, at Three.
Wednesday Afternoon, Dec. 27, at Three.		Friday Evening.	Dec. 29, at Eight.
Thursday Afternoon, 28	at Three.	Saturday Afternoon,	Dec. 30, at Three.
		Saturday Evening.	at Eight.

Glorious Holiday Programmes.
Doors open at Half-past Two and Seven.

The Day Performance will be the same in every respect as their gems in the Evening, without curtailment or mutilation.
Stalls, Five Shillings. Balcony, Two Shillings.
Reserved Seats, Three Shillings and Sixpence. Area and Gallery, One Shilling.
Private Boxes for the Performance at Half-past Two, £1 1s.
Carriages for any performance at Five; Evening at Ten.
Tickets and Places may be secured at Mr. Mitchell's Royal Library, 33, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's Ticket-office, 28, Piccadilly.
Manager, Mr. Frederick Boreham.
Special Notice and Caution—This Company will appear at no other Hall in London.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL.—Conductor, Mr. COSTA.—On FRIDAY NEXT DEC. 29, will be received the Thirty-fourth Annual Performance of MESSIAH. Principal Vocalists: Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Banks, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Santley.
The Band and Chorus, the most extensive available in Exeter Hall, will consist of, as usual, the Members of the Royal Italian Opera, Her Majesty's Theatre, and the Philharmonic and Sacred Harmonic Societies. Leader, Mr. C. Hancock, Jun.
Post-office orders or cheques payable to James Park.
Only a limited number of Tickets for the Area and Committee can be obtained.
Tickets, Stalls, Five Shillings; Tickets, Five Shilling Reserved. To secure any of these Tickets, application must be made to the Secretary.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, beg to announce that their Entertainment, THE FIRST AND LAST, by SCHILLER'S LITTLE EVENING PARTY (for a few times only) by Mr. John Parry (his Last Season), and MORNING PERFORMANCES, Saturday at Three.—ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street, Waterloo-place.
CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS—FOUR MORNING REPRESENTATIONS.—Tuesday, Dec. 26, at Three o'clock; Thursday, Dec. 28; Friday, Dec. 29; Saturday, Dec. 30.

STODARE.—279th REPRESENTATION.—THEATRE OF MYSTERY, BUTTON HILL.—MARVELS in MAGIC and VENTRILOQUISM. Every Evening, at Eight, the Wonderful Entertainment of the Great Ventriloquist, Mr. Stodare, who will Produce Live Birds, Live Rabbits, Live Fish, and Illustrate the Illusion of THE SPIRITS, the Birth of Flower-trees, and Medusa's celebrated Indian Basket Trick. Private Boxes, 10s. 6d. Stalls, 5s. Area, 3s. Gallery, 1s. Wednesday and Saturday at Three, as at Eight. Performance on Boxing Day Tuesday, the 26th, at Three and Eight. Doors open half an hour before the Performance. Box-office open from Ten till Five. Manager, Mr. Stodare.

SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The 61 ANNUAL WINTER EXHIBITION of SKETCHES and STUDIES by the MEMBERS and their FRIENDS is NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 5A, Pall-mall East, from Nine till Dusk.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS."—FRESH FACES and NEW ORIGINALITIES COMPANY.—Mr. Thurton will appear as the QUEEN DOG and MINNY MOUSE, in the Grand Christmas Pantomime, at 8 EVERY NIGHT and the Night after, DEC. 30 and 27, Woodbridge, Bath.—Manager, Mr. J. Morley.

ROYAL INSTITUTION OF GREAT BRITAIN, Albemarle-street.
WEDNESDAY, FEB. 7, 1866, Professor Tyndall, LL.D., F.R.S., will commence a COURSE of SIX LECTURES "ON SOUND," adapted to a Juvenile Audience, on Tuesday, December 26, and Thursday, December 28, at Three o'clock. TUESDAY NEXT, DEC. 26, Lecture I. Introduction to the Course, One Guinea (Children under sixteen years of age, Half a Guinea); to all the Members of the Royal Institution.
Dec. 21, 1865. WILLIAM HENRY MILLER, Hon. Sec.

LAW LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, Fleet-street, London.
For the Assurance of the Lives of persons in every station of life.
Established in the year 1823. Empowered by Special Act of Parliament.
Assurances are created upon the Lives of any Persons for Sums not exceeding £10,000, either Immediately or Deferred, for the whole term of life, or for a lesser term of years, or for Annuities, Endowments, &c.
Profits are divided every fifth year, four fifths thereof being appropriated to the assured upon the Participating Assurances effected.
At the Six Divisions of Profits which have been made Reserves amounting in the aggregate to £1,000,000 have been added to the Assurance Fund.
The Annual Income of the Society exceeds £300,000, and the Assurance Fund, being in respect of Sums secured by Policies £5,597,864, and £1,419,187 in respect of Bonuses thereon, is £1,000,000 sterling, invested in Government and other Securities, and in Loans upon Assurances effected, through any defaulter in Town or Country, or by application direct to the Secretary, 5, Chancery-lane, London, W.C.

THE CONSERVATIVE LAND SOCIETY.—The Fourteenth Annual Meeting of the Members of this Society will be held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London, on Wednesday, the 27th day of December, 1865, at Two o'clock precisely, for the purpose of receiving the Report of the Directors, and for the Election of Directors and Auditors.
By order of the Board of Directors, WILLIAM HENRY MILLER, Secretary.
Dec. 21, 1865.

EDUCATION.—RICHMOND-HILL.—FRENCH and GERMAN PROTESTANT ESTABLISHMENT for GENTLEMEN'S DAUGHTERS, conducted by Madame and Mademoiselle Schmidt, assisted by Masters for Music, Drawing, Dancing, Calisthenics, Elocution, Arithmetic, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy, Painting, &c. Conversational proficiency under French and German governesses. Religious instruction according to the Church of England. Terms, 40 to 50 guineas per annum. The Pupils devote their undivided attention to the comforts and improvement of the pupils. Parents and guardians will find this establishment worthy their attention. The house is most healthily situated, and has a large garden, surrounded by a park of 1,000 acres. Education is thoroughly established, and contains all lofty rooms and four ball-rooms.—TRUTH, Feb. 21, 1865.

ENTIRE DESTRUCTION BY FIRE OF COMPTON HOUSE, ST. LEONARDS.—An immense square block of buildings, formed by one side of Crescent-street, Bonnell-street, Compton-street, and Compton-terrace, St. Leonards, formerly Compton-place, the property of Mr. Thomas Cubitt, M.P., and other freeholders, of the value of £300,000, entirely destroyed to the bare walls, with the exception of the corner house in Compton-street, on the night of Dec. 11, 1865. Upwards of 100 families have been rendered homeless, and necessitated out of the terrible calamity. For particulars see Illustrated Times of Dec. 16, 1865.

ROYAL EXCHANGE ASSURANCE, 17, Moorgate-street, City, London; 28, Market-street Manchester; 36, Queen-street, Dublin.

ROYAL EXCHANGE ASSURANCE.—GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Pall-mall.—Patents obtained for inventions at home and abroad. Specifications prepared and Patents Sold. All inquiries free. Apply personally or by letter to "Compny's Handbook," issued gratis. H. HARRISON LATHAM, Sec.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—STATHAM'S SCIENTIFIC PHOTOGRAPHS.—Specimens of Photographic Illustrations of Natural History, Zoology, &c. Send two Stamps for Illustrated Catalogue.—W. Statham, Photographer, Upper Norwood.

SCIENTIFIC PRESENTS.—Collections to Illustrate Geology, Mineralogy, Botany, Conchology, Entomology, and Ornithology can be had at 3, 5, 10, 20, 30, 50, 100 guineas; also single Specimens of Minerals, Rocks, Fossils, Shells, Insects, Birds, Eggs, Skins, Skeletons, &c. Museums Arranged, Catalogued, &c. ROBERT DAMON, Naturalist to her Majesty the Queen. Private instruction is given in the various branches of Natural History.—Address, 2, Bedford-place, Brighton.

NEW AND FASHIONABLE WORK FOR LADIES.
ILLUMINATING BEADS and BEAD-Outlines, 2s. 6d. each; Commenced, 3s. 6d. Bead fixed with materials for this beautiful work, 1s. 6d. Sent free by post.—Mrs. Wheeler, 2, Bedford-place, Brighton.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c.—A great variety of Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, &c. Specimen Sheets from 1s.; or One Hundred assorted, 10s. 6d.
WILLIAM BARNARD, 59, Cornmarket-street, London, W.

HAIR.—THE BEST and CHEAPEST PRESENTS.—Gold Lockets for Hair, from 8s.; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Albums, from 5s. each. Hair Jewellery of every description.—Mrs. Wheeler, 2, Bedford-place, Brighton.

USEFUL PRESENTS for the SEASON.
SANGSTERS UMBRELLAS.
Sangsters Umbrellas are Strong and Reliable.
W. and J. S. Sangster, 140, Regent-street, and 10, Royal Exchange, Manufacturers, with Plain and Steel Rods of various shades of colours, elegantly mounted with ivory, silver, &c., and alpaca of the best quality, 7s. 6d. each.
140, Regent-street. 10, Royal Exchange.
94, Fleet-street.
N.B. Observe the Name. 94, Fleet-street.

GOLD for ILLUMINATING and all Decorative Purposes, JOHNSON'S GOLD PAINT, in pans, price 1s. 6d. each.
Johnson's Gold Paint is the only Gold Paint that will not tarnish.
Sold by all Artists' Colourmen, and at the Manufactory, 23, Berners-street, W., wrote of gold sheets. It takes readily a beautiful burnish.
Prize Medal at the Exhibition, 1862. JOHNSON and SON, 23, Orford-street, London; and all our Artists' Colourmen.

BURTON AND HOLLAY IN MANCHESTER.
Tewfalk, Manchester, May 31, 1865.
Gentlemen,—I am instructed by Sir R. Arkwright, the Chairman of the Waterworks Committee, to inform you that your Patent Stone Breaker has completed by one stroke the whole of the stone required for the Macadamising of the Roads in this district, and has resultly received the attention of travellers on Friday night last. It is believed that the labours must have been at work for many hours, as they left several broken instruments behind them. The Committee have directed me to say that they are prepared to order it to be put into daily, in which he hears and speaks all his tools, and, after repairing it, he is only corrected in doing so after upwards of four hours' additional work on Monday, when the valuable assistance of the lads were found perfectly secure.
I am, Gentlemen, yours respectfully,
To the Manufacturers, BURTON and HOLLAY, Leicester. J. BERRY.

MONEY ADVANCED, at 5 per cent, without unnecessary publicity or delay, on freehold, reversionary, or Chancery property, and on personal security, for short periods or terms of years.—Mr. MORRIS, 6, Bloomfield-terrace, Pimlico.

POSTAGE OF THE CHRISTMAS DOUBLE NUMBER OF THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, CONSISTING OF TWO SHEETS AND A HALF, AND A LARGE PICTURE,
"THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD."

AT HOME.
Copies bearing the impressed stamp (which must be repeated to cover stamps from abroad) through the Post Office to Subscribers in the United Kingdom, or to Foreign Parts or the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands, if sent open at the Side and within three miles of the place where they are posted, when they become liable to a postage of one penny per copy, must be forwarded to the Publisher's Office.

Packages sent direct from the Office are charged according to their weight.

FOR FOREIGN PARTS.
The impressed stamp is no service for copies which are to be sent abroad; those must have postage-stamps affixed to the amount of the following rates:

Abyssinia	1 p	Hanover	1 p
Alexandria	1 p	Holland (viâ France—Right Stamps)	1 p
Algeria (viâ Marseilles—Right Stamps)	1 p	Holland (viâ Prussian—Right Stamps)	1 p
Australia—One Stamp	1 p	Ionian Islands—One Stamp	1 p
Brazil—One Stamp	1 p	Malta	1 p
Canada—One Stamp	1 p	Mauritius	1 p
Canada—One Stamp	1 p	New Zealand—One Stamp	1 p
Cape of Good Hope—One Stamp	1 p	Nova Scotia—One Stamp	1 p
China (viâ Marseilles—Three Stamps	3 p	Prussia (viâ Belgium—Right Stamps)	1 p
Constantinople (viâ Marseilles—Right Stamps)	1 p	Sardinia—Right Stamps. This paper	1 p
Denmark (viâ Belgium—Right Stamps)	1 p	Sweden (viâ Belgium—Right Stamps)	1 p
Egypt (viâ Marseilles—Right Stamps)	1 p	Sweden (viâ Prussian—Right Stamps)	1 p
Egypt (viâ Southampton—One Stamp)	1 p	Turkey (viâ Marseilles—Right Stamps)	1 p
Finland (viâ Prussian—Right Stamps)	1 p	United States—One Stamp	1 p
Germany—Right Stamps	1 p	West Indies—One Stamp	1 p

An edition is printed on this paper for foreign postage.

AVIS A NOS ABONNÉS SUR LE CONTINENT D'EUROPE.—W. S. KIRKLAND et CIE., rue de Richelieu, 27, Paris, sont autorisés de recevoir les abonnements pour la France, la Belgique, la Suisse, l'Italie et l'Espagne. L'abonnement pour la France et la Belgique, 10f. par trimestre ; la Suisse l'Italie et l'Espagne, 12f. par trimestre. Remise fait aux Libraires et Marchands des Journaux.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of SATURDAY, DEC. 30, will contain the following, with other Illustrations, from Sketches by the Special Artists of this Journal :—

FUNERAL OF THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS:

Torchlight Procession—Taking the Body into Brussels; The Lying in State at the Palace of Laeken, Brussels; The Funeral Car Passing through the Place de Congrez, at Brussels. The Funeral Ceremony in the Church at Laeken.

With a Two-Page Engraving of the ENTRY OF THE NEW KING, LEOPOLD II., INTO BRUSSELS.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1865.

IF is satisfactory, at the season when peace and good-will are most strongly inculcated, to be able to record that in the only quarter from which it was possible for England to expect unfriendliness a demonstration has been made which may safely be assumed to indicate that no rupture with this country will be sought. President Johnson's Message has been delivered. We naturally look, in the first instance, to see what it has to say concerning the New England fishery Act, as was expected, a paragraph specially directed to the question of the relations between the United States and ourselves. We had no right to suppose that the arguments which have been urged by American diplomacy should not be considered and after-art in the Message. The President reiterates that we were hasty in acknowledging the belligerency of the South, and refuses to accept Earl Russell's interpretation of the law of nations in reference to the damages done by the vessels which escaped from our ports. Were we disposed to complain, it would be that no credit is accorded to our Government for the sciences it did effect, in defiance of certain strongly-expressed feelings here, and that implication of self-interest on the part of England is attached to what the people of this country assuredly regret as an accident, for the nation had no sympathy with blockade-runners, and had something less than sympathy with the pirates that destroyed defenceless vessels. But it would be unfair to lay stress upon points which were obviously necessary to the completeness of the Presidential argument. It is more to the purpose to observe the general tone and bearing of the paragraph which relates to England, and to notice that there is not the least attempt to inflame the mind of America against us, or to do more than place upon record the view which the Cabinet of Washington takes in opposition to that of St. James's. The modified arbitration offered by Lord Russell is declined, as Mr. Adams had all but stated that it would be; but, as far as words and the absence of words mean anything, we may believe that the American Government is too well aware of the mighty interests committed to its charge to be disposed to disturb the minds of men and the relations of commerce by raising a quarrel on a question which, compared with the gigantic interests it might imperil, may indeed be called miserable. Diplomatists may continue to argue it out, or the issues may be left for future treatment; but it is clear that the bond of the great Republic has too Christian and statesmanly a sense of his duties to mock the thanksgivings for deliverance from a terrible war, in which a great and real stake was involved, by hazarding another disruption of society for the sake of a very doubtful right, and a very contemptible cause. England, therefore, while supporting the rights of her own Government, cannot but admit that America is fortunate in the magistrate who had greatness so strangely and so sadly thrust upon him.

The rest of the Message, with the exception of a congratulation to the people upon friendly relations with Russia and with China, and with the exception also of a guarded reference to Mexico—the President being unwilling to consider what opportunities might present themselves which he may choose to provide against foreign interference—is devoted to topics exclusively American. An exposition of the indissolubility of the Union and of the future policy of reconstruction is followed by a reference to the four millions whom the war has called into freedom. The negro suffrage question is declared to be one with which the general Government is not competent to deal, and it is pronounced to be one for the several States. The freed men are counselled to show patience and the manly virtues. The President predicts a happy future for the Southern States if they accept the changes with candour, and use due energy in recovering what has been lost by the cessation of unpaid labour. The finance question occupies a large space in the Message, but it may suffice to state that American finds herself with a debt of about £600,000,000 sterling, whereas which an improved system of taxation will render equal, it is believed, to the work of rapidly reducing this burden. In the eloquent adjuration to the citizens of the States to remember the vast amount of their resources which they possess, and in the prayer for the long-continued prosperity of the great Republic, every Englishman will join, and not the less cordially that he is invited to do so at a time when all Christians are called upon to remember and humbly to imitate Him whose name they bear.

THE COURT.

THE fourth anniversary of the death of the Prince Consort was observed with the usual solemnity, on Thursday week, at Windsor. The Queen, accompanied by the junior members of the Royal Family, proceeded to the Royal mausoleum at Frogmore in the morning. A solemn service was performed by the Dean, and the Rev. the Dean of Windsor, at the conclusion of which her Majesty and the members of the Royal family strewed the sarcophagus with wreaths of immortelles, laurestines, and other evergreens, and afterwards returned to the castle. The mausoleum was beautifully decorated with choice exotics and evergreens. In the afternoon the Queen, the mausoleum was opened from twelve to four for the members of her Majesty's household and some of the tenantry attended. To visit the tomb, and thus testify their respect for the memory of the lamented Prince Consort. Prince Arthur, who is in the Blue Elphinstone, arrived at the castle in the morning. The Prince of Wales, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, arrived at the castle at two o'clock, and partook of luncheon. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the Prince Consort's Mausoleum at Frogmore. Shortly after the forty-minute-past-three train on the Great Western Railway. The Queen remained in complete retirement throughout the day.

On Sunday morning Princess Helena, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and the Princess of Hohenlohe attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Rev. the Dean of Westminster officiated.

The Queen's Christmas invitations were distributed at the Lord High Almoner's Office, Middle Scotland-yard, Whitehall, on Tuesday, to poor and deserving persons. The recipients assembled at Whitehall-yard varying in age from sixty to ninety.

Lady Churchill has succeeded the Countess of Caledon as Lady in Waiting to the Queen.

DEPARTURE OF THE QUEEN FOR OSBORNE.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and the Princess of Hohenlohe, left Windsor Castle on Saturday morning for Osborne. Her Majesty's attendance consisted of Lady Churchill, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Mary Leveson Gower, Major General the Hon. A. C. Gordon, Colonel Du Plat, Mr. Duff, Mr. Ball, and Colonel Sir T. M. Biddulph. Her Majesty drove to Windsor station about half-past eleven o'clock, and, travelling the line, in a state saloon, by a special train provided by the South-Western Railway Company. The train, which was under the charge of Mr. Superintendent Tyrrell, left Windsor at twenty-three minutes past ten, and proceeded, via Slough and Reading, to the Basingstoke junction of the London and Western line. At this station the engines were changed, and the charge of the line was assumed by Mr. Carpenter, the district superintendent of the line. The route was continued, via Winchester and Bishopstoke, to Gosport, which was reached at forty minutes past twelve. The Queen was received at the Clarence Victualling Yard by Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, Captain George Digby Morant, C.B., and Captain Scott. Her Majesty embarked immediately on board the Royal yacht Alberta, under the Prince of Wales's standard, and proceeded alongside the wharf. The Alberta steamed out of harbour and crossed the Solent to Osborne, arriving thither at two o'clock.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND PRINCESS IN IRELAND.

The Prince of Wales arrived at Cologne, on Monday, from Brussels, and there continued his journey to Ireland by the Rhine route.

The Princess of Wales, with Prince Albert Victor and Prince George, continue at Sandringham House.

His Royal Highness Prince Arthur left Brussels on Monday, en route for Dublin.

The state apartments of Windsor Castle are open to the public under the usual regulations.

The examination at Winchester College for the Pitt Scholarship finished on Saturday last. The scholarship was founded at Winchester some years since by the Pitt Club in memory of their illustrious head. It is held for four years, and there are three Goddard Scholarships held for a like period of four years more, so arranged in connection with the Pitt scholarship becomes vacant every year. The successful competitor this year is A. S. Forster (Berkshire), of Winchester College, aged fifteen years. He succeeded in their order of merit:—1, W. G. Guillemard; 2, R. D. A. Morshead; 3, F. Heygath; 4, F. B. Harvey; 5, A. G. Hastings; 6, J. H. Cotton; 7, F. H. Champney; 8, C. F. Vincent. At the same time were awarded the Goddard Exhibitions, tenable for four years:—1, W. F. D. Deacon—Exhibitioner B.N.H. Paper (school examination) and Scholar; 2, Hon. Edward Lyttelton, F. Regius (commoner), second junior to J. R. Bewsher (commoner). Lord Hyde and Bob's prize for proficiency in classics and for good conduct, and of which there are seventeen in each half year, were distributed to the boys gaining them. His Lordship also gives two prizes for the encouragement of the study of the natural sciences in the school; and, after examination, these were adjudged—the first to A. D. Bewley (scholar), the second to W. J. Ingram (commoner). The Dunraven prize, given annually to the best reader, was gained by C. C. Bellamy (colonist). The school separated on Monday for the Christmas holidays.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

PUBLIC meetings at which members of Parliament have figured have been so rife of late that their subject-matter gets confused in one's mind, and it is difficult to recall when hon. gentlemen have been delivering themselves on Jamaica or reform. It must sound a little odd, to be sure, when a gentleman, on rising to respond to a toast at a merry or less serious meeting, declares that he has no speech to make; it is expected that he should say something about the measures of the moment in that land of the Antilles which is so familiar in men's mouths just now; and the inference is that this is a more stimulating and interesting question, and accumulates better with edibles and potables, than Fenianism and Irish disaffection. Still, there have been some Parliamentary reform meetings (proper, and suitable, one may say, at such places) at which the topic has been attended. It was, doubtless, an opportunity for self-gratulation to Mr. Akroyd, M.P., at last, again to impress himself upon the world, as he holds so distinguished a social position, and which has hitherto, somehow, declined to recognise him. Mr. Akroyd has clear hands and this, too, after he had been tried and by no means fast wanting during an apprenticeship in the House from 1857 to 1859, when he sat for Huddersfield. His address on this occasion was characteristic of the man—that is, of the thoroughly liberal but still working purpose; and, if one recollects aright, this was much the tone that Mr. Akroyd took when in active service as a member. The speech of Mr. Stansfeld, as marked by that rise in statesmanship, and without the ceding of principle, he has been developing every day since he took office, will be remembered. It is proper and necessary that breadth and a practical consideration of means and details which may be turned to his official training should set in, and while, perhaps, philosophical Radicalism in the very best possible position, for he goes far to propose all his public acts, he founded on the same purpose instead of tottering on the slippery basis of an abstraction. It was a person so much out of Mr. Stansfeld's line to say a tribute to Lord Palmerston, and to show with that clear, irresistible logic, which he can use so well, that the colonies of that time had to the full extent of good government and liberal progress ought not to be treated with the slightness and almost sarcasm which is beginning to prevail amongst a section of the Manchester school. It is pleasant to see others, who were only too ready to bend the knee before the statesman from allegiance to party, doing justice to his memory, and to be grateful to be free. It may be permitted to one to present Sir Francis Crossley, who was at Mr. Stansfeld's, as in a position to which those allusions are alluded to; for the judicious beheading of Earl Russell for which he went in, and the act of exorcising the spirit of Lord Palmerston, will be a new era of free politics which he expressed, could only be interpreted in the sense they were used. It is from such sense we have had to rely, not only talk of Sir Francis, who is—if in a manner a personage as mealies for one of Bulinga's Yorkshire—hardly a power in the house, and whose taste and judgment may be safely left to depend on his ideas of political comparison when he stated his belief that, except Cromwell, no one had done so much for England as Palmerston. The bracketing of such names is a curious instance of the exact and logical frame of the mind which has conferred knighthood on Sir Francis.

When one falls on an account of a special meeting with Mr. Bright and his constituents, one expects to find the usual eulogium and the juxtaposition of a peace-at-any-price member and a constituency which manufactures millions of weapons of every kind of warfare. The marvellous that Mr. Bright's first mission to these whom he represents should be directed to the subject of the Irish Church, and that his object should be, to give up constructive rifles, revolvers, and all that sort of deadly contrivance, and busy themselves in supplying reaping-hooks only. As, however, Mr. Bright appears to have his finger on the pulse of Ireland, and that its people are pleasant to him, of course all such want of consistency has to be set down to the fact that the matter is at once not exist; and the member forgets and forgets the practice, manufacturing and political, which has made him what he is for consistency. Has anyone taken the trouble to collate Mr. Bright's pre-Christmas speeches with those of the present year? If so, with what delivered? If so, such persons can judge accurately of the comparative tone of the two periods. The Times has made a point of the difference and divergence, which are most skilfully dealt with by the old hand. In his last speech Mr. Bright's tone to the Tories over the back of poor Sir John Pakington, who must be singularly tough not to feel it, is that of the conciliator, whereas he was merciless to lumbering, dreadfully-respectable Mr. Adderley. But what is to be thought of the elaborate compliment to constitutional monarchy, and his tender almost of devotion to the immediate sovereign of the realm? Where is the "Reform" and "Progress" evidence in Earl Russell; his practically giving up any inclination to control or direct, and to exclude the desire for the introduction of reform which he is prepared to accept from the present Ministry; and what is the meaning of his previous hint that the Queen should be drawn by his ardent admirer, Mr. Dixon, who, at the close of his speech put point blank the question why he was not in office, and if he would take office? Is this the "Ich dien" of the Prince of the sole progressi kind of dalliance. One could almost fancy Mr. Bright with a bit in his mouth, and Mr. Dixon on his back, in the pression of his face, as he simpered out—fancy Mr. Bright simpering!—a sense of restraint and of "Whoa!" Mr. Bright is not the man to be rather than being narrowed down to a mere presidentship of a Board of Trade, but he is not the man to be the mere mouthpiece of Earl Russell might, if he chose, ask him to give up to the Ministry the cabal which is known as the Reform League, and which, if it does is to be noticed in the erection of Mr. Bright, to which reference is now being made, a curious sentence, which is either an instance of the bathos or a most delicate piece of irony, and which some of our rhetoricians may fall when they throw loose their declamatory powers, in a very telling manner. Mr. Bright is said to have spoken to the effect obviously. Speaking of the admission of the working classes to the franchise, he declared that "he could not forget the sufferings, and even the cry of the toil-laden and the suffering, which even now ascends to heaven, much of it from unnecessary causes." Is this not irony? Is to what sense is the floor of Parliament further than heaven? Of course, this is not the place for such a question to be put.

The electors of Montrose are much honoured in the possession of a member who is so much at home in Scotland as Mr. Bright has been a little one. At a reception at Montrose Mr. Baxter avowed that he had exhibited the public virtue on private grounds of declining to be Civil Lord of the Admiralty, unless by Lord Palmerston or Earl Russell, who on this matter at least were congruous. Naturally Mr. Baxter's confidence in the Ministry is unbounded, and his belief that the reform is complete, and he takes on him to say that it will stand or fall by him before Parliament. It is good to have confidence in a measure of practice which was incorporated with the tenure by which Ministries hold power, and which, if it were not carried, would have been at once supposed that, as only one Government was possible, any defeats which it might encounter would be taken as a vote of want of confidence in the behaviour rather than notice to quit. The high-souled, political principles of Earl Russell are not adapted to the use of the every-day world, though as Prime Minister, however he may have endured it as a subordinate Secretary of State, Mr. Cobden's name is sufficient to show how many people may think. Mr. Baxter answers for him at Montrose; and no one in that borough, of course, thought of asking who would answer for Mr. Bright.

The third performance of the "Trinummus" of Plautus by the Westminster scholars took place on Tuesday evening. There was a brilliant gathering of friends and supporters of the play.

The public examination of pupils at Merchant Taylors' School, preparatory to the Christmas vacation, took place on Tuesday. The school is in a most satisfactory condition. The Master of the Merchant Taylors' Company (Mr. William Foster White) presided, and there were present many influential gentlemen who have long taken an active interest in the welfare of the establishment.

With the Christmas Number of this Journal for 1858 was issued, under the title of "A Christmas Carol," a Coloured Illustration representing a robin kindly twitching his Christmas card. The little red-breasted songster was extremely popular, and seems likely to wing his way a second time, under a new form, into public favour, for Mr. Copeland, of Bond-street, has just brought out a stereoscope plate bearing a spirited facsimile of our pet robin redbreast.

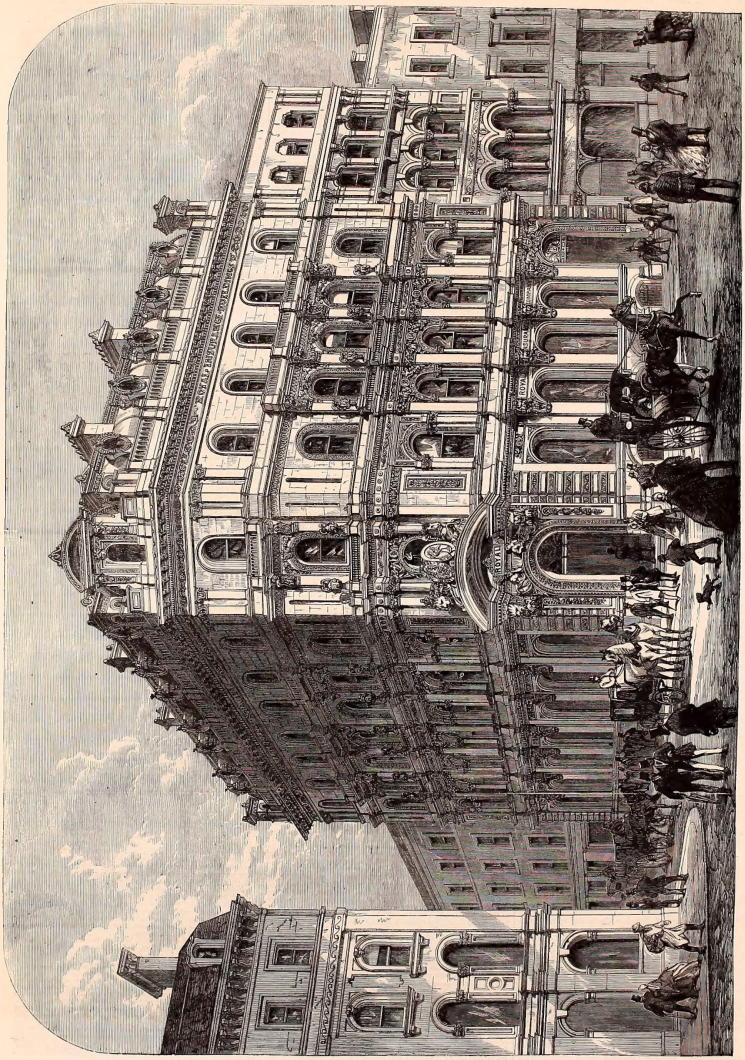
THE ROYAL INSURANCE BUILDINGS, LOMBARD-STREET.

DURING the last two or three years there has been an almost unexampled activity in building operations in the city of London. Private commercial enterprise has seemed to vie with the railway companies in the work of demolition and reconstruction. In some cases whole streets of small dwellings have been swept away to make room for rows of houses, with their overhanging stories and gabled fronts, whereas in others huge piles have been pulled down to make way for erections more or less pretentious.

The portion of the City where building operations are proceeding with the greatest activity is that which lies in Lombard-street and its neighbourhood, and conspicuous among the buildings just completed are the offices of the Royal Insurance Company, at the corner of Clement's-lane.

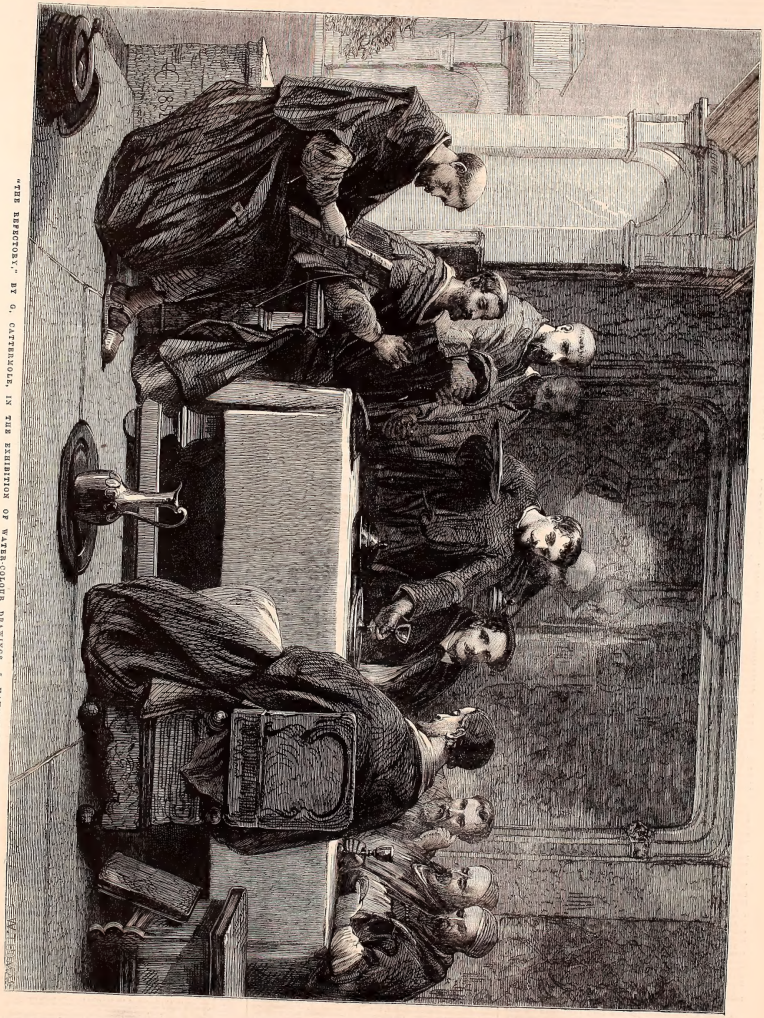
In the twenty years during which the Royal Insurance Company has been established its prosperity has been such as must have sufficiently exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its originators or promoters. Apart from the more certain but less interesting evidence of accountancy statistics, the growth of the business may be seen from the many noble structures it has erected to accommodate its continually increasing range of business, the first of which may be estimated from its published statements showing that the premiums in this period acquired the total vast revenue of more than £500,000 per annum. This unparalleled expansion is doubtless mainly attributable to the liberality and promptitude with which it has invariably met all its claims.

The offices in Lombard-street occupied by the Royal Insurance Company during the last sixty years, and which they have now left, were designed for them by Mr. John Belcher, architect, of Adelaide-place, London-bridge. The premises have proved too small for their rapidly-increasing business, the directors determined up to building larger offices, and the noble site at the opposite corner to their former building having presented itself, it was purchased by them for the very moderate sum of £70,000. The new building they decided upon employing the same architect, Mr. Belcher, to prepare the designs, which were adopted unaltered, and which have resulted in the noble structure they have just completed.



This new building of the Royal Insurance Office has, from its elegance and boldness of design, attracted more attention than any other building recently erected in the metropolis. It has a frontage to Lombard-street of 70 ft., and to Clement's-lane of 79 ft. It consists of a basement and four stories, surmounted by a lofty mansard roof, with dormer windows. The basement, for the level of the ground-floor window-sills, is of red granite, from the Clunkety quarries, near Aberdeen, Scotland, which is a hard, sound, and sent up to London ready for setting: it has moulded architraves round the basement windows, and a slightly "battered," which gives a great stability of appearance. The building above the basement is divided into four stories by enriched entablatures, supported on the several stories by rusticated, coupled, and double pilasters and piers, with an architrave, richly-carved frieze, medallion cornice, and open balustrade at the top, which is surmounted by vases. The first towards Lombard-street has the three centre windows on the ground, first, and second stories projecting and connected by projecting pilasters with open balustrades, being more richly finished than the remaining portions. The first floor windows are treated in a very rich and similar manner, with the exception that the three enriched windows are divided into three separate ones. The carving of the building, which, to the looker-on, forms its most attractive feature, deserves, from the beauty of design and delicacy of finish, to be examined more in detail. The four stories of the building are formed in piers of rusticated quoins, the alternate stories of which are carved in the form of a wheat-sheaf pattern of leaves, each one being of a different design. The door at the west-end is extremely rich. Lombard-street contains a moulded architrave round the semicircular head, one of the mouldings being enriched with the egg-and-tongue pattern, and springing from the solid face. The spandrils of the doorways are filled in with two emblematic figures, Britannia and Commerce, supported on a cartouche shield. The principal windows on the ground floor are divided by two coupled columns, with carved Corinthian capitals, and richly entablature. The spandrils of the windows contain a great many griffins, exhibiting much spirit and imagination in their varying treatment. The frieze of the entablature, which displays the name and words "Royal Insurance Company," The remaining windows have the wrought-iron supporting balconies, which display the emblems bird the "Liver," known only in the armorial device of Liverpool. The angle piers of the building, which are carried up above the roof, the windows on each front, have floriated panels of the most beautiful design, and terminate in a perfect study in leaf foliage, which the composite capitals to the columns and piers, and the spandrils of the windows and doors of natural foliage most accurately treated. We have seen photographs of several of these panels, containing such a variety of forms and subject that one could never tire of looking at them, seeing on each occasion fresh objects before unnoticed. We find here baskets of beautiful fruit and flowers, with the bird pecking at the delicious food; there, a bird in the valley, with its lovely fringe of silver bells; in another place, a long-necked heron gracefully standing in the water; there, one of the varieties of animal life in every form, natural or conventional, attract the eye, and delight the mind with their beauties. The spandrils of these windows contain emblematic figures of various countries. America, with the eagle and stars; Africa, with negro and camel; a Chinese with a kite; Africa, with the leopard; Australia, with the gum and arrow; Europe, with the lion; and last but not least, the rose the fragrant bookish. The front towards Clement's-lane has corresponding figures and emblems to those in Lombard-street. The entire Architecture, Sculpture; the splayed corner having, in a similar position, the figures of Prudence and Hope. The whole of these figures are modern likenesses, and exhibit great excellence both in their conception and execution. The faces of some are exceedingly beautiful. We may particularize that of "Hope" and the drapery, which frequently in sculpture, from its stiffness and want of arrangement, seems to be the bane of the sculptor, contrasts with a flowing freedom almost natural; while the poor and general expression, with the appropriateness of the accessories, produce in each separate study the suitability of the emblem. With the exception of the figures over the principal doors, which are by Farmer, they are executed by Mr. J. W. Searle, sculptor, of Walworth, whose works will be the best criterion of his capabilities and skill.

Leaving, however, the more subordinate portions of the carving, we come to the decoration of the principal features of the whole façade. The total height to the top of the cost of arms measure about 70 ft. The piers on each side are of Portland stone, with carved pendants of fruit and flowers, the top of which spring corbels of winged lions, which for vigour of expression we have never seen equalled; these support a superb projecting balcony-cage canopy with carved and panelled soffit, the arms of the company crowning the whole. The doorway leads into a spacious hall, with marble floor of inlaid granite, having two members with sunk crameens, the bottom of which, being supply tooled, has a most beautiful effect. The spandrils over the architrave are filled with two figures in statuary marble, larger than life, the one representing Fire, by Thornycroft, the well-known sculptor. These beautiful figures symbolise the objects of Fire and Life Insurance.



The whole work of construction has been very successfully carried out by Messrs. Colemen, builders, of Southwark.

The Board of Trade, through the Home Secretary, has called upon the Lords Lieutenant of counties to assist in the collection of the accounts return from the farmers of the amount of live stock now in the kingdom. It is proposed that the information should be collected by means of the officers of the Inland Revenue, and forms are furnished for the farmers to fill up, which it is hoped will be done without trouble or difficulty.

The bluebook presented to the Italian Parliament is divided into twenty-six several collections, and contains nearly 600 documents, principal or connected. The pieces relating to the Convention of September 15 are only two in number—the first noting the promulgation of the decree for the transfer of the capital, which marks the date for the commencement of the term of two years fixed for the execution of Rome; and the other relating to the notification made by the French Government of a beginning of execution of the Convention by the withdrawal of a portion of the troops from the Papal territory.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE BUILDINGS, LOMBARD-STREET.—SEE FOREGOING PAGE.

"THE REFECTORY," BY G. CATTERMOLE, IN THE EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS, 7, HAYMARKET.—SEE PAGE 606.

"THE REFECTORY."

Fun many qualities Mr. George Cattermole's water-colour drawings are highly prized: for their harmonious breadth of tone and fine colour; their masterly facility of handling, by which with a few touches figures appropriate in character, action, and expression are hit off; and for their varied and dramatic inventiveness. Their subjects also recommend them to many. Mr. Cattermole lives in the romantic past; dividing his existence between the days of Queen Elizabeth and Charles the First, and the hardly less picturesque, or pretty, and fable of feudal stories, scenes, and subversives of the days of Roundhead and Cavalier. The artist's proclivities in the matter of subject being thus not apt to have been fixed and decided more than thirty years ago. They were stimulated, probably, by the romantic drawings of the late Samuel Prout, "Cathedrals," and shaping in the revival of a popular taste for Gothicism and historical inquiry inaugurated by the pen of the poet and the renewed estimation of Shakspeare. Some, the young, perhaps, more especially, will think that Mr. Cattermole is more at home in Sir Walter Scott, in fanciful illustrations of mediæval romance, state, splendour, chivalry, and religious ceremonial, than he is, it is quite certain, although the representations of Mr. Cattermole, like those of Scott, may not always be accurate in the lynx-eye of archæology after it has been sharpened by modern discoveries and researches, particularly in the dark, cold, and sacred chambers of antiquity, his designs are always natural, and full of genius and life.

The drawing we have selected for engraving, while characteristic of the peculiar style, is hardly so pleasing that he intended to present the refectory of some church or cathedral establishment rather than of a monastery. Otherwise, in spite of having the central door of what we maintain that imagination is, in a sense, always true, might object that the arrangements of the refectory of a convent were usually somewhat other different from those we see here. The refectory was generally a large square or oblong room, with benches round three of its sides. Between the tables and the wall the monks sat at their meals; and, for the convenience of the serving brethren, there were no seats along the inner sides of the tables towards the centre of the room. The floor is not tiled and supervises at a long raised table at the upper end of the room, as in our college halls. There may have been paintings, to Mr. Cattermole shows us, in other parts of the refectory; but its principal and almost invariable ornament was usually a large picture of the Last Supper on the bottom wall facing the table of the superiors, and by which the arrangement of the refectory of a convent was usually also

NEW MUSIC.

JANET'S CHOICE WALTZ, on CLARIBEL'S popular Songs. "Extremely elegant, light, graceful."—Lady Times.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MERRY CHRISTMAS QUADRILLE. A New Set, by C. H. R. MARRIOTT, on all the popular Melodies of the day. Price 4s. Very beautifully Illustrated in Colours. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE SONG OF THE HOLLY. A New Song for the Festive Season. Composed by the Author of "Sweet Spring-time," "Song of the Waves," &c. By W. T. WRIGHTON. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE LIFE-BOAT. By CLARIBEL. New Song for Baritone. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and CO.

THE SHOWMAN. By J. L. HATTON. New Comic Song. Sung by Mr. Fox. Price 4s.

IN THE MOONLIGHT, LONG AGO. New Song by the Author of "Beautiful Isle of the Sea." BOOSEY and CO.

WHAT DOES LITTLE BIRDIE SAY? By BLAZE. A very charming little Song. This day, 1s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO.

THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND. This day, in paper cover, 3s.; or beautifully bound in green cloth, gilt edges, 5s. A New Edition of this Work, containing the whole of the SIXTY NUMBERS OF IRELAND: A Collection Consisting of the most esteemed Songs with the Original Words and Music, including all the Wearing of the Green," "The Coleen Bawn," "Boccaneens' Battle," "Groves of Blarney," "Kate Kearney," "Rory O'More," "Rich and Rare," "Bridge of Athlone," "Lament for the Irish Emigrant," &c. &c. &c. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE ST. JAMES'S ALBUM for 1866 is now ready, very handsomely bound, with gilt edges and Illustrations. It contains a large selection of new Home Music, Songs, Duets, Trios, Quartets, Sextets, Recitations, Solos, Duets, Glees, Quartet, Marches. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE MUSICAL SCRAP-BOOK contains nearly 300 specimens of every description by the most celebrated composers, being the cheapest collection of music ever published. Price 24s. in boards, or 32s. in cloth. BOOSEY and CO.

THE DRAWING-ROOM PIANOFORTE BOOK, in one vol., expressly bound, cloth, gilt edges, 6s. 6d. Contains 100 pages of the most fashionable Music of the day, by the following celebrated composers:—Gounod's new Waltz, Meyerbeer's favourite airs of original pianoforte music—Stephen Heller, Author, Rosey, Pauer, Osborne, Kuhe, Oesten, Rosellen, Oesten, Goumenitz, Bachmeyer, Weiz, Dubler, Dreyschock, Servais, Cotsford Dick, &c. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS' SONG-BOOK, price 2s., expressly bound, gilt edges, containing the Christy Minstrels' Songs, with choruses and piano accompaniments, as sung at the Opera Comique, Regent-street. BOOSEY and Co.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE OF THE SEA, and Glorious, other Songs, including seven by J. R. THOMAS, in BOOSEY'S BALLAD CONCERT, No. 35, now ready. Price One Shilling. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, and all Musicsellers.

A GARLAND OF SONGS, OR ENGLISH MINSTRELSY, edited by the late C. A. SEELE, M.A., Author of Fifty Hymns, and many Part-song Books, adapted to popular English Melodies, with Pianoforte Accompaniments, Symphonies, and Refrains. Price One Shilling.
BOOSEY and Co., London.

THE LATEST NUMBERS OF BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET.
Price 1s. each:—
30. Twenty Songs by Balfe.
29. Twenty Songs by Loder.
28. Twenty Songs by Wallace (5th Selection).
27. Six Popular Duets by Lurlach.
26. Eight of Mendelssohn's Shorter Pieces.
25. Twenty Songs by Henry Russell.
24. Twenty Songs by Linley.
23. Six Vocal Duets.
22. Twelve Popular Anthems by Boyce.
21. Nine Songs from the Operas of Mozart.
20. Twenty Songs by Stephen Heller.
19. Six Drawing-room Pianoforte Duets.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HYMN FOR CHRISTMAS.—HARK, THE GLAD SOUND. By HUGH. Composed by WILLIAM SHERWIN. Price 3s. WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.
LA TARANTELLA. By VAN PRAAG. Price 3s.
LES MURMURES DE LA SAYENNE. Valse Brillante. 3s.
METZLER and Co., Great Marlborough-street, London.

W. KUHE'S FANTASIE DE CONCERT on Airs from "Robin Adair" and "Coming Thro' the Rye." Price 4s.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S MY LODGING IS ON THE COLD GROUND. For the Piano. Price 4s. Brilliant Transcription. JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S THE CAPTIVE GREEK'S GIRL. Transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

THE FRIEND'S GIFT.—A Collection of the most Popular Tunes, arranged in a new easy and simple manner, and fingered for the Piano. By C. SILVER. Price 1s. Books (from 12 to 96 tunes to each). Price 1s. each.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

HENRY FARMER'S JERUSALEM THE GOLDEN. Price 3s. Brilliant Transcription for Pianoforte.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

HENRY FARMER'S DANISH NATIONAL HYMN. Price 3s. "One of the most effective and best sounding pieces of the season."—Court Circular.
London: J. WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and Cheapside.

HENRY FARMER'S LAST NEW PIECES. Price 3s. each, for Pianoforte Solos.
1. Home, sweet home (Variations).
2. I'd choose to be a daisy. Price 3s. 6d.
London: J. WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

HENRY FARMER'S NEW VIOLIN SOLOS, with Accompaniments for Pianoforte. Price 3s. each.
No. 1. Home, sweet home (Variations).
No. 2. Last Rose of Summer.
No. 3. Blue bell of Scotland.
No. 4. Life let us cherish.
No. 5. The Harp that once through Tara's halls.
London: J. WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and Cheapside.

HENRY FARMER'S NEW PIANOFORTE DUETS. Price 4s. each. Each is decidedly the most useful and best (including Duets for Pianofortes we have seen.
London: J. WILLIAMS, Holborn-bars; and Cheapside.

HENRY FARMER'S GEORGIANA VALSE, with Illustrations. Price 4s. Brilliant Transcription.
London: J. WILLIAMS, 123, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

NAPOLITAINE, I AM DREAMING OF THEE. Sacred Melody, with vocal accomp. ad lib. Sacred Duet, by Mr. J. Barnby, of the Christy Minstrels. 3s. Host pub. London: C. JEFFERYS, 20, Soho-square.

FAIR GERTRUDE WALTZES. A New Set by WILLIE VANDERVELDE, Composer of the admired Trouville Waltzes, Illustrated in Colours. Introduced in London by Mr. Smith; heard at half price. For the Orchestra, 3s. London: C. JEFFERYS, 20, Soho-square.

CHRISTMAS MUSICAL PRESENTS for Young Singers.—Illustrated Children's Songs, by LOUIS DIEHL. Price 1s. each; post-free, 13 stamps. Host pub. Music by E. GLOVER. Host price. C. JEFFERYS, 20, Soho-square.

NEW MUSIC.

CRAMER'S GUINEA MUSICAL SUBSCRIPTION entitles Subscriber to select and retain as their own property SIXTY MUSIC published by Cramer and Co to the value of

FIVE GUINEAS

This new system is offered to the public without any further limitations, viz.:—

1. Subscribers may select the Five Pieces individually.
2. Subscribers may select from the Publishers' stock of Music whatever they please within a period of One Year from the date of Subscription.
3. Country subscribers may have the Music forwarded during the currency of their Subscription.
4. Should any Subscriber not find sufficient Music to suit his taste, he can exchange it for other Music, to the value of Five Guineas' worth of Sheet Music, calculated at the annexed prices.
5. Subscription presentable at any time, including Catalogues, 5s.; or from 12 to One Month to be sent by post; applies to London, Country and Office orders to be made payable to Cramer and Co., Post Office, Regent-street, W.
Cramer and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street, W.

BETHLEHEM. Christmas Carol.

BETHLEHEM. Gounod's New Hymn.

BETHLEHEM. As a Chorus, 4s.

BETHLEHEM. As a Solo, 3s.

BETHLEHEM. Orchestral Parts, 10s.

BETHLEHEM. An exquisite Pastoral.

BETHLEHEM. Shepherds' Music.

BETHLEHEM. Gounod's quaint Carol.

BABYLON'S WAVE. Psalm cxxxvii.

BABYLON'S WAVE. Gounod's Hymn.

BABYLON'S WAVE. As a Chorus, 4s.

BABYLON'S WAVE. As a Solo, 3s.

BABYLON'S WAVE. Orchestral Parts, 10s.

BABYLON'S WAVE. Tender.

BABYLON'S WAVE. Passionate.

BABYLON'S WAVE. Gounod's Lament.

GODFREY'S FLORENCE VALSE. 4s.

GODFREY'S ILMA VALSE. 4s.

GODFREY'S QUEEN OF THE ISLES QUAD. 4s.

GODFREY'S MAYFAIR GALOP. 4s.

GODFREY'S SHINE-WINE LANCERS, 4s.

GODFREY'S COLDSTREAM GUARDS' QUAD. 4s.

CAPTAIN COLLOMB'S SONGS.—Shortly, "Lucknow," "Cawnpore," "Delhi," "Jellalabad," "The Relief of Lucknow," "Sir Colin Campbell," "The Fallen," &c. Cited Edition. "Balaklava," 3s.
CHARLES SHEARD and Co., 192, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. send all the above Music of Gounod or Godfrey, at half the marked price, and post-free, for 18 stamps. Catalogues, 5s.; or from 12 to One Month to be sent by post. Country orders executed. The latest and best publications of the day, sent free on application.
Cramer and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street, W.

CHANG.—THE GREAT FYCHOW GALOP, by C. GODFREY, Composer of "La Mascotte Valse" Solo or Duet, "Cracovienne," "Fairy Queen," "Les Murmures de la Sayenne," "Marguerite," "Mabel," "Cinderella," and "Fairy Fingers." Illustrated. DUFF and HODGSON, 26, Oxford-street.

LA MURSEA VALSE. This elegant and fascinating Waltz, composed and Illustrated in Colours by Charles D. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the 1st or the Royal Regiment of Dragoon Guards, is the first of the new Dance Music published by DUFF and HODGSON, 26, Oxford-street.

PARFAIT AMOUR.—E. L. HIME'S charming Song, with Violoncello Obbligato, sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, with immense success, for 12 stamps; Duet, 18 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, Oxford-st.

SONGS FOR WINTER EVENINGS. "If" (Song of Forgiveness), by Balfe. "Love whispered once" (The Chase), by F. Stanislas Osmond. "The Christmas Tree," by Lindsay Sloper. "Sweet Spring-time," by Wallace. "The Bird's Song," by Benedict. "Rest and Unrest," by Virginia Gabriel. Price 2s. each.
ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.—Just published, each 2s. 6d., post-free, 30 stamps.
Beautiful Isle of the Sea.
The Song of the Lark. Duet.
Three Christmas Carols (Sacred).
Twenty Songs.
Twenty Duets.
Twenty Sacred Songs.
I'm lonely to-night.
Life of the Party.
ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.—Just published, each 2s. 6d., post-free, 30 stamps.
Beautiful Isle of the Sea.
The Song of the Lark. Duet.
Three Christmas Carols (Sacred).
Twenty Songs.
Twenty Duets.
Twenty Sacred Songs.
I'm lonely to-night.
Life of the Party.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW and BEAUTIFUL SONG, A SAILOR'S LIFE FOR ME.
Written by Russell. Price 3s. Likely to become even more popular than his celebrated "Life on the Ocean Wave."
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

COMING SONGS FOR WINTER EVENINGS.
Hills were ever dearer. | Christopher—Chris.
The Good-tempered Man. | Martin, the Milkman's Daughter
Jolly Gale. | Sweet Spring-time.
The Lavender-Girl.
Ho, Mike and the Postman.
The Fairy Boy Implanted.
The Sailor Boy.
Pretty Little Girl Glove. 3s.
Lassitude's Dale.
Won't that a pull back.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

I WENT A-ROAMING THRO' THE FIELDS AWAY.
EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY O, &c., easy airs(s by Prof. Macolm, has met with extraordinary success.—HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S EARLY IN THE MORNING VARIATIONS. Price 4s.
HOWARD and CO., 19, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT SANDRINGHAM.
COOTE'S ALEXIA VALSE. Price 4s.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

A MERRY SET
COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

THE NEW LANCERS.
COOTE'S ECHOES of LONDON LANCERS.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

THE NEW GALOP.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.
COOTE'S HUMMINGBIRD VALSE. Price 4s.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT.
COOTE'S NEW ALBUM OF DANCE-MUSIC. Price 10s. 6d. net, beautifully bound and elegantly illustrated.—HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O-LINK POLKA. Arranged by COOTE. Price 3s. With the Bird-call.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC.
A WARBLING AT EVE ("With star on star"). New Song, by CIRO PINSUTI. Sung by Mr. J. Parry. Price 3s. Illustrated in Colours.
THE LUCIOLE SONG. (F. Abt.) Sung by M. Lévêque. Price 3s. Illustrated in Colours.
I'LL TRY THEE! (T. Abt.) Sung by Miss. Harrington. Price 3s. Illustrated in Colours.
SWEET LILIES. Song by Miss. Harrington. Price 3s. Illustrated in Colours.
CALLER HERRIN. For Piano. By G. F. West. 4s.
THE MORNING PRAYER. THE EVENING PRAYER. Sacred Songs. By Miss M. Lindsay (Mrs. J. W. Davis). Each 3s.
THE CHRISTMAS TREE. Song. By Lindsay Sloper. 3s.
THE GOOD-NIGHT. Song. By Lindsay Sloper. 3s.
COLLEN AHOON QUADRILLE. By Fred. Godfrey. 4s.
COLLEN AHOON LANCERS. By Fred. Godfrey. 4s.
BONNY FOR WE LADY. Song. By W. Vincent Wallace. 3s.
THE LOVE-LIGHT. Song. By W. Vincent Wallace. Price 3s. Illustrated in Colours.
UNITED SERVICE QUADRILLE. Piano Solo and Duet. 4s. Full Orchestra, 10s. Septet, 5s. Sextet, 4s.
UNITED SERVICE GALOP. Piano Solo, 3s., and Duet, 4s. All composed by Charles D'ALBERT, and Illustrated in Colours, by one of his pupils, with an extra sheet to each for postage.
ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, Regent-street, and Publishers to the Queen.

JOLLY OLD FRIENDS QUADRILLE. For Pianoforte. Finely Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.
ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, Agents for India: Messrs. Rudolphus and Co., Calcutta.

THE NEW WALTZ-CLOG CONCERTINA for Piano, by post-free, the Latest Edition of ETIQUETTE OF THE BALL-ROOM, and Guide to all the New and Fashionable Dances; containing Illustrations and Descriptions of the Valse à Deux Temps (Varsovienne), with Music and Instructions respecting the Toilet and Deportment. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Price 1s. Post-free, 13 stamps.
ROBERT COCKS, New Burlington-street, W., and all Musicsellers.

MUSIC FOR PRIZE and Post-free. The High Prize of Music. All full-price Music of every description published and forwarded on application to any part of the Kingdom on receipt of stamps to half the price. Catalogues gratis and post-free. Country Orders executed.—CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

RANDALL'S CHRISTMAS DRAWING-ROOM ENTERTAINMENTS IN THE BRITTEN. The recently written, Up-to-date Incidents of the Season. Sc. 64. Post-free, 13 stamps.—RANDALL'S MAGIC, 19, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W. Sc. 64.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by CRABB, Jun., Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, Double Action, Rosewood and Ebony, 3 guineas. Best Rosewood, 4 guineas. Sc. 64.
HOWARD and CARW, 19, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS. The COTTAGE, price 20 guineas; and the NEW CHURCH HARMONIUM, 30 guineas. Sc. 64. Illustrated Lists Gratis and Post-free.
Holles-street.

HARMONIUMS for CHURCHES and DRAWING-ROOMS, from 12 guineas. All BOOSEY and CO.'S Instruments have Two Rows of Keys.
Holles-street.

DIANOFORTES.—The Miniature, price 37 guineas. The 25-guinea Piano has the Check Action.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, W.

DIANOFORTE (The Model Cottage), price 20 guineas. Sc. 64. BOOSEY and Co.'s Pianos are of the best English manufacture.
24, Holles-street, W.

BRATTEN'S PERFECTED FLUTES, the Best Instruments of Modern Times. Also, for Sale, Rudall, Carlile, and Rose's Flutes.
BOOSEY and CO., Manufacturers, Holles-street, London.

CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINAS still maintain their unrivalled reputation. These Instruments are manufactured by the Inventors.—CASE BROTHERS, 294, Regent-street, Manufacturers, Holles-street.

MUSICAL BOXES.—A New Assortment, containing all the newest and most popular Music, just arrived from Geneva. Lists of Prices on application to BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE are immeasurably superior to all others. The largest stock in London, at 241, Regent-street (opposite Nos. 14 to 20), or 15, Lombard-street, and 56, Cheapside, E.C.

BURROWS' LANDSCAPE GLASSES, 21s. 42s. 63s. Best manufactured, Invented, For the Sea, Field, or Gypsy. 4 telescopic grade.—Early by W. and J. BURROWS, Opticians and Mathematical Instrument Makers, 6, Berners-street, McCulloch, 56, Cheapside, and 21, Leadenhall-street.

UNITED SERVICE CHRONOMETER WATCH. Price £5 10s.—SMITH, BRIX, and SON, 31, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, S.W.
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

MANGOLA, a New Game. By the Author of "Bagatelle," "Solitaire," &c. Price 2s. 6d. of most Fancy Repositories; Wholesale, JAQUES and SON, 102, Hatton-garden.

JAQUES'S NEW WINTER GAMES. Price 2s. 6d. each. Bagatelle, Solitaire, Spillikins, &c. No. 64. Enfield Skittles, No. 64, and No. 64. Pennibolorum, in the Box, with Ball complete. Bowls, Quoits, Nine-pins, Ninepenny Skittles, Parlour Skittles, &c. Illustrated Lists Gratis. Wholesale, JAQUES and Son, 102, Hatton-garden. Also, Nos. 64, Enfield Skittles; No. 64, Bagatelle; No. 64, Solitaire; No. 64, Spillikins; No. 64, Pennibolorum; No. 64, Bowls; No. 64, Quoits; No. 64, Nine-pins; No. 64, Ninepenny Skittles; No. 64, Parlour

ILLUSTRATED BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS.

THE new edition of Mr. Tennyson's last poem, "Enoch Arden," with the charming illustrations by Mr. Arthur Hughes, will be eagerly caught up by those who are casting about for a suitable Christmas present. The publishers, Messrs Moxon, have enabled us to present our readers with an example of the engravings, which, we believe, have been executed from photographs made on the blocks, direct from the artist's designs. Who does not recognise the pair of lovers, "Enoch and Annie, sitting hand in hand," as they were found one autumn evening by Philip Ray, when the young people had made up a nutting party among the hazels, and these two had strayed away from their merry companions to exchange their vows of mutual affection in the green hollow of the wood? Here is Enoch, the brave young fisherman, "his large gray eyes and weather-beaten face all kindled by a still and sacred fire." He has saved his wages and bought himself a boat, "and made a home for Annie half way up the narrow street that clambered to the mill;" and he has now gained her consent to share with him the cares, the toils, and the blessings of a honest poor man's life. The rest of their story is known.

"ENOCH ARDEN."—"ENOCH AND ANNIE SITTING HAND IN HAND."

We may notice here a volume published by Messrs. Routledge and Sons, entitled "A Round of Days," in which a happy idea has been harmoniously worked out by the co-operation of poets and artists, who could not have had a more varied theme than the alternate cloud and sunshine of human life. We have not space for the reproduction of any of the delightful poems, and must refer the reader to the book itself, only indicating as specially worthy of attention "A Song on the Going Away," by Jean Ingelow, and the "Pilot-Boat," by William Allingham. If beautiful typography and exquisite binding can do aught to increase the charm of the literary and artistic gems contained in the volume, such aids are not wanting, and in "A round of Days" the Brothers Dalziel have produced a book overflowing with beauties—the whole blended and harmonised by refined taste. We have the pleasure of reprinting one of the illustrations by Mr. F. Walker, who has contributed some of the best in the volume.

"Our Life, Illustrated by Pen and Pencil"—a publication of the Religious Tract Society—is "A Round of Days" in another form. In both the theme is the changing scenes of human existence; but while, in the latter, we journey through the volume in the company of living men and women, the compilers of the former have gathered their materials from a very large field, extending from the Bible itself down to Gerald Massey and W. C. Bennett. They have, nevertheless, produced a most agreeable book, largely sprinkled with illustrations, a specimen of which is reproduced on this page.

The man who has never read "Don Quixote" was once said by somebody to be—well, we forget what; but he who has not got a "Don Quixote" on his bookshelves should at once purchase the one now published by Mr. Warne, or he will miss an opportunity that does not occur every day of obtaining the most remarkable book that was ever written, admirably illustrated, and beautifully printed. The undying story of the Knight of La Mancha is here presented to the English reader in Jarvis's translation; and Mr. Houghton, in his illustrations, has caught much of the humour of his author, and has depicted with great originality the marvellous adventures of him of the Roeful Countenance and his philosophic squire. The Brothers Dalziel, in the execution of the engravings, have seconded Mr. Houghton with great care and judgment, and the book is brought out in a compact and readable shape that will be sure to recommend it to those who want a book to read as well as to look at. By the courtesy of the proprietors, we are enabled to present a specimen of the illustrations.

"OUR LIFE."—"HER CHILDREN RISE UP AND CALL HER BLESSED."

"A ROUND OF DAYS."—SPRING DAYS.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE ART-UNION.

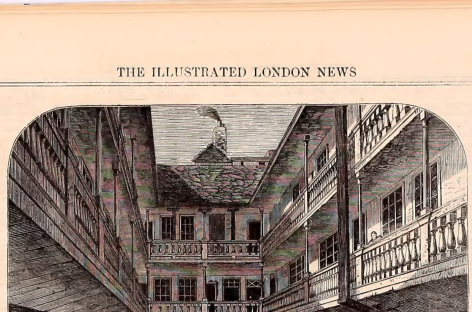
IF it be our duty, as Goethe says, to do all we can for the encouragement of the Beautiful, in preference to the Useful, which is sure to encourage itself, the art-unions deserve our best support. By undertaking to distribute throughout the country those specimens of art-manufacture, they have done much to improve the standard of taste; and few persons above the condition of the village rustic will now be satisfied with the chimneypiece ornaments which used to be found in the homes of the middle class. The place of these grotesque objects is filled by the choice productions of modern designers. The Crystal Palace Art-Union is amongst the foremost in enterprise and liberality. We have selected from a large collection of their presentation works those which are shown in the accompanying illustration. The group consists of "The Bridal Vase," "The Lorline Vase," a Group of Fauns, and "Flora's Hand"—which last is a bouquet-holder, modelled by Mr. G. Halse, an artist of considerable merit and of still greater promise.

DON QUIXOTE FINDING THE CURDS IN HIS HELMET.

THE SPREAD EAGLE INN, GRACECHURCH-STREET.

ANOTHER of the galleried inns of old London has recently disappeared, and the comparatively small plot of ground which the buildings occupied has been sold for a very large sum.

The Spread Eagle, which was one of the oldest coaching inns of the metropolis, stood on the east side of Gracechurch-street, near the north end. The street was named "from the parish church of St. Benet, called Grass-Church of the herb-market there kept," says old Stow, ingenuity; he writes it "Grasse-street," but it was very often written "Gracious-street."



The Spread Eagle, which has just been taken down, was two centuries old, the inn having been rebuilt after the Great Fire of 1666, which destroyed the steeple and the old church of St. Benet, built prior to the year 1190; it was rebuilt, by Wren, in 1685, as we now see it, at the corner of Fenchurch-street.

Of the inn, before the Fire, we find this record. Taylor, the Water Poet, in his "Carrier's Cosmographie," 4to, 1637, mentions "The Tabard near the Conduit," and "the Spread Eagle," both in "Gracious-street." Here, at the Cross Keys, Bankes exhibited the extraordinary feats of his horse, Morocco. Richard Tarlton, the clown, kept a tavern here. He was chosen scavenger, "and often the ward complained of his slackness in keeping the streets cleane."

The heraldic sign was of very early adoption. In Collet's Common-place Book, Addit. MS. in Muses, 5890, we read :—"The eagle with two necks in the Imperial arms, and in the arms of the King of Spain, depicted on sign-boards at the Spread Eagle, signified the east and west empire, the extension of their power from the east to the west." The Spread Eagle was also a noted trader's sign in St. Paul's-churchyard. At the north door of St. Paul's, William Burley, at the sign of the Spread Eagle, in 1605, published "Pamelia," accredited as the earliest practical English book of catches, canons, rounds, and glees. (Burney's Catalogue of the Bendey Tokens.)

The Spread Eagle, we have said, was a noted coaching house; but we do not find very early mention of its coaches in comparison with that of northern coaches as the old York, or the coaches on the Great Western road. The Spread Eagle was doubtless, a carrier's inn in its early period. Here is a trite record of the house fifty years since :—"Turning down Gracechurch-street, on the right, we come to the Spread Eagle Inn and Tavern, kept by Mr. Farly. Here is a good larder, containing everything of the best in season, and affording capital accommodations. Here the mails and principal stage coaches for Kent and other southern counties arrive and depart." (Egerton's Almanack, 1815.)

But it was for fast coaches that the Spread Eagle was noted. Nimrod, writing some thirty years since, says :—"The Brighton road may be said to be covered with coaches, no less than twenty-five running upon it in the summer. The fastest is the Vivid, from the Spread Eagle, Gracechurch-street, which performs the journey in five hours and a quarter. That called the Age, when driven and horsed by the late Mr. Stevenson, was an object of such admiration at Brighton that a crowd was collected every day to see it start."

OLD SPREAD EAGLE TAVERN, GRACECHURCH-STREET, LATELY REMOVED.

Nimrod further tells us something of the proprietorship of the old Spread Eagle :—"It may probably surprise many of our readers to be informed of the extent to which individual persons in England embark their capital in what is termed the coaching line. Mr. Chaplin, who is the occupier of the five following 'yards,' as they are termed, in London—namely, the Spread Eagle and Cross Keys, Gracechurch-street; the Swan with Two Necks, Lad-lane; the White Horse, Petter-lane; and the Angel, behind St. Clement's, has no less than thirteen hundred horses at work, in various coaches, on various roads. Non sensu change : the present representative of the Spread Eagle is a railway office, which is suggestive of wonderful progress since the days of Taylor's 'Carrier's Cosmographie,' printed in 1637. Taylor, as the Water Poet and champion, was strangely upset by the coaches of his time; what would he have said of steamers and railways superseding even the fly waggon?"

As we stand in Gracechurch-street, and look upon the oblong plot of ground whereon stood the Spread Eagle, how suggestive is the place! The inn and the galleried yard have disappeared; but our Engraving will preserve its aspect. The galleries affording access to the several chambers, of the inn, may have accommodated night-loving sojourners and casual visitors. The Cross Keys in the same-street, we know, accommodated spectators of the wonderful feats of Banker's horse—the Duenow of other days. How often have we seen the Spread Eagle yard literally choked up with stage coaches, and heard the fine teams rattle over that stone-paved area!

The site of the Spread Eagle building, which has been cleared, was sold by auction last month. The sale, which was conducted by Messrs. Fox and Bousfield, created unusual excitement at Garraway's. So many persons congregated there, apparently to bid, that even the great room could not hold them, and an adjournment to the London Tavern was necessary. There the plot was sold. It contained in all 17,600 ft., 5600 ft. of which were leasehold for a long term, and the rest freehold. The first bidding was £40,000, and the final one £50,000. The ground, by-the-way, is surrounded on three sides by Leadenhall Market; and here, on the south side, the several traders have projecting boards, bearing their respective name in large capitals, just such as we remember in the Long Room in the old Royal Exchange, when the attorneys of the Lord Mayor's Court kept shop; the lawyers, however, hanging out their names inscribed in gold.

Changes busy at the north and south ends of Gracechurch-street. Stately piles, richly embellished, have taken the places of mean brick houses. The "Grasse-street" of old was a memorable place. To this spot, in 1481, Thomas Hill, then Mayor, gave one hundred marks towards the conveyance of water thither; and here was "one fair conduit of sweet water, castellated, with crest and vein." To the market for grass or herbs, in the reign of Edward III., it was customary for every cart (not belonging to a citizen) laden with corn or malt going there to be sold, to pay one halfpenny; if laden with cheese, two pence. The cart of the franchise of the Temple and St. Martin's-le-Grand paid a farthing; the cart of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem paid nothing for their corpse goods. In Aggas's plan is shown an open place upon which White Hart-court was built after the Great Fire. Ben Jonson, in one of his masques, alludes to the poulterer's wife in Grace's-street. Pepys calls the street "Gracious-street." Nov. 28, 1662, he records the death of "a poulterer in Gracious-street, which was thought rich;" and, on the 27th of the same month, Pepys speaks of the conduit in the quarre four at the end of Gracious-street; "the spout whereof running very near me upon all the people that were under it." And, on Sept. 14, 1665 (the time of the Plague), he was horrified "to see a person sick of the sores carried close by me by Gracechurch, in a hackney coach. He afterwards calls the street "Gracious-street;" for he says, Nov. 25, 1668, "So home, buying a barrel of oysters, at my old oyster woman's in Gracious-street, but over the way to where she kept her shop before (the Fire)." Sir John Fielding, by-the-way, 1776, calls the street "Grasechurch-street, Cornhill."

The Queen has granted the dignity of a Peer of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland unto the Right Hon. Sir John Romilly, Knt., Master or Keeper of the Rolls and Records in Chancery, by the title of Baron Romilly, of Barry, in the county of Glamorgan; her Majesty has also granted the dignity of a Baron of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland unto the Right Hon. Sir Francis Thornhill Baring, Bart., by the the title of Baron Northbrook, of Stratton, in the county of Southampton.

CRYSTAL PALACE ART-UNION PRIZES.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

NEW BOOKS.

NELSON'S LIST of NEW BOOKS and NEW EDITIONS for CHRISTMAS, the NEW YEAR, and the SPRING, 1866, Sold by all Booksellers.
The New Tale, by the Author of "Chronicles of the Schönberg-Cotta Family."
1. WINIFRED BERTRAM, and the World She Lived In. By the Author of "Chronicles, &c. 5s.
"We are told by the author of 'Chronicles of the Schönberg-Cotta Family' has got safely out under weigh, and promises to be as popular with the public as her predecessor."—Times.
2. CHRONICLES OF THE SCHONBERG-COTTA FAMILY. Cheap Edition. 6s.
"As for the present he is, we are confident that most women will be content to read and re-read the Chronicles of the Schönberg-Cotta Family, as it were without wandering that they have gained more interest and something therefore from the perusal."—The Times, Oct. 24, 1865.
3. THE LAMP UNFOLDED. By the Author of "Chronicles, &c. 5s.
3. DIARY OF MRS. KITTY TREVELYAN. A Story of the Days of Mohammed Washington. Crown 8vo, 6s. 6d.
"The great Evangelical movement of the present century, which, while still in progress, has already produced such wonderful fruits, is one which will not be complete in the history of Mahomedanism until the Millennium."—The Times, Oct. 13, 1865.
4. THE DAYS OF JEZEBEL. By the Author of "Chronicles, &c. 5s.
4. SKETCHES OF CHRISTIAN LIFE IN ENGLAND IN THE LAST CENTURY. By the Author of "Chronicles, &c. 5s.
5. WANDERINGS OVER BIBLE LANDS AND SEAS. With Two Photographs and other Illustrations. Crown 8vo, price 6s.
6. THE APOSTLE OF THE NORTH. The Life and Labours of St. Ansgar, Archbishop of Hamburg. By the Rev. JOHN KENNEDY, Hon. Mem. Roy. Soc. Lit. 6s.
7. THE LAMP FROM THE WOUND. By A. L. O. E. Post 8vo, price 2s. 6d.
8. RESCUED FROM EGYPT. By A. L. O. E. Post 8vo, price 2s. 6d.
9. EXILES IN BABYLON. By A. L. O. E. Post 8vo, price 2s. 6d.
10. FAIRY NOW-A-BIT. A Tale for the Young. By A. L. O. E. Post 8vo, price 2s. 6d.
11. ANNA, the Servant Maiden, &c., new Eighteenpenny Book, by the author of Threshold-grass Rectory, &c.
4. MIRAH BEN HAMMED; or, LIFE IN DAILY LIFE. By A. L. O. E. Illustrated by H. The Rising Cub, Lion, and Lamb. Crown 8vo, 3s. 6d.
"Mirah Ben Hammed, a Scotch boy, and Ben Hammed, a Moorish child, are the chief characters in this story."—Daily News.
GEMS OF ENGLISH POETRY. Illustrated by great Artists. Royal 8vo, elegantly bound in cloth extra, full gilt side and edges, 21s.
THE ILLUSTRATED BOOK OF NURSERY RHYMES. Containing Old Favourites and Many New Ones. With 24 Full-page Illustrations by Anelay Hancock. Small 4to, cloth extra, price 5s. 6d.
NEW EDITIONS OF NINEPENNY BOOKS, beautifully Illustrated. Neat, cloth extra, gilt edges, 7 vols. Fcap 8vo, price 9s. the Set; or each Book separately, 1s. 3d. each.
The Set, viz.—Little Lessons for Little Learners. By Mrs. Frances Tallen in Words, Verse, No. 3. Rhymes for Little Readers. No. 4. Stories for Little Readers. No. 5. Stories for Little Readers. No. 6. Stories for Little Readers. No. 7. Stories for Little Readers.
A NEW SPARTY TREASURY for 1866. Edited by the Rev. Archibald Campbell. Monthly, price 6d. To be had of all Booksellers.
"The Family Treasury" for 1866 will contain, from month to month, numerous elegant stories by the Author of "Mamma," "Oh, Such Fibs of the Sea," by the Author of "The Schönberg-Cotta Family," &c.
Yearly Volume can be had, bound for Presents.
THE FAMILY TREASURY. Price 7s. 6d.
Illustrated Edition. Price 7s. 6d.
PERIODICALS FOR 1866.
Monthly, price 6d., or Stamped 8 Year.
1. THE CHILDREN'S PAPER. Beautifully Illustrated. With Stories by A. L. O. E., and other Favourite Writers.
Uniform with the Children's Paper, and same price.
2. THE HAPPY HOME. Illustrated. Consisting of Tales and Short Stories, and Papers for Sunday Reading.
Weekly, price 1d., or Stamped 2d.
THOMAS NELSON AND SONS, 19, Paternoster-row, London.

Elegantly bound in cloth, gilt edges, price 7s. 6d.,
DIAMOND DUST. Collected by ELIZA COOK.
"A charming volume."—Spectator.
"A rich collection."—Morning Post.
"Full of genius."—Examiner.

Extra cloth gilt, gilt edges, price 7s. 6d.,
LOVE. Selections from the Poets.
"Has been happily put together, for the most part, from the choicest gems of the kind, and unerring."—British Standard.
"Everything that is said, or can be said, on the theme of love is an interesting and valued friend."—Norfolk News.
JAMES S. HOGG, 15, Paternoster-row, E.C.

HATCHARD and CO., 187, Piccadilly, Publishers to the Queen and Her Royal Family, have issued, which remains of the largest assortment in London of Religious Works, 12th Edition, 1865, 12mo, 3s. 6d. cloth, gilt edges, with Maps, Woodcuts, and Steel Engravings, in every variety of sumptuous, useful, and elegant binding.
Hatchard and Co. have also the largest stock of Bibles, Prayer-books, and Church Services of the best quality, bound in the newest styles. A Catalogue forwarded gratis.

Seventh Edition, price 3s. 6d., by post 3s. 8d.,
WHIST, THE LAWS AND PRINCIPLES OF. By "CAVENDISH."
RANCE'S GUIDE, Winchester-street, W.

Now ready, New Edition, 18s. Bound by Bickel Foster, price 3s. 6d.,
THE BLUE RIBBONS: a Story of the Last Century.
By ANNA MARIE DUDY.
"A very charming tale.—Spectator.
"A very pleasant and instructive Country."—Athenæum.
"As graceful a little tale as we have met with for some time."—Literary Gazette.
JAMES NISBET AND CO., 21, Berners-street.

WHIST. The Pocket Series. By CAVENDISH. Pocket Guide enlarged, 32mo, 1s. Laws (Club Code), 1d. Pocket Rules for Leading to Trumps, 1d. Leaden Counter, 1d. Pocket Rules for Score, 1d. Card of all Bookseller and Stationers.

SUPERIOR SCHOOL BOOKS.
BUTTER'S READING and SPELLING in 36 EASY LESSONS. 18th Edition, Price 1s. 6d.
BUTTER'S ETYMOLOGICAL SPELLING-BOOK and DICTIONARY. 29th Edition, 12mo, 3s. 6d.
BUTTER'S ANALYTICAL 17th Edition, Price 6d.
Butter and Co., Whitefriar and Co., Longman and Co.

DR. THOMAS BULL'S TWO MANUALS FOR MOTHERS.
Sold by all Booksellers, or sent post free for stamps.
THE MATERNAL MANAGEMENT OF CHILDREN IN HEALTH AND DISEASE. By THOMAS BULL, M.D. 5s.
Ninth Edition, Revised Edition, price 2s.
HINTS TO MOTHERS ON THE MANAGEMENT OF THE CHILD-BOOM. During Pregnancy and in the Lying-in Room. By THOMAS BULL, M.D.
London: LONGMANS, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

THE OFFICIAL
CHRISTMAS DOUBLE PART
OF THE
YOUNG LADIES' JOURNAL.
Price One Shilling; or post-free, 1s. 4d.
London: J. H. Haverstock, Bookseller-square; and all Booksellers.

GRATIS.—THE SECRET OF SPELLING MADE EASY.
Published by T. M. PEIRCE, 69, Queen's-road, Brighton.

Nineteenth Thousand, 8vo, cloth, 12s.
HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE.
By J. LAURIE, M.D. Specially adapted to the use of the private family. Containing Directions for the Selection of the proper Homœopathic Medicine, the Cause of Medicines arranged in the former work, price 6s., and in the latter, price 10s. 6d. Parts and Sons, 8, Vere-st., Oxford-st.; and 3, St. Paul's-ch.-yard.

LETTS'S DIARIES FOR 1866 are sold in above 100 varieties, at from 6d. to 4l. each, by every Bookseller and Stationer in town and the British Colonies. Illustrated and descriptive Catalogues gratis.
"LETTS'S POCKET DIARY No. 9, interleaved with blotting is the cheapest Book-size Diary issued."—Times.
Size 6½ by 3½, 7½ by 4, 9 by 5, and 10½ by 5½.
CHRISTMAS GIFT.—Nothing can be prettier than LETTS'S LADY'S VICTORIA GOLDEN ALMANACK for 1866, in 32 pages of exquisite enamel and gold, exclusive everything necessary for the year's reference.
London: Letts's (late Mitchell's), 8, Royal Exchange; 33, Cornhill; and 8, Bucklersbury.

NEW BOOKS.

ELEGANT PRESENT.
Third Edition.—Now ready, at all Booksellers', with Frontispiece by F. Gilbert, tinted paper, crown 8vo, price 6s.
BEAUTIES OF TROPICAL SCENERY, in LEGEND, HISTORIES, AND LOVE SONGS. With Notes. To which are added, LAYS SHAKEN ROUND.
By ALFRED DOWLING.
"It is a volume of genuine poetry."—Morning Post.
"A bouquet of poetical flowers."—Morning Star.
"Full of fine thoughts and fine feelings."—Illustrated Times.
London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

Now ready, Second Edition, 5s. 6d. cloth, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.,
SALVATOR MUNDI, Brief Meditations on the Life of Christ. Selected from Great Divines. With 12 Photographs after Raffaelle, L. da Vinci, Bolini, Carocci, Sassoferrato, &c.
DEIGHTON, BELL, and CAMBRIDGE; and HALL and VIRTUE, London.

In small 4to, cloth, 5s.,
HARRY LAWTON'S ADVENTURES; or, Under the Equator. By Captain Lascelles Iberg. Sixty-seven Engravings.
GRIFFITH, FARRAN, OKEDEN, and WELSH, 55, Fleet-street.

In crown 8vo, with Frontispiece, 3s.,
CHARITY ELSTONE. By Mrs. CAREY BROCK.
"Likely writers. There are 'Mrs. Brock' feelings displayed in the story."—Daily News.
GRIFFITH, FARRAN, OKEDEN, and WELSH, 55, Fleet-street.

A NEW SACRED EPIC POEM.
Just published, price 5s. cloth, post-free, 5s. 6d.,
ELIJAH THE PROPHET.
By WASHINGTON MOORE, Esq.
"A noble volume."—Illustrated London News.
"Full of noble religious purport."—Sunday Times.
"A work of genuine piety and poetic genius."—Public Opinion.
"Full of beautiful passages."—Bell's Life.
"Contains many passages of considerable merit."—Athenæum.
London: HAMILTON AND CO., 189, Piccadilly, London.

Now in One Vol., Royal 8vo, cloth, 21s.,
THE LAW OF COPYHOLD; or, The Law of Estates at the Will of the Lord according to the Custom of the Manor. With the Statutes relating thereto, and Forms. By SIR JOHN BAYLEY, Bart., late Recorder of Dudley. Fifth Edition, revised and enlarged throughout, and brought down to the present time, by EDWARD BAYLEY, Esq., of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law, and to be Lord of all Booksellers.

THE NEW CHRISTIAN STORY-BOOK.
PICTURES OF SOCIETY, GRAVE AND GAY. By the Author of "Recollections of a Governess." Illustrated by Gilbert and Weir. Crown 8vo, 5s. cloth, gilt edges.
"Pictures of Society, Grave and Gay," by the author of "Recollections of a Governess," is one of the best books we have had for Christmas. Mr. Gilbert and Weir on the best crown paper. Illustrated by the Rev. Francis Paget, Rector of Elsfield, Oxon; Mrs. Gaskell, Cousin Phillis; The Rev. Charles Kingsley, Two Years Ago; Mrs. Craik, John Halifax; Cornwall, True Heart, Richard Doyle's Fairy Land; Mrs. Gatty, Parables from Nature; Mrs. Ewing, Mrs. Walter Thornbury, &c. Royal 4to, cloth, gilt edges, 21s. Morocco, 31s. 6d.
London: BEMROSE LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Lodgate-hill.

Just published, price 5s.,
THE DIVINE AND MORAL SONGS OF DR. WATTS. A new and very choice Edition. With Illustrations by Absolon, Birket Foster, Gilbert, Weir, Dalziel, Evans, &c. Printed by Dalziel. Designs in ornamental borders by Owen Jones. Bound in cloth, gilt, the best white paper by Clay. Small 4to, price 5s. 6d.
London: GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

Just published, price 5s. 6d.,
SAMPSON LOW and CO.'S New Specimen. A list of Books suitable for Presents and Gift-Books published or put-to-press in receipt of the postage-stamps. Also the Jubilee Catalogue, 1865 to 1865.
SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, 47, Ludgate-hill.

Just published, price 5s.,
MORE SHELLS FOR THE OCEAN. Also the Jubilee Catalogue, 1865 to 1865.
SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, 47, Ludgate-hill.

A NEW EDITION OF THE LAW of CONTRACTS.
By W. DAVIDSON, Esq.
MURRAY and CO., 50, Patersoster-row.

CHESS.—THE CHESS-PLAYER'S CHRONICLE. Edited by J. HOWARD JOHNSTON. Price one shilling.
London: BELL, YORK and CO., and all Booksellers.

NEW SERIES OF PARISH BIBLE BOOKS.
Edited by J. ESDAILE CLARKE, M.A.
Illustrated with Engravings on Wood and Steel.
Price 1s. each, bound in cloth.
1. DEB CLIVER'S TRIALS. 2. DEB'S DAUGHTER. 3. CAN SHE KEEP A SECRET. Especially for Servant-Girls.
"A GOOD STORY-TELLER."—Illustrated Times.
London: WILLIAM MACINTOSH, Paternoster-row.

GOOD STORIES.
By J. ESDAILE CLARKE, M.A.
Price Threepence, Monthly.
Illustrated, and Numbers and Parts Printed in a clear Type and on a fine Paper, for every scholar's use to hold fastest to read." Each Story complete in itself. Price 3d. Each Number contains 48 pages. Part I. (Jan. to March), 1s. Part II. (April to June), 1s. Part III. (July to Sept.), 1s. Part IV. (Oct. to Dec.), 1s.
THE FOSTER BROTHERS. The Story for January.
"Mr. Clarke's Stories are very good."—The Rev. F. D. Maurice, Master's Yard."
"Excellent."—The Freemasons. 2. Four Lads and their Lives. 3. Gerty Grant. 4. Playfield's Plot. 5. Grace Roche's Legacy. 7. Playfield's Plot. 8. Grace Roche's Legacy. 7. Playfield's Plot. 8. Grace Roche's Legacy. 7. Playfield's Plot. 8

FINDLATER, MACKIE, and CO., 19, Wellington-street, Strand, London, W.C., 31, Store-street, S.W.
WINE SPIRIT, AND ALE MERCHANTS.
Brandy, Jas's Cognac, pale or brown ... 12s. per gal.
Hollands Geneva ... 12s. ,,
Rum, Jamaica ... 12s. ,,
Whisky (Scotch Comet) Old Malt ... 16s. ,,
Ditto, A 1, Old Irish three-collared ... 20s. ,,
Port, Flask or Crusted ... 24s. 6d. ,,
Sherry, rich as delicious ... 24s. ,,
Terms, cash on delivery.

CHRISTMAS HAMPERS.—Seasonable Presents.—The IMPERIAL WINE COMPANY (Limited), 8, Fenchurch-street (opposite Custom-house), Tower-street, E.C., continue, as for some years past, to supply their CHRISTMAS HAMPERS of Wines, Spirits, Liqueurs, Cordials, Ales, Cigars, and bottles (empty) of the choicest two bottles port, two imperial champagne, four bottles sherry, one brandy, one gin, one rum, one whisky. N.B. The Imperial Wine Company (Limited), being removed their offices and cellars from 314, Oxford-street, to 8, Fenchurch-street, E.C.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE
Is pronounced by Connoisseurs
THE CLASSIC SAUCE.
None genuine without name on wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper.
Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Soho-sq., and Export Oilmen and Italian warehousemen.

DURE PICKLES, Sauces, Jams, and Table Delicacies of the highest quality.—See "Lancet," and Dr. Hassall's Report. May be obtained from all Wine Merchants and Grocers; and wholesale of the Manufacturers, CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to the Queen, Soho-square, London.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR
is recommended for
CHILDREN'S DIET.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR,
Puddings, Custards, Blancmanges, &c.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR
is refined to a Purity and Whiteness with which only the finest, highest-priced Arrow-root can be compared.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR.
Each Packet is signed by Mrs. Malone,
John Brown, John Polson.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER is Patronised by the Queen's private baker.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER saves eggs and butter.

GREAT NOVELTY.—Just out, a Preparation for the Beautifying of the Hair, Whiskers, and Moustachios, called ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL, 20, Hatton-garden, London, E.C. A MACE, 32, Holborn-hill-circus, London, W.C.

TONIC BITTERS.—WATERS'S QUININE WINE, the most agreeable and wholesome tonic to exercise the Nerves, Stomach, and unequalled stimulant, and a gentle stimulant. Sold by all Wine Merchants, Grocers, Chemists, and Italian Warehousemen, and Wholesale, 26, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W. Williams's Martin's-lane, Cannon-street, London. Wholesale Agents, CHAPMAN and CO.

PEPSINE
MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE,
MORSON'S PEPSINE LOZENGES,
are perfectly identical in composition with the Pepsine regularly ready for use in the Human Stomach for digesting food. 30, Southampton-row, and 8vo, 31, 32, and 124, Theobald's-road, London, W.C.

Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s. 6d., and 18s. each.
Lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 6s. 6d. each.

JUDSON'S MAGENTA CRYSTALS, POWDERS, and LIQUID, for coloration. Observe the name on each packet. Sold by Daniel Judson and Son, 65, Fleet-street, London.—N.B. A variety of other colours may be had.

FURNITURE FOR H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

HAIR DYE.—BATCHELOR'S (Established 1840) INSTANTANEOUS COLORATIVE, the best in the world. The only one that possesses the well effects of Nyl Hydrate of Silver. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, and at No. 81, Wigmore-street, W., and 53, City-road, E.C.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss ROWLAND'S Kalydor, for Softening, Improving, and Beautifying the Skin, Preserving the Teeth, and Strengthening the Gums, is the best article ever introduced for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, Miss Tuley, Pickering-place, St. James's.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED No. 100,000 OIL is the only article that really possesses restorative virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. It is the purest and most fragrant. To be had only of the inventor, N. Price and Co., 37, Old Bond-st., 84, 85, 86, 87, and 88, Gt. Russell-st.

CURLY HAIR.—See GOLDER'S HAIR CURLER, prepared by CHARLES BOND, Court Hairdresser, and purchaser of the Secret of Mr. Holme the Inventor, 295, Oxford-st., 1, Hanover-st., 24, Conduit-st., 19, Old-st., and 8a, Bishopsgate-st. Within. Sold by all Perfumers and Hairdressers. Beware of spurious imitations in the alphabet spelling the name.

HOW TO MAKE a Pint of a Superlative Perfumed HAIR WASH for NOTHING. Ingredients and Directions for Making, sent free by return of the stamp by the Sole Manufacturer and Chemist, Hastings.

ELDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA, 3s. 6d., 6s., and 11s. per Bottle.
The best restorative cleanser and beautifier for the hair.
No. 12, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

TORRE'S CHILBLAINS.
MATTHEWS CHILBLAIN PLASTER, for broken or unbroken Chilblains, a sure cure for Contusion during the Winter. Chemist, 1, Wigmore-street, W., Maker of the Pile Skin Bag, or needle for the back.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS
Immediately relieve the most violent ID of Coughing. They have a pleasant taste.
At 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box, by all Druggists.

TO MOTHERS and INVALIDS.—ELAM'S ARROWROOT SUPPORTERS for Infants, Invalids, and Children of superior construction. Price, 5s. and 10s. 6d. Directions for self-measurement sent free. Only Address, Uniformities.

COOPER'S COUGH LOZENGES contain the active principles of the pectoral herbs, and are an assistant of relief that any other remedy. Price 1s. per box: by post, 14 stamps. 17, Coppice, Ashford-street, N.

LEWIS'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT,
a specific Cure for Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout,
Sciatica, Lumbago, Tumours,
Sprains, Bruises, Scalds, Burns,
Chilblains, Sore Throat, &c.
Sealing-wax Wood Blocks, &c.
Sold in Bottles (with directions), prices 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d.,
by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors.
John Lewis, 220, Oxford-street, London, W.

CONSUMPTION.—DR. CHURCHILL'S successful Treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Chest, Chronic Coughs, Spasmodic Asthma, Loss of Appetite, Low Fever, Sprains of Hypophosphite of Lime, Soda, and Iron, and by the Pills of Hypophosphite of Quinine, Strychnine, and Iron. Sold by J. Fenner, 67, New Bond-st., 46, per bottle. Wholesale and Retail Agents, DINNEFORD and CO., Chemists, 172, Bond-street, London.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Indigestion, Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, and all kindred complaints.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

CATTLE PLAGUE.—Public Notice.—The Directors of the Metropolitan Cattle Market Company hereby give notice that it is INTENDED to OPEN the said Market on the 1st of May next, for the Sale of Cattle, Sheep, and Pigs only. The Commissioners also recommend to Alien Merchants, Manufacturing Chemists, Wine-growers, Meat-preservers, and others, the Spacious Premises in the Metropolis, Islington, St. Mary's Abbey, in Grosvenor-road, Pimlico, and Victoria-street, St. Bride's, Mr. Anderson, Mary's Abbey.

PETER ROBINSON'S.
FOR EVENING DRESSES, OR SUMMER WEAR,
RICH SILK GRENADINES.
Just purchased from France and Germany
Several Manufacturers' Stocks of the above article.
The whole of which will be offered at a most extraordinary sacrifice,
And now being sold at one-third their value.
A large and elegant assortment of Patterns post-free.
103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

AN UNUSUALLY LARGE STOCK OF TARTAN SILK ALL DRESSES,
All New Patterns, at 18s. 9d. each (extra quality).
These Dresses are 9½ in. Wide, and Trimmed Throughout.
Also, several hundred Rich Silks and Beads Trimmed Robes,
Reduced from 3 Guineas to 1 Guinea each.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON'S.
A SUPERIOR QUALITY, KNOWN AS
"ROYAL" ABERDEEN WINCEY,
In 27 New Checks and Stripes, Fast Colours,
At 9½ to 11½ d., the Full Dress.
Some very useful qualities, from 7½ to 9½ d., the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A VERY FINE FOUR-WARP WINTER DRESS.
RUSSIAN SILK LINSEYS,
In a choice Collection of Beautiful Colours, from 7½ to 9½ d. the Full Dress.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FANCY FLANNELS,
Of every Device, Colour, and Quality, in Long
Gentlemen's Shirts, 42 in. to 56 in. to the yard.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON'S.
BLACK SILKS,
Manufactured expressly both sides alike,
At 2s. 6d. the Full Dress of 12 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FOR WEDDING and EVENING COSTUME.
Thirty new and beautiful Shades and Colours, from 7½ to 9 guineas.
Patterns post-free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

IRISH POPLINS,
The most elastic material to be had,
In every Shade,
At 2½ guineas the Dress.
PETER ROBINSON'S,
103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

ENGLISH AND FRENCH ANTIQUES,
In every shade,
SPECIAL.—300 PIECES OF NEW FANCY CHECK SILKS, all of Extra Quality, at 2½ guineas the Dress of 12 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON'S.
WOOL SHAWLS,
In every size and shape,
Consist of the combined imitation of the scarce, PETER ROBINSON'S Shawls, and are manufactured for Peter Robinson, in themselves, enabled to sell at 25s. 9d. these Shawls, which are usually sold at 31s. 6d. and 42s., under which name I produce.
102, 104, 103, 106, 107, 108, Oxford-street, W.

OPERA MANTLES.
Scotch Plaids in all the New Colours in
The genuine PETER ROBINSON'S
"ROYAL" CLOTH,
To be seen in every variety, prices from 2½ to 5 guineas.
Also, a Choice Collection of Rich Velvet Mantles.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON'S.
WATERPROOF MANTLES for Travelling and Shooting, in various colours and shades.
6 qrs. long, 10s. 6d.; 7 qrs. long, 12s. 6d.; 8 qrs. long, 14s. 6d.; 9 qrs. long, 16s. 6d.; 10 qrs. long, 18s. 6d.; 11 qrs. long, 21s.; 12 qrs. long, 25s.
The same sizes and colours, with Sleeves, and with Buttoned Cuffs, at 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d., 16s. 6d., 18s. 6d., 21s., 25s., and 29s.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

VELVET MANTLES.—A perfectly New Shape, in Rich Velvet, Trimmed with Fringe and Ornaments, Jackets, Velvet Bodices, Velvet Skirts, Velvet Dresses, The New Autumn Fashions free on application.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON.
REAL SEAL-FUR PALETOTS.
Special Notice.
PETER ROBINSON begs respectfully to announce that, notwithstanding the great advance in price of Seal-fur Skins, it is his intention to SELL the above Paletots at the same prices as last year—Seal-fur Jackets and other Mantles at last year's prices. All that have been since the commencement of the season. The prices will be found as follows:—
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON'S.
LADIES Purchasing HORSEHAIR CRINOLINE PETTICOATS, Stitcher Jupons, Quilted Alpaca Petticoats, Velvet Bodices, Velvet Skirts, Velvet Dresses, Velvet Mantles, Velvet Jackets, Velvet Paletots, Velvet Trimmings, Velvet Fringes, Velvet Ornaments, Velvet Buttons, Velvet Cuffs, Velvet Collars, Velvet Sleeves, Velvet Flounces, Velvet Bands, Velvet Ribbons, Velvet Facings, Velvet Edgings, Velvet Pipings, Velvet Quillings, Velvet Plaitings, Velvet Gimps, Velvet Laces, Velvet Braids, Velvet Insertions, Velvet Galloons, Velvet Ruches, Velvet Rouleaux, Velvet Frillings, Velvet Puffings, Velvet Ruchings, Velvet Bindings, Velvet Cords, Velvet Tassels, Velvet Ties, Velvet Sashes, Velvet Scarfs, Velvet Stripes, Velvet Checks, Velvet Spots, Velvet Figures, Velvet Flowers, Velvet Leaves, Velvet Sprigs, Velvet Wreaths, Velvet Garlands, Velvet Festoons, Velvet Drapery, Velvet Muffs, Velvet Boas, Velvet Tippets, Velvet Capes, Velvet Hoods, Velvet Caps, Velvet Bonnets, Velvet Hats, Velvet Feathers

CHAPPELL AND CO.'S PIANOFORTES AND HARMONIUMS,

50, NEW BOND-STREET.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS.—PRIZE MEDALS were awarded to CHAPPELL and CO. for Pianofortes and Harmoniums at the International Exhibition of 1851, and also at the Dublin Exhibition of 1853, and CROSS and CO. for their Harmoniums at all the Exhibitions from 1847 to 1855 inclusive. The medal in 1855 was given to Alexandre and Co., with the following recommendation, which ranks them above all others in regard to the all-important points, cheapness and quality of tone:—"Class 10.—Harmoniums.—Good workmanship, and effective tone, with excellent combination, and fine quality of tone."—Award of the Jury. Testimonials to their superiority over all others have been received from Rossini, Auber, Halévy, Meyerbeer, Berlioz, Rosellen, Benedict, Sir Henry Bishop, Sir Michael Costa, Sir George Smart, Messrs. Cooke, Turle, Walker, Macfarren, Lindsay Sloper, &c.

An enormous stock of every possible description of Pianofortes and Harmoniums may be seen at 50, New Bond-street, either for sale or hire, on the three years' system, or for exportation. The purchase of any instrument by instalments in advance, if desired, or a liberal allowance be made on purchases for cash.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH 20-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, with Check Action, in mahogany or black walnut; also in solid Oak, 25 gns., and in elegant Rosewood Case, 30 gns. This Pianoforte has received the Prize Medal, awarded at the International Exhibition in Dublin, 1853. "Class 27.—Cheap and Good Pianofortes.—Chappell and Co. for Six-octaves Pianoforte. Quality and workmanship considered, and for excellence in Cottage Pianofortes."—Vide Report of the Jurors.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM ORGAN HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 50 guineas; other varieties at 35 and 30 guineas.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and 13 stops. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums.

SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS.—By ALEXANDRE, nearly new, of every variety as good as new, at greatly reduced prices. CHAPPELL and CO., New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 12 stops, 2 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 52 guineas.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (in which the Prize Model was awarded in 1851).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, full compass, and rich quality of tone, and perfect touch, admirably adapted to small rooms, yachts, &c. Price 35 guineas. Also, a Pianoforte of the same description, with three strings in the treble, and all the latest improvements. Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 30, 35, and 37 guineas.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers; may be tried side by side (and hired, with option of purchase), at the new Show-rooms.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE.—To assistance performing the rites of Divine worship in small churches and chapels, this Model has been built on the Check action, and contains the full compass of a modern piano. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers, and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to the tuner. Price, in mahogany case, 25 guineas; in oak, 28 guineas; in rosewood or other ornamental wood, 30 guineas. Also, a model with best walnut (similar to those of 30-guinea instruments), 35 guineas.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, price 40 guineas, recommended, or in walnut, 45 guineas. This Instrument has Three Strings and the full and rich quality of tone of a Grand Piano, with the touch and check action of the best makers (adapting the greatest amount of tone; and to stand perfectly in any climate. The workmanship is of the best description; the case is handsomely carved, and the whole is guaranteed for five years. Every Piano is tuned, and carefully packed for exportation by the MANUFACTURERS.

CHAPPELL'S ORIENTAL MODEL PIANOFORTE.

Size, 4ft. 3 in. by 2ft. 1in., height, 3ft. 10 in. Compass, G to C in A. Handsome case, with ornamental trusses. Price 50 guineas.

Size, 4ft. 4in. by 2ft. 1in., height, 3ft. 10in. Compass, G to C, C in A. Handsome case, with ornamental trusses. Price 50 guineas.

The above Instruments are thoroughly tested, and are recommended to their friends by CHAPPELL and CO. as the most perfect Pianofortes for their size which can be made, and they are in fact the most successful manufactures throughout that they are confidently recommended as the most desirable Instruments at KING'S CROSS. Price 60, 65, 70, 80, 90, and 100 guineas.

The price includes (1) packing-cases of tin and wood; (2) a silk-cloth lining fastened over key; (3) a cover for the top; (4) a patent screw-stripe; (5) a Book on Tuning and Preserving the Instrument; (6) a Tuning-hammer adapted to the desk.

THE ALEXANDRE SERAPHINA HARMONIUM.—The elements of this Instrument are entirely new found, by means of a keyboard, like the Harmonicord, and has a compass of five octaves, and a quality of tone resembling the Violin, but more powerful. It is to be heard at 50, New Bond-street, and may be tried supplied by the Trade with the assistance of the new Patent Box. Price 25 lbs., with the Patent Box, 27 lbs. 10s.

ALEXANDRE'S UNIVERSAL CHURCH HARMONIUMS.—These Instruments are made to meet the requirements of Churches, and are constructed to suit the tone of every building, by varying the number of stops without diminishing their general effectiveness for Church Music.

No. 1. Three Stops, Diapason, Principal, and Dulciana, in the bass, and Principal and Dulciana in the treble, with Expression Action to the bellows. The Expression Stop is also rendered unnecessary, the Instrument being sufficiently full-toned in a forest, in Saxe or Treble, Dulciana, Open Diapason Bass, Oboe, Bassoon and Expression, in walnut-wood case. Price Eighteen guineas.

No. 2. More Powerful than the Ordinary Six-and-Ten Stops.

Two Rows of Vibrators, Dulciana, Open Diapason, Principal, Flute, Fifteenth, Clarionet, Bassoon, Oboe, Trumpet, Vox Humana, Tremolo and Expression

CHRISTMAS

SUPPLEMENT

TO THE

ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

1865

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1865.

A CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY LESSON: THE CHORUS TO UNCLE EVERED'S COMIC SONG.—BY C. ROBINSON,—SEE NEXT PAGE.

A CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY LESSON.

BY MARK LEMON.

HIS is to be a Christmas story, and those had better pass it by who do not care to acknowledge the jocund season, as it tells of one who affected to care nothing for Christmas and its doings, and whom we would call a wouldbe Jaggers. Such an incident would have been quite natural at Christmas time, we know; but it was not to be so on this occasion. The brother and sister's destination was quite in an opposite direction to Dick's; and what made that circumstance of some consequence was the fact that Mr. Gore's provision had secured the only fly disengaged at the station to bring on his nephew to Holly Lodge.

"Well, it's Christmas time, you see, Sir!" said the flydriver, about to put Dick's portmanteau on the box-seat of his vehicle, "and we could let decently what we like. It's Christmas time, Sir!"

"That's awkward, Clary!" said the brother. "No fly to be had!"

"Oh, it's only four miles to the rectory," replied Clara, "and I can walk that, Harry!"

"And it's only three to Holly Lodge," thought Dick, "and I could walk that."

"But your luggage, dear!" said the brother. "You can't dine and spend the evening that fright!"

"Oh, yes, I can! Aunty won't mind, and I'm sure I don't," said the pretty girl, laughing, and showing—oh, such pearly teeth!

"But you shan't," thought Dick. So, without giving a moment's consideration whether it was Christmas time or not, he made his very best bow, and said—addressing the brother—"I can't offer you only a mile or two to go, and if you will take the fly I shall be much obliged."

"You are very kind," replied the brother; and the pretty sister said the same thing by the smile she called to her lips. "But you have luggage, even if"—

"Only a portmanteau," said Dick, as though he thought no more of carrying it than a great many patent carpet-bags. Indeed, that was fitted up like a complete dressing-room, than he would have minded shouldering a knapsack.

And Dick's lame Jemmy, with his donkey cart, as 'tid take that," said the flyman, as though he gave the preference to the pretty girl as a fare. Perhaps he was a man of taste, though of humble occupation.

So it was settled that Clara and Dick should begin the journey, and scratching his cheek with a sprig of holly which the flyman had stuck in the pocket in honour of the season.

Clary blushed like both with smiles and words—she had a sweet, musical voice—"How very good of you. Thanks—thanks!" And Dick had a peep—only a peep—at what he had not seen before. It was something in a smart kid boot, and looked as though it could dance like a fairy.

"Well," thought Dick, as he waved his hand gracefully to the brother and sister as they drove away, "I've begun the day badly, and a walk will do me good, and give me an appetite for my dinner.

Lame Jemmy, by the aid of the railway porter, had stowed away Dick's portmanteau in his little donkey-cart, and had taken his perch on the front, ready to start when he knew where to go.

Dick loitered a minute or two just—O yes—just to ask when the next down train came in, and who those young people were who had gone off in the fly.

"The next down would be at 6.30," the porter said; "and the young lady and gentleman wasn't known to me, but they'd ordered to be drove to Sithewell Rectory—that's all he could say."

It was not much for the shilling which Dick gave the man, but he was satisfied with it, and said so was he contented, now they'd ordered to be drove to Sithewell Rectory—that's all he could say."

Lame Jemmy touched his weather-beaten any-coloured hat to his new employer, and said, in rather a diffident voice, "You wouldn't like to ride, would you, Sir? Jacky never was a beast to kick."

But Dick declined adding to Jacky's labours, and, having mentioned Holly Lodge as his place of destination, walked quietly by the side of the donkey-cart.

"I knows Holly Lodge well, Sir," said the man again, touching his hat to intimate that he didn't intend to be familiar. "And well I ought to, Sir, for I've been it was as you may think fifty Christmas it was two year, when I could get about after I had my accident and broke my knee-pan. Good lady she, Sir, and so's her son."

"Yes," replied Dick, rather surprised at the fact.

"I know'd Mr. Gore and Mrs. Gore's brother, Sir—him as died in Ingy, when they was boys, I did," said Jemmy. "Nice lads they was, Lor, what fun they used to make on 'em, and the old Lodge, they did!"

"Oh!" observed Dick, not quite liking the remark.

"Beautiful Christmas weather this, Sir," said the old man—"I like a frost and snow at Christmas."

"Do you?" replied Dick; "I should have thought that was the sort of weather you would not have liked."

"Well, just for a day or two, Sir, to put one in mind it is Christmas," said Jemmy, giving a short sniff as the smoke from Dick's pipe blew past his nose. "Nice tobacco that, Sir?"

"Yes, very good," replied Dick. "Do you smoke?"

"Why, yes, Sir," answered Jemmy; "but I don't smoke such baccy as that—'bout it's give me."

"Well, where's your pipe? Oh! inside 'your hat," said Dick, as Jemmy, quick at taking a hint or a largess, removed his felt and produced a well-blackened tobacco-pipe.

"It's not a very large 'un, Sir," observed the old man; "but I've had him more nor a year—ay! nigh two year, now Christmas has come again."

Dick gave Jemmy a bold pinch out of his pouch and the old man's eyes sparkled as he received it. "Lor, Sir! not all this. I'm a rollin' on a heap. You're very kindly, and wishes you a merry Christmas, and many on 'em, Sir."

"You seem very partial to Christmas, old boy," said Dick. "What difference can it make to you?"

"Well, Sir, not much, as it seems to you, but a deal to me. I get a trifle here and a trifle there from the gentlefo'ks, and a bit and a sup from the tenants. And all the folks, high and low, seems to be more good-natured and affable like; and the church is done up, and there's sprigs of holly in the windows and places; and altogether, Sir, I'm always sorry when Christmas is gone."

"Ah!" said Dick, not knowing what to say, exactly—"Ah! you've no Christmas bills to pay."

"Oh, yes, I has, Sir! I owes a little at the shop, sometimes—almost always, like—and then what I 'arns and gets extra at Christmas wipes off the score. I don't know what I should do without Christmas."

"I'm glad it does good to somebody," said Dick; though he wouldn't have said as much as that in favour of the season if Jemmy had been one of "The Coming Men," and not an old threadbare donkey-driver, thankful for small mercies.

"This here's a short cut over the heath to Holly Lodge, if you don't mind the rough walking, Sir," said Jemmy, "and I wants to go this road, as it passes by my cottage."

"Oh, very well!" said Dick, "though, as you say, it is rough walking, thanks to the frost."

"Y'ou should see it in summer and autumn time, Sir;" observe Jemmy, anxious to cover any objection to the road. "When the heath and gorse is in bloom it smells like a nosegay then, Sir; and don't the bees come to it! I believe Jacky's fair mules for mine."

"Ah! but not at Christmas time," said Dick, exultingly. "Had him there," he thought.

"No, Sir, not then; but the poor folks comes agrubbin it for brein'. Lord of the manor gives 'em leave to do that, and many on us is warmer for what we grubs on Mouly Moor," said Jemmy, adding, "We allus drinks his health, and wishes him a merry Christmas."

Dick was getting rather tired of Jemmy's reference to the festive season, and was almost inclined to think that the old man had been "put up to it" by Goodenough some way, and was making it an purpose to reprove him. They had come to a hollow in the heath, from which smoke had been seen ascending.

"That's my home, down there," said Jemmy, pointing to a rude cottage, made of mud and heather. It belonged to no order of architecture; it was too large for the pig-pen, and too small for the cottage proper, and had been built, Dick learned, by an old squatter years ago, and had come into Jemmy's tenancy by the kindness of the lord of the manor last Christmas three years. It was called Frog'shole. There was a shed for Jacky and a small residence for half a dozen cocks and hens, then pecking their way to roost. The various buildings appeared to be in partnership, and, if one had failed, the whole firm would have "gone under." There was a pasaih of garden ground, much of it bare at present; but one part looked lively with winter cabbage, interspersed with bundles of stumps.

Jemmy pulled up Jacky, or rather Jacky pulled up Jemmy, being under the mistaken idea that his day's work was over; and he was permitted to remain until the pleasant illusion whilst his master communicated with his household.

"Bessy, Bessy!" bawled the old man as loudly as he could; and in a moment or two a very-faced girl, with moderately tidy hair, opened the door and answered,

"Yes, Gran' dad."

"I'm a-goin' with this here gentleman's portmanteau to Holly Lodge, so don't wait your tea any longer," said Jemmy.

"Am I to eat the herrin'?" asked the girl.

"Yes, my dear; eat it all, if you like," said Dick. It was sure to get a bit and a sup at the Lodge. Just bring Jacky a drop o' water, as he mayn't like to go on if he's dry."

The girl soon complied with the Gran'dad's request, and Jacky, who didn't care at first to be bribed into further progression, took two or three "go downs" of water, and, having cast a wistful look at his peaceful shed, put his tasselled head to the collar and walked on as leisurely as before. Dick had not waited for these arrangements, but had stepped on until the appearance of two roads made him pause for the old man's coming, as he was not quite certain which to follow.

"To the left, if you please," said Jemmy. "The right leads to Farmer Jackson's. I allus goes to him on Boxin' Day, and he gives me sixpence and a mug o' beer. That's because it's Christmas time, I s'pose."

Dick began to understand why the old threadbare, battered-hatted donkey-driver thought lightly of the present frost and the possible snow, and which would once have rendered regardless or not, at Christmas whose expences and mugs o' beer were not their accompaniments.

"That was your granddaughter, I suppose," said Dick, striving to change the tone of the old man's thoughts.

"Well, no, Sir; she isn't no relation to me, though she calls me Gran'dad. I ought to have had a grandchild, but she died along with her mother, Sir, last June six year," replied Jemmy, refilling his pipe, as though to excuse a short silence.

"And this girl is no relation, you say?" asked Dick, rather interested to know why the girl consented to live in such a lonely place.

"You see, Sir," said Jemmy, blowing out a cloud of smoke with the sigh he gave, "my poor old wife, Sir, was bedrid a year afore she died—she's been dead two year come next grass, Sir—and Sally put out two or three clouts in succession. "Well, Sir, about a year after our daughter died—cold, caught after her confinement, Sir—my missus and me was cronies like beach—we didn't live here then—and we bears a woman mean and a child a-crying. We soon found where it came from, and there was a tramp, as cold tapes and things, lying side of the path, too ill to move. She'd tried her self, poor lot, Sir. She 'd been ill of some 'ut as had brought her down. My missus said she looked like death, and I run for the doctor. But he warn't to me; he said when he got there that she was dying, and she died."

Dick almost wished that he had not been quite so curious and had spared himself the unpleasant recital.

"Beery, as you said, Sir," said Jemmy, "but that woman's child. As it was Christmas time, Sir, my missus says, 'Jem,' says she, 'I'm very lone when you're away sometimes, and as a carrier there's room for you don't we both, I'll like to keep that girl, because'—I'd seen it, too—'she's so like what our Johannah was;' and so we took to her."

"Very kind of you both," said Dick; "but you'd have done that all the same if it had not been Christmas time."

"I don't know that, Sir," replied Jemmy; "but the snow was on the ground, and there 'd been that hard frost, you may think of it, Sir; and—— No; I think Christmas time had a deal to do with it."

"Well, anyway, it was kind of you," said Dick. "Have you smoked all the tobacco I gave you?" "Oh, yes, you have I. Here, take this!"

"Thanks, master, I 'm sure," replied Jemmy, emptying the pouch into his old hat, which seemed to be as general a receptacle as was Dick's patent expanding portmanteau. "It was lucky for the girl you did take that gal, Sir," continued Jemmy, "seeing how carriering failed altogether when the rail come, and my old missus fell sick with fretting; I think; them times that have been helped her to the end, since my missus died, and I got lame, and matters went all wrong with me, Bessy has done for me almost as well as anybody could ha' done. If I've luck this Christmas time, I means to send her to school a bit, Sir."

When Holly Lodge was reached, old Jemmy had a good basket of what was in store for him, and he ought to be rewarded for it. Indeed he like half a sovereign; but, mind you, "Coming Men," Christmas time had nothing to do with it. Old Jemmy thought it bad; and so, when he had given Jacky a surprise (by the donkey-cart) for him, and in the form of a feed of oats, and had refreshed himself with a few slices of cold beef and a mug of mixed malt-and-hop-in-ade beer, he retreated to Frog's-hole, chirruping a Christmas carol and laden with a supper for Bessy and a Christmas dinner for the morrow.

There was the old Christmas gathering at Holly Lodge, and the party was sufficiently mixed not to be monotonous. The two maiden cousins of Uncle Everard, who lived in the next market town, on small annuities, which held out very well, owing to the circulation of "Picnics and Wedding Parties," he could not help wondering if the pretty girl ever went to the one or would even due day plan the principal part at the other.

At every station there were friends expecting friends, and Dick could not brutalize himself sufficiently to feel no sympathy with the honest pleasure which filled almost every face when hands were shaken or cheeks were bussed.

Dick was rather pleased—he knew not wherefore—to find that the pretty girl and her brother got out at the same station as he did, and almost expected to see "Passenger to Holly Lodge" affixed to their luggage. Such an incident would have been quite natural at Christmas time, we know; but it was not to be so on this occasion. The brother and sister's destination was quite in an opposite direction to Dick's; and what made that circumstance of some consequence was the fact that Mr. Gore's provision had secured the only fly disengaged at the station to bring on his nephew to Holly Lodge.

"Well, it's Christmas time, you see, Sir!" said the flydriver, about to put Dick's portmanteau on the box-seat of his vehicle, "and we could let decently what we like. It's Christmas time, Sir!"

"That's awkward, Clary!" said the brother. "No fly to be had!"

"Oh, it's only four miles to the rectory," replied Clara, "and I can walk that, Harry!"

"And it's only three to Holly Lodge," thought Dick, "and I could walk that."

"But your luggage, dear!" said the brother. "You can't dine and spend the evening that fright!"

"Oh, yes, I can! Aunty won't mind, and I'm sure I don't," said the pretty girl, laughing, and showing—oh, such pearly teeth!

"But you shan't," thought Dick. So, without giving a moment's consideration whether it was Christmas time or not, he made his very best bow, and said—addressing the brother—"I can't offer you only a mile or two to go, and if you will take the fly I shall be much obliged."

"You are very kind," replied the brother; and the pretty sister said the same thing by the smile she called to her lips. "But you have luggage, even if"—

"Only a portmanteau," said Dick, as though he thought no more of carrying it than a great many patent carpet-bags. Indeed, that was fitted up like a complete dressing-room, than he would have minded shouldering a knapsack.

And Dick's lame Jemmy, with his donkey cart, as 'tid take that," said the flyman, as though he gave the preference to the pretty girl as a fare. Perhaps he was a man of taste, though of humble occupation.

So it was settled that Clara and Dick should begin the journey, and scratching his cheek with a sprig of holly which the flyman had stuck in the pocket in honour of the season.

Clary blushed like both with smiles and words—she had a sweet, musical voice—"How very good of you. Thanks—thanks!" And Dick had a peep—only a peep—at what he had not seen before. It was something in a smart kid boot, and looked as though it could dance like a fairy.

"Well," thought Dick, as he waved his hand gracefully to the brother and sister as they drove away, "I've begun the day badly, and a walk will do me good, and give me an appetite for my dinner.

Lame Jemmy, by the aid of the railway porter, had stowed away Dick's portmanteau in his little donkey-cart, and had taken his perch on the front, ready to start when he knew where to go.

Dick loitered a minute or two just—O yes—just to ask when the next down train came in, and who those young people were who had gone off in the fly.

"The next down would be at 6.30," the porter said; "and the young lady and gentleman wasn't known to me, but they'd ordered to be drove to Sithewell Rectory—that's all he could say."

It was not much for the shilling which Dick gave the man, but he was satisfied with it, and said so was he contented, now they'd ordered to be drove to Sithewell Rectory—that's all he could say."

Lame Jemmy touched his weather-beaten any-coloured hat to his new employer, and said, in rather a diffident voice, "You wouldn't like to ride, would you, Sir? Jacky never was a beast to kick."

But Dick declined adding to Jacky's labours, and, having mentioned Holly Lodge as his place of destination, walked quietly by the side of the donkey-cart.

"I knows Holly Lodge well, Sir," said the man again, touching his hat to intimate that he didn't intend to be familiar. "And well I ought to, Sir, for I've been it was as you may think fifty Christmas it was two year, when I could get about after I had my accident and broke my knee-pan. Good lady she, Sir, and so's her son."

"Yes," replied Dick, rather surprised at the fact.

"I know'd Mr. Gore and Mrs. Gore's brother, Sir—him as died in Ingy, when they was boys, I did," said Jemmy. "Nice lads they was, Lor, what fun they used to make on 'em, and the old Lodge, they did!"

"Oh!" observed Dick, not quite liking the remark.

"Beautiful Christmas weather this, Sir," said the old man—"I like a frost and snow at Christmas."

"Do you?" replied Dick; "I should have thought that was the sort of weather you would not have liked."

"Well, just for a day or two, Sir, to put one in mind it is Christmas," said Jemmy, giving a short sniff as the smoke from Dick's pipe blew past his nose. "Nice tobacco that, Sir?"

"Yes, very good," replied Dick. "Do you smoke?"

"Why, yes, Sir," answered Jemmy; "but I don't smoke such baccy as that—'bout it's give me."

"Well, where's your pipe? Oh! inside 'your hat," said Dick, as Jemmy, quick at taking a hint or a largess, removed his felt and produced a well-blackened tobacco-pipe.

"It's not a very large 'un, Sir," observed the old man; "but I've had him more nor a year—ay! nigh two year, now Christmas has come again."

Dick gave Jemmy a bold pinch out of his pouch and the old man's eyes sparkled as he received it. "Lor, Sir! not all this. I'm a rollin' on a heap. You're very kindly, and wishes you a merry Christmas, and many on 'em, Sir."

"You seem very partial to Christmas, old boy," said Dick. "What difference can it make to you?"

"Well, Sir, not much, as it seems to you, but a deal to me. I get a trifle here and a trifle there from the gentlefo'ks, and a bit and a sup from the tenants. And all the folks, high and low, seems to be more good-natured and affable like; and the church is done up, and there's sprigs of holly in the windows and places; and altogether, Sir, I'm always sorry when Christmas is gone."

"Ah!" said Dick, not knowing what to say, exactly—"Ah! you've no Christmas bills to pay."

"Oh, yes, I has, Sir! I owes a little at the shop, sometimes—almost always, like—and then what I 'arns and gets extra at Christmas wipes off the score. I don't know what I should do without Christmas."

"I'm glad it does good to somebody," said Dick; though he wouldn't have said as much as that in favour of the season if Jemmy had been one of "The Coming Men," and not an old threadbare donkey-driver, thankful for small mercies.

"This here's a short cut over the heath to Holly Lodge, if you don't mind the rough walking, Sir," said Jemmy, "and I wants to go this road, as it passes by my cottage."

"Oh, very well!" said Dick, "though, as you say, it is rough walking, thanks to the frost."

"Y'ou should see it in summer and autumn time, Sir;" observe Jemmy, anxious to cover any objection to the road. "When the heath and gorse is in bloom it smells like a nosegay then, Sir; and don't the bees come to it! I believe Jacky's fair mules for mine."

"Ah! but not at Christmas time," said Dick, exultingly. "Had him there," he thought.

"No, Sir, not then; but the poor folks comes agrubbin it for brein'. Lord of the manor gives 'em leave to do that, and many on us is warmer for what we grubs on Mouly Moor," said Jemmy, adding, "We allus drinks his health, and wishes him a merry Christmas."

Dick was getting rather tired of Jemmy's reference to the festive season, and was almost inclined to think that the old man had been "put up to it" by Goodenough some way, and was making it an purpose to reprove him. They had come to a hollow in the heath, from which smoke had been seen ascending.

"That's my home, down there," said Jemmy, pointing to a rude cottage, made of mud and heather. It belonged to no order of architecture; it was too large for the pig-pen, and too small for the cottage proper, and had been built, Dick learned, by an old squatter years ago, and had come into Jemmy's tenancy by the kindness of the lord of the manor last Christmas three years. It was called Frog'shole. There was a shed for Jacky and a small residence for half a dozen cocks and hens, then pecking their way to roost. The various buildings appeared to be in partnership, and, if one had failed, the whole firm would have "gone under." There was a pasaih of garden ground, much of it bare at present; but one part looked lively with winter cabbage, interspersed with bundles of stumps.

Jemmy pulled up Jacky, or rather Jacky pulled up Jemmy, being under the mistaken idea that his day's work was over; and he was permitted to remain until the pleasant illusion whilst his master communicated with his household.

"Bessy, Bessy!" bawled the old man as loudly as he could; and in a moment or two a very-faced girl, with moderately tidy hair, opened the door and answered,

"Yes, Gran' dad."

"I'm a-goin' with this here gentleman's portmanteau to Holly Lodge, so don't wait your tea any longer," said Jemmy.

"Am I to eat the herrin'?" asked the girl.

"Yes, my dear; eat it all, if you like," said Dick. It was sure to get a bit and a sup at the Lodge. Just bring Jacky a drop o' water, as he mayn't like to go on if he's dry."

The girl soon complied with the Gran'dad's request, and Jacky, who didn't care at first to be bribed into further progression, took two or three "go downs" of water, and, having cast a wistful look at his peaceful shed, put his tasselled head to the collar and walked on as leisurely as before. Dick had not waited for these arrangements, but had stepped on until the appearance of two roads made him pause for the old man's coming, as he was not quite certain which to follow.

"To the left, if you please," said Jemmy. "The right leads to Farmer Jackson's. I allus goes to him on Boxin' Day, and he gives me sixpence and a mug o' beer. That's because it's Christmas time, I s'pose."

Dick began to understand why the old threadbare, battered-hatted donkey-driver thought lightly of the present frost and the possible snow, and which would once have rendered regardless or not, at Christmas whose expences and mugs o' beer were not their accompaniments.

"That was your granddaughter, I suppose," said Dick, striving to change the tone of the old man's thoughts.

"Well, no, Sir; she isn't no relation to me, though she calls me Gran'dad. I ought to have had a grandchild, but she died along with her mother, Sir, last June six year," replied Jemmy, refilling his pipe, as though to excuse a short silence.

"And this girl is no relation, you say?" asked Dick, rather interested to know why the girl consented to live in such a lonely place.

"You see, Sir," said Jemmy, blowing out a cloud of smoke with the sigh he gave, "my poor old wife, Sir, was bedrid a year afore she died—she's been dead two year come next grass, Sir—and Sally put out two or three clouts in succession. "Well, Sir, about a year after our daughter died—cold, caught after her confinement, Sir—my missus and me was cronies like beach—we didn't live here then—and we bears a woman mean and a child a-crying. We soon found where it came from, and there was a tramp, as cold tapes and things, lying side of the path, too ill to move. She 'd tried her self, poor lot, Sir. She 'd been ill of some 'ut as had brought her down. My missus said she looked like death, and I run for the doctor. But he warn't to me; he said when he got there that she was dying, and she died."

Dick almost wished that he had not been quite so curious and had spared himself the unpleasant recital.

"Beery, as you said, Sir," said Jemmy, "but that woman's child. As it was Christmas time, Sir, my missus says, 'Jem,' says she, 'I'm very lone when you're away sometimes, and as a carrier there's room for you don't we both, I'll like to keep that girl, because'—I'd seen it, too—'she's so like what our Johannah was;' and so we took to her."

"Very kind of you both," said Dick; "but you'd have done that all the same if it had not been Christmas time."

"I don't know that, Sir," replied Jemmy; "but the snow was on the ground, and there 'd been that hard frost, you may think of it, Sir; and—— No; I think Christmas time had a deal to do with it."

"Well, anyway, it was kind of you," said Dick. "Have you smoked all the tobacco I gave you?" "Oh, yes, you have I. Here, take this!"

"Thanks, master, I 'm sure," replied Jemmy, emptying the pouch into his old hat, which seemed to be as general a receptacle as was Dick's patent expanding portmanteau. "It was lucky for the girl you did take that gal, Sir," continued Jemmy, "seeing how carriering failed altogether when the rail come, and my old missus fell sick with fretting; I think; them times that have been helped her to the end, since my missus died, and I got lame, and matters went all wrong with me, Bessy has done for me almost as well as anybody could ha' done. If I've luck this Christmas time, I means to send her to school a bit, Sir."

When Holly Lodge was reached, old Jemmy had a good basket of what was in store for him, and he ought to be rewarded for it. Indeed he like half a sovereign; but, mind you, "Coming Men," Christmas time had nothing to do with it. Old Jemmy thought it bad; and so, when he had given Jacky a surprise (by the donkey-cart) for him, and in the form of a feed of oats, and had refreshed himself with a few slices of cold beef and a mug of mixed malt-and-hop-in-ade beer, he retreated to Frog's-hole, chirruping a Christmas carol and laden with a supper for Bessy and a Christmas dinner for the morrow.

There was the old Christmas gathering at Holly Lodge, and the party was sufficiently mixed not to be monotonous. The two maiden cousins of Uncle Everard, who lived in the next market town, on small annuities, which held out very well, owing to the circulation of Mouths were made for kissing.

Dick was again driven to Bradshaw for doldrums; but, having opened the page at the advertisements, and dropped on one headed certain baskets overseen the market-town and Holly Lodge—they were them, as spotless in appearance as they were in reputation. There was cross old Dr. Bowler, who had been angry with himself for twenty years because he had sold his practice and lived idly since. He was a cousin by some family ramification, of no consequence to our story. There were two cousins—very good fellows—and their two sisters, sons and daughters of a deceased aunt of Dick, and who were to have fortunes when they came of age. There was Julia Gore—"Giddy Gore," as she delighted to style herself, being forty-nine, with her hair à la zep and very thin, owing to a fever which no one remembered her to have had. She was always smiling and making funny faces at Dick, who really and particularly detested her.

Poor Giddy was a finely-preserved specimen of a school-girl, and would have dressed in frock and trousers had she thought she still prevailed with young ladies of sixteen, as it did when "George the Fourth was King." As it was, she indulged in many prettinesses of her youth, and always wore a shall of rose-coloured silk and sandals to her shoes. She affected a lisp and showed her pretty teeth (Cartwright's or Slocken's) when she smiled. She always tripped out of a room and entered with a sort of rush. She made dreadful play with her eyes, and discovered compliments which were never intended. She annoyed Dick awfully by little taps on the arm and her exclamations of "Oh, what nonthense, Wichard!" Giddy was always in great force at Christmas time. She could cry forfeits capitally, and her nondigs sentences were hugely composed of kissing in corners, and through backs of chairs, or between tongs; and as she herself was generally a great defaulter, she was thought to consult her own inclinations in those selections of meanings. The mistletoe was "her harrow," so she said; but, by some accident or the other, she was always under it. Also! poor Giddy! She had outstood her market, and is now open to an offer.

There was a round game after dinner, at which Dick made more noise than any one. There was one game at forfeits and a snapdragon, which, as usual, terrified the old ladies, who thought they should be "set on fire, and were not insured." There was a great forum of egg-dip, which the old ladies did not shirk in the least—which set Giddy fairly into ridiculous hysterics, and which was followed by a hall, "unpitied and alone," until the housemaid put the door-key down her back and gave her the shivers. The men got properly hilarious, and would kiss the ladies, as it was Christmas, and the bonny fire blazing in his grate, that he had been very jolly, whatever The Coming Man might say. He had only one disturbing thought. He knew that the hearty manner he had eaten, the few glasses of wine which he had taken, in combination with the nappy, glutinous egg-flip, were conducive to dyspepsia and terrible dreams, and he found he might have a nightmare, even in the shape of Giddy Gore. With this oppressive thought uppermost in his mind, he dozed for a little time, and then, tumbling down the steps of his uncle's cellar, went with a start, and found himself in bed, he thought.

But Christmas Eve has a bad reputation for dreams, and Dick might have been dreaming.

CHAPTER II.

The moon was shining brightly, Dick told Goodenough, when he returned to town, as he followed the boy who had come for him, but on his way to Frog's-hole. The heather on Mosly Moor looked like a sheet of snow from the hoar frost which had gathered upon it, and glistened in the moonlight. As he drew nearer to Frog's-hole, he saw old Jemmy standing at the entrance to the hollow, evidently expecting him.

"She is gone, Sir!" exclaimed the old man, as soon as Dick was near enough to hear him. "She is gone, Sir! The old woman, her grandmother, has taken her away. You can see them yonder."

Dick looked in the direction indicated and could plainly discern two figures walking forward.

"Bring her back, Sir! She didn't want to go. If you take the road to Ashton's Farm you will soon come up to them."

Without further instructions, Dick started in pursuit; but, as the road was rough and slippery with the frost, he walked with difficulty, whilst the two figures in advance appeared to have mended their pace of the ground over which they travelled.

Before Dick could overtake them, they had reached a quaint-looking old house, and cast black against the moonlight and showed a strong light in one of the lower rooms. The door of the house was immediately opened and the two figures passed in, and all was black as before. Dick pondered what he ought to do, whether he should knock and demand the restoration of the girl or wait until she and her grandmother again came forth. He was soon relieved from the lighted window, and when Dick approached it he was surprised to find it open, in spite of the coldness of the night and the lateness of the hour. He could, by this unexpected discovery, see into the room and hear all that was said.

At one side of a table sat a man somewhat advanced in years, and whose hasty curves and sharp, piercing eyes made an unfavourable impression upon Dick. On the opposite side was the girl; but Dick would hardly have known her again had he met her without his previous conversation. The old Jemmy's flock was not more white in appearance and much handsomer than he should have supposed from the brief glimpse he had had of her in the afternoon. The grandmother had folded her cloak about her head and shoulders, and seated herself on a low stool by the side of her grandchild.

"You are a very obstinate, self-willed girl," said the man, "to refuse such an offer as mine."

"I don't care," replied Bessy; "I can never love you, not if you were a hundred times as rich: and I don't want to be married."

"But why can't you care for me?" asked the man. "I will be kind to you, and give you whatever you desire—good clothes, plenty of food, and this house. I will be kind to old Jemmy, and set him going again some way or the other."

"Ah! think of old Jemmy!" said the grandmother. "You'll be kind to him and to me, won't you, Sir?"

"Yes," said the man.

"I don't believe it," replied Bessy. "You never were kind to anyone yet."

"How dare you say that!" exclaimed the man. "But for me old Jemmy would be turned out of his kennel yonder and sent to the workhouse—your old grandmother would be sent to gaol as a vagrant."

"Think of that, Bessy!" said the old crone. "Think of it in gaol, living on bread and water!"

"I don't believe he can do harm to either you or grand'dad," replied Bessy, rising up; "and I can't believe he will ever do anybody any good."

"Sit down, girl!" said the man, fiercely.

"I shall not stay here," replied Bessy, firmly. "When did you ever help a poor man or woman, except to goal and the workhouse? When did you ever give a shilling of your wicked money to any poor soul who wanted food or shelter? Never! never!"

The man rose up and clenched his hand, as though he would strike the girl, who did not appear in the least dismayed. "Do you think I am afraid of you?" she said. "You let me go because my grandmother made me come, and I was resolved to tell you what I have told you, and now let me go."

The man made a movement, as though to approach the girl, but at that moment the light was struck down—apparently by Bessy.

Dick strove to call out, but the scene he had witnessed had so surprised him that he lost the power of utterance. Before he could quite recover himself, the door of the house was thrown open, and alone, She instantly closed the door after her, but did not run, as Dick expected she would have done, but walked leisurely away in the direction of Frog's-hole. Dick soon overtook her, and she did not appear disturbed or surprised when she saw him. "You're the gentleman from London, from Holly Lodge?" she asked.

"I am," replied Dick, "and sent by your grandfather to bring you home."

"He told me he had sent for you," said the girl, "and I knew you would come."

"Yes, I followed you, but could not overtake you before you entered yonder house. I saw a man at the window."

"I guessed that," said the girl, "and that made me as bold as I was. That wicked man wants to marry me, but I would die sooner."

"He is no very wicked looking man."

"You shall see with your own eyes, if you like. Come with me," replied Bessy

The girl made her way to a small copse, which Dick had not noticed before, and, taking a path which seemed to lead into it, walked on. Dick followed until they came to a miserable hovel, partly unroofed. There was a light burning within, and Dick could see that the many broken panes in the window Dick saw a wretched-looking woman sitting on the ground, and, lying upon her knees and in her lap, three fragrant children.

"All those have been moaning through the day and night, wanting food," said Bessy. "The woman is still awake and suffering, but the children have cried themselves to sleep. That man yonder is the cause of their misery."

"How so?" asked Dick.

"The landlord of the little war fever-stricken not long ago, and the brutal fellow you saw turned them out of their cottage into this place of death. He said the man was a poacher—it was a lie—and set everybody against him, and he died raving mad, and left the family here."

Dick had some confused notion that the parish ought to have looked after this miserable household; but Bessy was again walking, and he followed her. They soon approached a mud-looking cottage that appeared to be the abode of comfort and peace. Before they were at the garden gate Dick heard the noise of loud contention, and an old, whitehaired man rushed out, followed by an infuriated woman. She was young, it seemed, from the clear sound of her voice and the violence of her gesticulations. What she said was incoherent and terrible in blasphemy and thunderous oaths.

"The woman is mad!" said Dick.

"No doubt of it, and may some day lay violent hands upon herself or her father. That man yonder is a bad, bad wretch to tell wicked calumnies, which drove away from her the youth who once loved her and whom she loved, and, knowing that many believed in her shame, has become what you see her."

Dick was about to enter the garden, but the woman had become silent; and, as Bessy had walked on again, he hastened after her, and was surprised to find, by a moaning sound, that the girl had come out at the entrance to Frog's-hole, and that old Jemmy was waiting their return.

The girl did not stay to bid good-night to Dick, but went straight to the mud cottage. Jemmy said a very few words that Dick could comprehend, although he understood the old man to offer him the services of Bessy to nurse him back to Holly Lodge. Dick declined the offer, and Jemmy—a little huffed, Dick thought—went to his cottage also, leaving his late liberal employer to cool himself in the frosty night, or to walk Christmas Eve. Before Dick could determine what to do, Bessy again appeared at the door, and she, who had recently looked so like the pretty girl in the railway carriage, now resembled, both in gayety and dress, the old Jemmy of Frog's-hole.

Of course Dick had been dreaming all this, and might have gone on dreaming, had not his feet escaped from under the bedclothes, and then Jack Frost nipped him in the toes.

"What could ever have put such a rigmarole into my head," thought Dick. "I know before I went to sleep I half repeated of my house of Christmas time, which seems to reflect my hearth, Dorcas, and I had thought of that old donkey driver's story, and that day and night mare, Giddy Gore."

Dick rose, dressed at his ease, dressed himself, and went out to see how far his dream of Mosly Moor was realised by the actuality. He had got to the outskirts of the village when the late doctor, whom he knew, coming from a cottage, in whose window was a sprig of redberried holly. The place looked neatly kept, and Dick little suspected the sorrow there was within.

"Early astir, Doctor," said Dick, after they had exchanged greetings and wished each other a merry Christmas.

"Yes," replied the Doctor. "I want to get over my round before church time, as it's Christmas Day. I am going to the Lodge to beg a Christmas dinner for these poor patients of mine."

"Why, the place is empty."

"Oh, yes," interrupted the Doctor, "and so it is; but there's an empty cupboard for all that. The man, who is ill, wants other medicine than I can supply—good living and peace of mind, poor fellow! Such cases as his are among the most painful we doctors have to cure. We are not rich enough."

"Is he in want of food? Why don't he apply to the parish?" asked Dick.

"No! he would rather die than sacrifice his independence, as he terms it. Now, Sir, I've got a good beat in spite of such men. So can earn good wages, when in health; and a fortnight's good living would set him to work again. I know I can insure him that to-day, as it is Christmas time. Good-morning, Mr. Richard

Dick became very thoughtful, remembering what he had seen and heard in his dream. He then tapped at the cottage door, which was opened by a woman neatly but very poorly clad; and Dick saw, wrapped up in an old, well-patched blanket, a man seated by a few smouldering sticks, and evidently very weak, if not ill otherwise. Two small children were playing on the floor at a fire, watching a pot, which, as yet, scarcely sent forth a show of steam.

"I am Mr. Gore's nephew," said Dick, by way of apology.

The woman dropped a curtsey.

"The Doctor tells me that your husband is very weak—more weak than ill; and he looks it, poor fellow!" said Dick, kindly.

The man had fixed his eyes on Dick, but he now closed them and sighed heavily.

"What's his trade?" asked Dick.

"He's a clogmaker—makes wooden soles for clogs—I should rather say, Sir!" replied the poor woman, in a feeble, sorrowful voice adding, "when he's well enough to work."

"Just the thing!" said Dick—"just the thing! I want a lot of wooden soles put, make me a dozen or two, and there's a sovereign on account."

"Oh, Sir!" cried the man, "I'm too weak to work!"

"Well, you won't be when you have transformed that money into mutton-broth and bread and butter, and I'll send you a little wine to wash them down," said Dick. "Good-morning!"

Dick heard the woman and her children blessing and the sick man's sobs of thankfulness, as he hurried out of the cottage, and thought what a week, unworthy member he was of "The Coming Men" Club.

It was time to turn back to Holly Lodge, as breakfast would be ready, and Dick was more than usually hungry, he fancied. Nothing was said, either by Mr. Gore or Dick, about the doctor and his patients, as both, we fancy, cared not to boast of their small charities.

When the morning service at the church was over Dick left his friends, being still anxious to have another look at Frog's-hole, and it wanted an hour to luncheon. He had not reached the moor when he saw an elderly woman embracing a stout, well-dressed young man, and had little doubt but a mother and son had met to pass their Christmas Day together.

"I am so glad you've come, dear," said the mother; "but, as you didn't write, I was afraid you would not."

"Well, I didn't quite make up my mind until last night, mother, replied the son; "but then I thought of old times, and that it wouldn't be Christmas time again for twelve months, and that you'd be sorry not to see me."

"That I should," said the mother; "for though I get your letters it sint like seeing you," and she kissed her son again.

Dick had stood, very impertinently, listening to this conversation, and, as the speakers did not take exception to his conduct, he continued to listen.

"There's one thing I want to ask," said the son, becoming rather red in the face, "is Bill and his wife going to be here to-day?"

"I hope so, my dear," replied the mother, turning very pale.

"Well, then, I shan't stop," said Tom. "I won't meet them!"

"Oh, my dear boy, don't say that!" replied the mother. "You are quite wrong in hearing ill will to Willum and his wife."

"Am I?" asked Tom, rather sharply. "After the way they treated me. Bill's a deceitful, unbrotherly fellow, and I won't meet him!"

"I'm sure you've been wrong, Tom," said the mother; "and I'll put it to this gentleman" (referring to Dick, who was rather startled at being appointed arbitrator in a family quarrel; but, remembering his dream, he made no objection).

"Well, put it to this gentleman," said Tom, boldly. "This is it, Sir.—I was very much attached to a young person down here. I loved her—that's the long and the short of the matter—Bill's the name—taken advantage of my absence for a few days, cuts me out, and then goes and marries her, Sir."

"He didn't know that you cared for Bella," said the mother.

"Oh, ye he did! He knowed it well enough," replied Tom.

"How do you prove that?" asked Dick, folding his arms and looking as sharp as a Q.C.

"Well, because everybody else knowed it," replied Tom.

"Had you ever told him so?" asked counsel.

"No; I hadn't told anybody; but everybody knowed it," replied witness.

"Had you proposed to the young lady?"

"No; but she must have knowed it. She must have seen I was fond of her," said Tom.

"I don't agree with you," replied Dick. "If you had never told your brother that you were in love, and had never told the young lady you loved her, I can't see that either of them was to blame."

"They ought to have guessed it," said Tom, "and not made me miserable."

"You dont look so," observed Dick, with a smile. "You seem well-to-do, well fed, and in good bodily health."

"Well, I am all that," said Tom. "I'm much better off than I should have been staying at home here; but then they oughtn't to have done it."

"Come," said Dick, "you are a sensible fellow, I know, in a general way, and you'll see, after a little proper reflection that you are wrong in that matter. Now, suppose the young damsel ignorant of your regard for her, or who knows but she might have given you the preference. You only were to blame there. You never told your brother that you loved the girl, or I am sure, he would have looked out for another wife. Are not these deductions reasonable?"

"Well, I can't say they are not," said Tom.

Then you will see your error more clearly, and, as it is Christmas time, you'll shake hands with your brother and kiss your sister-in-law under the mistletoe, and be friends all round."

"Well," said Tom, perceiving that further than smiling, "I suppose I was the fool, after all; and so, mother, let 'em come, and, as it is Christmas time, I'll do as the gentleman says. But I'll kiss Bella—and, that's a fair bargain!"

Dick shook hands with the young man, and turned back to Holly Lodge to luncheon; and, as he did so, who should drive past him but the pretty girl and Mr. Richard's brother, both recognising him with "nods, and becks, and wreathed smiles." So lighthearted was Dick throughout the remainder of the day, that he actually took Miss Giddy Gore in to dinner, and was forced to take wine, when declined, he could make her "titsey;" and compounded for a kiss, under the mistletoe, by sipping out of Giddy's glass, and then compelling her to return the compliment.

Dick had his full share of the Christmas banquet; but "his bosom's lord sat lightly on its throne" that night, and he dreamed he was swimming in a sea of rose-coloured feathers. His first business the next day was to send in his resignation of membership to the Club of The Coming Men: and then, as though to assure himself of his conversion, he stuck a sprig of holly in his button-hole, and walked about, "gaily whistling, and singing, and fancying for him he heard the bills ringing" for returning to the ways of his good old English fathers.

Three more Christmas Days have been passed at Holly Lodge since the one we have recorded, and, strange to say, the pretty girl has been Dick's fellow-passenger on the two last occasions. When they parted at the station Dick called the young lady Clara, and she said, "Good-by, Richard." What will the familiarity lead to when another Christmas time has come and gone? We fancy we have propounded no riddle if the world keeps rolling round as it has done since the sun shone upon Paradise.

THE PRIVATE VIEW.—BY J. A. FITZGERALD.—SEE PAGE 619.

UNCLE JOHN WITH THE YOUNG FOLK: "ALL PRIZES AND NO BLANKS."—BY A. B. HOUGHTON.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

UNCLE JOHN WITH THE YOUNG FOLK

AT A CHRISTMAS PARTY.

AM a confirmed old bachelor, one of a large family, all of whom are married except myself. The reason of my remaining unmarried in middle age is of too painful a nature to enter into, nor is it needful to do so. Possessed of an independence far more than enough to supply my simple wants, and having no motive to increase my store, I never engaged in any trade or profession, so that I feel pretty much like a stray leaf on the water, borne hither and thither as winds and currents direct. The morning which holds me by my own breakfast-table being thus slight, and the members of our family being closely knit together by the bonds of love,

I am for a great part of every year gadding about from one house to the other of my brothers and sisters. My time is not, however, I would rain hope, wholly misspent. Being most kindly borne with myself, in this my dawdling kind of life, and my whimsicalities (for old boys, if not old maids, are sure to have some oddities) being considerably dealt with, I set great store on the maxim "Bear and Forbear!"—which ought to be printed in gold and conspicuously placed in every household. I am never weary of preaching, or, I trust, of practising it; and I have the pleasure of knowing that I have frequently been the means of nipping in the bud little tiffs which will spring up in even the kindliest of families, and which, for people who live as I gathered say it?) delicate handling, frequently grow into wide-spreading, love-choking fauds. So that I feel I am a messenger of peace and love; doing, in my vagabondish, erratic sort of way, what the cosier people, of some to do in theirs—knitting together different systems and keeping up the equilibrium between them.

The truth is that ever since the deep grief which in my hot youth shook me like an ague-fit, I have been more or less a pet with my brothers and sisters; and their children, the girls especially, look upon their bachelor uncle with a plying love. They like to get a guinea from a stray conversation among some of them, are rather puzzled at my do-nothing life, and wonder why I have not some definite calling we have their fathers. Said one—"Why doesn't he write books, people, or does them with law, or preach (wouldn't he 'talk pulpit,' then?), or write for the newspapers—something of that sort, you know?" These youngsters, I see plainly, would view me as a sad waif, were it not that I can out-jump and outrun the lithest of them, and beat them hollow at every active game. A smart rap on the head at single-stick ploy which I give one of them who prided himself on his cleverness, and on his No. 7 guard for the head, knocked some conceit out of the young fellow, and made him respect his elder who was able to give it.

Having the run of several houses, where I am as much at home as in my own domicile (nay, more so, for my staid housekeeper, who keeps me, would not own my house, in prurient curiosity, as my house—as, indeed, I have observed extraordinarily good managers generally are), and not having my thoughts distracted by the cares of life, I contrive to see much of the inner workings of the several households, and have sundry comments thereon in my notebook.

But it is to and of the children that my remarks are meant specially to apply; and I grieve me more pleasure than pain in so doing, for surely that I am a favourite with one and all. They are generally on the look-out for me, and "Hurrah! here comes Uncle John!" uttered between a shout and a scream and a laugh, has often given notice to my belter-skelter to the door, and I have perforce to shake hands with and to kiss half a dozen boys and girls at once. Then I am hurried off by the boys to see a new rabbit-hutch, by the girls to admire opinion fishing-tackle, and to be consulted in all their sports and amusements. The girls hide their time decorously, though burning with impatience to show me some school prize-book, or to induct me into the mysteries of doll millinery and dressmaking. At last I am let off to have a word with father and mother.

There is nothing brilliant about any of my brothers and sisters. The world at large, if it thinks of them at all, puts them down, I dare say, as everyday humdrum persons—as indeed they are. They love their children in an old-fashioned manner, and they love their children in kind. Nor is there anything remarkable in their children, unless it be in the fact that they are not remarkable. They have the ingenuousness of youth—its generous credulity for what is noble and fair, and its as generous incredulity for what is base. The boys are brave, frank, and outspoken; and the girls are—English girls. What more would you have? Gregory was right, of the womankind, at any rate: "not Angles only, but Angels,"—without any if. So, without being or thinking themselves better than the rest of mankind, parents and children love each other dearly. And happy it is that love abounds with common folk, requiring neither riches, nor rank, nor brilliant parts, nor keen-glancing wit, nor ponderous learning for its fruition.

Although some of my nephews and nieces are a little too much up in the arts and sciences for children (so please me (I dislike learned children as I do learned pigs), they are not spoiled by over-learning: their young life is not taken clean out of them, as I have seen it in some cases; and they enjoy a game at hide-and-seek, or at any boisterous play—the more frightful the more it was relished—without the slightest moral to it, or any definite plot, have I told there children.

It is a rakish taste, I know, and the avowal is not at all to my credit; but I will make a clean breast of it, and frankly confess that I don't overmuch like what are called "good" boys. Nay, more; the superfinely-virtuous hero or heroine, with a mission, the pattern person of story-books, who always does and says the right thing, "speaking like a book," is by no notion almost always a nuisance, and a most unenjoyable prig into the bargain. Naughty Harry is not so repulsive a character to me as he ought to be, considering that he was, for his naughtiness, cast upon the shore of Barbary and eaten by wild beasts (a fate, by-the-way, not necessarily reserved, in real life a-nay, for even the wicked: one has read of missionaries being so served); and I don't sympathise half as much as my duty bids with staid-laced Tommy, pink of perfection, in a mercantile sense, as he is portrayed, and, though he did marry his master's daughter, succeed him in business, and become, I dare say, Lord Mayor of London—a post which many worthy cits pass through life without filling. Many a right noble fellow there is who cannot and who cares not to tack right wombiyful or right honourable to his name. There are not a few London citizens —I have one or two now in my mind's eye—without aldermanic or even common-council honours, to whom I involuntarily bow in reverential homage. The truth is, one requires for respect, to say nothing of reverence, something more than prudence, which, as Burke said, may be a mere "reptile virtue." The direslash of the conventional proprieties is, of course, sadly heterodox. But worse remains to b$ stated. My nephews, and some of my nieces too, if the truth must be told, are as depraved in this respect as I am. It must be owing to the vagabondish blood in our veins, derived from Bampfylde Moore Carew, King of the Gipsies, from whom our family (let me whisper the fact) is descended. That drop of gipsy blood exploits and

SOMETHING ABOUT TWO FAIRIES.

On one occasion, however, I gave some of these children, with several others, a fairy tale which—I blush for my recreancy whilst I write it—had not a single jot of moral or meaning in it. It was told to one of the family gatherings at Christmas time, amid a cross-fire of questions and answers and the chat of many persons, restrained by no rigid etiquette. I was seated on an ottoman, with a swarm of children of all ages around me, some clambering up my back, others on my knees (George and Sue, the two youngest of the family, claim these, to them, places of honour as by right divine), all anxiously waiting to hear a tale which I had promised their mother I would tell them whilst the Christmas-tree was in process of being got ready. Clearing my throat with the orthodox preliminary "Hem" of storytellers, I proceeded thus:—

"My good little girls and boys, let me bespeak your attention whilst I tell you something about two fairies. Much, with diligent searching, you may, perhaps, find a moral. I hope to be able so clearly to express my meaning that the youngest among you shall be able to pluck out the heart of its mystery as I shall proceed, according to little Jack Horner picked out the plums from his Christmas pie. So, silence, if you please. And, Willie, I will thank you to slacken your hold of my collar, or I may be choked. All right! Now we are off for fairyland.

"According to the notion generally entertained in olden times, by the learned as well as by the unlearned, and which notion holds ground in the present day, all nature was given in charge to four sisters. As these elemental beings are alike God's creatures, there is, beyond doubt, the merit of goodness in all; though they differ greatly in their characteristics, two being of a blither, airier turn than the other two—more like what we guess of spiritual existence—and of these last is the fairy I am about to tell you. Succeeding her great one to mankind, makes her more feared than loved. A twinsister of hers has not been included by philosophers among the primal spirits, but rather grown each with delegated powers. Not the less, however, is she a veritable being and a blessing to mankind. Less terrible than her imperious and somewhat unamiable sister, she is also a lesound-fold more valuable. Indeed, wanting her gracious presence and benign smile, much, if not all, of earth's loveliness would be lost to us. Her name is Dew, by some called Mist.

"I am about to say a few words. My other is scarcely less beautiful, and has all the characteristics of a true fairy, possessing the happy facility of transmuting the ugly and loathsome into the lovely and pure. She is one of the four original spirits I have been speaking of who are supposed to hold supreme dominion over all things.

"In Pygmalion's enchanted hands, lumps of raw fairies gambolled like winged joys. Adam and Eve could not, any more than can their descendants, live without their gentle ministerings. They are God's best friends, and are to be wooed and wedded with wisdom, and one plays in the colours of the rainbow ('that gracious thing, made up of tears and light'), and tips the flowers, if not the hills, with gold; the plants and the trees obtain one tinge or another from her. She pierces ocean's depths, lighting up 'treasure-caves,' full of 'pale pearls and coloured shells.' The other descends the deepest, darkest mines, burrowing in the earth, and wings itself to and soiled. A turn or two in the upper regions, however, playing with the trees and the streams, is sure to revive her; for motion, not rest, is her grand restorative. Neither of them could live if shut out from the outer world. One would die outright under the black eclipse; whilst the other would pine away, no longer able to play at bopeep with the sun-beams and the moonlight.

"Philosophers hold both my fairies in high esteem; whilst the poets, as far, that is, as I know, have chiefly sung the praises of one, and this they have done most charmingly. Thus Milton—

> . . . Offspring of Heaven, first-born.
> Bright effluence of bright essence increate.

Thomson calls her—

> Of all material beings, first and best.

Whilst Cowley sings her praises thus:—

> Through the soft ways of heaven, and air, and sea
> Which open all their doors and welcome thee.
> Like a clear river does thou glide,
> All the adjoyning flowers more delights our eyes
> Is but thy several liveries,
> Thou the rich dye on them bestowst;
> Thy nimble penal gives the landscape as then guest.

"At first these two fairies chased each other in playful mood, as yet unconscious of their high mission. But soon the soul of goodness permeated them. Love, struggling in their God's own breasts, animated them; and they went on errands of pity, like good little Sisters of Mercy as they are. Yet ever joyous, even jubilant; for nothing can permanently depress their luminous nature. They said with the Archlord—though you may be sure in quite a different spirit—'Evil, be thou my good!' So they set about seeking the soul of goodness in things evil, and soon they found it there, planting it there; and they have ceaselessly striven to enter the abodes of misery, of poverty, of guilt; and though beaten back, driven away, battered out, and rudely repulsed, they have succeeded in their gracious mission. Like an angel wings, and, yearning to do good, seek some crevice by which one or the other, if not both, may slip in and heal the sick, the grief of human hearts.

"A certain Black Hole bears terrible record of the fatal effects caused by the absence of one of my fairies. Indeed, I have known this same fairy, when, through ignorance, attempted to be shut out, clamour for admission, give the doors a good shaking, tap smartly on the windows, and show her vexation, whilst forcing a way through some constricted chink, by tweaking persons' noses, and holding them for days in a vice-like grip. For I honestly tell you that, in common with the most angelic of her sex, she is sometimes in a pet, and has occasionally sulking fits and outbursts of passion. When in the latter state, she is more like a fury than a fairy, and she seems possessed of the strength of ten thousand giants. Ordinarily yielding as courtesy's self, she is then wellnigh as irresistible as fate. She rends oaks as though they were reeds, lifts the biggest ships and dashes them on rocks or hurls them to the bottom, and lays man's proudest structures in the dust. In her sullen mood she is more terrible still. Stung to madness by the affronts put upon her by shortsighted mortals, she becomes a destroying, avenging angel, and breathes pestilence over a whole people. These moods, however, are rare exceptions. Her fits are soon over and when the demon which possessed her for a while has been exorcised she comes caressingly and pitifully sobbing as though h er heart would break over the mischief she has been the means of (it is the nature of hearts) more and more lovingly to my two fairies, and treats them with continually-increasing respect. Doctors especially—a noble set of fellows—are loud in their praises, and in their patients strict injunctions to keep doors and windows open that my two fairies may enter without hindrance. A good lady, of whom I dare say you have all heard, Miss Nightingale (a vehement clapping of hands and cramming of feet showed that she was known, and as well loved as known), has done much to obtain free ingress for them to hospitals, where, it is said, they do more good than the doctors and nurses together; and, as this is affirmed by the doctors themselves, we may take it for a fact. People generally also are beginning to treat them less suspiciously, and do not shut them out, as in former times, in cases of sickness especially, as though they were malignant bogies, instead of dear little fairies. A most unreasonable repugnance, however, still lurks among the humbler classes, which prefers passing the threshold or the window-sill. An example of this occurs to me"——

I had got thus far when I was given to understand by our hostess, by a code of signals not necessary to record on, that the Christmas-tree was fully equipped. So I broke abruptly off, and was carried to dinner my juvenile audience, when one of my nephews—the one I rapped on the sconce at single-stick play—a malicious wag who would not be snubbed, and whom therefore I nicknamed Master Irrepressible, boisterously shouted, "But uncle hasn't described these two fairies, that we may know their ladyships if we should happen to meet them. I vote that he be instructed to tell us something about their personal appearance, or to describe them in some way before he shuts up. All of you who think with me hold up one hand." Straightway every one held up both hands, some little shits making their dolls' hands also do service. "Now," said young Madcap, "that's doing things in a Parliamentary way; and I call on the learned, and right honourable, and noble member to proceed, in obedience to the will of the House, to state unanswerably the case. Fire away, governor! and no more poetry, if you please." A shrill chorus of "Yes, please go on, Uncle!" settled the matter. (The urchins were not aware of the fact, but I was there for them behind folding-doors, and it was well for me and my tale that they were not.) Accordingly I went on as follows, rather awkwardly, as will be perceived, for I was not used to saying too much or too little, and did not, I fear, after all, preserve the golden mean. To add to the awkwardness of my position, I saw young Irrepressible's eyes gleaming with anticipated triumph, as he made sure to catch me tripping. Somewhere I should certainly be off my guard. This I knew, as plainly as though I heard it, was the gist of the whispered conference held betwixt him and some boys near him. However, I took a bold face upon the matter, and proceeded somewhat after this fashion:—

"Both my fairies are ethereal creatures, with nothing of the gross earth in their composition, or they will be difficult, if not impossible, to describe them to you with any precision.

"One of them is composed of three—some say of seven—constituent parts. She is at times seen as a luminous space of silvery mist, 'making the bright air brighter with her affluence of light. On her forehead is set a refulgent gem of continually varying splendour: sometimes it glows like a noonday sun; more frequently with a chastened glow, resembling the pearl-like radiance of the moon, crescented or full-orbed; and then bursting into ten thousand sparks, like a diadem of diamonds. At both hands she grasps arrows of sunbeams. Her wings are rainbows, and on her feet are winged sandals of flame. But when she cleaves a path, which she does with lightning speed, through the sky, or her presence sends of mercy to earth, waiting for herself a Milky Way, the colours of her rainbow wings are blended into a white of blinding brilliancy. Thus dazzling in her purity, critics of all kinds, ay, even the most captious, flee this celestial, terrorstricken, slinking into their native darkness. Not only is she beautiful herself: she is the cause of beauty in others. Flowers, touched by her rosy fingers, blush a deeper dye; and all nature, basking in her smile of love, kindles into warmth and colour. At times, in her ardent flight after the other setting sun, her Phœbus, he is her god of love), she loosens her resplendent robe and leaves it 'floating many a rood' in the western sky, which is then lighted up with unsurpassable glory. Even the tough granite mountains are melted down in one huge crucible the world's choicest thousand-hued jewels, fusing with them 'golden exhalations of the dawn, summer lightning, and the soft-coloured bow,' and then plashed the welkin with the molten splendour. But why attempt to describe the indescribable? Poets the most inspired have failed to depict it; and our prosaic, matter-of-fact, unvolcano-ridden eyes are, have sought in vain to dip their pencils in its gorgeous hues: their most glowing transcripts are dull and pale in presence of the original.

"My other fairy is even less defined in outline than her more brilliant sister, and is rather felt than seen—an abiding presence. Two elements only primarily enter into her composition. As far as such a well-nigh formless creature can be said to be formed at all, she is moulded of woven zephyrs, clad in the filmiest of robes, and over her fair shoulders floats a veil of transparent cerulous colour, with stars. She seems to be omnipresent here on earth, attending to the wants of millions at the same time. In this respect she is superior to her sister fairy, who, having the whole of the heavens, is limited to one half of the globe at a time. In colour she is as changeable as a chameleon: at times sweet as an Ethiopian; but when her fair sister smiles upon her, fairer than Cleopatra, Ashtaroth, and occasionally at their morning and evening salutes 'blushing celestial rosy red.' Generally, however, she is so pellucid—the stars dim twinkling through her form—that, as you look through some eyes (transparent wells of liquid love) straight into the soul, so may you look right through her up to heaven.

"Now then," said I, freeing myself from the two cherubs, fast asleep, on my knees, and starting to my feet—for our hostess looked at me imploringly, pulling to the room where the Christmas-tree was, I knew, all ablaze—"I have told you quite enough. Answer promptly. What names will you give my two fairies?"

Several voices, among which I distinguished those of Master Irrepressible and Miss Annie (our host's eldest daughter, a walking cyclopedia in daintiest binding), cried in chorus, "Light and Air."

I knew my readers to decide whether they were right or wrong. Then there was a vehement stamping and clapping of hands, and cries of "Bravo!" But I will not take upon me to say whether these marks of approbation were called forth by my fairy tale and its interpretation (possibly by its being finished), or by the expected booty from the Christmas-tree, to which all rushed as the folding-doors that concealed it from view were thrown open. All I know is that the chaos called forth by the blazing beauty were deafening, and one young gentleman shouted, "He! this is the right sort of a fairy." And he was right, notwithstanding Annie said, "Hush! for shame!"

A JOLLY CHRISTMAS-TREE.

Such a Christmas-tree was surely never seen before nor since. In all my experience, no limited one in these matters, I have not seen such a prolific tree, yielding such various fruits in such profusion. It was a miracle of a tree. The boughs (some had to be propped) literally groaned under the weight of the oddest kinds of fruit that tree ever bore. The tree, too, was worthy its productions. It was not a slim bobbledehoy of a fir, with short, slender shoots, but a sturdy, wide-branching, stocky-armed tree. And, to be sure, how it was laden! In the furnishing of its boughs Father Christmas—it was all his doing—had exceeded himself. Even its roots yielded fruit (which might be called its truffles), judging from a glimpse caught at a sort of magic cave at its base, that produced almost anything you chose to name in the way of nicknacks. Besides the trinkets and toys usually to be found on such trees—all which were here in rich profusion—there were huge dolls, with moving eyes and limbs, which all but spoke; umbrellas and parasols; jingling lanterns and confusing-boxes; fishing-rods, with tackle complete; and illuminated, splendidly-bound editions of "Gulliver's Travels," "Arabian Nights," "Vicar of Wakefield;" and all the newest room library of fairy lore, blazing in gilt and colours. Some of the "articles," indeed, which were drawn on this memorable night never could have been placed on the tree, stood in the way, and vast as were its proportions, all limitations were forgotten in all their varieties and fowls of rarest breeds. There, possibly might have perched and roosted on the bough, but it had been for the thousand-and-one lamps and candles with which they were studded. But what of the guinea-pigs, and squirrels, and lop-eared rabbits? and what of the "grandfather of all the apes?" and the Indians called the first jackass they saw), a veritable donkey, with sleekest of coats, as fleet nearly as a horse, as sure-footed as a mule, as affectionate as a dog, and as playful as a kitten, with a neck-and-span new harness and side-saddle, bedecking that it was intended for one of Eve's fair daughters? (I had designed this prize for Annie, and by a little manœuvring gained my point.) There were several rushes of the boys down stairs to see and handle these animals; see Neddy's bray—quite a musical hee-haw—heard from below, caused chairs-persons to fly. Among the curiosities of the tree was even a small box, into which you put a penny at one end, gave one turn with a handle, and a half-crown, bright as though fresh from the Mint, peered out at the other end. This box caused much excitement among the very young, who naturally thought that the possessor of it would be enriched for life. But, slack for the Fortunatus to whom it fell! after a few trials to the contrary, it refused to take copper yielded only copper, until it was again charged with hocus pocus.

All was intense excitement as preparations went on for the lottery. My niece Annie, as alert as though she knew but little of, and cared even less for, the origins, there her whole soul into the affair. I was appointed to the office of slurring confusion, and Annie had to see my standing as I paid court to sundry babies in their nurses' arms. For the Christmas-tree, I may as well tell you, was not quite so much a novelty to me as to the others. Annie, indeed, had given me (in her self) managed things most dextrously and admirably, as indeed she always does. She was here, there, and everywhere; looking almost as young, and quite as fair, as her pretty self. Her voice was the trusted the important task of distributing the prizes. She would have Uncle John's hat, nobody's else would do, from which the tickets were to be drawn, and as a consequence I was to buy a new one. Then the lottery-drawing—when was there ever such a lottery? As Annie said, as she held and shook the hat, for the little and big ones too, to draw from it—being the responsible person—the most statistological, phrase of lottery-holders at village wakes—they were "All prizes and no blanks!" The finesse of the fair hat-holder was shown in the most consummate suitability of the prize drawn whoever so in their occasionally ludicrous misapprehensions, which showed that she had more to do with the tickets than merely holding the hat. Any slight misdirection which there might otherwise have been in exceptional cases was speedily quelled by the gift of a few trifles from a store judiciously kept in reserve by the considerate hostess.

The excitement during the drawing of the prizes and the stripping the tree of its strange fruit was intense—it was a whirlwind, a whirlpool, of temptatious glee, and pen (say pen at any rate) would fail to give any adequate idea of it. Never was Christmas-tree like the scene? Let me rather take upon myself the part of gentleman usher and politely introduce my readers to page 617, where it will be found depicted to the life.

The going up to receive the prizes was a source frequently of much merriment. One young gentleman had to be dragged, literally dragged, head foremost, dressed to the nines; and close upon his heels followed a lass to whose hot had fallen a set of cricket-bats, wickets, and balls. An interchange was made, and the lass had the cricketers, of both. Another young pearl of laughter greeted one youth who had drawn an umbrella, as it was handed over to him; for, instead of being a natty article, it was simply such a sacrilege as a gamp—though it was a gamp of the finest, Sairey-Gampish-looking affair. But even here matters were not so bad as they seemed at the first glance to be. The umbrella was found to be crammed with sweetmeats—comfits of all sorts of gumminess; and as these were scattered among the juveniles, to their huge delight, the umbrella, under this disemboweling process, collapsed into a gentlemanly a sparseness as the most fastidious exclusive could desire.

To crown all, when the tree had yielded its last article—a box (on its ear) to a young gentleman, who had been caught in the act of fraud by stalwart arms to the courtyard, and turned in a twinkling into a congeries of breezes, which went off so wingly, now all together, crept and leapt, fled, stopped, flashed, penetrated, twisted and twirled, blazed, crackled, sparkled, banged, and finished in a miniature storm of thunder and lightning, amid loud hurrahs. Nor was this all. Our pyrotechnist, profoundly skilled in all matters pertaining to his craft, tipped the branches of the tree (thus contrived more than a "Jack" [Query?] with small cones, which presently evolved from them a cool fire, and became chemical fiery, abortive imitations called Pharaoh's serpents, now foisted on the public; but veritable fiery ones, with eyes like iron coals, and forked tongues of flame, hissing out their last wishes to the tree, the tree seemed a nest of snakes woke suddenly to venomous life. Lo! a greater wonder still. Slowly the trunk became a huge fiery serpent which with distended jaws gobbled up its fierce brood; and the monster serpent swelled and swelled, till finally, to the wondering delight of all—of the old no less than of the young—it became transformed as by magic into a gigantic fire-balloon, retaining the likeness of a Christmas-tree, laden with fruit, and studded with lights, which soared aloft, higher and higher, till it dwindled to a speck too small for the sharpest sight to discern.

Now was not this a jolly Christmas-tree? JOHN LATEY.

THE SAXON WASSAIL.

VERYBODY knows that the troubled history of the ancient British kingdom, which was revived in this country for some time after the withdrawal of the Roman dominion, has afforded subjects for many of those legends of romantic chivalry which the modern poet or painter chooses for artistic illustration. The reign of King or Prince Arthur, in the early part of the sixth century, when all the west of England, including the plains and downs of Wiltshire, together with South Wales, was ruled and defended, it is said, by a Celtic hero of that name, has engaged the attention of more than one great English poet; and Tennyson has, in part at least, composed the epic which Englishmen once delighted to hear, in the Arthurian cycle, which did not extend to Wessex till after the death of Prince Arthur, was attended likewise in other parts of the island with some incidents of great dramatic and picturesque interest, which have always kept a strong hold on the imagination of the English people. These stories are vividly related by the monkish chroniclers, who seem the most inclined to dwell pathetically on the decline and fall of the British independent sovereignty, because the Britons of that age, as well as the Irish, and the Celtic nations of Gaul, were devout adherents of the orthodox Church, while the Saxons, till the mission of St. Augustine, a hundred years later, were obstinately opposed to Christian teaching and worship. This motive is curiously shown in the biography of St. Germanus, Bishop of Auxerre, which was the groundwork, apparently, of some passages in Neunius' "History of the Britons," wherein events of the early years of Vortigern, or Gurthrigern, at whose court St. Germanus resided in the middle of the fifth century. The treacherous and rapacious behaviour of Hengist and Horsa, after their landing at Ebbsfleet, in the Isle of Thanet (in the neighbourhood of Ramsgate and Margate), is here displayed; with the credulous folly of the British Monarch in granting to Hengist the settling there, and the gift of land, from which the Saxons afterwards proceeded to make themselves masters of the other home counties. The story is again told, with some amplifications, by Geoffrey of Monmouth, the more modern author, who only compiled, however, the statements of the ancient probably British, ecclesiastical writers. From his narrative, therefore, we shall extract the following account of the Saxon feast shown by the artist, Mr. James Godwin, for the subject of one of our illustrations in this Christmas Number. This scene, our readers will observe, is described as having taken place at Caerleon, or Isca, in the house of the Saxon chieftain Hengist, then residing not in the Isle of Thanet, but at Caister, in Lincolnshire. For Hengist, as the most accomplished of the pagans, had by degrees worked northward to fight against the savage Picts beyond the Humber; and Vortigern had rewarded him already with large estates in a district called Lindsey, and with a castle which was named in the British language Kaer-corei, and in the Saxon was called Thancaister: there being a silly old legend, borrowed from that of the founding of Carthage, of the quantity of land which could be covered with a bull's hide, which, having been cut into a thong of leather, incised a considerable circuit. With this profess, remarking that Vortigern had just agreed with his father-in-law to send for some fresh Saxon reinforcements, we may leave Geoffrey of Monmouth to tell the tale:—

"In the mean time the messenger returned from Germany, with eighteen ships full of the best soldiers that they could get. They also brought along with them Rowena, the daughter of Hengist, one of the most accomplished of the pagan. After due and their arrival, Hengist invited the King to his house, to view his new buildings and the new soldiers that were come over. The King readily accepted his invitation, and, being highly entertained with the splendid magnificence of the building, enlisted the men into his service. Here he was entertained at a Royal banquet; and, when that was over, the young Saxon virgin, with her chaplet of golden work, full of wine, with which she approached the King, and, making a low curtesy, said in his tongue, 'Lauord King, wass hail!' The King, at the sight of the lady's beauty, was in a sudden both surprised and inflamed with her beauty; and, calling to his interpreter, asked him what she said, and what manner of language that was. 'She called you "Lord King," said the interpreter, 'and offered to drink your health. Your answer to her must be, "Drink hail!"' Vortigern, accordingly answered her, 'Wass hail, and bade her drink; after which he took the cup from her hand, kissed her, and drank himself. From that time to that it has been the custom in all British Isles for any one drinking to say 'Wass hail!' and he that pledges him answers, 'Drink hail!' Vortigern being now drunk with the variety of liquors, the devil took this opportunity to enter his wicked heart and to inspire him with the desire of what he became suitor to her father for her. It was, I say, by the devil's entering into his heart that he, who was a Christian, should fall in love with a Pagan. For this accursed woman, by her enchantments, discovered the King's levity, and consulted with the brother Horsa and the other ancient men present, what to do in relation to the King's marriage. They unanimously advised to give him his daughter, and, in consideration of her, to demand the province of Kent. Accordingly, the daughter was, without delay, delivered to Vortigern, and the province of Kent to Hengist, whereby the knowledge of Gorangon, who had the government of it. The King the same night married the Pagan lady and became extremely delighted with her, by which he quickly brought upon himself the hatred of the nobility and of his own sons."

The subsequent misfortunes of the soft-hearted British monarch, who would neither obey the counsel of Bishop Germanus to expel the heathen Saxons and to form a defensive league with the Christians of Gaul, nor would listen to the remonstrances of his own Virtimer, in resisting the progress of the foreign invaders, need only not be touched upon here. There was another feast to which this infatuated Vortigern invited the three hundred of his nobles, in the palace of Hengist, not many years after his marriage with the fair-haired Lady Rowena. It was the Saxon custom (as may be observed in our illustration of the Wassail scene) for the guests at a banquet to leave their weapons in the hall outside. Vortigern and the other Britons, in dining with Hengist, conformed, of course, to this rule. But the treacherous host, says Neunius, "had ordered these hundred Saxons to conceal each a knife under his foot, and to mix with the Britons, so that each man of the latter should sit next his enemy; and after they had eaten and drunk, and were much intoxicated, Hengist suddenly cried out, 'Nimed eure Saxon!' and instantly his followers drew their knives, and rushing upon the Britons, each slew him that sat next him; and there were slain three hundred of the nobles of Vortigern. The King, being captive, purchased his redemption by delivering up the three provinces of Essex, Sussex, and Middlesex, besides other districts, at the option of his betrayers." It remains to be added that St. Germanus, since the brave Prince Vortimer had died some time before, took upon himself a sort of Christianization of the British realm, and fought against Hengist with considerable success; while the unhappy Vortigern, with Rowena, his fatal Saxon bride, retreated to a castle on the River Towy, and what himself up there, attended by some emotions and by the clergy, praying night and day for the pardon of his sins. "But on the third night, at the third hour, fire fell from heaven and burnt up the castle; and Vortigern and the daughter of Hengist, and his other wives, and all the inhabitants, both men and women, miserably perished. Such was the end of this unhappy King."

THE PRIVATE VIEW.

WHEN the managers of theatres and other places of entertainment have got ready, with infinite cost and pains, the most popular exhibitions of the season, it is their custom, we believe, in some cases, to bid a few not unfriendly critics to come and inspect "the properties," look at the effective pieces of scenery, and in due time witness the rehearsal. A privilege which is no flattering to the judgment, and which appeals so directly to the candour of the persons invited, who are enabled in this way to procure the earliest and most exclusive knowledge of those matters, about which they are curiously discussed by a portion of the general public, is sure to be valued—such, at least, is the manager's calculation, and by this delicate form of bribery does he hope to secure the favourable opinion of the professed connoisseurs. This practice would not, indeed, be likely to have much effect if it were generally known that the expectation of conciliating those most austere and fastidious guardians of a pure taste and lofty standard of excellence, in regard to the Fine Arts, who dispatch the musical, theatrical, and artistic "notices" usually of the London press; for those gentlemen, having in their vast experience already seen and heard all that can ever be created or conceived, must of course be indifferent to the temptations of a free dinner.

Little children, happily for them and for us, are differently disposed: they find things new and beautiful at every turn, for theirs is the fresh and genuine appetite for enjoyment, pleased, while lords the illness of its own bright fancy and warm enthusiastic affection to aid even the feeblest and most meagre representations of that which is fair and grand and noble. Not so the "old boys," who have not been spoiled by the contagion of a censorious and denying spirit, will gladly accept, and from the fresh abundance of their free imaginations will complete and glorify, your humble and imperfect sketch, or your play.

Yet there are some cases in which the opportunity of a Private View may be no less seductive to children. Not that any child can be presumed capable of such a process of approbation for the privilege of a first peep; nor can we doubt but, on the contrary, its enjoyment of the final display would be greatly diminished by having witnessed the previous trials of scene or less satisfactory acts of effect. But there is a peculiar relish, even to the most artless and innocent minds, in such morsels of gratification surreptitiously obtained, which seem not indeed to make one happy at the expense of the others, but to gain him the indulgence a little sooner, without depriving them of the pleasure they are still to expect. Morally, of course, this principle is not defensible; but practically, it is a thing which has its long run; for where the cake is equally divided, the boy who does not wait to eat his share at the hour of the general feast is doomed to watch another eating his, and he shall not give his comrades are munching with unanimous and mature delight. But the little German boy, Wilhelm Meister, who slipped into his mother's store closet and opened the box of puppets which she had provided for the Christmas show, enjoyed then and there his solitary rehearsal of the marvellous play of "Goliath and David," with that fearful stolen satisfaction which sems, as Goethe remarks, "as the truest part of the pleasures of childhood."

The tender apprehensions of a nursemaid—so may the reader conjecture—has permitted three or four young spectators of the Christmas-tree, shown in one of our illustrations, to taste this perilous and inadvisable enjoyment of seeing before the due time and in a very improper place the rich and splendid fruitage of that celebrated plant, which blooms, in the warm rays of the festive hearth, on the night of the 24th of December. It is a very important place, to any mother of a family would say. A Christmas-tree is bed! Why, it 's burning the world upside down to think of such 'ere thing. What if the children was to make holes in it? Or Miss Mary and Miss Lucy if'their bed together, saying they hoped there would be a nice doll to be sister to their old Dolly, while Master Frank, in his cot, was quietly dreaming about and saying he knew his papa had brought home a lot of swords, and whips, and drums? Was that any reason for going and fetching the Christmas-tree out of the back garden, where their grandmamma and Aunt Jane had put it in when was fashed, meaning to have it locked up in the coal-cellar and kept there all next day, to be brought out at the party in the evening, between the last game at blind-man's-buff and the supper? Certainly not. This is very wrong. Nurse, we have a great mind to give you warning. Take warning—not to do so again. And, God bless those children! will they ever forget the great they have seen the Christmas-tree? Oh! you foolish little folk, all your pleasure to-morrow night will be spoiled; and when the tree is over so beautifully lighted up you will not care so much about it, because of this Private View.

RIDDLES.

RIDDLE ME, RIDDLE ME RIGHT.
A DOZEN BAD RIDDLES AS EVEN CAN BE.

1. When was an execution put in the Ark?
2. Why, when a young gentleman makes a declaration of love, and the young lady exclaims "O," are they mutually engaged?
3. What is the difference between Arch the Anakim and Chang the Chinese giant?
4. When should a very industrious shoemaker not spend a shilling?
5. Why is a very fine cigar like a policeman at the west end of London?
6. When does a man use a poker to ride with?
7. When is a hansom cab like a school-boy doing a sum in arithmetic?
8. Why is a white rabbit of less value than a black one?
9. When is photographing an unfilial operation?
10. Why is St. Clement's Church like Holborn?
11. Why is it difficult to tell the chief feature of difference between Stodare's Sphinx and its great Egyptian prototype?
12. Alfred Mellon's promenade band is always excellent, so is his English Opera one; name any other which "Mrs. Mellon, late Miss Wyndham," prefers.

[The Answers to these Riddles will be given in our Next Number.]

CHRISTMAS AT THE COURT OF KING ARTHUR.—DRAWN BY JOHN GILBERT.—SEE PAGE 629.

CHRISTMAS AT THE COURT OF KING ARTHUR.—DRAWN BY JOHN GILBERT.—SEE PAGE 626.

GILBERT.—SEE PAGE 628.

CHRISTMAS AT THE COURT OF KING ARTHUR.—DRAWN BY JOHN GILBERT.—SEE PAGE 628.

MR. GRISSELTHWAITE'S CHRISTMAS DINNER.

BY MARY HOWITT.

MR. GRISSELTHWAITE, whom we see, in the Illustration on page 625, eating his Christmas dinner in dismal jollity, was, it might almost be said, the son and heir of three old bachelors. But as this seems like a paradox to begin with, I must be allowed to introduce you, some sixty or seventy years ago, to the founder of a small gentleman's house standing on the shady hillside of a Cumberland valley. This was the old Squire, whose life-size memorial, of the Griselthwaites; statesmen, or small proprietors of land and land-privileges, with small flocks and herds, which fed on the open fells in summer and were housed near the dwelling through the winter.

Mr. Griselthwaite, who died somewhat past middle life about a century ago, left three sons, then come to man's estate, all tillers of the soil, and no one of the three enterprising enough to leave the dale in which he was born for more adventurous town life. For many years each brother had hoped that the others would do so, and each one, in his turn, threw out baits to catch the others, either in Whitehaven or Lancaster, either with shipping or shopkeeping interests. But none took the bait, and, much to each other's dissatisfaction, they lived together, until, from openly grumbling and secretly trying to circumvent and undermine each other, they came, at length, to be very much of one mind—namely, that of being "the rich old men of the family."

Their housekeeper through all these years was their mother, a hard, managing old woman, whose nature, whatever it might have been in the beginning, was so completely in unison with that of her sons that the re was no dissonion amongst them. At last she died and was buried. The youngest of her sons was then near sixty, and scarcely, perhaps, was either ever more unmoved from her family than she was. She had been hale and active almost to the very last, and then dropped, as it were, out of her daily duties or cares, which then fell of necessity upon her three old bachelor sons.

Forridge-making in a morning for breakfast, boiling cabbage and bacon for dinner, even making beds and mopping the kitchen, as well as ing the milk-pans, seems no hard work in the hands of an accustomed woman, nor even these old bachelors unaccustomed to many kinds of domestic drudgery. Nevertheless, when their mother was gone, and they had to do it all for themselves, and many other things also in which they had no experience—for they never thought of taking a woman-servant—they found it not much to their liking, nor nothing of the contention which now began as to what duties belonged to each. Worst of all, they could not manage the butter-making. Several could, but when the butter came to market, no neither washed it nicely nor yet could their awkward hands shape it into the nice pats on the ornamental butter-print as the old woman had done. Their butter would not sell in the market, and by what they were losing money, which, after all, was the most serious part of the business.

The two elder brothers, Job and Samson, were the two that mostly held together. The one was troubled with rheumatism and the other had corns, so that the more active duties fell, as a matter of course, to the youngest, William or Willie, as he was called. He had to ride for market, and bought and sold for the family. When, therefore, the mother had been dead six months, and Willie was gone, on a wet winter's day, with butter and eggs to Papcastle Market, the two elder brothers sat by the fire and deliberated on the present perplexing state of family affairs. How much talking and thinking it required before a remedy was discovered I know not. They, however, came to a definite decision before dusk, at which time Willie was expected back; and their decision was that he must get married. Willie, the youngest and the fittest to make this sacrifice for the family good, must take a wife. They were perfectly agreed, and no more, therefore, needed to be said till the unfortunate victim made his appearance, wet and weary, and totally unaware of the mischief which had been plotting against him.

Accordingly, no sooner had Willie seated himself by the fire, taken off his shoes, and held his head into the settle-corner for a comfortable sleep, preparatory to bed, than the brothers began, and that with all the more unction because he had brought the mouldy butter back, unsold, from the market. The two miserable old men came down upon him, like Fate.

"Willie," said Job, "we've made up our minds thou must take a wife."

"There must be a woman in the house," said Samson; "and, Willie, thou must wed."

Willie, who was sinking into a warm snooze as the brothers began, roused himself at this unheard-of demand, and exclaimed, with ineffable disgust and indignation,

"Ay, ay, whenever there's any dirty, disagreeable work to be done, it's me that must do it!" and, without another word offended and insulted, went sheepishly off to bed.

Whether he slept or not I cannot say; but certain it is that the idea, new as it was, tumbled about in his brain till it found a corner to lodge in, and, in time, there could be no getting it out of it. It is possible that the old brothers had also a wife in view for Willie. Be that, however, as it might, he had no intention of consulting them, and before long astonished them by announcing that Nelly o' Thomas's o' Beckside was coming there as his wife.

Nelly o' Beckside was a comely woman under thirty, who, poor soul! never since her own consented to become Willie o' Greenbank's wife had it not been to free herself from the tyranny of a step-father, by having a home of her own.

The brothers were horrified and affronted at the idea of a young wife who would have all sorts of fancies and ways, from which there would be no turning her. But there was no help for it. Willie, when he had once the bit in his mouth, was harder to guide than a mule. His brothers had laid the burden on his back, and now he chose to carry it in his own way.

It was, therefore, no pleasant home that poor Nelly came to. She was naturally a gentle, meek-spirited woman; and had she known what it was to come under the hard dominion of three old men, two of whom were always banded against her, she probably would have preferred the misery under the step-father's roof. Poor Nelly! She perhaps might have thrown herself into Garstang water to have been rid of her life, if, within the second twelve months, a fourth being had not made its appearance bringing with it that inexhaustible fountain of love, long-suffering, and patience which lies deep in every true mother's heart.

A child in the house was more than the old brothers had bargained for. They knew not at first what to make of it. They were ashamed and felt a sort of embarrassment when anyone spoke to them about it. They were stupid old men, and a new idea took a long time in getting into their brains. If they could have got rid of the child, they would have done so; but that was impossible. There it was, a large-limbed, healthy, "bonnie lad-bairn," who made the very rafters ring with his crying from the first day that he was born.

Before long the wooden cradle stood on the hearth, and Nelly, poor woman, became blind, and deaf, and dumb towards the worryings of the old men, in the tender care and love of the child.

Joshua was the name it received, after the grandfather, and by degrees the old men grew accustomed to it. Young pigs they had well enough, and lambs, and calves; thyr, indeed, had a bonny lad-bairn, which was come all right and proper to inherit Garstang after them, as they had inherited from their father before.

Desperately fond, each in his own rude way, grew the two uncles, as well as the father, of the little Joshua; and this, of course, would lead one to suppose that the position of the poor mother would be greatly improved. There is a curious bird in Australia—the grey magpie it is called—the mother-bird of which is supposed by all her relations to be incapable of managing her own affairs, as soon as she nestling out of the egg than they all, grandfathers, uncles, cousins, devote themselves to the nurture and education of the young grey magpie, and such a confusion and clamour of contradictory advising, others exulting, chuckling, or scolding—as no one can form an idea of who has not heard it. So was it now at Garstang. The whole set-to, having equal rights in the nursery, seemed to have, and asserted, equal rights in the child. In no one thing regarding it were they agreed, except that there never was such a child before in the world, and that they would do all in their power to make it and make everybody miserable about it. That at four years it should be dressed in a regular little man's suit was a matter of course; so the old men had been arranging it that it should be dressed in a suit of cloth of the mother might say to the contrary. The mother, indeed, had now ceased to have any voice regarding him. Still, he was the apple of her eye, and the darling of her heart for weeks and months on any little acts of love or duty which he might chance to show her.

So it went on till the lad was ten, and then she died. It was the last thing for which their one thought, and how to make us ever; new life had, as it were, come into them with the child, and now they might live to see him of age.

It was wonderful how he fell, or rather grew, into the ways of his teachers. He was as mean as they were, and a great deal more cunning. He went to school—first, in the village, then to Whitehaven; and at Whitehaven he was the best-dressed boy in the school, too, who had ruined him body and soul, were dead—disappointed every one of them and very sorrowful is he undutiful disregard of the lad who for twenty years had been their one thought, and for whom they had saved and scraped together seven thousand pounds, to say nothing of the homestead in which Garstang.

He was now an independent gentleman, very keen after money and with considerable interest in vessels trading to Whitehaven. People said, of course, that he was "close." He liked money, and liked, was like most men of his years, fond of enjoyment. His character was neither decidedly good nor bad, and many most respectable fathers and mothers would have considered him a very desirable a wife from their daughters. But he did seem inclined to marry.

He was now five-and-thirty, and his shipping interests extended to London. People began to say, "Joshua Grisselthwaite is ready—why did he not get married?" There was a desolate, comfortless look about his house, both without and within, but still more so within. He was growing to dislike his own fireside, his housekeeper and his old ways and manners; and he and his friends drank their grog and "enjoyed themselves," as they called it, in the bar-parlour in preference to his home.

At forty, however, he took it into his head that perhaps he had better marry; it was more respectable. He should have money to leave, and, being without children of his own, the children of sister's side, and his mother's family having gone down in the world—he would naturally like to leave his money to his own descendants. Where, then, should he look for a wife? He was tired of his present's society and was no way given to books. The Bible he had read in his youth at school, and all that he clearly remembered was that St. Paul had said it was better for a man to marry, and that wives must be obedient to their husbands. Paul, therefore, was a sensible man, and the Bible a good book. Now, however, when he was thinking of marrying, it might be as well to obtain some of the books of the present day to more modern life, and such especially as women were acquainted with, that he might have something to talk with them about. He accordingly began his study of modern literature. He read Byron, and Scott, and Byron, and I am afraid that such of the noble poet's works as he had not read very much elevate his mind or give him more advanced views of women. After the poems he looked into the Life and Letters, and here he met with a sentiment that enchanted him, and which he quotes to this day—namely, that the best paper to dine with women because the linen must be given the live-wing of the chicken!

Nevertheless, he really entertained the thought of marrying, and actually fell in love with a housekeeper's niece.

His housekeeper's niece, a young Irishwoman from Rostrever, very pretty and fascinating, as most young Irishwomen are, was on a visit in the house. She was, moreover, instantly ready to fall in love, finding her own tea and sugar, invited her to take tea with her. Here the master saw her, sitting, like a young Queen without her crown and jewels, in the housekeeper's room, and, as he thought, the prettiest girl in the house—with her eyes bent upon some pretty piece of fancy-work, and her beautiful dark eyelashes seeming to cast a shadow on her soft peach-like cheek. Never had Mr. Grisselthwaite been so taken aback in his life as when those eyelids were lifted and a pair of brilliant eyes flashed their beaming light upon him.

He indeed had his steps a-second, the poor housekeeper not knowing whether he were angry or not at the liberty she had taken in having a friend to tea. Nothing of the kind. For the first time in his life Grisselthwaite felt the influence of beauty. He was accustomed to his housekeeper that evening, and begged her to have her niece as often to tea as she liked; asked about her family, and took a great interest in those Irish people at Rostrevor. Strange to say, money seemed to lose some of its value. What did it matter, he asked himself, if a man married a woman he liked whether she had money or not? He was in love with his own generosity, and determined to win the young Irish woman on any terms. He indulged himself in her society; walked out with her when it was dark for he did not wish to be seen accompanied; and drove her out into the country. In short, he was very desperately in love; nevertheless, he prided himself on being a prudent man, and advised himself not to be over-precipitate. She, in the mean time, was playing her cards with consummate skill. How she contrived it would be impossible to say; but she actually persuaded him to advance five hundred pounds to a cousin of hers who was trading to America, and who shortly intended to emigrate there with his wife. He was an excellent young man, she averred—none better; and she herself would guarantee the safety of the money. Would he only oblige her by lending her cousin this five hundred pounds?

Never did Mr. Grisselthwaite do such a foolish thing as that again. He advanced the money, and the next week the Rostrevor beauty married her cousin, and they both emigrated to America, as was the intention, whether they had had the money or not. Of course, the poor housekeeper lost her place. But the next year she went over to America to her relations, and was on way the worse for it. As for the young couple, it is but right to say that fifteen years afterwards Grisselthwaite received from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the five hundred pounds and interest thereon, with a half-apologetic, half-bantering letter from the Irish wife, saying, in conclusion, that she was the mother of ten children, her husband member of Congress, and she the happiest woman in the State of Wisconsin. But not a word of all this, either beginning or end, did Grisselthwaite ever speak to any one; and for the next five years, at least, he was cured of all matrimonial intention.

Gradually, however, the thought took possession of his mind that he should like to educate some young girl as his wife. He had read of Day, the author of "Sandford and Merton," having made such an experiment—dropping burning sealing-wax on her arm to inure her to pain, and firing off pistols at her petticoats to develop in her presence of mind.

Grisselthwaite had himself been an experimentalist in his boyhood. He had exercised the endurance of cockchafers by running pins through their bodies and then hanging them by a hair to spin, and by pulling off the wings of flies and butterflies to accustom them to the better use of their legs. He had endeavoured to train the cat to walk in patines by fixing her feet in empty walnut-shells filled with hot pitch. But, though his experiments had always failed of success, still they were amusing and interesting at the time; and, now that the idea of matrimony was again in his mind, his old thoughts seemed to turn naturally to a new mode of experimental philosophy.

He never, however, carried out this plan, thinking it better and neat trouble to marry a woman who came with money. There was Miss Gould, for instance, the late Banker Gould's daughter, a lady of an age suitable to himself, and possessed of independent property. No doubt she would be glad of a husband—a kind old maids were. The idea took violent possession of his mind, and whilst he was meditating upon it winter came on with extreme severity, and the poor were reduced to such straits of suffering that benevolent ladies undertook to collect subscriptions for their relief. It seemed, therefore, a very remarkable coincidence to Mr. Grisselthwaite that at the very moment when he was thinking of Miss Gould with matrimonial views that lady should enter his counting-house with her subscription-list in her hand. The names of the first men in the town were down for their twenty and ten pounds, then followed those which gave five. Grisselthwaite never before was so inclined to be generous, and he laid two sovereigns before the lady. His heart seemed to take them up.

Oh, no! It would not do for a man of Mr. Grisselthwaite's known wealth to give less than the others. He must remember that his example would be followed—men of influence always took the lead.

Flattered by these words, and, above all things, desirous of pleasing Miss Gould, he gave her five pounds, and wondered at his own generosity.

But he was not displeased. He intended to have noble interest for his money. The next day, accordingly, he wrote a letter to the lady offering his hand and his heart. He was at some time somewhat in the best mode of expressing himself; and, this done, he wrote his first love-letter, on ordinary office-paper, plentifully scattered pounce over it when he had done, and then, securing it with a red wafer, dispatched it by his porter.

The wafer could not be dry, and the pounce might fly in her eyes as Miss Gould opened the communication. Then letter, the contents of which at once affronted and amused her. But she did not keep him long in uncertainty. Her servant in livery brought her reply, inclosed in an envelope sealed with the arms of her family, and written on thick, hot-pressed paper, gold-edged, and with her crest in gold likewise at the top; and the answer was as short as words could make it:—

"Miss Gould has no intention of changing her condition; and, if she had, Mr. Grisselthwaite would be the last man to induce her to do so."

This was not pleasant information for an ambitious man, say nothing of a lover; and the worst of it was that Miss Gould, although somewhat affronted, was at the same time greatly amused. The fact oozed out, and everybody made merry at old Grisselthwaite's bold venture."

This by many was supposed to be the cause of his leaving the north. He said that his increasing mercantile interests took him to London. Here, therefore, we now find him in his sixty-sixth year, and he having within the last twelve months become the partner of Mr. Cornwallis we shall see that this worthy gentlemen was desirous, last Christmas of finding him a wife.

Mr. Cornwallis was a paterfamilias in the fullest sense of the word. He thought no man good for anything who had nobody but himself to care for, and had no idea that a man could have too large a family. That thing could not be, he said; and he had endless stories to tell of men who had been kept above water amidst the most troublous sea of adversity by their children. "A man cannot sink," he said, "who has a number of living buoys floating round him like so many life-preservers," and then he laughed heartily at his joke.

Mr. Cornwallis could not tolerate unmarried men in easy circumstances. Therefore Grisselthwaite had not long been in partnership with him before he determined to get him comfortably married, and thus make a man of him, for it was his boast that he had been the means of so end of happy marriages.

Such was Mr. Cornwallis, and his wife was like him in every good, warm-hearted impulse. She, too, was an advocate for marriage; but then she was made domestic according it which her husband, though he acquiesced in her views, laid less stress upon. For instance, she regarded it as indispensable that the man should put aside all those slovenly, indulgent, and often disgusting habits which people who live alone, and think they may do just as they like, so often acquire. A man or woman, she maintained, who has lived to middle life for the most part alone, only half educated, perhaps, wanting, it may be, in natural delicacy and refinement, and, above all, without the refining, elevating influences of true religion, is no more fit to be married—to become the companion of a human being who is, perhaps, highly sensitive on all these subjects—than if her she were an idiot or insane.

Cornwallis said that his wife carried her notions to excess, nevertheless he had acted all his married life as if he believed them to be true and important as the words of the Bible. Spite of all this, he was now determined to look out for a wife for his partner. He naturally took a strong interest in him from their business connection, and, being of a sympathetic turn, had a painful knowledge of the discom-forte of his home, or rather lodgings, where he had once been invited to a bachelor supper. Twenty thousand pounds, in London, would not enable a man to live in Belgrave or even Russell square, argued he; but there was no reason why he should not have a pretty villa at Clapham, or at Notting-hill, instead of living in that hugger-mugger way in those dirty lodgings at Poplar. No; they must try to make something of him. It was never too late to mend, and a temperate man was not old at sixty, or even sixty-five.

Never was there so sanguine a man as Mr. Cornwallis. He was determined that Mr. Grisselthwaite should have a wife, and that no other than good Lucy Arnold, who had been his daughters' governess.

"Would it not be a nice thing for Lucy to have a comfortable home of her own now that she was getting on in life! Why, she must be near fifty, and there were so many showy governesses in the market!"

Again Mrs. Cornwallis shook her head, and questioned if Lucy were not better off even as a poor governess than as the wife of a man like Grisselthwaite.

"Bless me," exclaimed her husband, "what would you women have?"

"Just pensable him," returned his wife, "to wipe his shoes when he comes in, and to keep his hands clean. If you can induce him to do these little things, I will then think of him as a husband for Lucy Arnold."

"Done," said her husband, and the subject dropped.

This was the beginning of December. About a week afterwards good Mr. Cornwallis began, at breakfast, "I shall ask Grisselthwaite to dine with us on Christmas Day. We shall have the old set: father and mother, the Lanes, and poor old Mr. and Mrs. Street and their daughter, and Lucy Arnold will be here, and Tom and Mary, and the children. Bessie means also to come, so Robert told me last evening."

"Yes," said Mrs. Cornwallis; "it we shall be very full this Christmas, because I have asked the Thomas and poor old Mrs. Smallpiece; and I have promised the children that you will take them to the pantomime."

"Very good," returned her husband; and then added, with a chuckle, "and I'll ask old Grisselthwaite to go with us. He is such a countrified fellow, it would be regular fun to go with him; and Lucy Arnold shall go somewhere with us. We'll have a real jolly Christmas."

"Don't forget your instructions to Mr. Grisselthwaite about wiping his shoes; and let him come with his hands clean," said his wife.

"I know," said her husband; "I've thought it all over. I shall say, as we come in, that you are so particular—that all women are so. I know how to manage him, in a delicate way, of course. But it really is wonderful what slovenly habits folks get by living only for themselves. But I'm sure there is good in him, as there is good in everybody."

What a house full of merry people, old and young, was that of the Cornwallis's on Christmas Day! It was not a large house—a second-rate villa in St. Leonard's-on-Sea-wood; but there was room, and room amiable, or better-accorded company than theirs throughout all London.

"And so the pater's new partner is to be here to-night," said the son-in-law, Robert, to Mrs. Cornwallis. "Tom says he is a regular curmudgeon; what do you say?"

"I have seen but little of him," returned she; "but father thinks well of him, as he does of most people; and he wants to get up a match between him and Lucy Arnold."

"My goodness!" exclaimed Robert, laughing loudly.

Just then Mr. Cornwallis and his partner alighted from a cab at the gate. Cornwallis brought him with him to make sure of his coming. It was a miserably wet evening, and they had the length of rather a long gravel walk to traverse before reaching the door. This was an excuse for the shoes

"Now, my dear fellow," said Cornwallis, when they were inside the door, "we must wipe our shoes most accurately; my wife is very particular. So are all women. I shall change mine, of course; but there's a capital mat." And away he scrubbed at his own shoes, though they were not at all dirty. "And now come," said he, "into my dressing-room, and let us wash our hands, before we go down to the ladies. I'll then go down and introduce you—there are none but my own family—and come back and attend to my belle."

This vexed Grisselthwaite exceedingly, for he hated to be dictated to, and he would neither wipe his shoes nor wash his hands. If he were not fit for his ladies' company as he was, why, he would go home again. He did not say so, but he looked it; and good Mr. Cornwallis, thus defeated at the beginning of the campaign, thought it best to take him into the drawing-room to his wife and children at once, and then prepare himself before the other guests arrived.

This was the first time that Grisselthwaite had ever been in such a happy family group. There were the old people of the last generation, and Mrs. Cornwallis and Lucy Arnold, both in middle life, and both types of beautiful, self-forgetting womanhood, happy in the love with which they surrounded themselves, and the good children with which each day was full. And here were the daughters of the one, educated by the other; and, again, a younger generation, their children, full of life and good health, beautiful young human beings, the hope and promise of the coming time. Yes, it was a lovely sight, that assembled family group on that happy Christmas Day of 1841!

Other guests were expected—old dependents, old clerks, and poor relations, who would be brought there and taken back in flies, at no expense to themselves, and everyone of whom would return the richer by some well-thought-of Christmas present.

It was a most successful dinner — four-and-twenty people! I wonder why they found room to sit. True, there was the old wood and good Lucy Arnold at a side table with the children, and Mr. Cornwallis so contrived that Grisselthwaite, who sat near him, should have their happy countenances exactly opposite to him, and he to be fail to direct his attention to her as "the most perfect jewel of a woman!" She had been his daughters' governess, and had lived in the best families, and nothing would please him better than to see her comfortably settled with a good husband of her own.

He perhaps did not diplomatise wisely. His wife heard him from her seat at the top of the table, and smiled to herself to see how totally beyond the mark were his observations. Above all things, she hoped that Lucy's ears were not as open as hers. Not they. Lucy was busy with the things. Besides, she was the last person in the house that anybody would talk about her.

But it was no use pointing out anything beautiful to Grisselthwaite. He was as completely out of his element as a fish out of water, and wished himself at home again almost from the moment he entered. It was the longest evening he ever spent in his life.

"Bless me! and is it really eleven o'clock? And must we really bid you good-night?" exclaimed poor old Mrs. Street and her lame daughter. So exclaimed they all, ringing changes on the same tune, as they went to put their things on.

And oh! it's so good of Mr. Cornwallis, always fetching us and sending us back in a carriage!" said everyone.

Do you know, it's the only time in the twelve months that I ever get a ride!" said feeble Mrs. Smallpiece; "and the motion is so easy, I never feel the pain in my back."

And "God bless you! and send you many a happy Christmas!" sounded from the carriages as they drove away with their grateful occupants.

"Where's Grisselthwaite?" exclaimed the happy Cornwallis, as he came into the house again, after seeing all his humble guests comfortably driven away.

Nobody could give him any information. At last the waiter, who had been hired for the day, said that the gentleman, no doubt, was the one who took his hat and coat just before Mrs. Smallpiece went out. He said he would find a cab for himself, for he wanted to be at home.

Yes; Grisselthwaite's hat and coat were gone, and he had bade none of them good-night.

Mr. Cornwallis would have been angry under any other circumstances, but he only shrugged his shoulders and laughed.

"Poor old fellow!" he said, "I dare say he was out of his element. We made a mistake. We should have asked him just by ourselves, with Lucy Arnold and one or two others."

But Grisselthwaite would not again dine at his partner's, on any terms. "Such a slave as that man is to his wife!" exclaimed he, with ineffable contempt and pity. "No, no! I'll eat my Christmas dinner by myself henceforth and for ever!"

Here, therefore, we see him in his lodgings, at Poplar; and "Thank Heaven!" he says, "I've nobody to please but myself. I can eat and drink and do just what I like. I should think of nobody but myself; that's the privilege of being a bachelor!"

UNDER THE MISTLETOE.

BY GEORGE MACDONALD.

ISS me, kiss me, little Neddy.
Ah! you see her, staring steady;
For your eyes there's not a wonder
Can escape, above or under.
You have caught the pretty creature
Sitting on her nest. A neater
Never built on this planet;
Never was a sweeter than it;
Never brood was such as this is:
That's the nest of all the kisses.
That's the Kissing Bird that's sitting
Christmas through, and never flitting;
Kisses, kisses, kisses hatching—
Sweetest birdies, for the catching.

There! that's one I caught this minute,
Musical as a linnet.
Where it is, your big eyes ask me:
That's a question will not task me.
There it is—upon cheek cherry;
There's another on chin-chinkie;
Now it is away to Minnie;
There's another on nose-nosey;
There's another on lip-posy.
And the Kissing Bird is hatching
Hundreds more for only catching.
Why the mistletoe it chooses,
And the Christmas tree refuses?
Minnie, you think that's a puzzle?
I your little mouth will muzzle
With another precious kiss,
Just to quench the unreasonable.
Tell me, then, you sly young monkey,
Or be whicked like a donkey,
Why the wren should choose an apple;
Or the rook with bandies grapple,
Building in a stately manner,
Far above the solemn people;
Or the limping, cheating plover
Not upon an elm-tree hover.
But prefer in fields to grubble,
With the partridge—which the stubble
Will betray, with crowd knows trouble—
To a thousand sad mischances.—
Tell me this, and I will tell you
Why this holly, ivy, and mellow
In the mistletoe aye bulideth,
Though the shade be small it yieldeth.

No, you cannot. I don't believe it, then I'll tell you all about it.
You may take it, or may leave it
Seem my reasons right or wrong.

'Tis because the mistletoe will Never yet consent to grow well
But upon some tree planted
And for kissing two are wanted.
Therefore 'tis the Kissing Birdie
Chooses out the oak-tree sturdie,
But the plant that grows upon it—
Like the wreath that crowns you.

But, my blessed little maniac,
All the birdies are not canaie
That the Kissing Birdie catches.
Some are worthless little wretches—
Have no life in them to speak of,
And are dead your very first look off.
May such kisses never touch you,
For they only smear and smutch you
—Is departed to herself to see her cot
Set to catch one. It will fret you
If you catch a wingful mole, or
Any other fiendly creature.
You won't like it, little Neddy;
Therefore Net, be wise and steady,
Kisses vain and kisses greedy.
Kisses careless, kisses needy,
Are as poor and mean and empty
As your favourite Humpty Dumpty
After his tremendous tumble,
Shedding brains it could not jumble.
—Be you worthy of such kisses
As the true heart never misses;
And of birds not on nor under
Kiss you worse than your own mother.

THE TOURNAMENT.

LACE for the Children! As among the Romans a festival was held every December in honour of Saturn, to commemorate the freedom and equality which were supposed to prevail on earth in the golden days, on which occasions great license was allowed to slaves, and they were even waited on by their masters; so, in like manner, we have yearly, at Christmas time, a Children's Saturnalia—free, however, from the grossness of its prototype—when the Little Ones rule with absolute sway over their elders. Parents, and, indeed, all grown-up persons of the same kith and kin, are for the nonce bound by an implied oath of allegiance to offer themselves as sacrifices—not exactly to give their lives, but to devote their time, their talents, and their purses to promoting the pleasures of their huge little lords and ladies. Nor is this a task grudgingly done; it is a service gleesomely accepted and performed with loving loyalty.

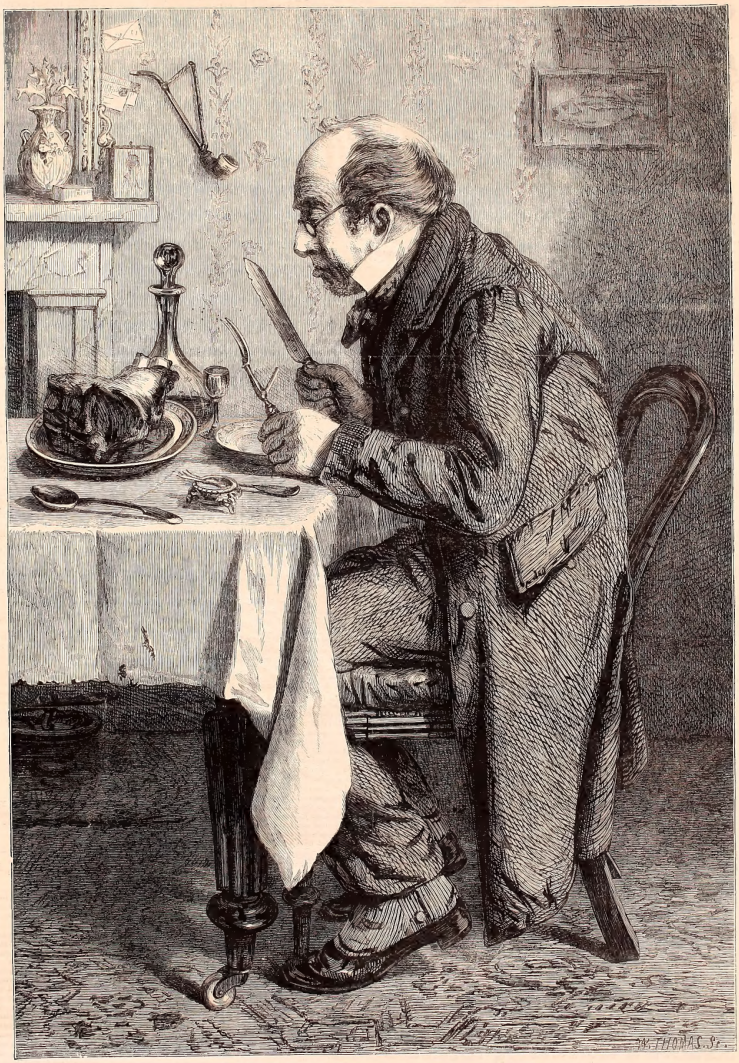
Look, for instance, at the illustration of the mock tournament at a children's party on page 629—what a scene of topsy-turvy jollity is in! and how deeply all share in the pleasures of the little ones! The mention of the tourney pushes one's thoughts back to the days of chivalry, and visions rise before us of "knights pricking over the plain" to the rescue of forlorn damsels; of "plumps of spears" arrayed, professedly at least, on the side of right; and of lists duly arranged, where cavaliers armed cap-à-pie, on bread-plated horses, tilt against one another—

> With store of ladies, whose bright eyes
> Rain influence, and judge the prize.

The age of chivalry, however (so Burke assures us), is passed. In the special form which it once held it is true that it has; nor is this greatly to be regretted if we retain, as it is to be hoped we do, the knightly virtues—reverential respect for women, hatred for wrong-doing and oppression, sympathy with the weak, and a promptness to strike in their defence. And is not the loving care and tender solicitude for children, this tending of the strong to the feeble, a knightly grace? At all events, it is of the nature of self-sacrifice, and may therefore claim kindred with feelings and principles that have a purer fountain-head than chivalry.

This reflection brings us back to our Parlour Tournament. Everything has been arranged. Our Queen of Beauty—surely a fairy queen—has been chosen, and sits enthroned in state. A stair-carpet is stretched across the room, partially to separate the combatants: one end being held by the herald; and the other by grandpapa, assisted, to whom make-believe assistance is given by a young urchin who flourishes his grandad's stick exultingly. On one knee grandpapa has a crowing baby upon with delight. A happy instance is afforded of the saying, "extremes meet," in the blending of age and childhood. Both have hopes, but how different in kind! Each is far removed from the rush of the busy world. The child has not reached it, and the aged one has passed through it, and haply anchored in "still waters." What tussles with fortune he may have had, what deep griefs he may have suffered, shall be called to mind through the veil of age and childhood are in unison. This, however, is not a time for moralising. "Let us go on with the action," first glancing at a few of the groups. Behind grandpapa are the last two knights, brimful of the purest happiness—that of contemplating the enjoyment of others, to which they have conduced. In the background are seen some downstairs acquaintances, and the half-open door to private scene, doubtless making their comments in some such fashion as this:—"How Master Fred is enjoying himself! and how well Miss Grace does look, to be sure, in that dress of state! She'd every inch a queen, God bless her!" One glance only, and that a hasty one, will we take at the couple behind the door. Ah! it is the old, old tale, yet ever new. Leave we them in their blissful absorption:

> What unto them is the world beside,
> With all its change of time and tide?



Behind the regal chair, in the curtained window recess, is—one may safely take his affidavit of it—another pair of lovers, whose happiness being secured, they can freely look out from their retreat, and sympathise with others.

Now for the tilting-match. The gallant baby knights are mounted on their restive wax-horses—two elder brothers—who prance and curvet and rear in most unhorselike fashion. Instead of spears the knights are armed with soft bolsters: the trusty weapon of arms is to be one of courtesy, not of outrance. Sounds the onset—a shrill blast from the herald's trumpet and a crash of martial music from the pianoforte. Now will deeds of chivalry be done. Now will the two fiery-opposing steeds meet, so rush the horses, snorting defiance, to the fray. Their riders bear themselves gallantly, deftly poising each his bolster. They meet, and dire is the shock. Although there is no lance-pointed spears on breast-plate or helmet. Noiselessly, yet firmly, as the teeth of youngsters glide through mincepie and plumpudding; or, as in the strife of snowballs, when tender-hued maidens are unmercifully aimed, smites like a battering-ram between the eyes, and makes them flash fire and strike, as it were, ten thousand sparks;—so the bolster of one knight, firmly and skilfully handled, turns his opponent's aside, and catches him plump on the face. See! the discomfited knight staggers: he topples from his horse. No opportunity in, however, allowed for a fall. Quarter, were he so inclined, he has left sword, which sticks out at his side with such a martial swagger. Forward spring nanny goatis damsels (for, when did suffering appeal to women in vain?) to help the unhorsed knight. Did he fall on purpose, cunning rogue, that he might have showered upon him such blissful condolences and kisses and embraces, for which the victorious knight might well envy him? He takes it as he is soon on his horse again, his "soul in arms and burning for the fray," and in the next encounter, learning wisdom from experience, that harsh but faithful mentor, he may be the victor. So, with the blare of the herald's trumpet sounding the next charge ringing in our ears, let us drop the scene, nor attempt to improve upon our Artist. Merely hinting that possibly—nay, probably—may it not be said certainly?—advantage will be taken by some of the adults before the evening is over of the fact that the guelder is graced with mistletoe, we end as we began, with calling—Place for the Children, of all ranks and degrees, at the coming Christmas, in memory of Him whose birth the sacred festival commemorates, and who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not!"

J. L.

ORIGIN OF THE WASSAIL-BOWL.—BY JAMES GODWIN.—SEE PAGE 619.

THE BACHELOR'S CHRISTMAS DINNER.—BY J. T. LUCAS.—SEE PAGE 622.

PAPA'S STORY.

BY GEORGE MACDONALD.

O tell us a story, papa," said a wise-faced little girl, one winter night, as she intermitted for a moment her usual occupation of the hour before bed-time—that, namely, of sucking her thumb, earnestly and studiously followed, as if the fate of the world lay on the faithfulness of the process; "Do tell us a story, papa."

"Yes, do, papa," chimed in several more children. "It is such a long time since you told us a story."

"I don't think papa ever told us a story," said one of the youngest.

"Oh, Dolly !" exclaimed half a dozen. But her next elder sister took up the speech.

"Yes, I dare say. But you were only born last year, and papa has been away for months and months."

Now, Dolly was five, and her papa had been away for three weeks.

"Well," interposed their papa, "I will try. What shall it be about ?"

"Oh ! about Scotland," cried the eldest.

"Why do you want a story about Scotland ?"

"Because you will like it best yourself, papa."

"I don't want one about Scotland. I'm not a Scotchman, though papa is," cried Dolly. "I'm an Englishman."

"I like Scotch stories," said the sucker of thumbs; "only I can't understand the curious words. They sound so rough, I never can understand them."

"Well, my darlings, I will tell you one about Scotland, and there shan't be a Scotch word in it. Not one single one comes out of my mouth you may punish me anyway you please."

"Oh, that 's jolly ! How shall we punish papa if he says one Scotch word ?"

"Pull his beard !" said Dolly.

"No, that would be rude !" cried three or four.

"Pepsoon Dolly's face changed, and she took to her thumb, like Katy.

"Make him pay a fine."

"That 's no use, papa's so rich !

Whereas the chief difficulty papa had in telling the story was the thought of the butcher's bill popping in through twenty different keyholes.

"Make him pay a kiss to each of us for every word fright to have been home a week ago, and he had not come. He had written to say that he had to finish some lessons he had begun to give, and could not be home till the end of the month. Now this was so far true that it was not a lie. But there was more in it: he did not want to go home to the lonely hillside—so lonely, that there were only a father and a mother and a sister there. He had made acquaintance with some students who were fonder of drinking whisky than of getting up in the morning to write abstracts," and he didn't want to leave them.

"Annie was, if I have said, too young to keep awake because she was troubled; and so, before half an hour was over, was fast asleep and dreaming. And the wind outside, tearing at the thatch of the cottage, mingled with her dream.

"I will tell you what her dream was.—She thought they were out in the dark and the storm, she and her father. But she was no longer Nelly; she was Annie. And her father was not Nelly's father, but after the black lamb and bring him home.' And away she galloped over the stones, and through the furze, and across the streams, and up the rocks, and jumped the stone fences, and the pools of water, and at last, to find the little black lamb. And all the time, somehow or other, the little black lamb was her brother Willie. And nothing could turn the dog Jumper, though the wind blew as if it would blow him off all his four legs, and off the hill, as one blows a fly off a book. And the hail beat in Jumper's face, as if it would put out his eyes or knock holes in his forehead, and yet Jumper went on."

"But it wasn't Jumper; it was Nelly, you know."

"I know that, but I am talking about the dog Jumper, that Nelly thought she was. He went on and on, and on, and on, and the cold wet hill, and was beginning to grow hopeless about finding the black lamb, when, just a little way down the other side, he came upon him behind a rock. He was standing in a dry nook, all wet with the rain. Jumper would never have found him, the night was so dark and the lamb was so black, but that he gave a bleat; whereupon Jumper tried to say Willie, but could not, and only gave a gentle kind of bark. So he jumped upon the lamb, and taking a mouthful of his wool, gave him a shake that made him pull his feet out of the mire, and then drove him off before him, trotting all the while at home. When they came into the cottage, the black lamb ran up to Nelly's mother, and jumped into her bed, and Jumper jumped in after him; and then Nelly was Nelly and Willie was Willie, and they all went to bed. Nelly would creep into Willie's bed in the morning and kiss him awake. Then Nelly woke, and was sorry that it was a dream. For Willie was still away, far off on the broad road, and how ever was he to get home? Poor black lamb!

"She soon made up her mind. Only how to carry her her mind was the difficulty. All day long she thought about it. And she wrote a letter to her father, telling him what she was going to do; and when she went to her room the next night, she laid the letter on her bed, and, getting up on her Sunday bonnet and cloak, waited till they should be asleep.

"The shepherd had gone to bed very sad. He, too, had been writing a letter. It had taken him all the evening to write, and Nelly had watched his face while he wrote it, and seen how the muscles of it worked with sorrow and pain as he slowly put word after word down on the paper. When he had finished it and folded it up, and put a wafer on it, and addressed it, he left it on the table, and, as I said, went to bed, where he soon fell asleep: for even sorrow does not long keep people awake when they have worked hard through the day in the open air. And Nelly was watching.

"When she thought he was asleep, she took a pair of stockings out of a chest and put them in her pocket. Then she took her Sunday shoes in her hand, she stepped gently from her room to the cottage door, which she opened easily, for it was never locked. She then found that it was pitch dark; but she could hear the wind howling round, for her bare feet told her at once when she was going off it. It is a great blessing to have bare feet. People with bare feet can always keep the path before, and feel if they get their garments clean; too. Only they must be careful to wash them at night.

"So far, all was well, she soon reached the road. There was no wind that night, and the clouds hid the stars. She would turn in the direction of Edinburgh, and let the carrier overtake her. For she felt rather guilty, and was anxious to get on.

"After she had walked a good while, she began to wonder that the carrier had not come up with her. The fact was that the carrier never left till the early morning. She was not a good little girl, then, reasoning that, as she was walking in the same direction, it would take him so much the longer to get up with her.

"At last, after walking a long way—longer far than she thought, for she walked a great part of it half asleep—she began to feel a little tired, and sat down upon a stone by the roadside. There was a stone behind her, too. She could just see its grey face. She leaned her back against it, and fell fast asleep.

"When she woke she could not think where she was, or how she had got there. It was dark, dreary moonless night. She was cold. But she was quite dry. For the rock against which she fell asleep in the night projected so far over her head that it had kept all the rain off her. She could not have chosen a better place if she had been able to choose. But the sight around her was very dreary. In front lay a swampy ground, creeping away, dismal and wretched, to the horizon, where a low hill closed it. Behind her rose a mountain, bare and rocky, on which neither sheep nor shepherd was to be seen. Her home seemed to have vanished in the night, and left her either in a dream or in another world. And as she came to herself, the fear grew upon her that either she had missed the way in the dark or the carrier had gone past while she slept, either of which was dreadful to contemplate. She began to feel hungry, too, and she had not had the foresight to bring even a piece of oatcake with her.

"It was only dusky dawn yet. There was plenty of time. She would sit down again for a little while, and then, I hope, find a homely look to her. It had been her refuge all night, and she was not willing to leave it. So she leaned her arms on her knees, and gazed out upon the dreary, grey, misty flat before her.

"Then she rose, and, turning her back on the waste, kneeled down, and prayed God that, as he taught Jumper to find lambs, he would teach her to find her brother. And thus she felt fast asleep again.

"When she woke once more and turned towards the road, whom should she see coming there but the carrier, staring at her. And his big strong horses stood in the road too, with their carts behind them. They were not in the least surprised. She could not help crying, just a little, for joy.

"'Why, Nelly, what on earth are you doing here?' said the carrier.

"'Waiting for you,' answered Nelly.

"'Where are you going, child?'

"'To Edinburgh.'

"'What on earth are you going to do in Edinburgh?'

"'I am going to my brother Willie, at the college.'

"'But the college is over now.

"'I know that,' said Nelly.

"'What 's his address, then?' the carrier went on.

"'I don't know,' answered Nelly.

"'It 's a lucky thing that I know, then. But you have no business to leave home this way.'

"'Oh! yes, I have.'

"'I am sure your father did not know of it, for when he gave me a letter this morning to take to Willie he did not say a word about you.'

"He thought I was asleep in my bed,' returned Nelly, trying to smile. But the thought that the carrier had actually seen her father since she left home, was too much for her, and she cried.

"'I can't go back with you now,' said the carrier, 'so you must get on with me.'

"That 's just what I want,' said Nelly.

"So the carrier made her put on her shoes and stockings, for he was a kind man and had children of his own. Then he pulled out some of the straw that packed his cart, and made a little bed on the tarpaulin that covered it, just where there was a soft bundle beneath. Then he lifted her up on it and covered her over with a fine empty sack. There Nelly lay so happy, and warm, and comfortable, that, for the third time, she fell fast asleep.

"When she woke he gave her some bread and cheese for her breakfast, and some water out of a brook that crossed the road, and then Nelly began to look about her. The rain had ceased and the sun was shining, and the country looked very pleasant; but Nelly thought it a strange country. She could see no such farms as she had seen, or growing everywhere, and there was not a sheep to be seen, and there were many cows feeding in the fields.

"'Are we near Edinburgh?' she asked.

"'Oh, no!' answered the carrier; 'we are a long way from Edinburgh yet.'

"And so they journeyed on. The day was flecked all over with sunshine and rain; and when the rain's turn came, Nelly would creep under a corner of the tarpaulin till it was over. They slept part of the night at a small town they passed through.

"Nelly thought it a very long way to Edinburgh, though the carrier was kind to her, and gave her of everything that he had himself, except the whisky that he did not think good for her.

"At length she spied, far away, a great hill, that looked like a couching lion.

"'Do you see that hill?' said the carrier.

"'I am just looking at it,' answered Nelly.

"'Edinburgh lies at the foot of that hill.'

"'Oh!' said Nelly, and her eyes grew first eyes off it till it went out of sight again.

"Reaching the brow of an eminence, they saw Arthur's Seat (as the carrier said the hill was called) once more, and below it a great jagged ridge of what Nelly took to be broken rocks. But the carrier told her that was the Old Town of Edinburgh. Those fierce-looking splinters on the edge of the mass were the roofs, gables, and chimneys of the great houses once inhabited by the nobility of Scotland. But when you come near the houses you find them shabby-looking; for they are left to the poor, and the poor cannot keep them in repair.

"But, certainly, my children, if you will excuse your Scotch papa for praising his own country's capital, I do not know any view of a city that has a more striking effect in the distance as that Old Town of Edinburgh. And when you get into the streets you can fancy yourself hundreds of years back in the story of Scotland. Even then through the perspective of time or distance, it is a great marvel to everyone with any imagination at all; and it was nothing less to little Nelly, even when the girl into her head, and filled her heart was so full of its dog-duties towards her black lamb of a brother that the toyshops and the sugarplum-shops could not draw it towards their misses of their counters.

"'I can't go with you till I 've unloaded my cart,' said the carrier.

"'I don't want you to go with me, please,' said Nelly. 'I think I could find my brother. I have been here before, you know.'

"So the carrier gave her the letter, and got a little boy of the landlady's to show her the way up the West-bow—a street of tall houses, the narrow sky between which was shaken across it from window to window. But those houses are all pulled down now, I am sorry to say, and the street Nelly went up has vanished. From the West-bow they went on to the High-street, the broadest part of it, and down a narrow court, and then up a winding stair, and so came to the floor where Willie's lodging was. There the little boy left Nelly.

"Nelly looked two or three times before anybody came; and when at last a woman opened the door, what do you think the woman did the moment she inquired after Willie?—She shut the door in her face with a bang, and locked it. For Willie had rented her that morning, and she thoughtlessly took her revenge upon Nelly without even asking her a question. Then, indeed, for a moment, Nelly's courage gave way, and she sank down on the landing, and sat down upon the stair and cried. And the landlady was so angry with Willie that she forgot all about the little girl that wanted to see him.

"So for a while she sat there, and then began softly, only to let people pass. She felt dreadfully miserable, but had not the courage to knock again, for fear of having the door shut in her face yet more completely. Then a door was shaken across the landing, and a voice called, 'Who 's that crying?' and the landlady was so angry with Willie that she forgot all about the little girl that wanted to see him.

"'Please, ma'am,' I want to see my brother Willie!' and burst into sobs.

"The landlady, her wrath having by this time assuaged, was vexed with herself and ashamed that she had not let the child in.

"'Bless me!' she cried; 'have you been there all this time? Why didn't you tell me? Come in, come in, this moment.' So in Nelly went, and found Willie, though. It's not much of his company we get, I can tell you.'

"'I don't want to come in, then, sobbed Nelly. 'Please to tell me where he is, ma'am.'

"'How should I know where he is? At no good, I warrant. But you had better come in and wait, for it 's your only chance of seeing him before to-morrow morning.'

"So a sore heart Nelly went in and sat down by the kitchen fire, and the landlady and her visitor sat and talked together, every now and then casting a look at Nelly, who kept her eyes on the ground, waiting with all her soul till Willie should come. Every time the landlady looked, she looked sooner the next time; and every time she looked, Nelly's sad face went deeper into her heart; so that, before she knew what was going on in herself, she quite loved the child; for she was a kind-hearted woman, though she was sometimes cross.

"In a few minutes she went up to Nelly and took her bonnet off, Nelly submitted without a word. Then she made her a cup of tea; and while Nelly was taking it she asked her a great many questions. Nelly answered them all; and the landlady stared with amazement at the child's courage and resolution, and thought with herself,

"'Well if anything can get Willie out of his bad ways, this little darling will do it.'

"Then she made her go to Willie's bed, promising to let her know the moment he came home.

"Nelly slept and slept till it was night. When she woke it was dark, but a light was shining through beneath the door. So she rose and put on her frock and shoes and stockings, and went to the kitchen.

"'You see he 's not come yet, Nelly,' said the landlady.

"'Where can he be?' returned Nelly, sadly.

"'Oh! he 'll be drinking with some of his companions in the public-house, I suppose.'

"'Where is the public-house?'

"'There are hundreds of them, child.'

"'I know the place he generally goes to,' said a young tradesman who sat by the fire.

"'He had a garret-room in the house, and knew Willie by sight. And he told the landlady in a low voice where it was.

"'Oh! do tell me, please sir,' cried Nelly. 'I want to get him home.'

"'You don't think he 'll mind you, do you?'

"'Yes, I do,' returned Nelly confidently.

"'Well, I 'll show you the way if you like; but you'll find it a rough place, I can tell you. You 'll wish yourself out of it pretty soon, while you are in it.'

"'I won't leave it without him,' said Nelly, tying on her bonnet.

"'Stop a bit,' said the landlady. 'You don't think I am going to let the child go with you looking like that, do you?'

"'Come along, then, ma'am.'

"The landlady put on her bonnet, and out they all went into the street.

"What a wonder it might have been to Nelly! But she only knew that she was in the midst of great lights, and carts and carriages rumbling over the stones, and crowds of people full of pretty things, and crowds of people jostling along the pavements. In all the show she wanted nothing but Willie.

"The young man led them down a long dark close through an archway, and then into a court off the close, and then up an outside stone stair to a low-browed door, at which he knocked.

"'I don't much like the look of this place,' said the landlady.

"'Oh! there 's no danger, I dare say, if you keep quiet. They never hurt the child. Besides, her brother 'll see to that.'

"Presently the door was opened, and the young man asked after Willie.

"'Is he in?' he said.

"'He may be, or he may not,' answered a fat, frowsy woman, in a dirty cotton dress. 'Who wants him?'

"'This little girl.'

"'Please come in, I 'm his sister.'

"'We want no sisters here.'

"And she proceeded to close the door. I dare say the landlady remembered with shame that that was just what she had done that morning.

"'Come! come!' interposed the young tradesman, putting his foot between the door and the post; 'don't be foolish. Surely you won't go to keep a child like that from speaking to her own brother! Why, the Queen herself would let her in.'

"This softened the woman a little, and she hesitated, with the latch in her hand.

"'Mother won't hurt him,' said Nelly. 'She 's very ill. I heard her cry about Willie. Let me in.'

"She took hold of the woman's hand, who drew it away hastily, but stepped back, at the same time, and let her enter. She then resumed her place at the door.

"Devil a one of you shall come in!' she said, as if justifying the child's admission to the rest, and all the others.

"'We don't want, mistress,' said the young man. 'But we 'll just see that no harm comes to her.'

"'D'ye think I 'm not strong enough for that?' said the woman, with scorn. 'Let me see who dares to touch her! But you may stay where you are, if you like. The sir's free.'

"So saying she closed the door, with a taunting laugh.

"The passage was dark in which Nelly found herself; but she saw a light at the further end, through a keyhole, and heard the sounds of loud talk and a boisterous laugher. Before the woman had closed the outer door, she had reached this room; nor did the woman follow either to guide or prevent her.

"A pause followed on her entrance. She tapped at the door.

"'Come in!' cried some one. And she entered.

"Round a table were seated four youths, drinking. Of them one was Willie. He sat with his head on his folded arms. They all stared when the child stood before them, in her odd, old-fashioned bonnet, and her little shawl pinned as the thrust. Willie stared as much as any of them.

"Nelly spoke first.

"'Willie! Willie!' she cried, and would have rushed to him, but the table was between.

"'What do you want here, Nelly? Who the deuce let you come here?' said Willie, not quite unkindly.

"'I want you, Willie. Come home with me. Oh! please come home with me.'

"'I can't, now, Nelly, you see,' he answered. Then, turning to his companions, 'I assure you the child have found her way here?' he said, looking ashamed as he spoke.

"'You are fetched. That 's all,' said one of them, with a sneer. 'Mother 's sent for you.'

"'Go along!' said another; 'and mind you don't catch it when you get home!'

"'Nobody will say a word to you, Willie, interposed Nelly.

"'Be a good boy, and don't do it again!' said the third, raising his glass to his lips.

"Willie tried to laugh, but was evidently vexed.

"'What are you standing there for, Nelly?' he said, sharply. 'This is no place for you.'

"'Nor for you either, Willie,' returned Nelly, without moving.

"'Will you go away naughty, aren't we, Nelly?' said the first.

"'Come and give me a kiss, and I 'll forgive you,' said the second.

"'You shan't have your brother; so you may trudge home again without him,' said the third.

"And then they all burst out laughing, except Willie.

"'Do go away, Nelly,' he said, angrily.

"'Where am I to go to?' she asked.

"'Where you came from.'

"'That 's home,' said Nelly; 'but I can't go home to-night, and I daren't go home without you. Mother would die. She 's very ill, Willie. I heard her crying last night.'

"It seemed to Nelly at the moment that it was only last night she left home.

"I 'll just take the little fool to my lodgings and come back directly,' said Willie, rather stricken at this mention of his mother.

"'Oh! yes. Do as you re bid!' they cried, and burst ent laughing again. For they despised Willie because he was only a shepherd's son, although they liked to have his company because he was clever. But Willie was angry now.

"'I tell you what,' he said, 'I'll go when and where I like.'

Two of them were silent now, because they were afraid of Willie; for he was big and strong. The third, however, trusting to the others, said, with a nasty sneer,

"'Go with its little sister to its little mammy!

"Now Willie could not get out, so small was the room and so large the table, except one or other of those next him rose to let him pass. Neither did, Willie therefore jumped on the table, kicked the tumbler of the one who had last spoken into the lesant of his shirt, jumped down, took Nelly by the hand, and left the house.

"'The rude boys!' said Nelly. 'I would never go near them again, if I was you, Willie.'

"But Willie said never a word, for he was not pleased with Nelly, or with himself, or with his friends.

"When they got into the house he said, abruptly, 'What 's the matter with mother, Nelly?'

"'I don't know, Willie; but I don't think she'll ever get better. I'm sure father doesn't think it either.'

"Willie was silent for a long time. Then he said,

"'How did you come here, Nelly?'

"And Nelly told him the whole story.

"'And now you 'll come home with me, Willie.'

"'It was very foolish of you, Nelly. To think you could bring me home if I didn't choose!'

"'But you do choose, don't you, Willie?'

"'You might as well have written,' he said.

"Then Nelly remembered her father's letter, which the carrier had given her. And Willie took it, and sat down, with his back to Nelly, and read it through.

Then he burst out crying, and laid his head on his arms and went on crying. And Nelly got upon a bar of the chair—for he, was down on the table—and leaned over him, and put her arms round his neck, and said, crying herself all the time,

"'Nobody said a word to the black lamb when Jumper brought him home, Willie.

"And Willie lifted his head, and put his arms round Nelly, and drew her face to his, and kissed her as he used to kiss her years ago.

"And I needn't tell you anything more about it."

"Oh! yes. Tell us how they got home."

"They went home with the carrier next day."

"And wasn't his father glad to see Willie?"

"He didn't say much. He held out his hand with a half smile on his mouth, and a look in his eye like the moon before a storm."

"And his mother?"

"His mother held out her arms, and drew him down to her bosom, and stroked his hair, and prayed God to bless Willie, her boy."

"And Nelly—weren't they glad to see Nelly?"

"They made more of Willie than they did of Nelly."

"And wasn't Nelly sorry?"

"No; she never noticed it—she was so busy making much of Willie, too."

"But I hope they didn't scold Nelly for going to fetch Willie?"

"When she went to bed that night, her father kissed her and said,

"'The blessin' o' an auld father be upo' ye, my wee bairn!'

"There 's Scotch, now exclaimed the whole company.

And in one moment papa was on the floor, buried beneath a mass of children.

The chief thumbsucker, after kissing till she was stupid, recovered her wits by sucking her thumb diligently for a whole minute, after which she said, "If we had been wolves, it would have been dangerous, papa."

And then they all went to bed.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE.—BY A. HUNT.—SEE PAGE 625.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF PAPA'S STORY.—BY C. ROBINSON.—SEE PAGE 625

CHRISTMAS AMUSEMENTS: THE TOURNAMENT.—DRAWN BY A. HUNT.—SEE PAGE 623.

OUTDOOR RELIEF.—DRAWN BY G. B. GODDARD.—SEE PAGE 631.

OUR COLOURED ILLUSTRATION.

The Children in the Wood.

is not without a hesitating apology for the meanness of his choice that Addison, in No. 85 of the Spectator, confesses having read, with "the most exquisite pleasure," an old ballad, which he found in a broadsheet pasted on the walls of a country house. "My reader," says he, "will think I am not serious when I acquaint him that the piece I am going to speak of was the old ballad of the 'Two Children in the Wood,' which is one of the darling songs of the common people, and has been the delight of most Englishmen in some part of their age." And then he goes on to plead, in vindication of his vulgar taste, that the late Lord Dorset, as well as Mr. Dryden and other refined critics of that day, were likewise fond of old English ballads. Fortified by their example, he ventures, in spite of "the little conceited wits" who buzzed in the coffee-houses of the time of Queen Anne, to commend this "plain, simple copy of nature, destitute of the helps and ornaments of art." It is curious to observe that Addison is afraid to quote a single line of the popular ballad, lest he should be derided by the polite readers of the town. "The whole narration," he says, "has something in it very moving, notwithstanding the author of it, whoever he was, has delivered it with such an abject phrase and poorness of expression that the quoting any part of it would look like a design of turning it into ridicule." But we of the nineteenth century do not feel bound to agree with the literary connoisseurs of the eighteenth in regard to the "mean language" of this genuine specimen of the native poetry of England, which is worth, in our judgment, all the pastorals of all the periwigged poetasters of London sniffed at Shakspeare and Milton while they obliged the world with their own effusions, "verse loitering into prose, and poetry fallen lame." We, therefore, being rather fond of that "despicable simplicity in the verse" which Addison thought likely to be objected to in the old ballad of the Children in the Wood, shall not have any scruple in putting the main part of the text before our readers, as we find it in Bishop Percy's "Reliques of Ancient English Poetry." And the sweet, pathetic story, told in this unaffected style, though it must have been long ago familiar to every one who meets with it here, will nevertheless be welcome, as it is now accompanied by the chromotype of Mr. Lucy's beautiful picture given with our Christmas Number.

It may be worth while to remark that the ballad itself, of which the oldest copy extant is one printed in black letter, in the Pepys' Collection, entitled "The Children in the Wood;" or, The Norfolk Gentleman's Last Will and Testament," does not pretend to a high antiquity; it cannot be referred to an earlier date than the middle of the seventeenth century. Its subject was probably suggested, in some measure, by a play which had been published in 1603, by Robert Yarrington, who may, like Shakspeare and other Elizabethan dramatists, have taken his plot from an Italian novel, since the scene of it is laid by him in Padua, and not in Norfolk. In this play, however, there is but one orphan child, and he does not die in the wood. The differences between the play and the ballad of the Norfolk gentleman's two children are so considerable, that the anonymous author of the ballad deserves almost the credit of an original invention; while the incidents which he has added to the story "cannot fail," as Addison remarks, "to please those who have a true and unprejudiced taste of nature."

The father and mother, it will be recollected, who had lived with each other in unbroken love, were taken ill at one time and lay on their death-bed, anxious only for the welfare of their two infant children—the one a pretty boy three years old, the other and younger a beautiful little girl. The father had made his will, leaving to his little son £300 a year on his coming of age, and to his little daughter a dowry of £500, to be paid on her marriage-day; but, if they should chance to die in their infancy, their uncle must possess their wealth. The condition, speech, and behaviour of the dying parents, with the age, innocence, and distress of the children, are set forth in such tender circumstances that it is impossible for a reader of common humanity not to be affected with them." The passage so justly commended by Addison is this :—

"Now, brother," said the dying man,
"Look to my children dear;
Be good unto my boy and girl,
No friend else have they here;
To God and you I recommend
My children dear this day;
But little while be sure we have,
Within this world to stay.

You must be father and mother both,
And uncle all in one;
God knows what will become of them,
When I am dead and gone."

With that bespake their mother dear,
"O brother kinde," quoth she,
"You are the man must bring our babes
To wealth or miserie;

And if you keep them carefully,
Then God will you reward;
But if you otherwise should deal,
God will your deedes regard."
With kisses as cold as any stone,
They kist their children small;
"God bless you both, my children dearе,"
With that the teares did fall.

The uncle having promised to keep the little ones safe and never to do them wrong, takes them to his own house when their parents are dead, and makes much of them for a time. But, after a twelvemonth and a day, he resolves that, for the sake of the money bequeathed to them, he will put them to death. He bargains with two strong ruffians to take them away and slay them in the wood, and he sends them from home, deceiving his wife by an artful tale of their going to be brought up by one of his friends in London.

Away then went those pretty babes,
Rejoycing at that tide,
Rejoycing with a merry minde,
They shall on cock horse ride.
They prate and prattle pleasantly,
As they rode on their way,
To those that should their butchers bee
And work their lives' decaye.

So that the pretty speech they had,
Made Murder's heart relent;
And they that undertooke the deed,
Full sore they now repent.
Yet one of them more hard of heart,
Did bidde to do his charge,
Because the wretch, that hired him,
Had paid him very large.

The other wont agree hereto,
So here they fall to strife;
With one another they did fight,
About the children's life;
And he that was of milder mood
Did slaye the other there,
Within an unfrequented woode;
The babes did quake for feare.

He took the children by the hand,
Teares standing in his eye,
And bade them strattway follow him,
And look they did not crye;
And two long miles he led them on,
While they for food complaine;
"Stay here," quoth he, "I'll bring you bread
When I come backe againe."

These pretty babes, with hand in hand,
Went wandering up and downe;
But never more could see the man
Approaching from the towne;
Their prettye lippes with black-berries
Were all besmear'd and dyed,
And when they saw darke night drawe on,
They sat them downe and cryed.

Thus wandered these poor innocents,
Till deathe did end their grief,
In one another's armes they dyed,
As wanting due relief;
No burial this prettye pair
Of any man receives,
Till Robin Redbreast piously
Did cover them with leaves.

A word of warmest praise is due to Mr. Lucy for the artistic, natural, and in every way appropriate manner in which he has illustrated this touching old ballad. There is something beautifully suggestive even in the relative position of the children. The painter seems to have conceived that the boy, though the older and stronger of the two, was the first to succumb to fatigue and hunger; and that when he had fallen asleep, though still remaining "hand in hand" with his sister, then she lay down on him, and entwined her arm with his—an attitude of sisterly love. The stately beech-trunks which form the background of the "wood" were probably studied in the Forest of Fontainebleau, near which the artist has lived and painted many years. To foreign study and long practice on large historical works (of which his great picture of "Cromwell at Hampton Court" is the most celebrated) may also be attributed the masterly drawing of the figures and the disciplined taste which has regulated the execution of his design. When the picture was exhibited at the British Institution last spring, critics were (for once) unanimous in eulogising it, although both the class of subject and "cabinet" scale were unusual with the artist. To us its success recalled a saying of Haydon's, that "a painter in small, when he paints in large, only enlarges his ignorance; but a painter in large, when he paints in small, compresses his knowledge."

CHRISTMAS AT KING ARTHUR'S COURT.

any mention of King Arthur sends us back to the days of our childhood, when the wonderful stories about him and his famous Knights of the Round Table, the wrongs they redressed and the oppressors they overthrew, filled our young minds with wonder and swelled the hearts of the more imaginative with emulation of their noble deeds! As we have grown older, too, there have been few of us who have not been stirred by the same stories, told to us in language more suited to our years by those who have not deemed it waste to employ time the more valuable and talents of the highest in reproducing legends of an age which history makes half barbaric, and of a King whose very existence at any period has been questioned.

Partly, then, because it is good that at Christmas time we should in any way be made to think and feel as little children, and partly because of the unfailing interest of the story of King Arthur to persons of all ages, we present our readers with an ideal sketch, from the pencil of J. Gilbert, of "Christmas at the Court of King Arthur."

By some historians Arthur is described as reigning in Britain about the beginning of the sixth century; he is said to have conquered Ireland, France, Denmark, and Norway, and was victorious in many expeditions against the Saxacens. By others his dominions were limited to the south and west of England and South Wales while his victories were restricted to the overthrow of rival kings within these bounds, repulses of the Picts and Saxons when they invaded his dominions, and a few incursions into Ireland. Probably round him, as around other heroes of still earlier ages, the deeds of many mighty men have gathered. But there must have been a real foundation on which to erect so grand a figure as the King Arthur presented to us by modern poets. Even if he did not found the order of the Round Table, but received it, as some say, with a hundred knights, as an institution of his father Uther, still, it is acknowledged that he stamped upon it that character of nobleness which made it famous.

The Order of the Round Table, as designed by Arthur, was indeed a grand conception—Tennyson makes the King thus explain his motive in establishing the order and recount the oath :—

For when the Roman left us, and their law
Relax'd its hold upon us, and the ways
Were filled with wrong, here and there a deed
Of prowess done redressed a random wrong.
But I was first of all the Kings, who drew
The knighthood-errant of this realm and all
The realms together under me, their Head,
In that fair order of my Table Round,
A glorious company, the flower of men,
To serve as model for the mighty world,
And be the fair beginning of a time.
I made them lay their hands in mine and swear
To reverence the King as if he were
Their conscience, and their conscience as their King.
To break the heathen and uphold the Christ,
To ride abroad redressing human wrongs,
To speak no slander, no, nor listen to it;
To lead sweet lives in purest chastity;
To love one maiden only, cleave to her,
And worship her by years of noble deeds,
Until they won her; for, indeed, I knew
Of no more subtle master under heaven
Than is the maiden passion for a maid,
Not only to keep down the base in man,
But teach high thought, and nimbleness of wit,
And courtliness, and the desire of fame,
And love of truth, and all that makes a man.

Or, in the less musical prose of the chronicle, stripped of its antique guise, "Then rose the King and spake to all the table round, and charged them to be ever true and noble knights; to do neither outrage nor murder, nor any unjust violence, and always to fire treason; also, by no means ever to be cruel, but to give mercy unto him that asked for mercy, upon pain of forfeiting the liberty of his court for evermore. Moreover, at all times, on pain of death, to give all succour unto ladies, gentlewomen, and young damsels; and lastly, never to take part in any wrongful quarrel for reward or payment; and to all this he swore them knight by knight. Then he ordained that every year they should all come before the King, wherever he might appoint the place, and give account of all their feats, and wanderings, and adventures of the past twelve months. And so, with prayer and blessing and high words of cheer, he instituted that most noble order of the Round Table, whereto the best and bravest knights in all the world sought afterwards to find entrance and admission."

It is one of these annual gatherings that our artist has represented on pages 629-631. The knights are assembled, the banquet has been discussed, and in presence of the mighty Queen and lovely ladies of her court the "feats, and wanderings, and adventures" have been recounted, and Arthur calls on them to swear, anew and together, the oath that each had taken singly on admission. Then the Knights of the Round Table, rising solemnly and drawing forth the blades, bared only in defence of right or in redress of wrong, swear on the hilt of each, which is a cross, to be faithful to their oath and to the King. So solemn is this act that even the jester leaning on the back of Arthur's chair has dropped his bauble, feeling this is no time for folly, and the privileged dwarf sets down the flask and holds the unfilled goblet to regard the knightly circle and the glorious King. Nor let our readers think the heralds on horseback out of place in Arthur's hall, for many times history records how messengers and ladies in distress and stranger knights rode in where Arthur sat at banquet, and had audience there.

Those who believe in Merlin's prophecy of the future sovereignty of Arthur's race suppose that the royalty of Britain was restored to the Cymrian Kings through the house of Tudor; from the accession of which house may indeed be dated the cordial amalgamation of the Welsh with the English, and the rise of that power over the destinies of the civilized world which England has since established.

BIRDS IN WINTER.

BY THOMAS MILLER.

HE birds have been called God's Messengers ever since that old and holy time when the prophet Elijah, waiting for his evening meal, saw the broad-winged ravens painted on their dark upon the golden sunset, which flooded with glory the brook Cherith,* by which he knelt. King David, in his Psalms, makes mention of the birds that built about the tabernacle, and says, "The sparrow hath found an home, and the swallow a nest for herself where she may lay her young, even Thine altars, O Lord of hosts, my King and my God." The Saxon ancestors called those birds that built about the churches God's Birds, and held them as sacred for posterity. Those who cherished and reared their nests against the temples erected by David and Solomon. High up in the very centre of the roof may still be seen an open window to one of the round churches, which is called the Birds' Window, and was placed there by the pious builders, so that the birds might enter and be sheltered from the severity of winter. The swallows, with all the other ornamental woodwork under the pinnacled gables may still be seen in a few of those old timbered tenements which our forefathers built for posterity. Those who sit in the old high heavy window, hooded by the quaint scrollwork that threw a cool shadow on the casement, could see the swallows come in and go out through the openings, and watch them feeding their young and sitting peacefully on the nests which they had built within arm's-length of such as sat in the low wainscoted apartment looking at them. And our God-fearing forefathers would gladly point out the birds to their children how the Good Shepherd, in His Sermon on the Mount, left the birds to their care, when he said, "They sow not, neither do they reap nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them." And, so taught, the children would not send away empty the little robin when he alighted on the snow-covered window-sill, nor turn a deaf ear to the chirp of the sparrow when he came upon the floor the housetop which Winter had whitened. Mankind walked nearer to God when, in their unshaken faith and simple-heartedness, they believed the birds were sent to them as messengers of love. Hence it was that they were doing His service when they attended to the wants of "the least of these."

We read of winters so severe, even within the last century, that nearly all the small birds perished. There were very few robins, wrens, linnets, or larks seen the following spring, and it was the end of summer before many young birds appeared. Numbers found their winters thousands of birds were picked up frozen to death, for all the rivers were ice-bound, and it was so cold that the oil was frozen in the street-lamps, so they could not be lighted. Even the cows and oxen were left in darkness. Freezing showers often fell during those hard old winters, coating everything they touched with clear bright ice, even the plumage of the birds; while the hedgerows and berries showed as if they were under glass, and the moss and lichen looked like jewels inclosed in crystal cases. Though we have seldom such severe winters now, we rarely does one pass over without having a week or two, and causing the ground to be as hard as stone. How do the small birds live during these severe frosts, especially such as do not appear to have any means of shelter? It is easy to show that, even if the weather be so severe as to freeze the very life out of them, food can be found in abundance, and that for want of food alone they never perish.

There are millions of leaves under our broad, old hawthorn hedges, amid which insects are to be found in every stage of existence, and these the frost rarely reaches. In the woodland districts the leaves would overtopped by tall trees, it is the same; and if you force a way through these close-woven barriers in winter and examine the leaves that lie so thickly at your feet you will see that the birds have been rummaging for food. You can tell at a glance where the woodcock has been feeding, through his neat way of turning over the leaves, as he places one on his right and another on his left all the way he goes, never varying, and so makes himself quite an ornamental walk through his feeding-ground. There are loads of berries on our privet and holly hedges, of hips on our hawthorns and wild roses, besides a number of berry-bearing shrubs, which would make quite a catalogue of names. Under the gorse-bushes, that grow amongst the rough heaps of dry brown spines, which not only harbour insects but afford warm shelter to the birds, and are much frequented by our finches and linnets throughout the winter. Nor would the dry stalks of our tall ragwiable rivers penetrate very deep into these sheltered places, where the dry leaves lie layer above layer and never seem cold to the touch. There are myriads of insect-eggs on the bark of the bush, or hedge, to foliage that never falls, and these the birds find out and devour; and well would it be if our gardeners looked a little more closely to the few birds which remain on the trees and bushes at end of winter, for they will be found covered with squares of insect eggs, all glued so close together that it is difficult to force the point of a fine needle between them. Amid numerous hanging mosses, grass, in the open hollows of no end of weeds and reeds, in decayed wood, in the thatch of stacks, dwellings, and outhouses, insects are concealed, and seeds are to be found which are only visible to the sight of birds. We see them searching every hole and cranny in old walls holding on by their claws and the pressure of their tails, and can fancy that the sight of their sharp, flashing eyes must be as startling a to the poor insects they fasten upon as the bulls-eye of a policeman's lantern is when turned upon a concealed felon. In farmyards, in places where cows and horses are fodderned, and every year's dry foliage and herbage the birds find food that we know nothing of. Watch some bird busy pecking, then kneel down and examine the, ground closely, and all you find will be grit, sand, and loam—to your eye nothing else is visible: what else might be revealed can only be discovered through the aid of a microscope. The sight of birds is marvellous. We have seen them drop down like a stone upon an insect from such a height as in our eye would have rendered it as indistinct as a grain of sand on a gravel walk.

The birds pass two thirds of their time in mid-winter in sleep, during which they require no food; while during the long days they are moving about for at least sixteen hours. The same Providence which causes so many created things to hibernate during the period they would perish for want of food if awake, also provides rest and sleep for the birds, during which they feel no hunger, and renders the few brief hours of winter daylight long enough to gather a sufficiency of food before retiring to roost. Some birds feed only in the night, and it is becoming a question whether some few that are classed as wildfowl migrate at all, as their nests have been found by our watercourses. All the plovers, god-wits, coots, water-rails, the sheldrake, and teal are met with in summer; and, though they may shift from place to place, most of them, many think, remain with us all the year round, although they may move to every point of the compass.

Chief favourites of all our winter birds are the little robin. He never leaves us, but still sings the old year out and the new year in, as his forefathers did, centuries before a Christmas carol was heard. His beautiful red breast and the common hedge-sparrow are generally the only bits of warm colouring we see out of doors, where all the landscape is whitened with winter. He hops on the window-sill, leaving the print of his long claws in the snow, while he pecks through the pane with his bold black eyes, asking, in his way, for food, and will enter the room, after a few visits, if he is treated kindly. He has such winning ways that all the children love him, and would not harm him for the world, were he caught and placed in their hands. How delightful it is for the children to stand at the door and feed the birds in winter, to watch their shy habits, as they hover and sweep about until they reach the furthermost crumb; then they open their wings and are off in the twinkling of an eye! Throw up a few shovelfuls of earth in the garden, and there the robin is presently searching for all he can find, almost before our back is turned; or else he will perch, impudently, on the handle of the spade as we had left sticking in the mould, and singing away with all his might, as if trying how much space he could fill with his little throat and how far his song could be heard. Robins are known to live long together, either in spring or summer, except at breedingtime, but come every now and then, as if just to look on and say he is very comfortable. The robin comes again, like the swallow, family about him in their juvenile suits; and you must look very close at them to see a likeness, for they are too young to wear the red waistcoat of their parent. The robin is the only bird that will not quit it on in autumn, and be able to take a part in the carols their parents sing at Christmas around our ladies homesteads.

The hedge-sparrow is a constant visitor, and is but little more than a mile from either London Bridge, or Vauxhall, or any of the bridges that span the Thames between the two—we are visited by agreat number of birds in the course of the year. Numbers abandoned about the earth wall run to seed year after year, to tempt them, so that one or both are in flower and seed from February to November, unless the season be very severe. The hedge-sparrow comes again with family the year round: as the old ones bang on the spays until the new ones are nearly ripe. Wrens, robins, finches, titmice, and even the field-fare, sometimes remain with us during the cold months, are among the chief of our winter visitors, for the sparrows we have with us always. Year after year a blackbird builds, and sings, and rears its young about the garden, and a garden-tenant—a pair of thrushes—has clustered houses that hem in the open space in which we reside are filled with the music of the blackbird in spring. Robins come into our kitchen, and will pick up a crust out of a dog's dish with beside the beautifully-coloured goldfinches. As for the wrens, they are sticking up their tiny tails everywhere. It will not be so long ; for while we write our sentences we have counted a pair of wrens in the backyard walls, which have stood for at least two centuries. These and the huge, square, brick pillars, on which the quaintly-wrought iron gates swung in former times, are the only parts remain of the old Elizabethan mansion-house, which a wall divides from us, is but a thing of yesterday, compared with the crumbling barrier that surrounds us. And no lovelier thing, though unconscious of its beauty, can be found than the bright, dancing, golden-crested wren. Its nest, which may be powdered into dust between the thumb and finger—thousands of insects are concealed that furnish the birds with many a meal in winter, for the wrens are not the only ones that find out the nooks and crevices, and hanging flattened against the brickwork all day long. We allow none to be captured.

A thick, low-branched, broad-spreading japonica, that sends out thorns sharp as needles, and is long with fiery blossoms, before the leaves are green, is early spring, is the favourite playground of the little brown titmice. A pair of blackbirds, too, have built within a few feet of the window. Here they come to play in winter for the evening sports, when the door is opened, and again they come for crumbs. Their favourite game seems to be that of "Goody two shoes, grinder," as they continually chase one another "up stairs, down stairs, and in my lady's chamber." The robin is the most pugnacious bird of the shrub being the staircase. Our cat, Blondin—so called for his daring performance on the branches, never caring how high he climbs nor how low he comes—has been known to sit for hours on end on his feet when he falls—is confined within doors—when we can catch him—while the titmice go through their little performance. He is however, always released at night, and is then allowed to have his roam up and looks at the birds, swearing awfully, and switching his tail to and fro angrily all the time he watches them. Now and then, by escaping when the door is opened, and again during the game of "catch me who can," for they scamper off, like a parcel of children who are in mischief at the sight of a policeman, the instant they see Blondin. As for the robins and wrens, they seem to like that stunted shot-out of the broad old holly hedge, when they see him, well knowing that he will not follow them there, as there are myriads of sharp spines to prick his nose and paws, and make him cry out for help. Sometimes Blondin brings in a poor little palpitating bird, and looks up at us as if he expected to be stroked for so savage an outrage; but we have a dear little nurse who takes the bird away from him and gives him a "good talking to," and threatens that he shall have no supper. But, somehow, by rubbing against her, purring, and climbing up her back to sit on her shoulder, he manages to get into favour again; and when we see him lying coiled up on her knee just before bedtime, we know that he is forgiven, and has had his supper.

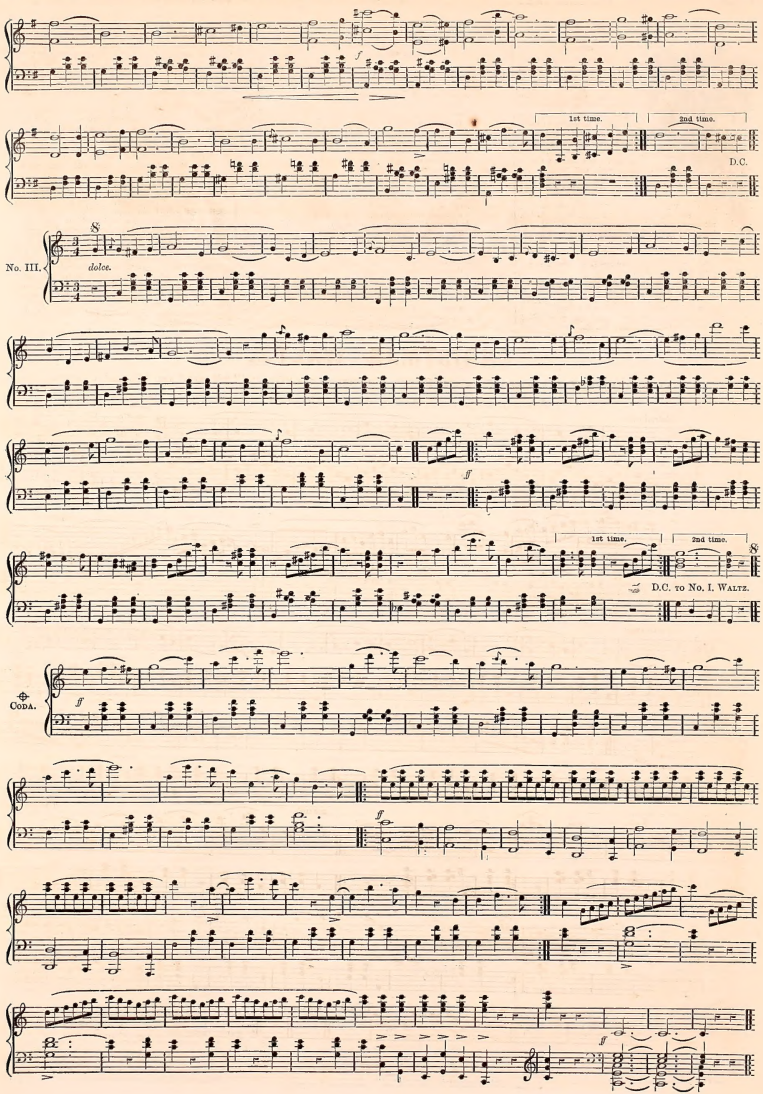
For the vegatill there is always something to be found about the fountain under the pump, as the ice is broken every morning, for the birds to drink, and the water falls around it, and where it is full, making the ground moist; and there the black winter gnats indulge in their dance if there be only a gleam of sunshine that lasts for a few minutes. He goes striding about, as if he turned his footsteps to the sugging of his beautiful long tail; for he never hops as if his legs were too short, but always runs, and has a very "neat foot foremost," like the gentlemanly bird he is, though his colour is like that of the mischief-loving magpie, who also remains with us all the year round. We have a great number of starlings that roost about the ground, and very pretty they look with their beautifully-marked plumage; and there is something very peculiar in that long, clear whistle, which is heard every minute or so while they remain, and seems to be sounded as the signal of danger and caution.

As for sparrows—like mice, they follow man wherever he goes. They are our greatest plagues. They eat up all the early seeds we sow in February; then begin with the peas the very instant they pop out of the ground. We catch them thieving in winter; and when we drive them off the seed-beds they fly no further than one of the walls, where they perch all of a row, and are down again and busy pecking before we pass under the elder-bower. They are born thieves, and we do believe often fight in winter only to keep themselves warm. Nor do they mind taking possession of one another's nests. When the rightful occupier returns, the sparrow in possession pokes out his head from under the eaves and pecks at him; if that does not drive him away the intruder turns out, and then they have to fight for it, and a pretty row they make while they fight—no doubt calling one another all the bad names they "can lay their tongues to." Sometimes one sparrow gives another such a thrashing that we do not see him about us for a day or two, and have no doubt that he is confined to his bed under the eaves. The little wrens sit in the hedges huddled up like balls of feathers on a cold day, and, but for their tiny tails sticking out, would seem quite round. Then there is ever heard that low, pleasing note, as if they were talking to themselves while perking their heads aside, and stopping every now and then for a moment or two, as if considering whether they have hunted the spray well from which they have just hopped down, to left anything in it that is worth while going back again for.

The golden-crested wren has, we have seen, though he visits the gardens about Camberwell and Dulwich in winter. He is the very smallest of all our British birds, and a perfect beauty he is, too, with his orange-coloured crest, bordered with a short bib black on a windy day, like the long feathers in a lady's bonnet. He likes to go hopping and pecking about in our shrubberies among the evergreens in winter, but never approaches near our house. Nightgoes at any other season of the year; and, though he weighs but eighty grains, and his body is very little larger than some of our big humble-bees, he remains with us all the year round, even if the winter be cold enough to kill him, as if he preferred laying down his little bones in his native land to carrying them over the sea as so many of our larger birds do. Lizards, which are tame, miniature cage-prisoners, have been us, though they shift their quarters to every point of the island in winter, the young birds being generally together and the old ones keeping in flocks. In winter we have chaffinches in our gardens, no clean, that when they rise suddenly the pure white of their feathers is almost as startling as a flash of lightning. There is a neatness about their plumage which seems to be shared with the dirty sparrows, as if they prided themselves in keeping their feathers clean, and were always fit to be seen at any time. We frequently startle them from the celery trenches, where they feed; it is oftentimes disturbed in midwinter, Some say the females migrate, while the males remain behind; but this has not been proved; and it is common among the finches for the males to be left in winter and fly in quarter flocks, shifting about from one part of our island to another; and this cannot be called migration as the meaning is understood by naturalists.

The blackbird, thrush, and magpie never leave us, and may frequently be seen at times scarcely more near to our habitations in winter, Like the raven and rook, they build very early—often long before there are any signs of the return of spring about the fields and hedgerows. A little practice will distinguish the male blackbird from the female until the second year, when the colour of his beak begins to the that rich orange hue which caused our old poets to give him the name of Golden-bill. The female thrush are the "cunel-cock, merle, and mavis" of our old ballad poetry. Very often, if in the winter be mild, they may be heard singing at the beginning of February. Nature has provided for all kinds of calendars of their songs having been heard at the close of January. To catch the sound and sweetest notes of the blackbird the listeners ought to be concealed about a hundred yards from the dusky singer is stationed, and then he will confess that the nightingale has nothing to confidences as that "dying strain," nor any other bird, we believe, except the little linnet, who has a sweet, soft, and outburst as he warms his nerves, Many a servant-maid sent into the shed on some errand—for wood, or to scour the knives—has been in a dark winter day has uttered a shrill scream like the sound of a trumpet and rushed back into the farmhouse pale with fear, believing that she had seen something evil when the blackbird flew out. Naturally he is fond of thickets and solitary places, loving to build in dark fir plantations, and it is rare to see more than two or three blackbirds together, for they never fly in flocks like starlings.

Many a nest does the wakeness of winter reveal, in spots where we searched for them in vain during the bird-nesting season, standing out now so prominently that the boughs and hedges to be made us wonder that they could ever escape our eyes. But spring and summer had then drawn closely their green curtains over what are now the



CHRISTMAS WALTZ.

By DANIEL GODFREY, Bandmaster Grenadier Guards, Composer of the "Guards'," "Mabel," and "Hilda" Waltzes.

(Written expressly for the Christmas Number of the "Illustrated London News.")

1st time.
2nd time.
D.C.
No. III.
dolce.
1st time.
2nd time.
D.C. TO NO. I. WALTZ.
CODA.

A PAGE OF NONSENSE FOR CHRISTMAS.

EASY METHOD FOR AWKWARD MINUTES.

(Advice to Young Gentlemen at Christmas.)

HAT quarter of an hour before dinner, most awkward fifteen minutes! At this season of jollifications, when there will be so many large parties and therefore so many fifteen-minuters to eke out as pleasantly as possible before dinner, we cannot do better than suggest for dinner-out in general an easy method of making themselves agreeable to one another. And herein we do a charitable work, well fitted for the genial Christmas season. We will suppose that dinner is late, and everyone bored.

Wait for a silence. Wait until you hear some one—perhaps a lady—give a little cough. This is not meant for a signal, but be sure that is the unintentional cue for some one to venture upon an observation.

For situation, plant yourself next to an appreciative though somewhat bashful young man. This will show you up to advantage. Let this useful personage be on your left.

On your right you must be bounded by a lady of about twenty-eight. By-the-way, you will never find any lady older than this, as on the line of a lady's age there runs only an express train, stopping at no intermediate stations between twenty-eight and forty.

To this young lady address yourself; depend upon your bashful boundary for appreciation of humour, and talk to him when the female interest is otherwise engaged.

Now, then; all in to begin!

Yourself (addressing the young lady, after the preliminary cough from somebody else). Have you seen that article on the "Antiquity of the Pantries" in the Pantheon this week?

Miss Twenty-eight (giving herself time to deliberate on her answer). On what?

Yourself (feeling sure that whatever her answer is you'll be able to talk on the subject with providence). On the "Antiquity of the Pantries." It's in the Pantheon.

Miss Twenty-eight (who has seen this periodical lying on a friend's table). I've only just been able to give a glance at it; nothing more.

Yourself (perfectly confident). Ah! you should read it. Most interesting. (Turning suddenly to BLUSHER, the young man on the left) You've seen the article, haven't you?

Blusher (taken aback). What article? (recollecting that he has been listening to the conversation, answers himself). Oh! in the Pantheon. No!

Yourself (smiling, just to encourage BLUSHER, and to get him in limping order ready for your great joke that's coming presently, N.B. Always put your audience in a good humour with themselves). Ah! I thought you'd have read it (Turning to MISS TWENTY-EIGHT). He has a curious theory about the horse.

Miss Twenty-eight (not at all certain of what's coming). Indeed!

[BLUSHER puts his hands in his pockets and listens sideways on his chair.

Yourself (looking gradually up to the trump). Yes, a very curious theory. The Pantheon says that the horse existed contemporaneously (Cough and say it's a cold) with the Pantheon—BLUSHER appreciates it, and will copy the whole proceeding at his next party)—contemporaneously with the mammoth. But at different epochs they were horses of different colours.

Miss Twenty-eight (wishing that she had some one else to talk to, but with a sweet dread of your great learning and research). How very curious!

[BLUSHER takes his hands out of his POCKET, and is heard to mutter something like "Ya; very curious." He finishes, however, with a very slight laugh. General remark, although another conversation is going on, is attracted towards this accustomed centre, as being a subject on which it is profitable to converse.

Two or three other People. Very curious!

Lady of the House (where was that did you say, Mr. Eweserle? Yourself (thus addressed). In the Pantheon. TOBYN writes the article, I believe.

Second People (who never heard of TOBYN before). Indeed!

Yourself (seeing that you've now got everybody). Yes, TOBYN says—It's just like TOBYN to say so, you know, he always writes in that trenchant style—TOBYN says that a horse of one colour was made for one period, and succeeded by a horse of quite another colour in a second period; and so on.

[BLUSHER thinks he's heard the expression "Horse of quite another colour" before somewhere, and laughs at it by mistake for a joke.

Everybody (with a pleased manner, and looking from one to the other). Um—um—um!

Yourself (coming to the point and addressing MISS TWENTY-EIGHT). By-the-way, I heard a good riddle on that very subject.

Miss Twenty-eight (condescendingly coming down from geology to conundrums). Yes!

Yourself (casually and impressively). You see, TOBYN's idea is that one family of horses occupied the first period, and when that was finished the second family appeared in the next period.

Everyone (anxiously, and thinking of dinner, which is very late). Yes!

Yourself. Well, this is the riddle (seeing a slight appearance of weariness on somebody's face, you add), and a very clever one, too, made at the Derby, it is—What was the colour of the second horse, according to TOBYN's theory?

Somebody (repeating the riddle wrongly).

Yourself (correcting him). No! No! You've not quite got it. (Repeat it.)

All (at different times). Give it up!

Yourself (carefully). The question is, What, according to TOBYN's view, was the colour of the Second Horse? Well, the answer is this: When the First Race was over the second horse was Done.

[Everybody begins to think about it.

Enter SERVANT.

Servant. Dinner's served'm.

[Exeunt GUESTS, amused; and the LADY OF THE HOUSE blessing your concern for her powers.

CHARADES.

1.

My First within a pleasant book
By Dickens you will find;
My Second and my Whole, alas!
Too often are combined.

2.

My First is heard in lordly halls,
And often in the villa;
Sometimes it tells of morning calls,
Sometimes when folk are ill. A
Pleasant sound it is to hear
On holiday and high day.
Sometimes it makes John Thomas swear,
And Cornet bless my Lady;
Sometimes it scares sweet dreams away,
Sometimes to sleep invites us;
Sometimes it brings us bills to pay,
So saddens and delights us.
You lambkins sporting in the meads,
You grunters now from my free,
As much unlike as dice and beads,
My Second will supply me.
And when it GIRLS the ploughman snuffs,
Pervading all his cottage,
He quite forgets hard fortune's ruffs,
Nor covets Esau's pottage.
My Whole has many a wanderer blest
On snow and marsh and dreary;
And giv'n his limbs the strength of rest,
As though he'd ne'er been weary.
When talewart hinds, their labour spent,
About my First were throwing;
Till not an imp, on mischief bent,
Dare wait the bold cock's crowing.

3.

Rome's patriot bird (all honoured be its nest!),
Were't goose or gander, doth my First suggest.
Though meaner subjects have with it allied,
Yet English countries boast of it with pride.
My Second wakes the memory of a name
Emblazoned still with mythologic fame—
Of one whom death (to Jove's regret) has mourned
And rugged satyrs wept for him inurned!
My Whole the blazing pyre of coal and wood,
Like truest metal hath—Sterling!—withstood.
More holey growing; grant when time hath past,
No doglike end await it at the fast!

4.

My First we now need would be without,
Yet make a dreadful noise and rout
When with it we're presented;
And though, with such, no gain gain
There comes its modicum of pain,
We grow at last contented.
Then when my Second we make our store
We feel it an uncommon bore
And spend our gold in vain, Sir.
And when my Whole we've made, we all
Lament to think that great and small
Will come and come again, Sir.

5.

My First, I confess, is the strangest of things,
Like a marionette, it depends upon strings.
Quiescent at times, it will lie anywhere,
Then wake as though mad as the maddest March hare.
And make such a noise with its fuming and fuzing
As though a steam blowbottle near you were buzzing.
My Second also is a wonder indeed,
In fact, there is NOTHING which can it exceed;
And if on the cross of St. Paul's you were seated,
To be seen by your friends, I've no doubt you'd be greeted
As having attained to a place where no less
Than my Whole could correctly be found to express.

6.

Happy is he who never yet hath found
My First where he hath given his trust or love;
Hath ever marked it in the world around,
Save in the enduring realms that reign above.
'Tis with us when we buy our daily meal,
Paying full fourteen-pence a pound for steak,
Taking no credit where we can get deal,
And finding ready cash no difference make,
It clings about us at the closing year.
'Tis found in faded lot and withered store.
We feel it must be sought, Old Christmas near—
When midnight waits, discordant, break our dreams,
Until with envy we, almost, regard
Our Second taking his sub-aqueous nap,
Doubtless, "full fathom five," his sleep not marred
By Christmas-boxer—giving nay for nay.
Yet is he not secure: a tempting hook
May lure him soon from out his slimy bed;
And, in the hands of some terrestrial cook,
He may my First discover, though he's dead.
No! let "Time's whirligig" its troubles bring—
I would not be my Whole for anything.

7.

My First you'll find on the blue, blue sea,
And the glancing river also;
But you'll heed it not if you were with me
When my Second we went for to do.
My Whole you'll find, if you goes it aright,
In the name of the wickedest bird
Of which any poetry-man did write,
Or of which anyone has heard.

8.

Once in a hundred years the sloe blooms.
Once in a hundred years my First appears.
My Second lies within a thousand tombs,
And all in a million bonds my Whole appears.

[The Answers to these Charades will be given in our Next Number.]

THE GAME OF THE ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.

"A CAPITAL game entitled the 'Picnic' appeared in the columns of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS some few Christmases ago, and has served to pass pleasantly many hours at juvenile parties," wrote Jack Tickler to me, in answer to a letter begging him to suggest some mode of indoor recreation; "and I have thought," he continued, "that by changing its title and calling it THE ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS, a laughable and interesting game might be constructed on the old model. The mode of proceeding should be as follows":—

The players should sit round the room and each assume the name of some animal.

One must stand in the centre of the circle and tell a story of the adventures of the animals inhabiting the iron cages at the Regent's Park Gardens. At the mention of any animal's name he or she who represents it rises from his or her chair, turns round twice, and imitates the roar, growl, bark, squeak, or cry of the creature named.

As the mention of the word "feeding-time" all must change places; and at the word "Zoological Gardens" all make their several noises simultaneously.

1. The Lion roars. 2. The Bear growls. 3. The Tiger snarls. 4. The Hyena laughs. 5. The Dog barks. 6. Cockatoo cries "Cockatoo!" 7. The Parrot exclaims "Pretty Poll!" 8. The Monkey chatters. 9. The Cat mews. 10. The Snake hisses.

The narrator should tell his story after this fashion:—

In a large forest in the centre of Africa there resided a very fine Gorilla, the pride of his parents and the envy of his fellows. At an early age he took it into his head that he should like to travel and see the world; so one fine morning he left his parental abode and sallied forth in search of adventure and instruction. After undergoing many wonderful escapes from the rifles of naturalists he arrived safely in England, and was rather crestfallen when he found himself chared by the police and seized by brick-throwers whenever he made his appearance in the public streets.

Having determined, therefore, not to venture out until "the evening shades prevailed," he upon one occasion strolled into the Regent's Park, and, to his surprise and joy, heard the roar of the Lion (Roar), the snarl of the Tiger (Snarl), and the merry laugh of the Hyena (Laugh). "Ah, ah!" he thought, "my lay is 'feeding-time'" (All change seats). "But no, it is long past the hour, the keepers are asleep, the gates are locked, and the caged creatures are only bemoaning their fate. I will pay them a visit," and, without stopping a moment to think, the Gorilla bounded along the broad path and was soon at the Can-get-into-it Gate. He crawled to the top of the lodge, and in a few seconds was inside the Zoological Gardens (All imitate various animals).

He then entered the lodge, and found the keeper had gone to bed and left the keys of the cages in the window-sill. Selecting these them, and ran as fast as he could to the cage inhabited by the Lion and Lioness (Roar). "Good evening to your Majesties. Would you like to stretch your limbs to-night?" So saying, he unlocked the door, and the Lion and Lioness (Roar) bounded out of their den, and wagged their tails with delight. The Gorilla next stopped at the cage occupied by the Bengal Tiger (Snarl). "How do you do, my Nabob? Come out and show your beautiful skin to the moon in the Zoological Gardens" (All imitate). Without waiting for a second invitation the Tiger (Snarl) sprang out, his eyes flashing with pleasure. The Gorilla then paid a visit to the Bear (Growl). "Good evening to you, my furr'iest," he pleasantly remarked as he released the pole-climber. "Come out and have a trot." The Bear (Growl) almost danced for joy at his release from captivity. The next call the man monkey made was at the Hyena's abode (Laugh). "Hallos! my hysterical party," he said, flinging open the door, "Come out and laugh over your previous imprisonment." The Hyena (Laugh) absolutely shrieked with laughter at his good luck, and felt happier than he ever did at Feeding-time (Change places). A Wild Dog (Bark or Howl) that nearly howled away its voice was cheered by the Gorilla, and also a Wild Cat (Mew) was unchained by the African stranger. On passing the Monkey-house (Chatter) he heard a deal of chattering, so he thought he would pay his cousins the Monkeys (Chatter) a visit. His entrance was greeted with a multitude of hideous noises, supposed to indicate cheers of welcome, an impression prevailing it was Feeding-time (All imitate). He released the Monkeys (Chatter) and proceeded to the bird-room; the Cockatoo (Cockatoo) and the Parrot (Pretty Poll) were soon released, and flew from tree to tree in the Zoological Gardens (All imitate) shrieking and talking. He then visited the snake department, and presented the freedom of Great Britain to the glass-encased Rattlesnake (Hiss). Then the Lion (Roar), the Tiger (Snarl), the Bear (Growl), the Hyena (Laugh), the Dog (Bark or Howl), the Cat (Mew), the Cockatoo (Cockatoo), the Parrot (Pretty Poll), the Monkey (Chatter), and the Snake (Hiss), headed by the Gorilla, took their leave of the Zoological Gardens. (General imitation.)

Away they marched, and did not make a halt until they arrived at the top of Primrose-hill. The Gorilla then bade the released animals sit down in a circle, and thus addressed them:—"Beasts and Beastesses—Freedom in a grand thing." I propose, therefore, that you all unite in a body, take possession of London, and free yourselves from the restraint imposed upon you by the directors of the Zoological Gardens" (General imitation).

"We shall be as free as the mountain air," said the Wolf-dog (Bark or Howl).

"And talk to whom we like," added the Parrot (Pretty Poll), backed up by the Cockatoo (Cockatoo).

"Then, friends," said a Monkey (Chatter), "we will cast off our chains for ever."

"How about the street boys?" asked the Tiger (Snarl)

"Or the police?" chimed in the Cat (Mew).

"Or the beadles?" laughed the Hyena (Laugh).

"And how am I to amuse myself?" growled the Bear (Growl).

"You can climb the lamp-posts all the week days, and the Nelson Column or the Monument on Sundays," sacarly answered the Parrot, (Pretty Poll).

"Silence!" roared the Lion (Roar), scurishing his tail, much to the annoyance of the Bear (Growl), who had fallen to sleep. "Silence, and listen to the King of the Zoological Gardens (General imitation). "Ask the Gorilla how he has fared in the civilised streets of London. Has he not been hunted, think ye? Has he not been brick-batted? chivied by ragamuffins? amused?"

"Unity is strength," said the Hyena (Laugh).

"Ay, but mind conquers strength," replied the Tiger (Snarl), and I am certain we cannot do better than return to our several dens before our morning Feeding-time (Change places).

"Well, then," angrily cried the Gorilla, "if you won't be free, take the keys and return to your dull, monotonous life at the Zoological Gardens" (General imitation). He then rushed down the hill, and left the animals to return by themselves... They found their way back easily, and lived happily ever afterwards in THE ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.

CHRISTMAS, New - Year's, Christening Birthday, and Wedding PRESENTS in the greatest Variety at HAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S, 77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 77 and 78, Cornhill, London.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S PLATE and CUTLERY, of the Best Quality and Newest Designs. Prices as at the Manufactory, Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield:—

Spoons and Forks.	Fiddle.	Thread.	King's.	Lily.
	1st.	2nd.	1st.	2nd.
Table-spoons or forks, per doz.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Dessert-spoons or forks, do.	1 16 0	1 7 0	2 0 0	1 10 0
Tea-spoons, do.	1 0 0	0 15 0	1 4 0	0 18 0
Salt, mustard, and egg-spoons, each	0 12 0	0 10 0	0 14 0	0 11 0
Sauce-ladles, do.	0 5 0	0 4 0	0 6 0	0 5 0
Soup-ladles, do.	0 14 0	0 12 0	0 16 0	0 13 0
Gravy-spoons, do.	0 14 0	0 12 0	0 16 0	0 13 0
Sugar-sifters, do.	0 7 0	0 6 0	0 8 0	0 6 0

TABLE KNIVES FOR CHRISTMAS.

Table Knives, riveted handle, blades of double steel edge.	Ivory Handles.	Cheese Knives.	Carvers.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
24 in. balance ivory, per dozen	11 0	9 0	3 6
22 in. do. do. do.	10 0	8 0	3 6
20 in. do. do. do.	9 0	7 0	3 6
18 in. strong do. do.	8 0	6 0	3 6
16 in. full strong do. do.	7 0	5 0	3 6
14 in. full strong do. do.	6 0	4 0	3 6
Second handle, ivory finished	4 0	3 0	1 3
Ivory-polished carvers, per pair	3 0	2 0	1 3

Address, MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 77 and 78, Cornhill, London.

FOR CHRISTMAS, 1865.

SPOONS and FORKS—RICHARD and JOHN SLACK, Manufacturers and Electro-platers, solicit an inspection of their Stock and prices. Every article warranted.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIRIRONS. Every New Design always on Show. 336, Strand, 1 to 4, Grand Hotel Buildings, Trafalgar-square.

SLACKS' DISH-COVERS in BRITANNIA METAL and SILOCK TIN.—The greatest variety of Patterns always on view, and prices as low as at the old-established Sheffield Factory, No.—Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand.

SLACKS' TABLE KNIVES.—Good Ivory Balance-handles, 7s., 8s., 9s., and 10s.; Dessert, 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., and 7s. 6d. per dozen lower than any other house in London. Orders above £1 carriage paid.

SLACKS' ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE with prices and sizes, containing engravings of Cutlery, Electro-plate and Fenders, Fire-irons, Furnishing Ironmongery, Clocks, Baths, Lamps, Turnery, &c.

NOSOTTI'S LOOKING-GLASSES and Gilt Decorative Articles in endless variety, suitable for Presents at unlikely new character. Parisian Papyromagne from Messrs. Nosotti's Manufactory, Paris. Nosotti's Looking-glasses, Gilt Decorative Articles for Christmas Presents

NEW BOOKS.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS' LIST of NEW BOOKS, suitable for Christmas Presents and New Year's Gifts.—HOPE'S RUTTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill, London.

A ROUND OF DAYS. In 40 Original Poems, by William Allingham, Amelia B. Edwards, T. Hood, Jean Ingelow, Mrs. Macquoid, Tom Taylor, and Sutton Vane. Illustrated by Pinwell, Houghton, and Fitzgerald. Uniform with "Home Life," and others. Illustrated by Dalziel, Paul Gray, J. D. Houghton, T. Morten, F. Walker, J. D. Watson. Cloth, gilt edges; morocco, £1 10s. GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

TRENT'S POEMS. With 100 Illustrations by Cowsill, Maclise, Mulready, Millais, and others. Six cloth, gilt edges, 5s.; morocco, £1 11s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

WORDSWORTH'S POEMS. A New Edition, containing Poems Never Before Published. Nine Steel Plates, cloth, gilt edges, 10s.; morocco, 21s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE BOOK OF BRITISH BALLADS. Edited by Charles Mackay, LL.D. With Illustrations by Gilbert, Birket Foster, Kenny Meadows, and others. Cloth, gilt edges; morocco, £1 11s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE PRINCESS. By ALFRED TENNYSON. A New Edition, with large Plates by Maclise, Cloth, gilt leaves, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.; morocco, 21s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

KEATS'S POETICAL WORKS. A New Edition, with Illustrations by Birket Foster. With Life and Notes by Robert Bell, cloth, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.; morocco, 21s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

MILTON'S LALLEGRO and IL PENSEROSO. With Notes, a Preface, and Memoir of Handel. Superb edition. With Illustrations by Birket Foster. Cloth, gilt edges, 10s. 6d.; morocco, 21s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

WHAT MEN HAVE SAID ABOUT WOMEN. A Collection of Choice Passages. Edited and prettily arranged by HENRY SOTHERAN. Illustrated by Birket Foster. Cloth, gilt, 10s.; morocco, with Antique Mountings, 21s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

ROUTLEDGE'S EVERY BOY'S DOMAIN. Illustrated by Harrison Weir and others. Cloth, gilt edges, 7s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

A PICTURE HISTORY OF ENGLAND, from the Invasion of Julius Cæsar to 1855. By Dr. DULCKEN. With nearly forty-four Engravings by A. W. Bayes. 4to. cloth, gilt, 10s. 6d.; or with coloured Plates, 18s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE BOYS' BOOK OF TRADES. By THOMAS MILLER. With several hundred Illustrations. Imperial 16mo, cloth, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

WHAT THE MOON SAW: and Other Tales. By HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN. Translated by Mary Howitt. With Eighty Illustrations by A. W. Bayes. Imperial 16mo, cloth, gilt, 5s.; or with Coloured Illustrations, 7s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE BOYS' TREASURY OF SPORTS AND PASTIMES. By the Rev. J. G. WOOD, PEPPER, BENNETT, MILLER, and others. With 400 Illustrations. 400 pages fcap 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

BALDERSCOURT; or, Holiday Tales. By Sir Gardiner D. ADAMS, M.A., Author of "The Whale Impregnable," "Schoolboy History," &c. with Illustrations by Gilbert, Birket Foster, and Kenny Meadows.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE NAUGHTY GIRL OF THE FAMILY. By the Author of "A Trap to Catch a Sunbeam." With Illustrations. Cloth, gilt, 5s.; coloured, 7s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE FAIRY GRIMMS; or, Travels in the Holy Land. By ANNE BOWMAN. With Illustrations. Cloth, gilt, 5s.; coloured, 7s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

TALES FROM SHAKESPEARE. By CHARLES LAMB. With Eight Plates by John Gilbert. Cloth, gilt edges, 5s.; coloured Frontispiece and Plates, 7s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE ADVENTURES OF ROB ROY. By Sir WALTER SCOTT. With Eight Illustrations. Fcap 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

SEA KINGS AND NAVAL HEROES. By J. G. EDGAR. With Illustrations by Gilbert. Fcap 8vo, cloth, gilt, 5s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE FAMILY ARABIAN NIGHTS. Edited by the Rev. Mr. HUGHES. With Illustrations. Fcap 8vo, cloth, 5s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

AMONG THE TARTAR TENTS. By A. ARCHER. With Illustrations. Fcap 8vo, cloth, gilt, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

CAVALIERS AND ROUNDHEADS; or, Charles the First and his Times. By J. G. EDGAR. With Illustrations. Fcap 8vo, cloth, gilt, 5s. 6d.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. In 1 vol. fcap 8vo, cloth, 700 pages, 5s.; bound in half calf, 8s.; or whole calf, 9s.

"The book is a favourite shape, the type is clear and plain, the paper is delicately toned, and the volume altogether is a marvel of cheapness."—Illustrated London News, Dec. 2, 1865.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE TWO SCHOOL-GIRLS: A Book for Girls. By Young Ladies, by the Author of "The Wide, Wide World." With Illustrations by Gilbert and Birket Foster. Cloth, gilt, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

ELLEN MONTGOMERY'S BOOKSHELF. By the Author of "The Wide, Wide World." With Illustrations by Gilbert and Birket Foster. Cloth, gilt, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

THE CHAIR AND THE WILDFIRE'S SEVEN FLOWERS. A new volume of Fairy Tales. By Mrs. GATTY. Illustrated by Gilbert and Birket Foster. Cloth, gilt, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

ERNIE ELTON THE LAZY BOY, and Other Stories. By HENRY SLIGHT. The best of all the books which may be classified as books for boys, whereon there is written "Not to be read by girls." Ernie Elton is a boy who will delight every reader. There never was a boy's book, the story of which more entirely combines the liveliest amusement, and also the them much good. In fact, from first to last, the story is nothing good for."—Athenæum. Fcap 8vo, cloth, gilt, 5s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

ROUTLEDGE'S TWO-SHILLING GIFT-BOOKS.
With Illustrations. Fcap 8vo, cloth, gilt.

THE ST. JOHNSTONS. By Agnes Wilson.
THE LAND'S EDGE. A Book for Boys. With Illustrations.
ENDWELL CHURCH. With Illustrations. Gilt Edges.
SEVEN FAMILY SOLOMONS. With Eight Illustrations. Gilt edges.
EVENINGS AT HOME. With Eight Illustrations. Gilt edges.
SANDFORD AND MERTON. With Eight Illustrations. Gilt edges.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

LONGFELLOW'S POETICAL WORKS. Complete Edition.
Full Gilt, boards, 600 pages, 1s. 6d.; or, bound in cloth, 2s.
GEORGE ROUTLEDGE and SONS, The Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

"Unquestionably this is the most compact, the cheapest, and the element-pickled pocket edition of Longfellow's Poems that has been published."—Morning Advertiser.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW AND SPLENDID GIFT-BOOK.
Dedicated by permission to the Princess Royal. Elegantly bound in cloth, gilt edges, royal 8vo, price Two Guineas,

THE YEAR: its Leaves and Blossoms. Illustrated by EMMERIE STULZ. In Thirteen beautiful Plates, executed in the highest style of Chromolithographic Art, after Original Designs. With Descriptive Letterpress, and Ornamental Borders printed in Colours.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Now ready, with Seven Illustrations, post 8vo, 6s., cloth,

STRANGE STORIES OF ANIMAL WORLD. A Book of Curious Contributions to Natural History. By Various Writers.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, price 6s. 6d., cloth, elegant; 7s. gilt edges,

ALMERIAS' CASTLE; or, My Early Life in Italy and Spain. By the Author of "Recollections of Hasto the Dwarf," &c. With 13 Illustrations.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, price 2s. 6d. cloth; 3s. 6d. coloured,

WHAT PUSSY SAID TO MOTHER HUBBARD. By CECILIA HARGREAVES. Author of "Stories of the late Captain Brand." With Illustrations by Absolon.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, price 2s. 6d. cloth; 3s. 6d. coloured,

FEATHERLAND; or, Over the Birds Lived at Greenhaven. By C. W. PENN. With Illustrations by F. W. KEYL. GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, fcap 4to, 3s. cloth; 4s. 6d. coloured, gilt edges,

MAMMA'S MORNING GOSSIPS; or, Little Pets for Little Birds. By Mrs. BRODERIP. With Illustrations by her brother, Thomas Hood.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, price 2s. 6d. cloth; 3s. 6d. coloured,

FAIRY LAND; or, Recreation for the Rising Generation. By the late THOMAS HOOD and his SON and FAMILY. Illustrated by T. Hood, jun. "Some of the pieces are very humorous indeed."—Athenæum.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, price 2s. 6d. cloth; 3s. 6d. coloured,

MERRY SONGS FOR LITTLE VOICES. Set to Music by Mrs. BRODERIP. Illustrated by Thomas Hood and by C. MURRY. This volume contains Thirty-eight original songs, written and composed expressly for children.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

THE BOY'S OWN TOY MAKER. By CHARLES HOOPER. Price 1s.
THE GIRL'S OWN TOY MAKER. Third Edition. Price 1s.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, Second Edition, price 5s., cloth,

FAIRY TALES of SCIENCE. By JOHN TIMBS, Author of "Things not Generally Known," &c.
Contains, perhaps, was never made more attractive and easy of access than in this useful book."—Athenæum.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, price 1s. cloth; 1s. 6d. coloured,

SPECTROPIA; or, Surprising Spectral Illusions, showing Ghosts everywhere and of any Colour. By C. W. THOMAS. Illustrated by the Author. Sold by all Booksellers.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

HOME AMUSEMENTS; a Choice Collection of Riddles, Charades, Conundrums, Forfeits, Games, &c. Price 1s.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, Second Edition, price 1s. 6d., cloth, 1866,

A ROUND OF DAYS,
Described in ORIGINAL FORMS of
PICTURE AND VERSE,
By AUTHORS.

William Allingham.	Mary Howitt.
Robert Buchanan.	Jerrold Meadows.
Mrs. Cameron.	Mrs. Macquoid.
Amelia B. Edwards.	Frederick Pilgrim.
Dora Greenwell.	George Shadbolt.
Jean Ingelow.	Tom Taylor.
Tom Hood.	Sutton Vane.
William Hewitt.	Jean Ingelow, jun.;
	and the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman."

ARTISTS.

A. W. Bayes.	T. Morten.
Walter Crane.	F. Walker.
H. Dalziel.	G. Dalziel.
Paul Gray.	E. Dalziel.
Tom Hood.

Engraved by the Brothers Dalziel.

The Work is printed throughout on fine toned paper tint, and bound in cloth, elegantly lettered.

POSTY ORIGINAL POEMS and SEVENTY PICTURES.
"The printing and illustrations of this book are beautiful in one do hour, and when we say that it takes rank with the choice volumes of Messrs. Routledge, we have said enough to make it a favourite with the public."—Saturday Review.
Uniform with "A Round of Days," one volume each.
HOME THOUGHTS AND HOME SCENES. With Pictures by THE FAMILIES OF OUR LORD. With Pictures by THE BROTHERS DALZIEL.
SUNNY SIDE; or, Pictures of Life in English LANDSCAPES. Poems by TOM TAYLOR.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

SUITABLE CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR THE YOUNG.
Handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges, 5s. 6d. Fcap 8vo.

OPPEN'S POSTAGE-STAMP ALBUM AND GUIDE. Containing Fifty-six Pages of Stamps of the Different Stamps, a Full Description of the Arms of every Country, and Interesting Facts, Population, Cost of Postage, Engraving Government.
London: W. STEVENS, 427, Strand.

PEN AND INK SKETCHES. Comic Illustrations of Modern Irish Manners. By C. S. L. Post free, Sixteen Stamps. Dublin: 89, Stafford-street, Grafton-street.

Second Edition, with Plates, printed in Gold and Colours, price 1s. 6d. cloth, gilt edges; 2s. 6d. coloured,

SUGGESTIONS for ILLUMINATING. By W. RANDALL HARRISON. London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Price 1s. 6d., with numerous Illustrations,

HERALDIC ILLUMINATING AND PAINTING. By W. H. WHYMPER.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

OUTLINES FOR ILLUMINATING. The new Designs, by VICTOR TOCQUER, are now ready. Any may be had on application, or sent by post for Six Stamps.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

WATER-COLOUR DRAWING MADE EASY. INSTRUCTION PORTFOLIO, for the use of both and amateurs. Price 1s. 6d. each Portfolio.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 1s. 6d., with 14 Lithographic Plates, post-free, 54 stamps,

DIAMOND WINDOWS of different styles, to be executed in DIAPHANIE, with full instructions.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Eighth Edition, with 12 Lithographic Plates, post-free, 84 stamps,

CRAYFORD'S NEW SYSTEM of DRAWING. Specially Examiner Process of DIAPHANIE, easily performed, at small cost. London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 1s.; post-free, 14 stamps, with 12 Lithographic Plates,

ALPHABETS and DESIGNS, of different Styles, for the use of Illuminators and Designers. By F. G. WOOD. London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Second Edition, price 1s. 6d. (post-free, 2s. 10d.). Illustrated with Drawings printed in Colours, Wood Engravings, &c.,

LANDSCAPE PAINTING and SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.S.W.C.P.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

RAPHAEL'S PROPHETIC ALMANACK for 1866, price Half a Crown, or post-free for Two Shillings and Sixpence. Also, Raphael's Prophetic Messenger for the Month of December, the Cattle Plagues, and the Secret in the Skull. Sold by all Booksellers.

T. J. LEMARE, 1, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row.

NEW MUSIC.

STANDARD ELEMENTARY MUSICAL WORKS, by J. T. STONE.—Elementary Instructions for the Pianoforte, 16th Edition, 3s.; Facile Instructions for the Pianoforte, 3rd Edition, 4s. Just published, Instructions for the Pianoforte, 3s. Elementary Instructions for the Harmonium, 3s. Instructions for the Concertina, 3s. These standard works continue to receive the most complimentary notices from the musical press, and are recommended by some of the most eminent professors. The publishers respectfully invite the attention of teachers to the merits of these works as being unsurpassed for clearness and simplicity. A copy of any work forwarded on application to the Author's Musical Works will be forwarded on application to the Author, Mr. J. T. STONE, 9, Berners-street, Oxford-street, London. BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

HARMONIA DIVINA: A Collection of Standard Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Chorales, Chants, Anthems, and Sacred Songs. The words selected and the music harmonized for the Pianoforte by J. T. STONE. In four volumes, 4s. each, cloth gilt, or complete in one volume, 12s. 6d. cloth, elegantly bound and lettered, 15s. Sewing; a handsome and lasting musical present, £1 1s.
BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street, W.

NEW PIANO MUSIC. By J. T. STONE. Cherry Ripe, 3s. 6d.; Le Jeune Capitaine, 3s. 6d.; Fantasia on Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," 4s. 6d.; Duets on Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," 4s. 6d. each.
London: BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street. Wholesale.

JUVENILE QUADRILLES on POPULAR MELODIES. Beautifully Illustrated. Suitable for pre tuitation.

Young England Quadrilla	...	3s. 6d.
Little Fisher Lasses (Boots, &c.)	...	3s. 6d.
Little Bastrie Quadrille	...	3s. 6d.
Little Bonnets Quadrille	...	3s. 6d.
Little Soldier Quadrille	...	3s. 6d.
Little Sailor Quadrille	...	3s. 6d.
Little Minnie Quadrille	...	3s. 6d.
Little Folks' Polka Duets, 1s.	...	3s. 6d.

BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street, W. Wholesale.

STANDARD VOCAL MUSIC FOR THREE VOICES.

The day is thine. Nelson	...	3s. 0d.
Black the Sabbath Bells. Travis	...	3s. 0d.
Hail, Smiling Morn. Spofforth	...	3s. 0d.
Maltese Boat Song. Nelson	...	3s. 0d.
Mariner's Morning Song. Do.	...	3s. 0d.
Mariner's Evening Hymn. Do.	...	3s. 0d.
The Voyager's Evening Hymn. Nelson	...	3s. 0d.
The Voyager's Morning Hymn. Do.	...	3s. 0d.
Forsaken (not free for 6 stamps.	...	1s. 6d.

London: BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street Wholesale.

NEW VALSE. THE ANTOINETTE. Composed by J. PRIDHAM, Author of "The Bertie March." Price 3s. Solo and Duet, 4s.
London: BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street. Wholesale.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM. New Song. By W. H. WEISS. Camilla's celebrated poem wedded to an original melody. Price 3s.
London: BEWER and CO., 39, Bishopsgate-street Within.

MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Book 1 of this Composer. Elegantly bound for presentation. Price 10s. 6d.
London: BEWER and CO., 39, Bishopsgate-street Within.

NEW CONVIVIAL SONG FOR CHRISTMAS. "THE MERRY, MERRY FOOT OF WATER." Air, the popular March, "As I'd nothing else to do," and the second, "Oh, the Roast Beef of Old England." Sung with rapturous applause by Mr. Montem Smith. Price 3s. 6d. each.
London: BEWER and CO., 39, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST, may be had complete, in 2 vols. each, or in Six Volumes, bound, 12s. each. The high patronage and extraordinary success attending this work are sufficient proofs of its merits as a work of instruction. The nobility, gentry, and musical public are most respectfully informed that it may be had of the Publishers.
London: BEWER and CO., 39, Bishopsgate-street Within.

OPERATIC GEMS for the VIOLIN—with Accompaniments for the Pianoforte. Second Violin, and Violoncello. Arranged and progressively fingered for the learner, by Caporn.—Semiramide, Lucia di Lammermoor, Sonnambula, Norma, Don Giovanni, Il Barbiere, Puritani, Huguenots, Zauzi, Fra Diavolo, and Masaniello. Price 2s. each.
Full reports size. Nos. price 6d. each; Accompaniments, 4d. each. London: BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street. Wholesale.

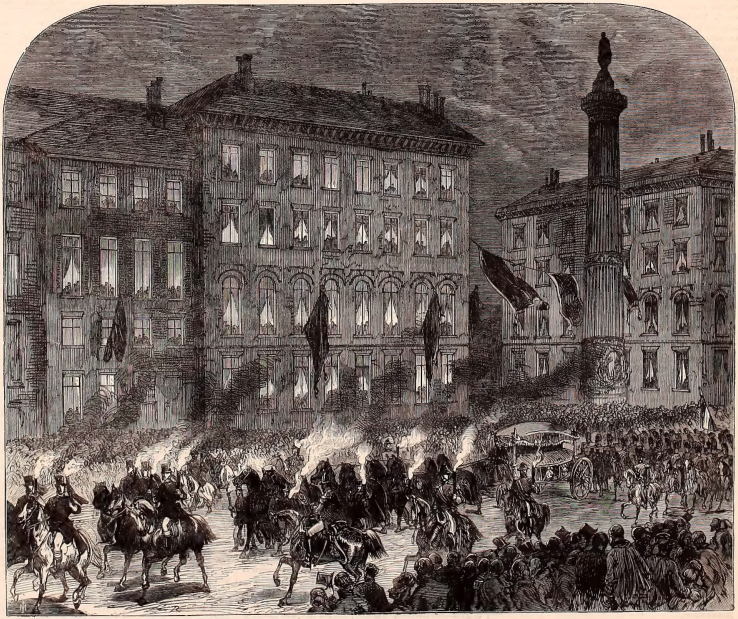
GEORGE LINLEY'S JUVENILE ALBUM for the Author's Own Pianoforte Duets and the National Anthem. With Four Illustrations. Elegantly bound for presentation. Price 5s.
London: BEWER and CO., 39, Bishopsgate-street Within.

WINTER IS COMING. Words by J. E. CARPENTER. Music by STEPHEN GLOVER. "The most pleasing and characteristic of the season." Price 3s. 6d.
BEWER and CO., 39, Bishopsgate-street Within.

JEANNE. By ADRIEN TALEXY. "A charming melody, effective Pastoral on Home Scenes of favourite ballad." My Pretty Jane. Price 3s.
Wells Musicsellers, 38, Holywell-street, Strand.

RINK'S PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL, New Edition, with Pedal Pipe and pitched on a separate Stave, and the Technical Terms translated from the German by JOHN BISHOP. Price 12s. London: BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street. Wholesale.

1000 MELODIES OF ALL NATIONS, for the Violin, Flute, Cornet-à-piston, and Accordion. By WILLIAM HUTCHINS CALLCOTT. All the most popular Airs of the Day, Scotch, Irish, Welsh, English, Spanish, Italian, German, Swiss, Polish, Russian, Hungarian, Arabic, African, and American. Ballads, Duets, Songs, and Airs from Operas, Quadrilles as regards key, time, and general effect, that a single Quadrille, full score, contains the whole. Price 1s. Also, Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Violin, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Violoncello, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Double Bass, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Flute, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Cornet-à-piston, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Accordion, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Concertina, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Harmonium, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Harp, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Guitar, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Banjo, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Tambourine, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Drum, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Cymbals, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Triangle, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Castanets, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Tambourine, 2s. 6d. Callcott's Complete Tutor for the Bones



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1350.—VOL. XLVII. SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE.

Not yet actually committed to the tomb of its predecessors, but within a span of its appointed term of existence, the year 1865 deserves a farewell notice. There have been many more memorable years in the present century—many that stand out more conspicuously as historical landmarks; and yet, perhaps, very few within whose limits the future philosophical exponents of the progress of our race will discover in greater abundance the germs of mighty changes. A.D. 1865, although in the main quiet, has not been characterless; and if, in passing, it has made less noise than some that went before it, there is room to doubt whether they will be found hereafter to have projected their influence much farther into the future than the year now about to close.

The hastiest glance at its meteorological phenomena may fitly precede a review of its political events. A long, lingering winter, followed by a sudden burst of almost summer splendour, placed the effects of both seasons in startling juxtaposition. An Italian sky and a blazing sun gladdened animal life before vegetable life had exhibited a single sign of renovation, and leafless hedgerows and trees in the beginning of April offered a strange contrast to the warmth of the air and the brilliancy of the light. Of course, the contrast did not last many days; for the meadows donned their mantles of verdure and the trees rushed into foliage with marvellous precipitancy. Thenceforward we had a long spell of real summer weather. August, however, the harvest month in this country, was unpropitious, and, to a considerable extent, the cereal crops were damaged by its untimely rains. But a glorious September followed, since which wet and occasionally boisterous weather has prevailed. Still, "the skyey influences," though for the most part pleasant to the senses, appear to have been unfavourable to health. Typhus not only held its own, but enlarged its borders. Cholera raged round the basin of the Mediterranean, effecting a temporary lodgment at Paris, and more than once threatening our shores. England happily escaped that scourge,

THE BODY OF THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS TAKEN INTO BRUSSELS BY TORCHLIGHT.—SEE PAGE 643.

But a fatal murrain, the end of which science does not even pretend to foresee, seized upon her herds. The appointment of a Cattle-Plague Commission, which is still active, testifies to the extent of the calamity that has befallen her; while the organisation of an International Commission, on the suggestion of Napoleon, to track the cholera home to its birthplace shows, in like manner, the depth to which that disease has stirred the apprehension of European peoples. We may be thankful that we have had the same year which witnessed an unusual amount of pestilence witness ed also the all-but-actual completion of that vast system of metropolitan drainage works, the sanitary effects of which it would be difficult to over-estimate.

The year, on the whole, has presented indications of social improvement as well as of commercial prosperity. The former will be found in a number of establishments more cosmopolitan and provincial, get up for the purpose of illustrating art and industry, and in the various institutions which have been inaugurated or developed for the elevation of the working classes. Of the latter, the buoyancy of the revenue furnishes, perhaps, the most incontestible proof. Through the channel opened by the recent removal of legal restrictions, capital has been rapidly finding its way into trading associations, and giving increased activity to manufacturing and mercantile enterprise. The cessation of the American war reopened a vast market for our goods, and perhaps the bountiful harvest of Canada told with additional force in favour of our exports. Would that we could have associated in connection with these cheering facts the completion of the Atlantic telegraph! The failure of that great undertaking, whatever may come of it hereafter, must be set down as one of the last misfortunes of the year. It will be a retrospect of our social and commercial history without its deep shadows. There have been monetary difficulties which, although temporary only and occasioned by sudden expansions of trade, have inflicted disaster on many, and have left their bank failures, of which that of Attwood and Co., at Birmingham, was the most conspicuous, which carried ruin into many households. And the year which opened with a promise of cheap beef to the hungry imported from the Argentine, closes with butcher's meat at so high a price as to put it almost beyond the reach of the working people.

The political character of 1865 has been formed mainly by Transatlantic events. It is not necessary to trace the water its history has been fuller of sensational passages than the best-written romance, carrying within it, moreover, an important moral. The last tidings which have reached us announce the adoption by three fourths of the States of the constitutional amendment "abolishing slavery throughout the Union, thereby stamping the "peculiar domestic institution" as illegal wherever United States law is administered to the inhabitants. How powerfully and positively this change will affect the future of the American Republic it would be rash to foretell; but its happy consequences will probably be felt long after the events which led to it have ceased to retain their hold upon national recollection. And yet what a series of startling facts it has to read to Congress, General Sherman's march through Georgia was within a few days of being completed—a feat to the accomplishment of which may be traced the sudden and irremediable collapse of the Confederacy. We also have to recapitulate the incidents which followed—the evacuation of Richmond, the surrender of General Lee, the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, the conciliatory policy of President Johnson—memory has not yet lost sight of the summits of intervening range of events, towering, as they do, high above the average level of the year's affairs. As they catch the eye of retrospection, awe overspreads the soul; and, as it turns from the past to the future, it breathes not a fervent prayer that the coming good may overtop the bygone evil.

The pervading tranquillity of the Old World during the whole course of 1865 offers a grateful contrast to the convulsions of the New. Continental Europe has basked in the sunshine of peace, and scarcely a whisper of uneasy apprehension has disturbed her repose. The interchange of visits between the crowned fleets of England and France fairly symbolised the general state of public feeling. Every nation has had, of course, its domestic anxieties in connection with its domestic obligations, but all of them have pursued their several real or fancied missions without being troubled by fear of external violence. Russia has denationalised Poland, and Prussia has appropriated the lion's share of the Duchies in entire freedom from international restraint. Austria, made wise by misfortune, has abandoned her Italian provinces without a struggle, and has inaugurated the more feasible project of securing the essential unity of the empire by giving satisfaction to its several parts. Even Turkey has entered on even tenour of her way, seeking increased strength from the development of her internal resources rather than from encroachments on the possessions of her neighbours. Italy, having recovered her seat of government to Florence and postponed for a while an armed assertion of her still unsatisfied territorial claims, has passed through the process of a general election, and is now encountering the severer ordeal of financial embarrassment. Sweden and Denmark have honestly and successfully reformed their respective Constitutions. Without going through the list of minor States, we venture to remark that, on the whole, the year 1865 has been a quietly beneficent one for Europe, and that statesmanship has, in most of its States, aimed at higher objects and displayed more wisdom than could be set down to its credit in former times.

Our own political career, meanwhile, has been of the most unostentatious but withal useful order. We, too, have had a dissolution and reconstruction of Parliament, but unaccompanied by any great popular excitement. The metropolis, Oxford University, South Lancashire, and Ireland furnished the chief memorable incidents of that constitutional struggle which is generally believed to have resulted in giving more marked ascendancy to Liberal opinions. The legislation of the year, however, has corresponded with the tone of feeling upon the treatment of pauperism. A splendid Budget providing for a remission of taxation to upwards of £5,000,000 would of itself have established the reputation of the Session; but, in truth, it was supported by a number of valuable, if less popular, measures. There has been a set-off to our gratification, as was to have been expected. To say nothing of the war in New Zealand, which seems to have settled into a chronic ailment—the Fenian folly has suddenly come to an end, amused us; and the courts of events in the island of Jamaica, in whatever light we may regard it, has humbled our pride, as well as dashed with disappointment nationally-cherished hopes.

The heart of our gracious Queen has had its times both of gladness and of sorrow during the year. The Princess of Wales has given birth to a son and heir-apparent, who has succeeded a husband elect—both which events will, no doubt, have contributed to her Majesty's happiness. The Royal visit to Coburg for the purpose of inaugurating the statue of the late Prince Consort, although accompanied by many saddening memories, yielded a kind of solemn satisfaction to widowed feelings. But the death of her venerable uncle, the King of the Belgians, threw open to her view the interior of the sepulchre once more.

Of a truth, the year which closes on the 31st of December men in the course of the last twelve months, Cobden, Lincoln, Palmerston, Leopold—each in his order a King among men—were called in 1865, in common with a host of lesser notabilities, to pay the debt of nature. As we are borne away on the wave into a new year, we respectfully waive to them our farewell, and pray to be strengthened by all that was noble in their example for the performance of our coming duties.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PARIS, Tuesday, Dec. 28.

THE Budget of the French Minister of Finance for the coming year has been published in the Moniteur and freely discussed by the Paris journals. As a matter of course, it has received with considerable favour, for it is impossible to ignore such a substantial measure of reduction as nearly one million sterling from the Imperial expenditure implies. Towards this amount the Minister of War contributes £560,000, the Minister of Marine £280,000, the Minister of Agriculture, Commerce, and Public Works £72,000, the Minister of the Emperor's Household and Fine Arts £40,000, the Minister of Finance £240,000, and the Customs' department £56,000. This financial statement of M. Fould has been with us the single political topic of the week.

The King of Prussia arrived in Paris on Sunday. They were present at a state dinner at the Tuileries the other evening, to which all the Ambassadors and Foreign Ministers were invited, a pleasant incident in regard to which was the presence of Prince Napoleon and Princess Clotilde, having their first formal introduction to what has really taken place. It is said to have been brought about in this wise. The Duke de Gramont-Caderousse, who is now married, and, when last seen, stayed and dined with the Emperor and Empress at Saint-lo. In a few days we may look for an official announcement concerning the France to his post of President of the Universal Exhibition of 1867, and it is tolerably certain he will be found at the Empress's side at the Imperial reception on New-Year's Day.

The "Jour de l'An" is at this moment the subject uppermost in the thoughts of the Parisians. The boulevards, with the usual display made by almost every "magasin" and "boutique" along their line, and the shops in the Palais Royal, become little astonishments to extend on the footpaths close to the curb, in which almost every conceivable article that can be produced in a cheap form is crowded, and such a point of attraction to be almost impassable. The more elegant shops are perfect studies in their way. Nothing but the very richest articles are allowed now to be displayed in the windows, and "cadeaux" for the toilet, the écritoire, and the work-table; articles of jewellery and bijouterie, "objets d'art," elegantly painted fans, gorgeous bonbonnières; splendidly-dressed dolls, rising in price from 50f. each: "livres de jour," the annual Parisian Devil's magnificent illustrated Bible has certainly pre-eminence, and those countless objects of luxury and fancy for which the world of the world the manes and uses of which it would be hopeless even to guess at. The foreign population of Paris on the "Jour de l'An" with a feeling of something like dread, for he knows too well the inroads it will make in his purse, and for days and almost weeks beforehand he is constantly being called upon to appoint his "étrennes" and is painfully civil to him. The concierge seizes every opportunity of thrusting his étrennes under your eye, and at his post next one pleasantly attentive, the postman seems determined to present him with an almost endless list. The dustman, perhaps, can be hardly remembers to have seen before are constantly raising their hats to him, and the cabmen, with a touch of their whips, seem to make boldness points to.

The literary soldes of the Sorbonne have been resumed, and are fashionable, although, it must be confessed, very dull entertainments. The gay portion of the wonderful Paris world goes to the theatre; Sorbonne over the water to listen to the driest professor on the driest subject. It was Professor Frank's turn a few evenings ago. This Professor has a peculiar way of expressing his not very lucid and earnest. He chose for his subject the right of making a will in its conditions under ancient society. He desired that it was a right, and that Sorbonne professor went on to show his auditory what would be the consequences if it were not. "Suppose," said he, "a man has a large geniture, Said the professor, "All the children would be under the dominion of the eldest born, the money would be monopolised, the younger brothers without patrimony; the boys would go, as they do in England, into the army, and the girls, as they do in Russia, pretty would run away and marry at Gretna Green!" So, according to the Sorbonne professor, English ideas refunded of their rights by our law of primogeniture are in the habit of running away to be married at Gretna Green. The students of the Sorbonne must be fast becoming authorities on the laws and customs of England and the English!

Jean Cognet, an old soldier, who died at Auxerres a few days ago, in his ninety-first year, was the first Knight of the Legion of Honour. In those times, when a few knights at least are made every day, when the décoré would fill an ordinary German principality, it is curious to be able to pick out the original, the first décoré.

The communal schoolmasters seem to have taken up the Government idea of classes for adults with great alacrity. That which is "inspired" by the Imperial Government is usually well looked after by Government subordinates. The ramifications of authority spread to the smallest communes. The sous-préfet has his eye on the schoolmaster, so that the préfets are enabled already to report to the Ministers of the Interior that 18,500 adult classes had been established in the list of April last, and that the number of them will have reached 23,000 before the close of the second year.

No custom among our neighbours surprises the uninitiated Englishman more than that of parading the private doings, the conversations, and the pecuniary condition of French authors and artists in the many gossip-journals of Paris. The Figaro, the Grand Journal, the Vie Parisienne, and the rest, Anne are packed with such revelations. M. Meurice's palace and M. Dumas's fabulous fortune, the indefatigable chroniqueur with master, MM. Paul Féval and Mery's recent conferences or lectures at the Salle Barthélemy, under the patronage of the Société des Gens de Lettres, have been an excellent opportunity for personal gossip. By-the-way, Paul Féval, in an article on readings by literary men, asks Mr. Thackeray et cet chef, and does justice to the elocutionary and dramatic powers of "Boz." As an example of the chroniqueur candour and sans gêne, however, I have seen nothing better of late than M. Albert Scloys's article in the Grand Journal, entitled "Borrowers." In this he relates, the material of which would be found to be plentiful in any European capital; but then in some countries writers would not have thus lifted the bedclothes from the long and lengthy of Rabelais and of the old Gauls; and then he would ramp round like a bear with a sore head. Towards Easter he made us a present of an album of caricatures of the "Labours of Hercules." We soon discovered that the child was the son of a respectable engineer; and he had come to the conclusion the will of his family: that M. Doré, while deploring the obstinacy of the little fellow, had no right to refuse him; and that they had a visit to M. Philipon, who, in order to convert the family by a practical argument, had said, "I undertake to make a man of him at a thousand francs from to-day." Six thousand francs! Two hundred and forty pounds sterling! M. Doré's income now appears to be that sum twenty times told, and he is still a young man.

SPAIN.

OPENING OF THE CORTES.—THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

The Queen opened the Cortes in person on Wednesday. In the Speech from the throne her Majesty said :—

My desire for peace has not been able to prevent the commencement of hostilities between this country and Chili, which had obstinately refused to Spanish subjects the reparation due to them during the time of the late difficulty. The Government will give an account to the Cortes of the progress of the war and of any negotiations which may take place in connection therewith.

Desirous of respecting the independence of the States of South America, founded on the ancient colonies of Spain, I have agreed to a treaty recognising the independence of San Salvador.

My relations with the other foreign Powers continue favourable.

Various reasons, originating in a desire permanently to promote the interests of the nation, have induced me to abolish the Royal Italian Legion; but this recognition cannot weaken those feelings of respect and devotion to the Holy Father manifested by the Spanish people, whom my firm intention is to watch over the rights of the Holy See.

The Minister is referring to the financial difficulties, spoke of the necessity of increasing certain taxes and reducing the expenditure in order to balance the expenditure with the revenue. A bill would be introduced with the object of extinguishing or liquidating the old and of reducing the floating debt. Various measures relative to the national domains would be presented for the consideration of the Chamber at the same time as the general Budget. Bills would also be laid before them tending to promote municipal liberty and to harmonise the interests of local administrations with the interests of the Government. A bill for the improvement of the slave trade in the Antilles would also be presented.

Her Majesty congratulated the army and navy, and concluded as follows :—

I am convinced that labour and production can never be developed where order and liberty do not exist My Government, without being unmindful of the attitude of political parties, will never consent to tolerate that anarchy, and will repress disturbances without cruelty, and will respect the law. I have in view economical alterations, relying upon your public opinions as represented by the Chambers.

The frigates Vadras, Almanza, and Trinidad are about to leave for the Pacific.

The diplomatic corps was received on Wednesday by the Queen. The Papal Nuncio, as senior member of that body, congratulated her Majesty on her return to Madrid.

BELGIUM.

At the sitting of the Chamber of Representatives, yesterday week, M. Rothomb (Right) brought in a report of the Commission upon the bill permitting the addition of the numeral II. to the name of Leopold in conferring the law. No member rising to speak, the bill was passed unanimously.

The Minister of Finance brought in a bill fixing the annual civil list of King Leopold II. at 3,300,000f. (£132,000) and granting an extraordinary credit of 700,000f. (£28,000) for the present year, to be devoted to repairing and furnishing the Royal palaces and castles. The bill was passed with one dissentient voice. The late King's civil list amounted to 2,700,000f.

At the sitting of the Senate on the same day general business was interrupted to refer the bill for the late King's civil list to the finance committee, and the bill upon the Royal style and title in sanctioning bills to the same end and justice. After reports of both being favourable, the Senate passed both bills unanimously.

ITALY.

On Thursday week the Chamber of Deputies adopted the Provisional Budget for 1866 by 173 against 21 votes, with an amendment reducing the period of its application from three to two months. It also approved the proposal of Signor Mancini for a Parliamentary inquiry into the public administration.

The Minister of the Interior subsequently announced that the Cabinet had tendered their resignation, which had been accepted by the King. General della Marmora also made a statement to the Senate. General della Marmora has been intrusted with the formation of a new Cabinet.

The Parliament has adjourned to Jan. 15.

The Pope, on receiving the congratulations of the Cardinals on Christmas Day, replied, that God had never abandoned the Church in tempestuous times. His Holiness referred to time to time, and spoke in the storm on the Lake of Gennesareth. "At the present time," said his Holiness, Christ seems to be sleeping; but he will awake for the defence of the Church. The future is in the hands of God, and the triumph of the Church is inevitable."

The quarantine which was established on the Roman frontiers, on account of the cholera, has been abolished.

The brigand chiefs Capraro and Antonucci, with six of their followers, have surrendered to the Pontifical authorities.

The Earl of Clarendon has received from her Majesty's Consul at Rome a memorandum stating that various bands of brigands have descended from the Neapolitan territory into the Papal States in such numbers that the small amount of Papal troops (in the absence of the French) is evidently unable to contend successfully with them. These organised bands now extend from Viterbo to Frosinone. Three individuals are prisoners until they can be ransomed. This information is intended, doubtless, as a hint to English travellers.

AUSTRIA.

Both Houses of the Hungarian Diet paid their respects to the Sovereign in their corporate capacity, at the Castle of Buda, on Sunday week.

In the Lower House, on Wednesday week, Herr Carl Sanvinyayi was elected President, and Count Julius Andrassy first Vice-President. Both belong to the Deak party. On the following day Count Julius Andrassy delivered an inaugural address. He desired it to be understood by the western portion of the empire that the interests of Hungary were one with those of the empire, but that Parliamentary centralisation was opposed to those rights. He cautioned his hearers, however, not to leave in view in what they did the triumph of Hungary, but rather the interests of the empire. The sitting was then adjourned to the 10th of January.

DENMARK.

In the sitting of the Rigsdag, yesterday week, the bill for the reform of the Landsthing was finally adopted. It is to be submitted by the Constitution of the country, be passed in the two next Sessions of the Rigsdag before it becomes valid.

SWEDEN AND NORWAY.

The Constitutional reform adopted by the Diet of Stockholm has caused an excitement in Norway as well as Sweden. The King has himself sent the intelligence to the President of the Council of Norway in a telegram commencing with the words, "Honour to the Swedish people." The decision, however, was received with enthusiastic applause. An opinion is general that the reform will not stop at the Swedish Constitution, and that Norway will consent to revise the compact of union.

King Charles is to leave Stockholm for Christiania on Jan. 3. His Majesty will remain in Norway about three weeks, so as to return to the Swedish capital for the fête to take place on Jan. 26. According to the terms of the Constitution of Norway the King must make a stay in that kingdom every year.

UNITED STATES.

We have intelligence from America to the 16th inst., brought by the City of New York steamer.

The House of Representatives has adopted the resolution concerning the admission of Southern members as amended by the Senate, but subsequently passed a resolution to re-open the question of admission against the South as the original one. A resolution indorsing the President's reconstruction policy was also adopted, but not acted on.

The Senate has considered the question of the admission of Southern members, and had persisted to close the discussion by the passage of the fiscr. Mr. Wilson's bill, declaring null all laws of the Southern States recognising any inequality in civil rights on account of race, colour, has been called up and discussed.

The Southern States having ratified the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery, it is now the supreme law.

The Secretary of the Treasury has announced that Spain and Chili will not be permitted to bring pirate vessels into their ports.

The split in the Fenian camp is complete. The senate has impeached and deposed the president, O'Mahony, for malfeasance and misappropriation of funds, and had elected W. R. Roberts in his room. O'Mahony has refused to recognise the validity of the deposition, and both senate and president are supported by large bodies of the Fenian brotherhood. Roberts has issued a proclamation calling upon the Fenians to act promptly and smash up England. It is said that the Fenians have raised £40,000 for the purpose. Measures to monitor the members of the Fenian cabinet in splendour for some time, and scarcely leaving, one would think, to enable the Fenians to "smash up England."

Resolutions had been introduced into Congress, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, declaring the annexation of the Mexican empire by France to be opposed to the declared policy of the United States Government, offensive to the American people, in the spirit of their institutions. The resolutions further require the President "to take such steps concerning this matter as will fully vindicate the recognised policy, and protect the honour and interest of the American Government." Both Houses have requested the President to furnish papers respecting Mexico.

There resolutions, it seems, stimulated the French Minister to action. He has opened a correspondence with Mr. Seward, and has patched his secretary to France for new instructions. It is rumoured that if the French Government accredit a Minister to Juarez, the French Embassy will at once leave Washington.

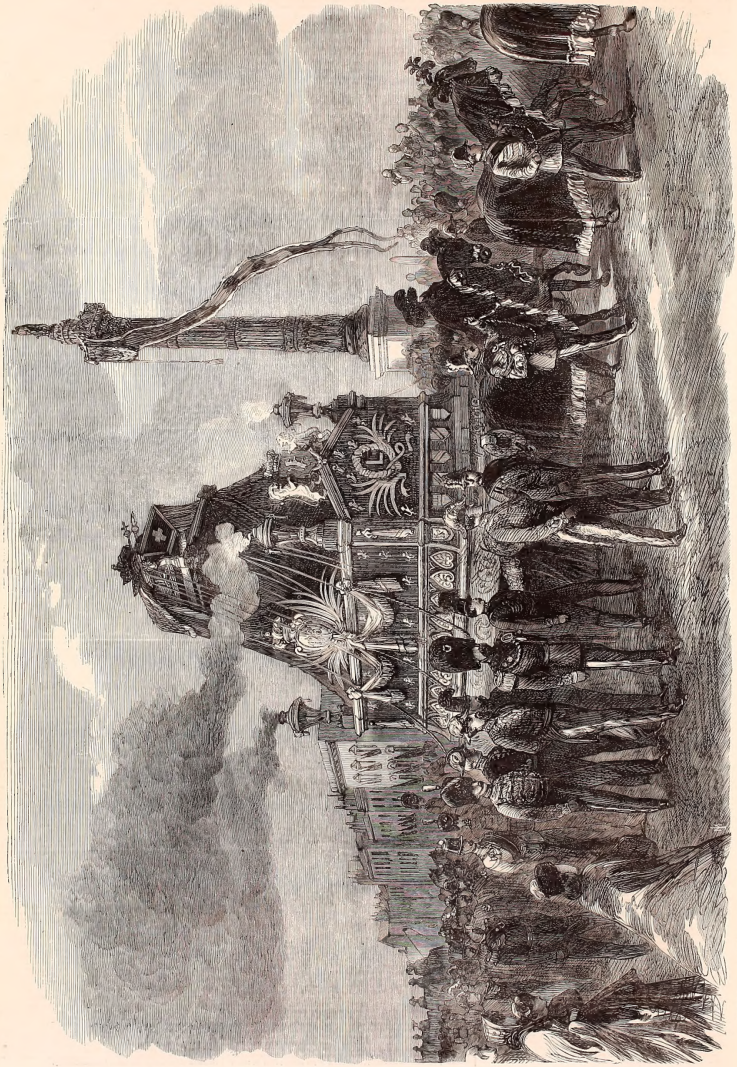
CHINA AND JAPAN.

Telegrams anticipating the advent brought by the China mail announce that Sir Rutherford Alcock had set out on his way to Pekin. Some gun-boats had reached a position off the mouth of the river with vessels and captured one.

The British, French, and Dutch Ministers in Japan had attempted to obtain the Mikado's assent to the Treaty-ports treaties with European Powers, and to the opening of the ports and rivers to foreign trade, but the Mikado had persistently refused to open the ports, and the question was to be referred by the Ministers to their respective Governments.

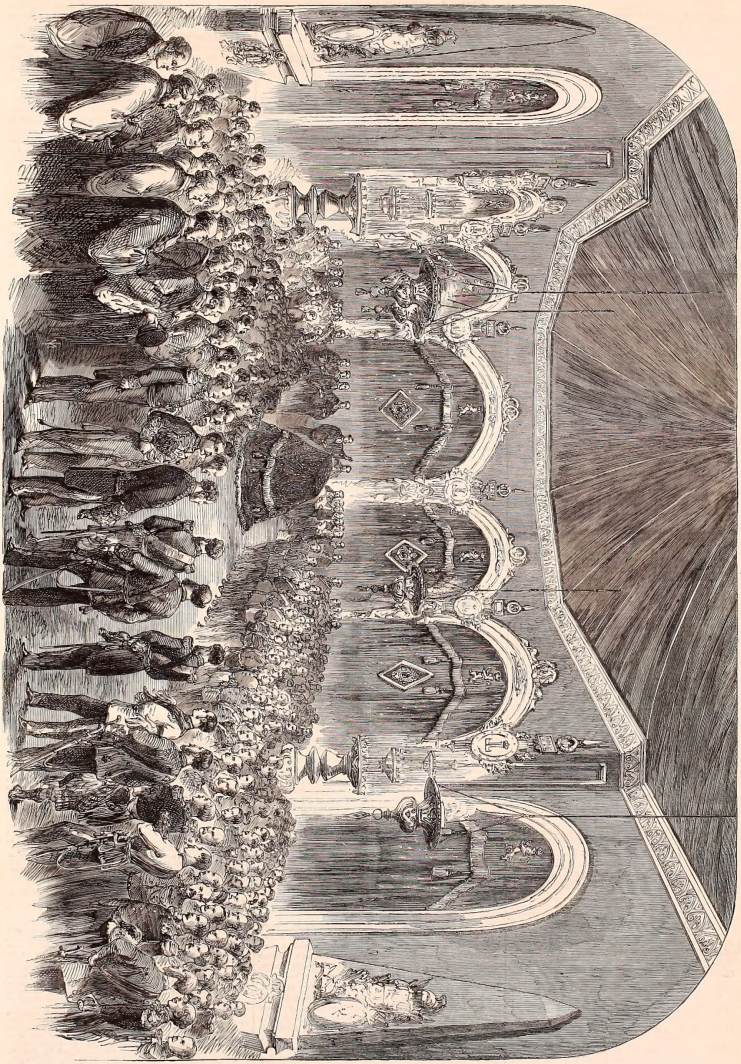
AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

From a Melbourne telegram of Nov. 28 we learn that the attempt to effect a compromise of the dispute between the Victorian Council and Assembly had been unsuccessful; for we are told that the Legislative Council had refused to accept the tariff, that the Assembly had made no appropriations, that Parliament had been prorogued, and that the Queen had been petitioned to recall the Governor.



According to advices from New Zealand, the Maories have been successfully attacked in the Opotiki district, and Cawa pah captured.

A pension of £200 a year has been secured to the widow and daughter of the late Sir William Boulton, Lieutenant-Colonel of Artillery.



The report of the United States Secretary of the Navy reveals the ruinous state that has, so far as experience yet goes, knocks are built in that ordinary practice.

By a provision in a new Act of Parliament, which will immediately take effect, the compensation to be awarded to persons whose rights in the space in all matters relating to her Majesty's naval service, and the stores, purchase, and management relating to the same.

The Grand Marshal of the Court at Berlin has given notice to the public that on the occasion of the approaching marriage of the Princess Louise, the Prussian Government will not be told that the Legislative Council had refused to pass

FUNERAL OF THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS: THE FUNERAL CAR PASSING THE COLUMN IN THE PLACE DU CONGRÈS AT BRUSSELS—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS: THE BURIAL SERVICE IN THE CHAPEL AT LAEKEN.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST

BIRTHS.

On the 21st inst., the wife of J. H. Sharp, Esq., Steel Cross House, near Tonbridge Wells, of a daughter.

On the 22nd inst., at 37A, Grosvenor-place, Hyde Park, the wife of R. H. Wyatt, Esq., of Woodcourth Lodge, Surrey, of a daughter.

On the 25th inst., at Mortimer House, Hanover-street, the wife of G. Douglas Pennant, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 27th inst., at 2, Buckingham Gate, Lady Hartopp, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 21st inst., at St. James's Church, Aberdeen, by the Rev. A. H. Post, M.A., uncle of the bride, Gordon, Charlotte, third son of Gurney Thompson, Esq., of Fitzhendry, Aberdeenshire, to Grace, younger daughter of the late Thomas Frost, Esq., Hull.

On Oct. 24, 1865, by special licence, at the Cathedral, Cape Town, Cape of Good Hope, by the Very Reverend the Dean, John Rayne, Esq., Captain 18th Regiment, to Susan Amelia Graves Chisholm, daughter of Edward Chisholm, Esq., of Cape Town, and niece of the late Bishop.

On the 10th inst., at her residence, 32, The Royal-terrace, Kingstown, near Dublin, Isabella Jane, deposed by all who knew her, Anne, widow of the late Solomon Speer, Esq., of Ballyhaise, in the county of Cavan, and eldest daughter of the late Andrew Armstrong, Esq., in the 85th year of her age.

On the 20th inst., at Penn-hill, Poole, Dorset, Lieutenant-General G. R. Gowan, C.B., Royal Artillery), aged 71.

On the 23rd inst. (her birthday), at 28, Beversfield-place, St. Leonards-on-Sea, Caroline, the beloved wife of R. C. Hanam, Esq.

On the 16th inst., at Milton-next-Gravesend, Mrs. Gascoigne, aged 87 years.

On the 24th inst., at Croydon, Henry Isaac Blackburn Ivey, Esq., aged 58 years.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 6, 1866.

SUNDAY, Dec. 31, 1865.—First Sunday after Christmas. Sylvester, Bishop of Rome. Battle of Wakefield (Richard, Duke of York, killed). Lord Mayor (by Queen Margaret), 1460.

MONDAY, Jan. 1, 1866.—Circumcision. Union of Great Britain and Ireland, 1801. Full moon 6h. 48m. a.m.

TUESDAY, 2.—Order of the Bath reorganised, 1815. Death of Dr. Andrew Ure, chemist, 1857.

WEDNESDAY.—Death of the great Marshal Luxembourg, 1695; and of Josiah Wedgwood, the founder of British Ceramics, 1795.

THURSDAY, 4.—Coronation banquet of the Five Months by Charles I. leads to civil war, 1642.

FRIDAY, 5.—Death of King Edward the Confessor, 1066; and of Catherine de Medicis, Queen of France, 1589.

SATURDAY, 6.—Epiphany. Old Christmas Day. Birth of Benjamin Franklin, philosopher and statesman, 1706. The Russians defeated by the Turks at Citate, 1854.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 6, 1866.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
1 30	2 12	2 54	3 36	4 18	5 0	5 42
P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.
Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 36″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

Day.	DAILY MEANS OF							THERMOMETER.						WIND.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fah.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Ozone.	Solar Radiation.	Terrestrial Radiation.	Rain.	Mean of 24 Hours.	Highest.	Lowest.	Solar Radiation.	Terrestrial Radiation.	Range.	General Direction.	Velocity.
	Inches.	°	%	0–10	°	°	Inches.	°	°	°	°	°	°		Miles per hour
13	29·715	37·1	89	4	9	9	0·000	41·2	46·2	36·2	90·0	30·0	10·0	N.	1·3
14	29·655	41·3	93·0	9·0	1	3·0	0·0	45·0	W.	1·03	0·00
15	29·615	42·0	96·0	9·0	1	3·0	0·0	45·0	NNW.	NW.	1·03	0·00
16	29·810	39·6	85·7	9·0	9	3·0	0·0	40·7	WSW.	W.	1·04	0·00
17	29·900	37·2	79·0	9·0	9	3·0	0·0	44·1	---	W.	1·04	0·00
18	30·045	36·2	80·0	9·0	9	3·0	0·0	38·7	47·2	W.	1·04	0·00
19	30·277	42·9	89·8	9·0	9	3·0	0·0	44·6	50·5	SW.	1·04	0·00

The following are the readings of the barometer, corrected for temperature and the mean of the three hourly readings, at 9 a.m., 3 p.m., and 9 p.m.:

Barometer (in Inches) corrected	30·231	30·103	30·052	30·103	30·053	30·178	30·322
Temperature	42·0	39·0	36·67	37·67	40·33	41·33	42·0
Temperature of Evaporation	39·33	36·67	33·67	34·67	37·33	39·67	40·67
Direction of Wind	W.	W.	WNW.	WNW.	W.S.W.	W.	W.

THE ATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—MANAGERS, Messrs. E. Falconer and F. B. Chatterton.—EVERY EVENING, at Seven o'clock, a new Drama, entitled THE WORLD AND HIS WIFE; or, Beauty and Beauty, by Saturday, to be played every Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday during the month of January. Characters by Mrs. Stirling, Miss Heath, Miss Fanny Josephs, Miss Rosina Wright, Miss Lydia Foote, Miss Ada Swanborough, Mr. Charles Dillon, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Richard Purdon, Mr. Edward Price, Mr. Harry Jackson, and Mr. Augustus Braham. Preceded by a new and original Burlesque, entitled PANTOMIME, written by E. L. Blanchard, Esq., entitled LITTLE KING PIPPIN (Mr. Frederick Robson), Queen Dowager (Mrs. Frederick Robson), Princess Rosetta (Miss Fanny Josephs), Prince Rupert (Miss Ada Swanborough), Minister of State, Surveyor and Taxgatherer, Warriors and Wenches are ensured by the fact of their being represented by Messrs. Harry Jackson, Augustus Braham, Edward Price, Richard Purdon, Misses Rosina Wright, Miss Augusta Thomson, Miss E. Falconer, Miss Clara Meredyth, Miss Fanny Saville, Miss Hartopp (who has the honour of those popular Pedestrienne throwing a Double Somersault), Harry Boleno and Mr. Fred Evans. Scenery by Mr. Gates, Mr. Hemsley, and Mr. Pitt. Machinery by Mr. Dodd. Properties by Mr. Miller and Miss Louie Morgan. Gymnastics, Feats of Strength, &c., by A. S. and Lieutenant Saville, Jr. Dress Circle, 7s.; Pit, 3s.; Gallery, 1s. Private Boxes, £1 1s. to £3 3s. Stalls, 5s. Commence at Seven o'clock precisely. Acting Manager, Mr. Chatterton. Performances on commencing Evening at Seven o'clock precisely, and terminate by Eleven o'clock. Box-office open from 10 till Five daily.

THE ATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. Sothern will have the honour of LORD DUNDREARY'S FIRST APPEARANCE on MONDAY, JAN. 1, and EVERY EVENING, after which Off-nights excepted) Saturday, during the month of January, the celebrated character of LORD DUNDREARY, by Mr. J. S. Finedel, under the more immediate sanction and GUIDANCE IN THE HAYMARKET.

ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE.—EVERY EVENING, at Seven o'clock, the Performances will commence with the Equestrian Drama, entitled THE BRIGAND'S DAUGHTER, by Mr. Frederick Lee. Supported by a powerful Company. Box Office open from Eleven till Five.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Wigan. EVERY EVENING, at Seven, LODGINGS; after which, the most successful Drama of the day, entitled NOBLESSE OBLIGE, by Tom Taylor and Charles Reade, Esqrs. Box-office open daily from Ten till Five. Doors open at Half-past Six. Stalls, 3s.; Dress Circle, 5s. Private Boxes, 1 to 5 guineas. No fees to Boxes. The private performances will be given during the Christmas Holidays, and every Saturday afternoon.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. T. Smith.—MONDAY, and all the Week, BRIDGET TIMS—Mr. T. Matthews; Mrs. Bridget Tims, Mrs. Matthews; and THE BRIGANDS—Mr. Fred. Villiers, Mr. F. Lee, and Mr. F. Dewsbury, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Parselle, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Fawcett, Mr. Frazer, Miss Woolgar, Miss Fanny Wells, Miss Lydia Thompson, Miss Lizzie Price, Miss Lizzie Coote, Miss Lizzie Wilton, Miss Lizzie Hudspeth, Miss Lizzie Dalton, Miss Lizzie Graham, Miss Lizzie Hudson, Miss Lizzie Hudson, Miss Lizzie Hudson

Mr. Cook, of West Newton, had been labelled by Mr. Carmichael with the name of the recipient, the size of the gift being governed by the extent of family of each person; thus a man and his wife received three pounds' weight, and one pound extra was given for each child. The single men upon the Royal estate—labourers and others—received money gifts as an equivalent for the beef. The Princess, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor and Prince George, witnessed the disposal of the gifts from one of the windows, and the recipients upon their departure passed along the terrace and made their obeisance to her Royal Highness. Subsequently Prince and Princess attended Divine service at Sandringham church. The Rev. C. D. Bacon officiated. The church was tastefully decorated with wreaths and flowers, the gifts of tenants, by command of the Prince.

On Tuesday his Royal Highness joined the "meet" of the West Norfolk hounds. He first met the hounds at Wolferton. The Earl and Marchioness of Carmarthen, Lieutenant-General and Mrs. Keppel, Captain Holford, Major Wyndham, Mr. Probyn, and others rode to the meet at Houghton Hall, the seat of the Marquis of Cholmondeley. Many other gentlemen and ladies were also present of lady equestrians.

The Prince and Princess are expected to pay a visit to the Earl and Countess of Leicester, at Holkham Hall, on the 8th of January.

Overtures of amalgamation between the Princess Wilhelm Sandringham Hunt during the third week in January, and return to Marlborough House.

The Duke and Duchess of Somerset left the Admiralty, Whitehall, for Bryan Hall, Yorkshire, and passed the Christmas with Sir Colin and Lady Blackett at Wynyard.

The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch and family left Bowhill, Selkirkshire, for Dalkeith Palace, previous to their departure for London.

The Duke of Northumberland and Lady Louisa Percy have left their residence, Stanwick, Yorkshire, on a visit to Sir Walter Riddell, at his residence, Swinburne Castle, Northumberland.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Abercorn and the Ladies Hamilton arrived at Chesterfield House, on Saturday last, from visiting the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough at Blenheim.

The Earl and Countess of Dalkeith left town, on Saturday last, for Dalkeith Palace.

Countess Craven and Lady Emily Craven have left town for Lord Coventry's seat, Croome Court, Worcestershire.

Earl Bel Manor has left town, to visit Sir John and Lady Gwendoline Rosadale, at Byram Hall, Yorkshire.

The Earl of Dysart has left Thomas's Hotel, Berkeley-square, for Holdenby, Norfolk.

The Earl of Cork and the Hon. Captain Boyle, A.D.C. to Lord Wodehouse, have left Ireland.

Viscountess Palmerston, Viscountess Jocelyn, and the Hon. Mrs. Cowper-Temple are a short time with the Earl and Countess of Shaftesbury and family at St. Giles's, Dorchester.

Viscount Canterbury has left Thomas's Hotel, Berkeley-square, for Longleat, Warminster.

Lady Granville Somerset and Mr. B. Somerset have left Farnham Royal for Cogenhoe Park, Northamptonshire.

The Right Hon. Sir George Grey left town on Tuesday, on a visit to Lord Stanley, at Stratton Park, Basingstoke.

The Right Hon. B. Disraeli and Mrs. Disraeli have left Hughenden Manor for Hatfield, on a visit to the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury.

The Right Hon. W. F. Cowper, M.P., and Mrs. Cowper left town on Saturday last, for Panshanger, Hertfordshire, on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Strafford.

It is said that the Earl of St. Germans has resigned the office of Lord Steward of the Household, and that his Lordship will be succeeded by the Earl of Beauchamp, who has been for some years a Lord of the Bedchamber.

An investiture of the Order of St. Patrick took place in Dublin Castle on Tuesday. The knights appeared in their collars, &c., and the ceremonial was conducted with the usual formalities.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS.

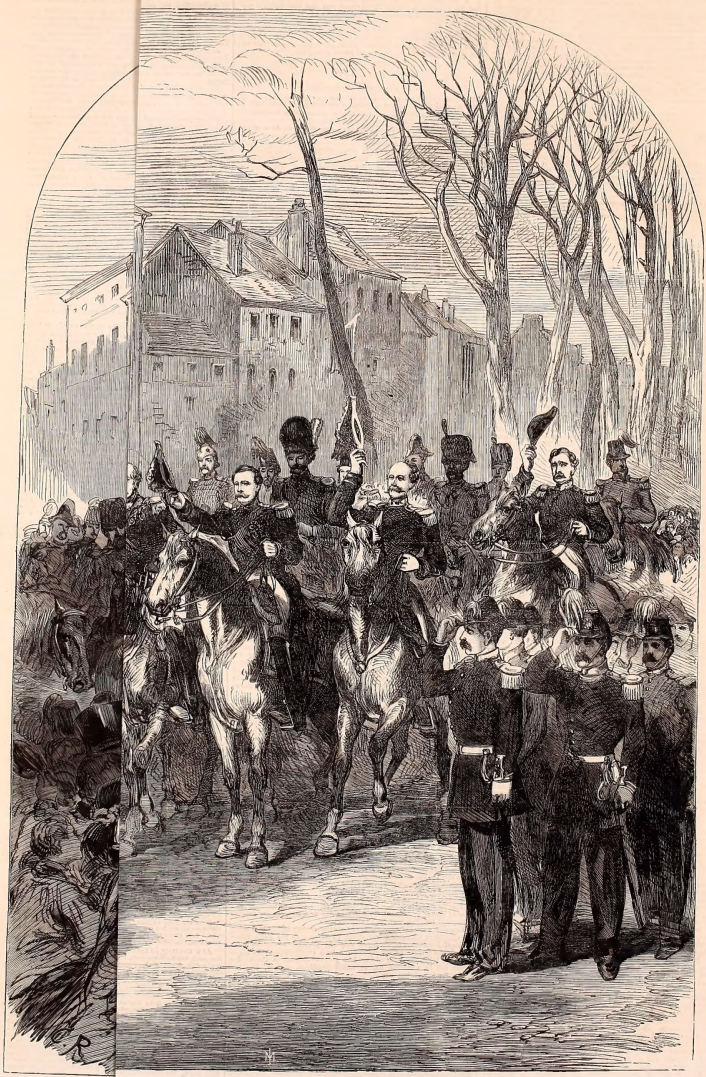
The death of King Leopold having taken place at his Palace of Laeken, near Brussels, on Sunday, the 10th inst., we refer our readers to our Journal for the following Saturday contained a portrait of his late Majesty, from an admirable photograph by Mayall, and a brief but interesting biographical notice of his career. At the same time, in anticipation for the special purpose of supplying illustrations of the Royal Funeral, and of the subsequent proceedings at the Coronation of the new reign, two of the Artists belonging to this Journal were sent to Brussels; one of them being a passenger on board the Dover and Ostend Packet Steamship on the night of Wednesday, the 13th, witnessed the departure of the Royal Corpse from the Pier, and assisted in placing the hearse; and though he was fortunate, with most of the other persons on board, in escaping the fate which befell the greater part of the passengers, his arrival at Brussels was considerably delayed. We have now to present him with the result of his visit and labours. For the extensive correspondent who resides at Brussels, a series of effective illustrations, which are engraved for this week's Journal, accompanying the most interesting details connected with the funeral of Leopold I., and the accession of his son Leopold II. to the throne of the Belgian kingdom.

On Tuesday night, the 12th inst., the remains of the late King were removed from Laeken to the Royal Palace at Brussels, a distance of three miles. The funeral cortège, looked on as a pageant, was of the simplest character, but the darkness of the night, the solemnity of the occasion, and the people who had collected in thousands along the line of route gave the whole scene a most solemn and impressive and impressive. At nine p.m. the corpse was conveyed to the hall on the ground floor of the Laeken Palace. M. Devaux, Minister of the Majesty, then pronounced a short funeral oration, standing at the head of the coffin. At its conclusion twelve officers of the Grenadiers slowly raised the bier, the burden to their shoulders, and the Prince of Princes, conveyed the body to the foot of the flight of steps that gives ingress and egress to the Royal Palace at Brussels. The Count of Flanders, Duke of Brabant and the Count of Flanders relieving after the ceremony, the coffin was borne in the following order:—First, a detachment, secondly, a squadron of Gardes Civiques, followed by another of the Gendarmerie; then the Grand Marshal, Count Conway, in a carriage of mourning; and, fourthly, the funeral car, drawn by eight horses caparisoned in black and red and deepest black, and with the car itself also in mourning, and carrying a flambeau. Behind the hearse came the carriages of the functionaries of the Court, the whole forming, closed by the Gendarmerie, the Guides and Grenadier regiments. Throughout the whole line of way the roads and streets were down with people, the whole population of Brussels, it would appear, turning out to witness the sad spectacle; and the bell was tolled during the delay, conveyed with great state to the apartment prepared for it. Here the remains of the King lay in state until the following day, when they were solemnly conveyed back to Laeken there to be placed in the same vault that contains the body of Queen Louise Marie.

On the following and Friday the people of Brussels and other towns were admitted to see the remains of their King, lying in state in the hall of the Brussels Palace, the ground yellow saloon, on the first story, had been transformed into a chapelle ardente. It was covered with black, and on the large fireplaces were displayed the arms of Belgium and the arms of the King. The lustres were concealed with crape, and the only light which the hall received was that of the wax candles around The body of his Majesty, arrayed in the grand uniform of a General officer, commander-in-Chief of the army, lay on a state bed, the head of which was against the wall. On the breast glittered the insignia of the chief decorations of the late King. The other ornaments, which were very numerous, lay on a table at the side of the bed. The concourse of persons who were desirous of contemplating once more the features of the first King of the Belgians was enormous, 30,000 or 40,000 being admitted on each of the two days.

The funeral proceedings on the Saturday, the 16th inst., were of a very imposing character. Between nine and ten o'clock the distinguished personages invited to take part in the ceremonies began to arrive at the palace, the façade of which was covered with black tapestry studded with golden lions, and was illuminated with numerous funeral lamps. The square in front of the palace was lined by a cordon of troops, behind whom the crowd assembled on the pavements and inside the park, their numbers increasing every moment.

Inside the palace the personages invited to the funeral were received by the Royal Chamberlains. The high officers of the public service and tribunals, the diplomatic body and the common council, were assembled in the hall-room adjoining the chapelle ardente. The late war was represented by Lieutenant-General Count Renard and Baron Joly, captain of the general staff. At the head of the diplomatic body stood the Papal Nuncio, and on each side were the other Protestant ministers. This room, which was almost empty, presented a most striking contrast to that which we have presented a very striking aspect, which was rendered more solemn by the grave and sombre dresses of the judges and members of the Lutheran ministers in black robes, and of the English clergy in white robes with black borders.



At half-past ten Prince Leopold II. entered the chapelle ardente. He was followed by his father, the King of Portugal, in full uniform. There having on his right the King of Portugal, in full uniform. There having on his right the King of Portugal, in full uniform. There having on his right

ENTRY OF KING LEOPOLD II. INTO BRUSSELS: HIS RECEPTION AT THE LAEKEN GATE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 653.

ENTRY OF KING LEOPOLD II. INTO BRUSSELS: HIS RECEPTION AT THE LAEKEN GATE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 653.

BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 643.

ENTRY OF KING LEOPOLD II. INTO BRUSSELS: HIS RECEPTION AT THE LAEKEN GATE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 648.

mentions of my country. With it I have joyfully followed that national development which, hereafter in its bosom all the sentiments of my struggles and and liberty, and consecrate the most solid basis of the throne. As my thoughts the future of Belgium have always been connected with my own; and I have always considered it with a confidence inspired by the right of a free people, and courageous nation, who desire independence, who have known how to achieve and show themselves worthy of it, and will be able to preserve it. I have not forgotten, gentlemen, the marked proof—it will be able to preserve period of my majesty, when I came to you myself—I will receive at the upon my marriage some months subsequently, with a princess who enters into all my feelings towards the country, and inspires in me the most entire confidence. It has been very gratifying to me to see in the country the unanimous accord of the population, and the spontaneous have seemed to me any distinction among Belgians. We are all one in the country. I count them all in one common affection. My Constitutional mission places me above the conflicts of opinion. Among these conflicts I am always animated by the love of country. I certainly desire that their differences may always be tempered by that spirit of moderation and fraternity which now animates them, same banner all the children of the Belgian family. Gentlemen,—During the last thirty-five years Belgium has witnessed a succession of important events, which have contributed to its welfare and to its glory. Some have rarely been realised by a single generation. But the entire whose foundations were laid by the wisdom of our fathers can be raised, and will be raised still higher, if by sympathetic concurrence, liberty is secured to all who shall devote to the work of civilisation their intelligence, their activity, and their devotion. Liberty, providing in this course of activity, will be the source of progress that preserve that order, the absence of which the Powers guaranteed to us at the Conference, and other foreign States, have never ceased to afford and now again renew benevolent testimony. Gentlemen,—Surrounding the throne of my children with these words, justified by his whole career, I express the hope that of doing you happy." Thanks. God has graciously granted the prayer which you now repeat to me. I repeat it again to-day; may He render me the worthy successor of my father, and may He bless you, from the bottom of my heart, may He continue to protect our dear Belgium!

His Majesty's address was several times interrupted by shouts of applause. Before retiring, the King frequently saluted the Queen and the Princess and the members of the two Chambers. At noon of the following day his Majesty, who is a Catholic, attended divine service in the Church of St. Gudule, where a Te Deum was performed with great pomp and ceremony, as a consecration of the new reign.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

ONE day, not long ago, the electors of the South-West Riding of Yorkshire enjoyed a peculiar gratification, for they had before them, for one of their representatives, a special claim on their consideration, apart from those hereditary incidents which had so long and so well identified the interests of their suffragan. It is not every day that the eldest son of a Peer crosses the Rocky Mountains, and returns to his native land, as he has not yet been made easy; and, whatever his own sensation may have been, that of the plurality of those who are not entitled to ordinary Viscount Milton must wonder why he went there of all places in the world. Now, it may be supposed that the hero of a series of adventures which would do credit to a trapper or a Red Indian, or other human species to the locality—we do not pledge ourselves to an exact bracketing of ethnology and topography—would have outwart symptoms of the Anglo-Saxon in all his physical development, accompanied by that superb insolence of manner which is the birthright of our colonising progenitors. On the contrary, the noble in question is small in stature, singularly quiet in manners, slight in build, pale in face, and professes, although a member of Parliament, a distaste for talking, and by no means a desire for the rough-and-tumble of ordinary humanity. In the House. In truth, Lord Milton seems by every respect before any preconceived notion of the adventurous life and voyage and sojourn. That there is good manhood in him, despite a sparse exhibition of raw material so far as his present appearance is unquestionable, and his popularity amongst his constituents is immense. He has, notwithstanding his modest demeanour, contrived to keep himself before them in the shape he represents, and, besides the usual "cow run, cow then" proceedings of ordinary electioneering, he has told, and well told, the tale of his adventures along the most difficult and dangerous of all routes to the Pacific.

Scarcely had the echoes of Conservative triumph died away in that hall at Skipton which is dedicated to the steeple and anti-steeple of politics, when the song of Liberal congratulation arose, and Lord Milton, in the midst of the vivats which the words of vigour, perhaps more spasmodic than time than usual. For amidst the pulsations of the fire of the visible presence of Sir Thomas Western as a Liberal county member, and Mr. Gordon Hotham as a dilettante Conservative representative of the Malton proper, which is Liberal at her heart, and went two to one against Sugden. The defeat came from some cause, and therefore which are sunk in the dark atmosphere and the dark fogs distinctive to the country, and which, happily, according to the professors of political knowledge, the sense and qualities of the electors of our Mr. Western. On the recent occasion there was the customary gathering of M.P.s, including, as usual, Sir Fowell Buxton, Bart., and Mr. Charles Lushington, but not including, this time, Mr. Chichester Fortescue, who has of late introduced an element of mercury into the proceedings, meeting which, perhaps, may have been a little wanting; but, so far as topics were concerned, there was an infusion of novelty which seemed to be particularly to which some gentlemen present were expected to be peculiarly strong; but they answered not to expectation in the event.

Conjurors have been of late under some obligations to mechanical hands, and the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce has just obtained for itself a splendid exhibition of that kind, for Lord Stanley has just been delivering one of those correct and apposite speeches for which he seems to wind himself up on each passing occasion. If a rhetorician, the subject and the occasion, he must be taken to be a success; but, nevertheless, the analogy of the mechanical hand is not inapplicable. It would seem as if Lord Stanley had made his sire play the part of an oratorical belief to him, and that he had only to put the power to avoid any similarity between their styles. Perhaps, however, the one had none of that power of the other, which makes the eloquence of Lord Derby so taking, for, indeed, you have dragged with him, and you are carried away by him who is evidently talking from his heart. Now, Lord Stanley talks only with his lips, as it was in the midst of a Conservative ground, toned down by the presence of one Liberal member, and of a Conservative reformer like members of the Tribunal of Commerce, and of the assembled. There was Mr. Horsfall, mild but determined, Mr. Laird, who was there to endeavour to convince the Tory with the free-trader—in ships at any rate; Sir Charles Bright, who did not attempt to convince, but might have been expected; and Mr. Graves, the new member, who has made Liverpool wholly Conservative in the House. The result is the quality which he gave on this occasion was fairly good, and, from what one knows of his antecedents, which are those of a man of ability and a man of spirit, he will take so good a position in the House as that which Mr. Joseph Brown, whom he supplanted at the last election, who was weighty in all sorts of senses, and pursued his course on respectability and its great support, wealth, than on the vivacity or versatility of his genius.

It seems that reform and finance will not prevail so powerfully in the discussions of next Session, but will prevail so powerfully in the House as that which Mr. Joseph Brown has been again arguing his great appeal case against the mail tax with that wonderful combination of facts and information, statement of fact, and illogical deduction for which he is famous. Did it ever strike the Liverpool people that Fitzroy's speeches always consist of one sentence, uttered, iterated, reiterated, with scarcely a sensible variation, but with the same sound to the ear as if the usual sequence and rhetorical change was going on, solely because of the infinite air of belief in the speaker that in every word he says he is bringing out something new and revealing strange. There has been heard of somewhere a song, supposed to be derived from which is contained in its simple and unalloyed repetition for any number of times, from twenty to twenty thousand, according to the will of the singer. Even such a merit have Sir Fitzroy's speeches, both at the Bar and in the House. For them as he can keep an audience he will go on with more than the goldbeater's art to hammer out one idea, one fact, and one illustration, originally brought together in a sentence, until all human natures but his own are laid low by exhaustion, perhaps physical, and like that which is produced by sitting all day under an effect in a coppersmith's! However, as to the Exchequer will credit something of this impost next year. The usual relaxing the mail duty at the next session, it need not be a long one.

FINE ARTS.

"RESURRECTION OF LAZARUS."

THE Pettenkofer process of reviving pictures has been applied by Mr. Gambart to an effect surpassing expectation to Sebastiano del Piombo's great picture of the "Raising of Lazarus," in the National Gallery. The gradually deepening obscurity to which this, with other pictures in the gallery, was condemned by the fumes of tobacco, the London fog, and the dust, which varnished them deeply with an irremovable oil varnish, has been entirely removed. This restoration is important also for helping to judge the carelessness of the Venetian painter. Mr. Doo, R.A., has executed his engraving of the picture. Though he has not accomplished the impossible, and surpassed the work since its completion and opportunity of reviewing this will be shown, the perfection of the picture, and the character of the figure of Lazarus. For such a work the engraver's art is especially adapted. Sebastiano del Piombo's large scale was also necessary to fairly represent the numerous likenesses figures in the picture by Vandramini, and Lightfoot had been of very inferior quality or insufficient size. Mr. Doo has followed the Venetian in the best mode for reproducing the work with commensurate fidelity will be found in the engraving. Not alone his it a severity and distinctness, and freedom from petty accessories, which are suitable to the solemn subject and the dignity of Roman art of the best period, but with varied modelling upon which depend the effects of light and shade and faithful value between the figures in the large and complex composition. The process of mezzotint affords, it is true, with the necessary skill, the means of producing certain rich effects and tones of light and shade found both in pictures and nature, but it is not suited to the large engraving of the noble figure of Lazarus, and it could only general engraver, on the contrary, would not only render these appearances, but, by the use of the graver, would give to the flesh and to these appearances are produced (as even the painter cannot do so) by the tender, muscle, and so forth.

The engraving is on a large scale having accordingly been adopted the darkening condition of the picture mentioned above, and the difficulty—Mr. Doo consequently, at the same time that it increased in all the qualities of the engraver's art, has given to the spectator of the picture to scale by the gallery, an elaborate reduced drawing of the engraved several months. The engraving of this copy has occupied nearly seven of the last years. The work is a long as in this period, it has been well employed. For centuries the plate will remain a record of the fine qualities of the picture, and of our time and this country really worth preservation. The eye is not wearied by the multitude of the minute and meritorious prints of the day in the various "mixed" mezzotint, lithographic, and other styles, that in some way or other fill the last glance relish the simple purity and gravity of this work. Yet it will not be found to be wanting in delicacy, variety, and luminous spirit and accuracy, in the figure of Lazarus, himself all doubt, the grave-clothes, the attitude of the sister Martha, Mary, and Christ, and the numerous heads and hands, not only of the principal figures, but of the subordinate personages. Here and there, with true breadth and masterly touch the first part of the run the right. Array, then, strait, and the sister Martha, and Mary, and the Christ, and the sister Martha, and Mary, and drawing out towards tragedy, but, stopping short of that, turned of to Lenten.

Mr. Cook, of West Kensington, had been labelled by Mr. Carmichael, with the name of the recipient, the size of the gift being governed by the extent of family of each person; one man had received 20 lbs., three pounds' weight, and one pound; one a ham and his wife a goose. The single men upon the Royal estates were also given for each child, received money gifts as an expression of Royal sympathy, and were accompanied by gifts as an expression of Royal sympathy, and were accompanied by gifts from the Prince Albert Victor and Prince George, witnessed the dispersal of these gifts from one of the windows, and the recipients expressed their gratitude in the most unaffected manner. Hearty eloquence to the Royal children. The church was tastefully decorated. On the altar were two large vases of evergreens, and on the pulpit were two Norfolk bounds. The Prince of Wales and the Princess Alexandra, the Prince Alfred and Princess Helena, the Princess Louise, accompanied by the Marquis of Lorne, the Princess Royal and Prince Frederick William of Prussia, and the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, the Duke of Saxe-Weimar, and the Duke of Edinburgh, including a large number of the Prince and Princess are expected to pay a visit to the Earl and Countess of Leicester, at Holkham Hall, on the 29th inst.

The Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, with the Princes of Saxe-Coburg, left Gotha for Coburg, on Thursday morning. The Princess will leave Marlborough House during the third week in January, and return to Sandringham.

The Duke and Duchess of Somerset left the Admiralty, Whitehall, for Bowan House, Blackheath, and passed the Christmas with the Duke and Duchess of Northumberland.

The Duke and Duchess of Beaufort and family left Beaufort, Castle, Chepstow, for Badminton House, near Edinburgh, on Saturday last, to join Grace's residence in Dunbartonshire.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Abercorn and their son, Lord Hamilton arrived at Baronscourt, Strabane, on Saturday last, from visiting the Queen at Windsor Castle.

The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch left town, on Saturday for their Dalkeith Palace, N.B.

Countess Cowley and Lady Emily Craven have left town for Lord Cowley's seat, Combe Court, Westerham, Kent.

Earl Bathurst has left town, to visit Sir John and Lady Dorothea Bathurst, at Clarendon Park, Salisbury.

The Earl of Dunmore has left Thomas's Hotel, Berkeley-street, for Scotland.

The Earl of Cork and the Hon. Captain Boyle, A.D.C. to Lord Wodehouse, have left Dublin.

Viscountess Palmerston, Viscount Jocelyn, and the Hon. Mrs. Jocelyn have gone to stay a short time with the Earl and Countess of Blantyre, at their seat, Erskine House, Renfrewshire.

Viscount Canterbury has left Thomas's Hotel, Berkeley-street, for Dalkeith Palace, N.B.

Lady Granville Somerset and Mr. R. Somerset have left Badminton, Gloucestershire, for Somerset House, near Newport Pagnell, Bucks.

The Right Hon. Sir Fitzroy Kelly left town on Tuesday, on a visit to Lord Northwick at Stratton Park, Hants.

The Right Hon. W. F. Cowper, M.P., and Mrs. Cowper left Hatfield House for Hatfield, on a visit to the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury.

The Right Hon. W. F. Cowper, M.P., and Mrs. Cowper left town this morning for Hatfield House, on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Shaftesbury.

It is stated that the Earl of St. Germans has resigned the office of Lord-in-Waiting to her Majesty, which he has held for the last few years, and that the Earl of Bradenoch, who has been for many years Master of the Buckhounds.

An investiture of the Order of St. Patrick took place in Dublin Castle, on Thursday, when Sir Thomas Larcom, Under-Secretary, was invested by the Lieutenant-General, and the ceremonial was conducted with the usual formalities.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS.

THE death of King Leopold having taken place at his Palace of Laeken, near Brussels, on Sunday, the 10th inst., the number of our Journal for the following Wednesday contained a brief but full memoir, from an admirable photograph by Messrs. Mayall, Brothers, of that excellent likeness of his late Majesty which we had published in 1858, for the special purpose of supplying illustrations of the Royal Funeral; and at the same time we announced that the arrangements for the interment, two of the Artists belonging to this Journal were sent to Brussels to make sketches of the ceremonial. We now publish the first of the series, which will be completed in our next Number. The other carriages contained the diplomatic representatives of the Foreign Courts, the Ministers, the Senate and Chamber of Representatives, the functionaries, provincial deputations, and municipal authorities of Belgium, the Generals and Staff-officers of the Army, the academies and universities, Catholic priests, deputations from the various communes, and others. Then followed the empty carriages; and the procession, which was closed by a strong body of cavalry, moved slowly through the streets of the Quarter. All along the route the houses were decorated with black cloth, and the windows were filled with spectators and the crowd, which was enormous, preserved the most silent and respectful demeanour throughout the day. The shops were generally closed. Salvoes of artillery were fired every five minutes. One of the Princes, accompanied by a Staff-officer, rode on horseback in front of the car, passing through the Place du Congrès, in front of the well-known column which commemorates the Belgian Revolution of 1830, and was erected as a monument of the achievements of Belgian independence.

A temporary church had been erected at Laeken, for, as that is within the Royal domain, and is consecrated ground, it was not impossible to read the conclusion of the Protestant burial service there. The Bishop of Namur performed the Catholic service before the body was buried here; and, in order that the King might sleep at last side by side with his Queen, Queen Louise-Marie, whose remains had already been made in the church wall, through which the coffin was to be laid in the vaulted tomb, the sarcophagus was carried reverently through the church, or making it necessary for the mourning party to do so. At the conclusion of the service, and, after considerable delay, the coffin was lowered into the vault, and, after confirming with his destinies, promptly communicated to the world the fact that the Duke in the will was not the Duke in the will was not Saxe-Coburg, Prince George de Saxe, the Duke of Saxe-Weimar, Prince Alfred, and the Duke of

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Doctors-commons is about to be pulled down by the Metropolitan Board of Works, it being in the way of the proposed new street from Blackfriars to the Mansion House.

Mr. Farnall, the Poor-Law Inspector, has invited the boards of guardians of the poor of the metropolis to send deputations to confer with him upon the subject of establishing a uniform system of dietary and taskwork for the workhouses poor.

The Vestry of Marylebone has resolved to oppose a project for an underground railway from the Baker-street station of the Metropolitan Railway to Oxford-street.

A refreshment-room has been opened at the British Museum for the convenience of the public, in addition to those reserved for the use of the officials and the readers.

Upwards of 250 cwt. of plum-pudding was this year made for the Christmas dinner of the metropolitan paupers. This year the workhouses contain 40,000 inmates—being 5,000 more than last year. Not only six cases do we find a decrease in the number of inmates. St. Mary's, Paddington, and have also less; St. Margaret's, Westminster, 1,000; Bermondsey, 800; St. George's-in-the-East, seven; Stepney Union, sixteen; Islington, 1,000; and Lambeth, Bermondsey, 800.

On Tuesday evening Captain C. F. Symonds, a retired Indian officer, was presented, at the theatre at the Royal Victoria Patriotic Asylum, Wandsworth, with a purse of 100 sovereigns, the subscribers to which were the boys of the establishment, who had boarded a train to a gentleman he darted across the road to the middle of Brook-green, there found his pocket-book, a double-barrelled pistol, and blew his brains out. Captain Symonds was well known and respected throughout the district for his many charities, and when he had devoted much of his time to religious subjects and had written several tracts. He had been for some time in an unsound state of mind.

The Royal Infirmary for Children and Women, Waterloo-bridge-road, which has conferred great benefits on the poor suffering from most helpless of the sick poor, urgently needs increased benevolent assistance. This institution, since the foundation, in 1858, has cured or relieved upwards of 20,000 poor sick little children. From its position, in a densely populated, poor district of the metropolis, without endowment, and being wholly dependent upon voluntary contributions, it has had a hard struggle to continue its beneficial operations amongst the suffering poor.

A meeting of the Royal Humane Society was held last week; Sir Thomas Wilkinson, Sheriff-elect—Mr. T. Baker, treasurer, in the chair. The following persons were awarded the bronze medallion of the society:—Mr. W. G. R. Spicer, M.R.C.S., assistant-surgeon, Royal Free Hospital; and Mr. Isacher Naldon, who fell from a steamer in the Waterloo-bridge, New Zealand; to George Brown, groom to the Duke of Marlborough, for saving a person estimated to commit suicide by jumping into the Thames from Waterloo-bridge; to Joseph Hall, a boy, for saving the crew (seven in number) of a French ship wrecked off the Nore; to Sergeant Nicholas Austey, R.A., for saving G. Williamson, who accidentally fell into the water at Gosforthouse-park, Northumberland; and two were presented to Patrick Carroll and James Dwyer, constables of Cork, who saved the lives of a large family who were in imminent danger. Pecuniary rewards were also given in many cases. It was reported by Mr. J. Yeowy, the secretary, that a legacy of £1,000 had been bequeathed to the society by Mr. Benjamin Oliviera, who had been a most active member.

The parish in which Lord Palmerston resides is so historically suggestive, is soon to find its residence are in rapid progress of completion at Kensington. Kensington, Lord Palmerston's new arrangements to maintain a proper uniform temperature (excluding all fire from the apartments) and for constant supply of fresh air to every room that can be provided. They have a quiet look of throne, both in their simple arrangements and decorative colouring; and the effect is enhanced by some vivid pictures—about the number of British oil paintings exhibited in 1862. We understand that they will not be let to the public, as has been said, but there has been a hearty response, and a very large number of tickets for the Private Views have been issued. Those who have applied for gratuitous, have been issued at the discretion of the committee, and will be available only for this year's exhibition, which is to open in April next, should extend to the Revolution of 1688 to the present time that the memory of living men should not, perhaps, compel the committee to terminate the first year's exhibition with the portraits of the Commonwealth.

On Wednesday the annual festival in favour of the Commercial Travellers' Schools, which has the object of providing the maintenance and education of the destitute orphans of deceased, and the children of necessitous, commercial travellers was held at the London Tavern, with the Lord Mayor in the chair. Nearly £1000 was subscribed.—The ordinary half-yearly court of governors of the Consumption Hospital, Brompton, Institution was held in the forenoon, at the London Tavern—Mr. Clarer in the chair. Mr. Haines, the secretary, read the report, which stated that the inmates of the hospital had been £1705, and the total expenditure less than that amount by £1,000 to extend which the board gladly appealed to the liberality of friends to the benevolent fund, which now amounted to £3000. They recommended the election of their honorary physician, Dr. Quain, and several new annuitants to thirty-one, affording the gratifying fact that so young a society had been able to extend similar benefits to upwards of 100 persons, at a cost of about £4,000. The report concluded with an appeal to the great body of commercial travellers to rally in support of the institution.

On Monday next the new Act to establish a fire brigade in the metropolis for the due protection of life and property will come into operation. The brigade will be under the management of the Metropolitan Board of Works, and Captain Shaw will be the chief officer, assisted by a number of officers and men. It is estimated that the annual expense will be about £40,000, of which sum the Government will contribute £5,000, the remainder being derived from the various insurance companies, who will pay in proportion to the amount of their premiums. Of the £40,000 and the remaining £30,000 will be raised by a half-penny in the pound rate. The principal duties of the existing fire establishments to be transferred to the Board, and an efficient force maintained for the performance of the duties now discharged by the Board. Regulations are to be made and enforced. The vestry of a parish may grant a compensation to an engineer and firemen of the parish for the Act. The Board may make arrangements as to the establishing of fire-escapes throughout the metropolis. The Board has power to borrow money from the Treasury, to carry out the Act. There is a provision as to "chimneys on fire" and as to public improvements. The Board may levy a rate not exceed of 2½., but, if such occupier proves that he has incurred the penalty by reason of failure of the water supply, he shall be relieved from the penalty from such part of the whole or part of the time during which the water supply failed. The brigade may be employed beyond the metropolis, and on "special service." The parish of Lambeth is to be under the control of the Board, and the police are to aid the brigade in their duties. On Monday the Metropolitan Board will take the management of the fire establishment.

The births of 2109 children—1037 boys and 1072 girls—were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years, 1850-54, the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1,876. In the first week of the present year the births were 2,109, 2,109, and 2,109. The deaths of 1,376 persons, and the average number in the ten years was 1,376, with a correction for increase of population, 1415. Measles increased, and the deaths from the complaint were 49, against 31 and 32 in the two previous diseases in 17. There was no death from cholera. On the 15th of December, at 5, Frying Pan-alley, Spitalfields, the temperature of mercury in the air (as registered) of 101 years. Four fatal carriage accidents were registered in the week, viz.—Liverpool the inmate in the Lambeth Infirmary, 1; and died in Manchester—births 273, deaths 274; in Salford—births 75, deaths 72; in Leeds—births 172, deaths 168; in Bradford—births 114, deaths 78; in Hull—births 71, deaths 63; in Edinburgh—births 114, deaths 78; and in Glasgow—births 345, deaths 276. The annual rate of mortality per 1000 in London was 30 in Manchester, 27 in Salford, 24 in Leeds, 23 in Bradford, 22 in Hull, and 24 in Edinburgh, 29 in Glasgow, 32 in Hull, and 32 in Glasgow.

LAW AND POLICE.—The Royal Commission on Capital Punishment has made its report. The Commissioners recommend that the extreme sentence of the law should be inflicted on persons guilty of treason, murder connected with express and deliberate malice, and aforethought, and murder committed in connection with the perpetration of other great crimes; that the cases of murder where the offender is under the influence of provocation than fact the capital sentence be not executed; that the execution of child murderers be not carried out in public; that persons found guilty of murder should be confined in solitary cells; and that the present mode of executing the sentence be continued.

Under a deed of assignment which will take effect on Monday next it is stated that in any action or suit the Commissioner of the Admiralty shall be liable to pay or receive all costs, charges, and expenses in the ordinary law and practice relative to costs.

The Lord Chief Justice and a jury were engaged on Saturday in trying a dispute between Mr. Swanborough and Mr. Sothern, better known as Lord Dundreary. The former has been engaged with Mr. Sothern to perform at seventeen nights at Birmingham am; he afterwards wished to alter the time, but Mr. Sothern would not consent. He arrived in Birmingham on the first night in a state of health too ill to appear; a quarrel ensued, and though Mr. Sothern did afterwards perform for some nights, the ill-humour between the parties broke out again, and the engagement was broken. The plea of the defendant was that his illness quite incapacitated him from performing. The jury found for the plaintiff, but they only awarded £50 damage.

The trial of the Russian bank-note forgers has terminated in the acquittal of one and the conviction of four of the prisoners. Three were sentenced to long periods of penal servitude, and one to a term of imprisonment.

The Garter, vacant by the death of Lord Palmerston, will be conferred on Earl Cowley.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

3rd Regiment Guards: Ensign W. Thynne to be Lieutenant.
3rd Foot: Corporate E. Maddison to be Ensign.
4th Foot: Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. S. F. J. Preston to be Lieutenant-Colonel.
10th Hussars: Capt. C. Fane to be Major.
11th Hussars: Capt. and Brevet-Major W. M. Holmes to be Major.
Royal Artillery: Lieut. and Adjutant J. Smith, R.H., to be Captain.
Royal Engineers: Lieut. J. G. Maconchy to be Lieutenant.
Rifle Brigade: Lieut. and Adjutant C. Hall, 2nd Foot, to be Lieutenant. Lieut. G. W. Wilkie to be Adjutant. Brev. Capt. J. G. Harcourt to be Captain. Sub. Ensign G. H. Shirley to be Lieutenant; Ensign F. B. Prescott to be Ensign. 4th Staff Corps: A. Lieut.-Colonel J. Hill, 2nd Foot, to be Lieutenant-Colonel. Lieut. J. A. Hamilton to be Captain. Ensign C. Hamilton to be Ensign. 60th Staff Corps: A. F. Bartley to be Surgeon. Staff Surgeon-Major J. Wild, Limit. W. S. Jervis to be Lieutenant-Colonel. Capt. T. Thynne to be Major.
Half-Pay: Ensign F. A. Fane to be Lieutenant. J. A. Ferguson to be Ensign.
Memorandum: Lieut. R. W. Travers has retired upon half-pay.
Militia:
Carlow Rifle Regiment: Ensign H. W. Tombs to be Ensign.
Royal Cork City: Ensign J. Lee to be Lieutenant-General, Royal Engineers, Southampton.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—Surgs. O'Connor D'Arcy and D. Hanley to be Staff Surgeons.
Hospt. Asst.—Lieut. A. B. Tibbet to be Captain.
Asst.-Surgeon Alexander Ogston, M.D., to be Surgeon, under the honorary rank of Major-General.

ADMIRALTY.

Admiral H. Smith, C.B., having attained the retired service pension of £100 a year, viceal by the death, on the 25th ult., of Admiral W. J. Hoppner, he has been placed on the superannuated list of Admirals of the Fleet.
Commander Hon. H. Keppel, of the Royal Yacht, to be Captain, vice Hon. Frederick Grey, appointed to the Ariadne. Lieut. and Acting-Adjutant J. A. Hodges, on the supernumerary list, Rear-Admiral Sir C. F. Jones, K.C.B., to be Vice-Admiral on the active list; Retired Rear-Admiral Sir Thomas Pasley, Bart., to be Rear-Admiral on the same list; Capt. C. Talbot, C.B., to be Rear-Admiral on the retired list; Capt. C. Harvey to be Rear-Admiral on the active list; Capts. W. Clark, T. L. Bruce, and Hon. F. T. Pelham, C.B., to be Colonels of Royal Marines.
Midshipmen A. B. Hennessey to be Colonel of the Woolwich Division of Royal Marine Artillery.
Lieut. Hall, to be Inspecting Commander of Coastguard.
Mr. R. Wilde and W. Bell to be Acting Engineers, and Messrs. W. F. Pilcher, F. Morris, and J. Hamilton to be Assistant-Engineers, for service in the Gorgon, Lieut.-Colonel Forbes.

The annual distribution of the Crimean Banquet Fund prizes to the successful candidates among the boys of the Royal Hibernian Military School, Phœnix Park, Dublin, on Saturday last. The ceremony was made by the Lord Lieutenant, in presence a numerous company of distinguished visitors, including the Lord Chief Justice, Lord Talbot de Malahide, Colonel Wyndham, and addresses were delivered by the Lord Lieutenant, Colonel Wyndham, and the Rev. Dr. Carlisle, chaplain to the forces.

The Duke of Cambridge went to Woolwich last week to conduct the examination of candidates at the Royal Military College for vacant commissions and prizes to gentlemen cadets. Major-General Hamilton Smith, commandant of the Royal School of Military Engineers, the list of commissions awarded, and the number of marks gained by each of the successful candidates. The examination of candidates for the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers by Major-General Smithan, R.E., Lieutenant-Governor of the Institution, and Colonel Lefroy, C.B., Director of Studies. The following is a return of the commissions awarded, and the number of marks gained by each candidate:—To Mr. Watson by General Sir George Pollock, who made some appropriate remarks on the occasion. The sword, which is valued at 100 guineas, bears the inscription, "Presented to Lieutenant-Colonel Watson, C.B., by the Officers of the Bengal Army, in testimony of their high appreciation of his gallantry and conduct as a regulator and most three additional prizes. Mr. Jones was awarded the prize for mathematics; Mr. Hamilton that for French and first German; and Mr. Lewis two prizes, for practical geometry and landscape drawing. The following are the successful candidates:—Messrs. Jones, Wemyss, Mackinlay, Dudley, E. Martin, Fothringer, Turnbull, Blake, Bruce, and Hall Addison.

Mr. Russell Gurney, M.P., Recorder of London, has consented to act with Sir Henry Storks on the Jamaica Commission of Inquiry. Mr. Gurney will leave for Jamaica on Saturday next. Before the appointment on the Jamaica Commission was completed Mr. Gurney might be relieved from the duty of presiding at the Middlesex Sessions, but he has now consented to undertake both duties.

The Royal Humane Institution has at the present time one hundred and fifty-three life-boats under its charge; seventeen of these are stationed on the coast of Ireland, and the remainder on the coast of England. Two life-boats have been sent off to the Australian colonies, one to Melbourne, and the other to the port of Adelaide, in Southern. The Arklow life-boat of this institution was the first to proceed to the assistance of the ill-fated ship Tayleur, on the coast of Liverpool, which was wrecked on the outlying sandbanks on the morning of January 21.

In accordance with the provisions of a convention concluded with the Swiss Confederation, which came into force on the 1st January next, and Deutschwerder, be forwarded by each French mail; and likewise, for places in Switzerland, correspondence for which the French offices are respectively "via France," or upon which the rates of postage are fixed by the French tariff, and which are forwarded by the Swiss mail. The rate of postage to be charged on letters for the Swiss Confederation generally, or the city of Bergamo, forwarded via France, will be 5d. for every quarter ounce or fraction of a quarter ounce; newspapers will continue to be charged at the rate of 1d. each.

The following is a return of the weight recently applied to letters sent within the United Kingdom, progressing by one rate for each half ounce between the limits of the supplies of one penny and a shilling, and applied to letters addressed to the under-mentioned colonies and other countries:—Prince Edward's Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Sierra Leone, Gambia, Gold Coast, Lagos, any foreign port on the West Coast of Africa, Heligoland, Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria, Cairo, and Suez, by packet via Southampton or via Marseilles. Under this regulation a letter for any of the places mentioned, weighing not more than half an ounce, is conveyed one ounce and a half, will be chargeable with three rates of postage; and if exceeding one ounce and a half and not two ounces and a half, will be charged with five rates of postage, and so on.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

RATES, a large amount of money has been sent into the Bank of England this week, and the operations have shown a further rise. Recently, however, the demand and the operations have shown a further rise. Recently, however, the demand for discount has been somewhat limited, and the rate for the best class of bills is unusually limited.

On Thursday the directors of the Bank of England advanced their minimum rate of discount to three per cent. The advance became necessary as the amount of money deposited with them on call; 5 to 6½ of 6 per month, and 5 to 6 per cent if with fourteen days' notice of withdrawal.

The Bank of France has also raised the rate of discount from moderately active, and the lowest rates for the best commercial paper are as follow:

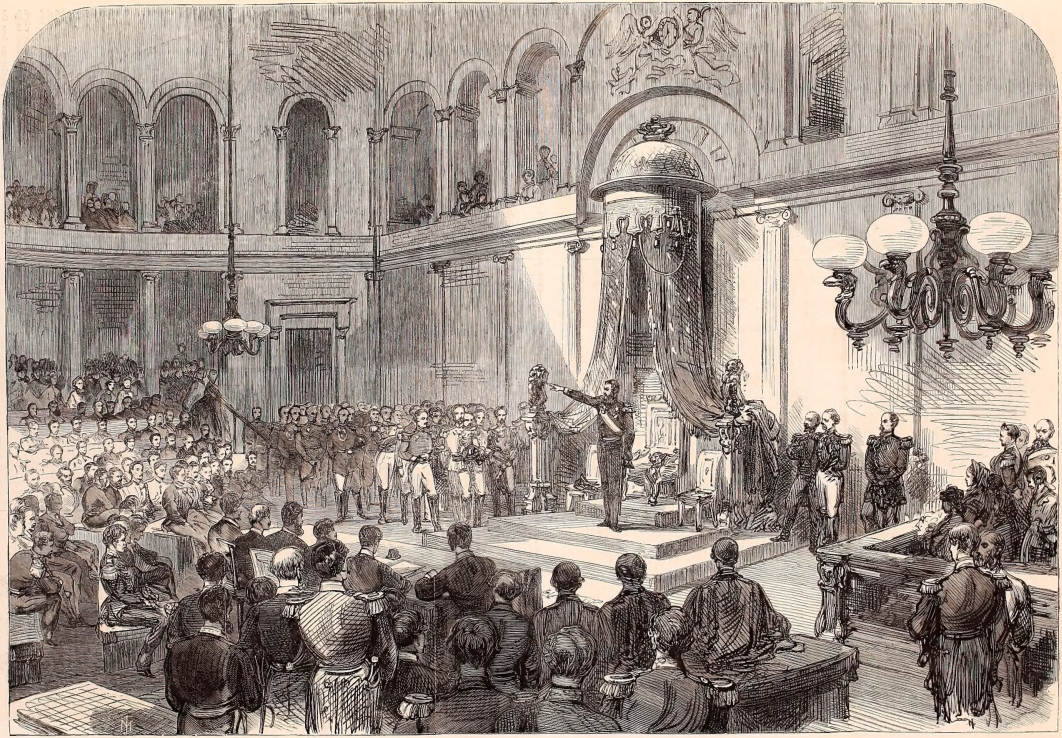
Thirty days' bills ... 3 per cent | Four months' bills ... 3½ per cent
Sixty days' ... 3 „ | Six months' ... 4 „
Ninety days' ... 3½ „

In the Stock Exchange loans for short periods have ranged from 1½ to 6 per cent.

The Bullion in the Bank of England has been rather stationary. The last few leading coins are:—

	Bank rate	Open market		Bank rate	Open market
Paris ...	3 per cent	3 per cent	Berlin ...	4 per cent	3½
Vienna ...	5 „	5 „	Brussels ...	3 „	3
Trieste ...	5 „	5 „	Hamburg ...	4 „	3½
Madrid ...	5 „	5 „	Frankfort ...	4 „	3½
Cadiz ...	5 „	5 „	Hamburg ...	4 „	3½
Leghorn ...	5 „	5 „	Amsterdam ...	3 „	3

Since 26,000 in gold has been taken from the Bank. There is an active demand for silver, as enhanced quotations. See silver, 61½, and Mexican dollars, 59½.

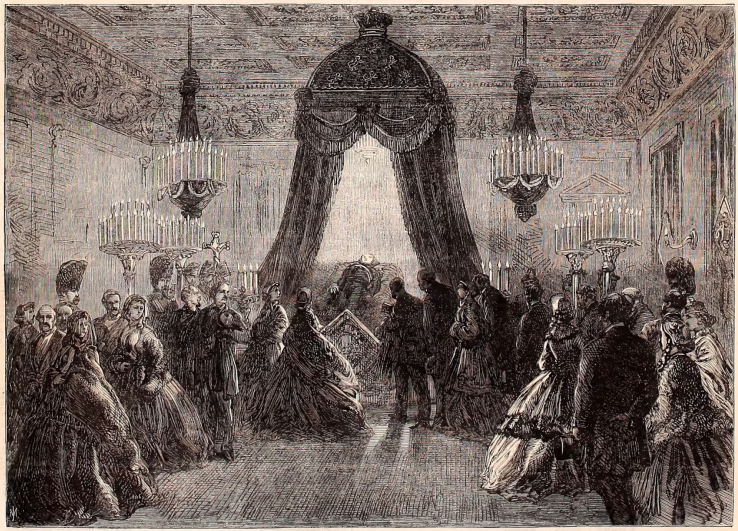


The Exchanges have been steady, and the rates of discount in London and Paris and Hamburg's have realised 3½; Amiens, 3½; Augsburg, 3½; Australia, 3½; Berlin, 3½; Bremen, 3½; Breslau, 3½; Brussels, 3½; Cologne, 3½; Copenhagen, 3½; Dantzic, 3½; Dresden, 3½; Frankfort, 3½; Geneva, 3½; Genoa, 3½; Hamburg, 3½; Leipsic, 3½; Leghorn, 3½; Lisbon and Oporto, 3½; London and Gottenburg, 3½; London and Stockholm, 3½; Madrid, 3½; Milan, 3½; Naples, 3½; Paris, 3½; Rotterdam, 3½; Rouen, 3½; Turin, 3½; Vienna, 3½; Zurich, 3½.

The Bullion in the Bank of England has been rather stationary. The last few leading coins are:—

	Bank rate	Open market		Bank rate	Open market
Paris ...	3 per cent	3 per cent	Berlin ...	4 per cent	3½
Vienna ...	5 „	5 „	Brussels ...	3 „	3
Trieste ...	5 „	5 „	Hamburg ...	4 „	3½
Madrid ...	5 „	5 „	Frankfort ...	4 „	3½
Cadiz ...	5 „	5 „	Hamburg ...	4 „	3½
Leghorn ...	5 „	5 „	Amsterdam ...	3 „	3

The Stock Exchange has been rather quiet, and the transactions were limited. The following are the closing prices of the leading Stocks and Shares:—



Bank Stock, 215 to 217; 3 per Cent. Reduced, 90½ to 90½; 3 per Cent. Consols, 90½ to 90½; 3 per Cent. Consols for Account, 90½ to 90½; New 3 per Cents, 90½ to 90½; New 2½ per Cents, 90½ to 90½; Long Annuities, 1885, 3 3-16; Annuities, 1903, 3 3-16; India Stock, 215 to 217; Ditto Bonds, £3 per Cent., 98 to 100; Ditto, under £1,000, 98 to 100; Ditto, 5 per Cent., 1858, 101 to 103; Ditto, 5 per Cent., 1859, 101 to 103; Ditto, 5 per Cent., 1860, 101 to 103; Ditto, 5 per Cent., 1861, 101 to 103; Ditto, 5 per Cent., 1862, 101 to 103; India Stock

KING LEOPOLD II. TAKING THE OATH BEFORE THE BELGIAN SENATE AND CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

KING LEOPOLD II. ENTERING THE CHURCH OF ST. GUDULE, AT BRUSSELS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE KING OF THE BELGIANS: THE BODY LYING IN STATE AT THE ROYAL PALACE AT BRUSSELS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—NEXT WEEK. Forty Suits of Tea. Gross Lady. Race of any for return. One Shilling. Children, Sixpence.
Tea, 2,000 shillings worth of accessories, in the world."—Vide Times, Dec. 1st.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.—DAILY NEXT WEEK.—More Fun than ever. Arrangements under the direction of Mr. Nelson Lee. The Rungan Family, the Wander, Little Richins, and his Sons, Clowns; Mr. Harry Payne, the Great Lafayette, Mr. Fred Evans, Mr. Alfred J. M. Read, Julian and Young, Professor Pepper, The Woodwardian Family; the Dutch Organist, Rascal, in Comic Quaking Scene; Mr. Corney Grain, Mr. Arthur Lloyd, Mr. Sam Cowell, Mr. Fox, Mr. Lee, The Ethiopians, and Wizard, with their Comic Scenes, Harlequin, Columbine, Zephine, Tops, &c. Performances daily, three times. Admission, One Shilling. Children, Sixpence. Extra Trains.
"The Five-Arts Courts, in Variety and Beauty, are unrivalled in the World."—The Decoration of the Towers, Transepts, and Orchestra, should be seen by all: beautiful effect by day or night.
Also, the Great Picture of the Battle of Inkermann, the Panorama of Christmas Pleasures, The Darling Rail, Tilsbury Theatre, Art, with exhibitions from 40 to 50 Paintings, Scenes, Sculpture, Models, Curiosities, &c. Also, the Great Picture of the Battle of Modder Arpentine. All these in addition to the Gigantic Stock and Fancy Goods Bazaars of Holiday Utilities.
In addition to this extraordinary list of Attractions, Pollonia's Grand Ballet Troupe, Mr. Leo Lewis, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Fox, Mr. Cooke, &c., &c., will perform in the Ballet, Variety, and Burlesque features of the Great Time Go.
Doors open at 10 o'clock. Commences at Quarter. "A right down wrench a Pleasure Resort for Everybody."—Vide Observer.
Monday to Friday, Palace open at 7on, One Shilling; Children, Half-price.
One hundred and fifty regular Railway Trains daily from London to the Crystal Palace, and from all parts of the Country. Omnibuses and all intermediate stations to the New High-Level Station, passing into the Centre Transept. Also, from Ludgate-hill and Victoria, by the Crystal Palace and Penge, by the Crystal Palace and Norwood, and by the Crystal Palace.

THE PALACE OF THE PEOPLE'S PLEASURES. DAILY NEXT WEEK. No end of fun. "The greatest place for pleasure."—Observer. 40 Vehicles on Sunday Day. Palace warm and agreeable.

SEE THE CHRISTMAS PANTOMIME at the CRYSTAL PALACE NEXT WEEK. Harlequin and Scenes of splendour.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—ETHARDO Daily Tour Work.—Do not miss this extraordinary performance. "Is the most extraordinary performance ever witnessed."—Vide Press.
Ethardo's Concerts at 7or. One Shilling; or, by new system, Sixteen Concerts for Sixteenpence. Dec. 30, 31, 1865.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.—Every Evening at Eight, Wednesdays and Saturdays at Three and Eight. Mr. JOHN PARRY, Jun., has the honour to announce that his TWENTY YEARS' ATTENDANCE (Monday) at Three o'Clock. The only evening entertainment will be given on Monday, January 1st, consisting of Mr. Parry's inimitable and original entertainment, originally created the reputation of the Gallery in 1858, and the only change in its programme presenting a new title, which is for the best reason in London these five years. The unapproachable success of the entertainment has induced Mr. Parry to repeat it for the last time. Stalls, 5s.; Area, 3s.; Balcony, 2s.; Unreserved Seats, Gallery, 1s. Tickets at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; Mitchell's Royal Library, 33, Old Bond-street.—Manager, Mr. Hamilton.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.—EVERY AFTERNOON and EVENING PERFORMANCE on NEW-YEAR'S EVE. Commencing on Monday, and including Wednesday Morning, negroisty, wit, fun, novelties under Twelve half-price to all parts of the house except the Gallery.—Mr. Christy, Proprietor.

STODARE.—THE HOLIDAYS.—THEATRE OF MAGIC, ILLUSION, and MIRTH, HALL.—Novelties in Magic and Entertainments, performed twice every Afternoon and Evening from Boxing Day to Wednesday Morning, January 3rd, 1866. Great attractions for the Holidays. Magic, Vocalisation, Ventriloquism, Mirth, Fun, and Frolic. Doors open at the Hall, 7 and 8. Stalls, 2s.; Area and Gallery, 1s. Private Boxes, 10s. 6d., not guaranteed by him. Every Evening at Eight, Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. Stalls, 2s.; Area, 1s.; Gallery, 6d

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.
Business to the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments, and the Public generally.
PAID-UP CAPITAL, £600,000. RESERVED FUND, £115,000.
Branches and Agencies in New Zealand:

Auckland	Kaipara	Nelson	Otaki
Bay of Islands	Kaiapoi	Onehunga	Queenstown
Blenheim	Napier	Wanganui	Tokomairiro
Christchurch	Nelson	Wellington	Waikouaiti
Dunedin	Newcastle	Picton	Waitahuna
Hokitika	Onehunga	Russell	Wellington
Invercargill	Otago	Manchester

The Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places, and receives Deposits on terms which may be learned on application.
New Zealand Government Inscribed Stock.
The London Office receives deposits for the Bank at call or short notice, and has agencies for negotiating
F. LARKWORTHY,
Broad-street, London, E. C. Manager and Director.

RELIGIOUS STATUARY, Crucifixes, Holy-water Stoups, &c.—WARDLE and Co., 27, Soho-square, and 75, Holles-street, Cavendish-square, London.

BURGLARY IN MANCHESTER.—Sentence.—Yesterday, at the Manchester Assizes, May 24, 1864, Hopkinson was introduced by Mr. E. Armitage, Q.C., Governor of the Warrensville Committee, to inform you that your Patent Elbow Bolt, which was employed by you about two years ago to secure custody of the cash in the Warrensville Office, at the Townhall) was found by the police in the possession of the thieves. The bolt will be delivered to you. Prison-cells have been in use for many hours, as they left several broken instruments behind them. A reward of £100 was offered for the capture of the burglars, and in forcing open the safe, in which the bolts were applied with success, and, after repairing them, he only succeeded in doing so after upwards of four hours' additional work on the premises. The valuable assistance of the police went found particularly serviceable.
Gentlemen, yours truly, CHUBB.

MESSRS. THOS. MILNER and SONS, Phœnix Saltworks, Liverpool.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, Boudoir, Conservatory, Library, Mantel, Stand, or Table, Groups, Statuary, Candlesticks, Inkstands, Statuettes, &c. In Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, &c. Also, Minerals, Busts, Plaster, and Bronze Medals.—J. TENNANT, 149, Strand, London.

THE Celebrated TAPESTRIES of St. MAUR and NAUILLY for PORTIERES and CURTAINS.—A splendid Stock of these unique Fabrics, in all the new and choice colours of all sizes and widths, ready for immediate use.
THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE-GALLERIES,
5, Conduit-street, Bond-street, London, W.
N.B. The New Rooms are now Open. Illustrated Catalogues of Furniture free.

FILMER and SON'S UPHOLSTERY and CURTAIN FURNITURE SHOW-ROOMS, 31, and 32, Berners-street, W. Alterations respectfully executed in these spacious Show-rooms, without any additional charge to Patrons.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 27, Berners-street, London, solicit the inspection of Purchasers to their Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception rooms. An illustrated history to every Chair in stock.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, contains the largest STOCK in existence of all sorts of Furnishing Ironmongery, at moderate prices. The Stock of Sheffield plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia metal goods, Baths, Lamps, Tea Trays, Urns and Kettles, Marble Chimney-pieces, Kitchen Ranges, Fenders, Stoves, Culinary Utensils, Turnery, Brushes, Mats, Clocks, Table Cutlery, Table Linen, Wire Work, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-hangings, Cabin Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty Furnishing Rooms, may be had gratis, or sent by post. Furnishing Ironmongery, Nos. 1, 2, 3, Perry's-place, and 4, Broad-street-buildings, London, W.

A WASHING-MACHINE, especially when combined with WRINGING and MANGLING, is most valuable, and is now to be seen in operation, at the Exhibition of MADDISON'S NEW PATENT PRIZE-MEDAL MACHINERY, address 1, Fore-street, London; also, Manchester and Liverpool.

ENTIRE DESTRUCTION BY FIRE OF CARPETS, LINEN, FURNITURE, &c., from the overheating of flues of buildings, formed by one side of Church-street, Soho-square, Messrs. Chubb, and Sons' Patent Detector, Fire-proof Safes, and Locks, manufactured by Messrs. Chubb, and Sons, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

CHUBB'S FIRE-PROOF SAFES, which brought the bodies, jewellery, and property of the unfortunate sufferers from the fire at the Tay Bridge, perfectly uninjured, are to be seen at Messrs. Chubb and Sons' Manufactory, No. 1, Milton's Place, Golden-square, Liverpool; 57, Mosgate-street, City, London; 16, Market-street, Manchester; 36, Queen-street, Cheapside, Birmingham.

BREECH-LOADERS, Improved CENTRAL FIRE, DIRECT ACTION, perfected and simplified, for Rifle Shooting, Shot Guns, and Pistols, with all the recent improvements, by the original inventors and patentees, Messrs. Prince and Westley. Price lists forwarded.—E. M. REILLY and CO., 315 and 30, Oxford-street, London.

COMFORTS FOR INVALIDS. 250, Strand, London, W.C.

JAMES CARTER and CO.
GENUINE GARDEN SEEDS.

CARTER'S HALF-GUINEA BOX of SEEDS will produce choice Vegetables all the year round.

CARTER'S GUINEA BOX of SEEDS will produce choice Vegetables all the year round.

CARTER'S TWO-GUINEA BOX of SEEDS will produce choice Vegetables all the year round.

THE ABOVE are suitable for small, medium, or large Kitchen Gardens, and will be forwarded on receipt of postage-stamps.

CARTER'S GENUINE GARDEN SEEDS,
Price-Lists gratis and post-free.

237 AND 238, HIGH HOLBORN, LONDON GARDEN SEED WAREHOUSE.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend cocoa as the most nutritious beverage for breakfast. Unfortunately the delicate and highly nutritive principle of the nut has been almost lost, since there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the eye or grateful to the palate. By the new process of Messrs. Epps, by which the nut is carefully ground between rollers of polished Spanish mahogany, the nutritive principle is retained, and the cocoa is at once rendered easy of digestion, and is brought to a state of fine division, so as to be readily suspended in water, and to present a rich and delicate appearance. The natural colour is restored by taking the fats to produce an active pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect purification it receives in process it passes through, as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. For general use, Messrs. Epps's Cocoa is specially recommended for breakfast, when, with the addition of boiling water, it forms a delicious beverage, "Food and its Adulterations," says "Cocoa contains a large proportion of nutritive matter, and is one of the most valuable necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea." Directions are printed on the packets, which are labelled "James Epps and Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Sold also in packets and tins by grocers. Gentlemen visiting the Continent will find it convenient to purchase Epps's Cocoa, 10, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; 48, Threadneedle-street, Manchester; Liverpool.

EXCELLENT QUALITY of CHOCOLATE.
The Public Medal was obtained by J. & F. EPPS and SONS, for Excellent quality of Chocolate.
The Jury adding, "The Chocolate is delicious. Fry and Sons is a name to be remembered."
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

Medals, London, 1851 and 1862; New York, Paris, and Dublin.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING
is highly recommended especially, as being of the best quality, delicious flavour, and very nutritious for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS, are an exceedingly delicious sweetmeat, rapidly increasing in public favour.

STILTON CHEESE IN PERFECTION.
What is better for a Present than THE STILTON?
Choice of Hunstanton.
CRAFT, Knightsbridge.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH
Is the best you can use, as inferior kinds are often substituted.
WOTHERSPOON and CO., Glasgow and London.

FAMILY MOURNING, JAY'S.
BLACK NETT EVENING DRESSES, JAY'S.
DEEP MOURNING SKIRTS, TRIMMED WITH CRAPE, JAY'S.
BLACK SILKS of the BEST QUALITY, JAY'S.
MILLINERY for MOURNING, JAY'S.
RICH BLACK VELVET MANTLES, French Models, at from 5 to 10 guineas, the exclusive and original cost price.
267, 345, and 351, Regent-street.

LILLICRAPP'S SEALSKIN CLOAKS.

LILLICRAPP'S ASTRACAN JACKETS.

LILLICRAPP'S VELVET MANTLES.

LILLICRAPP'S CARRIAGE WRAPPERS.

LILLICRAPP'S FUR COATS.

LILLICRAPP'S VESTS for HUNTING.

LILLICRAPP'S DRIVING GLOVES.

LILLICRAPP.—SKINS DRESSED,

LILLICRAPP.—SKINS MOUNTED.

LILLICRAPP, Furrier by Appointment to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, No. 24, Conduit-st., Bethnal-g.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR'S recently announced SALE of RICH FANCY SILKS HAS NOW COMMENCED. Patterns free.—Piccadilly, Regent-circus, London.

ASTRACHANS from 5s. 11d., SEALSKINS and VARIOUS FURS, for Trimming Dresses and Jackets, and other materials for Ladies' Jackets and Mantles equally reasonable. Also, a large assortment of Gentlemen's Fur Coats, Rugs, and Wrappers for Gentlemen's and Boys' wear at very moderate prices.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Furriers, Illustrations, Hosiers, Glovers, Hatters, and Outfitters, Hamilton.

JOHN HARVEY and SON,
GLOUCESTER HOUSE, LUDGATE-HILL,
Beg to announce that they have made large additions, Hosiers, Glovers, Hatters, and Outfitters, Hamilton.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE,
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, 42 in., Fine Striped Glacés, 14 yards, 42 in., 21s. 6d.
New tasteful Checks, 42 in. to

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
Patterns free.
A large assortment of Patterns, £3 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

WINTER JACKETS.
Patterns free, of all the New and Useful Materials.
Beaufort Cloth, Diamond Cloth, Sicilienne, Matelassé.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

WINTER JACKETS.
Black Velvet Jackets, Black Velvet Mantles, Black Velvet Capes, Black Velvet Costumes, Black Velvet Trimmings.
Useful Young Ladies' Jackets, in Alpine, &c., 21s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Long Cloths, Short Cloths, Calicoes, Longcloths, Shirtings, and Irish Table Linen, Diapers, Damasks, Huckabacks.

STAYS, Crinolines, Baby-Linen, Juvenile and Ladies' General Outfitting Warehouse, Wholesale and Retail, 183, Oxford-street, corner of Poland-street. Wedding and Ladies Outfits on shortest notice. Observe the number, 183, Oxford-street, corner of Poland-street.

MANTLES, SEALSKIN JACKETS, &c.
Best Sealskin Jackets at 21 guineas each.
Best Sealskin Jackets at 21 guineas each.
Elegant Velvet Mantles, 5 guineas each.
Patterns of Mantles and Furs forwarded free.
GRANT and GASK.
56, 58, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

AN EXTREMELY CHEAP PURCHASE of New French Fancy Silks from 2½ to 4½ guineas Full Dress of 14 yards,
Patterns forwarded free.
GRANT and GASK.
56, 58, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

BEST SEASONED FURS, at moderate prices, at 4, 5, and 6 Sea Side Terrace,
Grove Middle, extra quality, 7 guineas.
Grove Middle, extra quality, 8 guineas.
GRANT and GASK.
56, 58, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADE-UP SKIRTS, FANCY DRESSES, and MANTLES, of the Newest Designs.
Patterns forwarded free.
GRANT and GASK.
56, 58, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

SHETLAND OPERA MANTLES.
This Novelty in every Colour, large size, very warm, weighs only 4 ounces, price 21s.
GRANT and GASK.
56, 58, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

SILK FOR EVERY DRESS (Regent's Bombay) at 2s. 9d. a yard wide, soft, pliable, and of the most durable quality, in every shade of colour, and the most suitable for morning or evening wear. Ladies' need for patterns.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FRENCH MERINOS in all the Brilliant Colours, at 9s. per yard, double width. Fine and soft wool, and will wear well. Ladies' need for patterns.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.
Shades with Black Stripes, 9s. 6d. per yard, 36 in. wide, the Bronze Shades.
Silk Velvets, Prints, and Satins to all the New Colours for the

JAMES SPENCE AND CO., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW HEATHER MIXTURES IN ABERDEEN WINCEYS.
A large stock of the best makes, made expressly for us, in all shades colours—new Tickets, Browns, Greys, and Greens, prices 9½d., 10½d., 11½d., 12½d., 13½d., 14½d. per yard.
A large assortment of the new Heather Striped Winceys, in all the fashionable colours, prices 10½d., 12½d., 13½d., 14½d.
A choice lot of Printed and Woven Flannels, for blouses, 10½d. and 11½d. per yard.
A choice assortment of Shetland Shawls, Hosiery, Trimmings, Underclothing, &c.
Drapers, Dressmakers, and Milliners supplied with cut lengths at wholesale prices.
Close on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., 77 and 78, St. Paul's churchyard, London.

FOR EVENING DRESSES, ON COMMON TRAIN,
RICH SILK GRENADINES,
Just purchased from Paris and Germany
Several Manufacturers' Stocks of the above article.
The whole forming the largest quantity ever collected together, and will be sold at about one-half the usual prices.
Also a large and varied assortment of Fashionable Silks.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

AN INVOICE OF TARTLAN PLAID DRESSES,
All New Patterns, at 1l. 9s. each entire quantity.
The Costume consists of 10 yards of Silk and 10 yards of Wool.
This is a real Highland Plaid, in the old North Crossed Scotch, made in the latest style of fashion, 10s. 9d. to 2 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A SUPERIOR QUALITY, KNOWN AS
ROYAL ABERDEEN WINCEY,
in a perfectly new range of rich Colours,
at 10½d., 11½d., 12½d., 13½d., 14½d. per yard.
Some very useful qualities, from 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A NEW FABRIC FOR WARM WINTER DRESSES.
RUSSIAN SILK LINSEYS,
in a choice Collection of new mixed Colours,
at 10½d., 11½d., 12½d., 13½d., 14½d. per yard.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FANCY FLANNELS,
for Dressing Gowns, Ladies' Garibaldi Jackets, and Gentlemen's Morning Coats, from 1s. 6d. to 3s. per yard.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

BLACK SILKS,
rich coloured stripes downwards (both sides alike),
at 2½ guineas, 3 guineas, and 3½ guineas Full Dress of 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FOR WEDDING and EVENING COSTUMES.
Tulle and Net Dresses, in the most beautiful Colours, from 2 to 3 guineas Full Dress.
Patterns post-free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

IRISH POPLINS,
the most durable Fabric for Dresses, at 1l. 1s. 6d. to 2l. 8s. Full Dress.
LYONS SILK POPLINS,
ENGLISH MOIRE ANTIQUES,
and FRENCH MOIRE ANTIQUES,
SPECIAL—Rich Striped Glacé Silks, and FANCY CHECK SILKS, all of which are now colours. From 2l. 8s. 6d. Full Dress, 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WOOL SHAWLS,
under regular prices.
On account of the early termination of the season, PETER ROBINSON has determined to offer his entire Stock of Wool Shawls at the best patterns and the finest qualities.
Wool Shawls, 1 guinea, reduced to sell at 10s. 6d. those sold at 1½ guinea, reduced to sell at 15s. 6d. those which were 2 guineas, reduced to sell at 21s. 6d. those which were 3 guineas.
103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, Oxford-street, W.

OPERA MANTLES.
Settle to Sell.
The greatest Novelty of this Season is
THE BARATEA.
Open Shape, Scalloped, and Bordered, to be seen only at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
N.B. PETER ROBINSON'S Show-rooms are Lighted with Gas.
The Winter Fashions post-free on application.

WATERPROOF MANTLES for Travelling and Wet Days in Country and Town.
A nice, measuring, neat, fit to, fresh, 42 in. ... 21s. 6d.
A nice, measuring, neat, fit to, fresh, 45 in. ... 25s. 6d.
A nice, measuring, neat, fit to, fresh, 48 in. ... 29s. 6d.
The same sizes and colours, with Sleeves, and with Invisible Capes, at 42s., 45s., and 49s. 6d.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

VELVET MANTLES.—A perfectly New and Elegant Assortment, Black of Velvet Mantles and Jackets, both plain and trimmed, from 2 guineas to 10 guineas.
Patterns and Illustrations free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

REAL SEAL-FUR PALETOTS.
PETER ROBINSON Special Notice.
In order to meet the public demand to economise that, notwithstanding the great advance in price of Sealskins, it is determined to make up a few Paletots of Real Sealskin, at the price of Seal-imitation Paletots, and the Sealskin Paletots have been made now prices at 9l. 9s., 10l. 10s., and 11l. 11s. Those which have been since the commencement of the season. The prices range from 12l. 12s. to 25l. 25s. Illustrations free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at MRS. ARENDELL'S, Dressmaker, Milliner, and Bonnet Maker, Fashionable Establishment for Ladies' Jackets, &c., French Corsets, 7s. 6d. Ladies' own Materials made up. Mourning Promptly Executed. 24, Southampton-row, Russell-square.

SILKS, MANTLES, SHAWLS,
Black Silks, 21 yds. by 27 in., 1 guinea; 24 yds. by 27 in., 1 guinea.
Moire Antiques, 42 in., 6s. 6 pieces Embroidered Handkerchiefs, 1 guinea.
Shawls, Mantles, Dresses, Skirts, Crinolines.
Patterns free. Parcels carriage paid. Ladies' own Materials made up.
French and Paisley Worn Long and Square Shawls, 1 guinea.
Ladies' own Materials made up. Mourning.
Patterns free. Parcels carriage paid.
CATER and COMPANY, Finsbury-square, E.C.
Branch—Cater and Co., Silk Mercers, &c.,
North London and Metropolitan Railways,
Finsbury-park Station, Seven Sisters'-road.

INDIA SHAWLS.—Large Consignments, Fashionable Colours, the most attractive selection in a marvellous collection of CASHMERE SHAWLS just received direct from Bombay, Cashmere, and Paris, for the present season, and for wedding presents.—JAY'S, 247, Regent-street.

BONNETS—MARKS and GAVELL, Elegant Imported Bonnets, in every material, of the Newest Shapes and Colours, at 21s. each. Also a Choice Selection of Model Hats, Bonnets, and Dress Hats from Paris and Elsewhere.

£10,000 WORTH of the CHEAPEST SILKS in the Kingdom
Are now selling at CHRISTY'S
Beautiful Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, for Walking, Evening, and Dinner Dresses, at 1½ guinea, 1¾ guinea, 2 guineas, 2½ guineas, 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—CHRISTY'S, 143, Regent-street, London.

EVENING DRESSES, 6s. 9d.—Patterns free, BAKER and CRISP are now selling Beautiful Evening Dresses, in Tarlatan, Tarlatine, Grenadine, Barege, Glacé, Organdie, Muslin, &c., at 6s. 9d., 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. Also Carved Crossed Scotch, suitable for the Ball-room, Wedding, or Dinner Dress, from 10s. 6d. the Dress. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

JAMES ALLEN and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
By appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Prince of Wales,
11, 12, 13, and 14, Princes-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweeds, Waterproof Cloths, Waterproof Clothing, Rugs, Shawls, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, Hosiery, Gloves, &c. Patterns forwarded. Factory, for Ladies' Travelling and Morning Costumes.
Patterns forwarded free.

REAL SEALSKIN JACKETS.
Messrs. JAY have a few Sealskin Jackets, made from Skins purchased before the late advance in price of Sealskins, purchased under most favourable circumstances. These Jackets, which are of the most elegant shape, and of the most fashionable shaped jackets, and will be sold at one third less than the usual prices.
JAY'S, 247, Regent-street.

OLD CHINTZES and PRINTS.—Patterns free.

EVENING AND BALL DRESSES.

SEWELL and CO. are prepared with their Choicest Selection of EVENING DRESSES, Tarlatan, Tarlatine, Grenadine, Barege, Glacé, Organdie, Muslin, &c., at 6s. 9d., 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., and 21s. Also Carved Crossed Scotch, suitable for Ball-room, Wedding, or Dinner Dress, from 10s. 6d. the Dress. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

GOPELAND and SON,
ST. PAUL MANUFACTURERS, 90, Oxford-street. The oldest Welsh and Irish Flannels, Welsh Plaids, Welsh Blankets, Welsh Tweeds, Velvet and Cloth Cloaks, Hood and Sportsman's Cloth Cloaks, Gossamer Waterproofs, Beaufort-cape, &c.
All Furs sold at the establishment are Natural Colour or warranted genuine and free from dye.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.,
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of 20s. and upwards, Sheets and Pillow-cases, Shirts, Collars, Handkerchiefs, Dusters, Diapers, Pillow Linens, Damasks, Huckabacks, and Drapers' Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c. Ladies' and Gentlemen's Linen and Flannel Shirts made to measure.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 16, Donegall-place, Belfast.

FAMILY MOURNING—MADE UP, if ordered at once, or can be had ready-made—by the Yard, obtained, ready for instant wear, or can be purchased by the pack at the most reasonable prices.
PETER ROBINSON'S
Family Mourning Warehouse, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
Goods are sent for selection "free of charge" to all parts of England (with Dressmaker, if desired).
Address PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, and the Imperial "Discarding Crape"
to all parts of the World.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
103 to 108, Regent-street, London.
N.B. In connection with the Dressmaking Establishment of Oxford-st

BLACK SILKS.—SPECIAL NOTICE.
PETER ROBINSON'S
Black Silk Mercer, by Appointment, would invite the attention of Ladies to the superior Make and Quality of his Black Silks, which he has now in Stock.
Prices at which they are sold,
Full Dress, 14 yards wide, from 2½ to 10l. the Full Dress.
Specimens and Illustrations free.
Patterns free on application to PETER ROBINSON,
THE BLACK SILK MERCER, by Appointment,
103 to 108, Regent-street, London.

THE NEW FABRICS in ROBES in SLATE
(Exactly alike on both sides),
The Royal Gabertine,
The Royal Cashmere,
The Royal Cloth,
the last named, suited for Dress and Mantle, being the warmest and most durable.
The above may be had in every Colour of the Rainbow, and the newest Bronze in Black for the present season.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON,
Mourning Warehouse, 103 to 108, Regent-street.

BLACK NEW EVENING DRESSES.
An elegant variety of entirely New Designs in Made-up Dresses, in Tarlatan, Tarlatine, Glacé, Barege, Grenadine, and Muslin, for Ball Costume, suitable for Ladies in or out of Mourning.
Also a large Collection of Coloured Dresses, of the same description, in the latest Parisian Novelties.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
103 to 108, Regent-street, London.

THE CELEBRATED SHREWSBURY and CLUN FLANNELS, for Gentlemen's OVERCOATS. Patterns post-free.
JOHN MORRIS and SON, Drapers, Shrewsbury.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of the Best Quality, Linen Fronts, Cuffs, and Collars, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
RICHARD FORD and SON, 27, Piccadilly, corner, London. S.W.

USEFUL PRESENTS for the SEASON.
Ladies' Dressing Bags, Writing Cases, Work Boxes, &c.
At FOY'S Patent Purposes Frames. Four Fans Models awarded. 1st and 2, Exhibition Buildings, Piccadilly, opposite Burlington House. Ladies' Dressing, with Plain and Rich Silver Mountings, Work Boxes, Writing Cases, Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, and Portfolios.
140, Regent-street. 19, Royal Exchange.
65, Cheapside. 45, Moorgate-street.
Nos. 24, 25, Observe the Name.

SEASONABLE PRESENTS
for all who want the GAY and FESTIVE KITCHEN.
Sold by all Grocers, Oilmen, &c.
An improved and delicious Sauce, prepared from the Recipe of the late
ROWLAND KALYDOR,
for improving and beautifying the Skin and Complexion, and delicious as a Sauce and delicacy to the Hands. Arrack, and Soups.
Sold at 20, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C. or Pearl Dentifrice, for Preserving the Teeth, Strengthening the Gums, Sweetening the Breath, and Rendering the Teeth, and a pleasing fragrance to the Breath.
Sold at 20, Wellington-street, Strand, by Chemists and Perfumers.
Price 2s. 6d. each.

GREY HAIR RESTORED to its ORIGINAL COLOUR, Nourishes, Restores Blemishes, Discolorations, and Roughness of the Skin. By HERMANN'S ORIENTAL HERBAGE and COMBS. They require no preparation, are always ready for use, and will last for years. Sold by Chemists, Perfumers, Combs, Hair Brushes, &c., wholesale and retail, by HERMANN, F. H. R.'s Preventive Brushes, as used by each. To be obtained of all Chemists, Perfumers, Combs, Hair Brushes, &c., wholesale and retail, by HERMANN, F. H. R.'s Preventive Brushes, as used by each.

OLDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA,
The best, the cheapest, and the purest Hair Dressing.
Sold by all Chemists, and at 13, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

HAIR DYE.—ALEXANDER CHELOR'S INSTANTANEOUS COLUMBIAN, the best in the world, leads to none. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, and at 248, Strand, 96, 52, 76, and 24, of all Perfumers and Chemists.—R. ALEXANDER CHELOR, Manufacturing Chemist, 248, Strand, London, W.C.

RIMMEL'S NEW-YEAR'S GIFTS, in 1l. endless variety, from 6d. to 10 guineas. Novel conceptions in Fancy Boxes, Bags, Baskets, Cases, Albums, Writing-desks, Dressing-cases, Envelope-cases, Scent-sprays, Fans, and Mirrors.

PIMPLE REMOVER.—All diseases of the skin are improved by one dose of ABER. ROSES' VEGETABLE ELIXIR. Price 1s. 6d., sent anywhere for 24 stamps. 1, Pall-mall, 1l. 1s. and 2l. 2s. per dozen.—ABER. ROSE, 1l. 1s., High Holborn, London.

HAIR DYE.—ALEXIS. HIGH HOLBORN, London.—ALEX. ROSS'S CURLING FLUID and Lotion produces beautiful curls from the most straight hair in 24 hours. Sold in all Colours. Sold by all Chemists, 3s. 6d.

JUDSON'S DYE.—Sold by all Chemists. Of course it's one dye, by using ALEX. ROSS'S CHEMICO. This produces beautiful Whiskers, Moustaches, and Eyebrows. Sold in all Colours, 3s. 6d. Wholesale, 1l. 1s., High Holborn, London.

JUDSON'S MAGENTA CRYSTALS, Sold by all Chemists, 3s. 6d. per bottle. Wholesale, 1l. 1s., High Holborn, London.—Alex. Ross's Cosmetic Depot, 1l. 1s., High Holborn, London.—N.B. A variety of other colours may be had.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED PATENT CANDLES are the only article that supplies the true mixture of wax and stearine. Their superiority over every other candle is universally acknowledged by the Public and the Trade. Sold by all Chandlers, and at 37, Old Bailey, and 84, Nine Elms, S.W.

COCKLE'S ANTIBILIOUS PILLS, for all Indigestion, Sickness, Liver, and Stomach Complaints. Sold by all Chemists, in boxes at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each.

DR. DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prepared in the sanatorium at SCHEVENINGEN, is a certain remedy for CONSUMPTION, DISEASES OF THE CHEST, GENERAL DEBILITY, RICKETS, and INFANTILE WASTING.
It is the ONLY COD-LIVER OIL that can be taken by the most delicate stomach.
PALATABLE AND RAPIDLY TAKEN.
Dr. LETTSOM writes:—"I have prescribed it, and shall Analyst to the City of London, writes:—"In all cases I have found Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil to possess the nutritive properties in a high degree, unaccompanied by the nauseous flavour and smell of fatty matter, and of fishy in a state of organic combination, are the most remarkable."
Sold only in IMPERIAL HALF PINTS, 2s. 6d.; PINTS, 4s. 9d.; QUARTS, 9s.; and CAPSULED IMPERIAL PINTS, 5s. each, by ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

LEWIS'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT,
For Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Chilblains, Chapped Hands.
Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d.,
by most Chemists, or direct from
LEWIS and SON, Orford-street, London.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS
Are a certain remedy for
ASTHMA, CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, &c.
Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box, of all Druggists.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. ISAACS, 84, Newington-butts, Surrey-street, W., or Parcels forwarded, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1812.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c., by Mr. or Mrs. I. ISAACS, 7, Crawford-st., Bakerst., W., whereby ladies and gentlemen personally, by post-free Warrant, Regiment, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c., or Parcels being sent, full value given received the same day. Est. 40 years. Town note.

NEW MUSIC.

THE NEW CHRIST'S MINSTRELS' SONG, THE CUCKOO'S NOTES, written by Charles Hampden (Author of "I would I were a bird") expressly for E. Rawlinson, and sung by him with unprecedented success every evening. Price 3s. 6d. This day.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE CUCKOO'S NOTES. W. Rawlinson's New Song. To be had everywhere.

MDME. HAINTON-DOLBY'S New Song, Published this day, THE LADY OF KIRKAT TOWER, written by A. S. Foster, and sung with great success by Miss Saleson-Dolby by Miss VIRGINIA GABRIEL. To be sung for the first time at the Monday Popular Concerts by Sidney Smith. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE LADY OF KIRKNAT TOWER. Mdme. Saleson-Dolby's New Song. This day.

HERR REICHARDT'S New Song. YOU MUST SURELY SEE. A new Song, by Alberto Reichardt, Author of "There are no roses and yet so far." To be sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Saleson-Dolby's Ballad Concert, Monday, Jan. 8. Price 3s.

Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

YOU MUST GUESS. Herr REICHARDT'S New Song. This day.

MDME. SHERRINGTON'S New Song, Messrs. BOOSEY beg to announce the publication of a New Song, written by Alfred Bunn, and sung by Mdme. LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON at her Concerts, which has already met with a success in popularity the best ballads of this popular Composer. It has been composed expressly for Mdme. Sherrington, who will sing it every night during her provincial tour in January and February. It is now ready.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

COME BACK TO ERIN, Mdme. Sherrington's New Song. Composed by Claribel. This day.

MR. W. H. CUMMING'S New Song, THE MAID I LOVE HATH MANY A GRACE, composed by Mendelssohn, and sung by Mr. H. W. Cummings throughout his provincial tour, January and February. Price 2s. 6d.

Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BALFE'S New Song, WHAT DOES LITTLE BOY WANT. The Poetry by Alfred Bunn.

ORPHEUS IN THE HAYMARKET. BOOSEY and CO. have published all the Music of Offenbach's New Opera, which is now being performed at the Theatre Royal Haymarket. Price complete, 6s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

ORPHEUS IN THE HAYMARKET.—Just published, SINCE LOVE HAS SET MY HEART A BURNING, Duet, for Soprano and Contralto, in the popular opera of Orpheus. "As performed at the Theatre Royal Haymarket. Price 3s. 6d.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

JANET'S CHOICE WALTZ. On Claribel's popular song, by FRANK MUSGRAVE. "Extremely elegant, light, and graceful."—Sunday Times. Price 3s. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MARION'S SONG, BY CLARIBEL. Fourth Edition. "The story is pathetic and well told, and the music admirably suited to it."—Englishwoman's Magazine. Price 2s. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

NIGHTFALL AT SEA. Song. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. Sixth Edition. Price 2s. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

THE SHOWMAN. By J. L. HATTON. A new Comic Song. Price 2s. "It will fail to add to the merits of many a successful party."—Sunday Times. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE LIFE-BOAT. By CLARIBEL. New Song for Baritone.—Boosey and Co.

THE ADIEU WALTZ. By H. J. SNELLING, Performed at Mr. Jullien's concerts this season with unprecedented success. Price 3s. "A really elegant waltz. —Morning Advertiser.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MERRY CHRISTMAS QUADRILLE. A New Set, by C. B. R. MARRIOTT, on all the popular melodies of the day. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

THE SONG OF THE HOLLY. A New Song for Christmas. Written by CHARLES MACKAY, LL.D., and composed by MICHAEL WATSON. Price 2s. Sung by W. H. TAYLOR. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

COOTE'S CLARIBEL WALTZ. Price 4s. "Equal to anything of its kind recently produced in a waltz form. Claribel's song is one of the most popular of the day, and the use of the melody selected by the lady's pencil will be a strong recommendation for the quadrilles on which has grown a title to the waltz."—The Times.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street; and all Musicsellers.

MISS HAWLEY'S PIECES. SALOPIA. SALOPIAN GALLOP. HANDEL. Belgo Arrangements of "Home, Sweet Home," "The Last Rose of Summer," and "Auld Robin Gray." Three brilliant and effective Pianoforte Adaptations of these Airs. Price 3s. each. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

CARNAVAL DE FLORENCE. Impromptu for Pianoforte, by GEORGE FORBES. Author of "Cascades" and "Castellana." Published this day. Price 3s. A piece in one author's best style, as pretty as "Castellana," and likely to become as popular. To be had everywhere. Holles street. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

OUI OU NON. By BLUMENTHAL. The CHILDREN'S HYMNBOOK. By BLUMENTHAL. Two Pieces for the Piano. 4s. each. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

WINIFRED. By GOLLMICK, Author of "Annie of Lochroyan," "The Sprightly Waltz," &c. Pianoforte Compositions. 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

DOLORES' Two Latest Songs, MARIE'S SWEET SHEPHERD. LA CUNHA. 3s. each. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S Scotch Pieces. Price 2s. each. THE BLUE BELLS OF SCOTLAND. AULD ROBIN GRAY. ANNIE LAURIE. ROSLIN CASTLE. BOOSEY AND CO., LONDON.

A GARLAND OF SONGS, OR ENGLISH LYRICS, Edited by the Rev. H. R. HAWEIS, M.A. Price 5s. "Mr. Haweis deserves the warm thanks of all lovers of genuine national melodies, with which he has enriched his delightful miscellany, while the Vignette Portrait is very good."—Athenæum. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE MUSICAL SCRAP-BOOK contains twelve lively pieces of music, arranged from favourite operas, including Offenbach, Verdi, Balfe, Rossini, Auber, Donizetti, Meyerbeer, Costa, Bellini, Flotow, Halévy, Wallace, and Mozart. Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

HESSE'S ORGAN BOOK.—Published this day, in one volume, long cloth (96 pages), price 2s., HESSE'S ORGAN BOOK, being a collection of the most celebrated compositions for the Organ, by the most eminent masters, including Rossini, Mendelssohn, Handel, and Variations. Edited by Dr. STEIBELT. Every organist should possess this edition of the best works of the most eminent masters for the organ.—BOOSEY and CO. Also, uniform with the above, SIX VOLUNTARIES FOR THE ORGAN, by Dr. the late celebrated Boyce, in one volume, price 2s. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NEW MUSIC.

TENTH EDITION OF CAPPELLA. By FORBES. "Chopin Soc'ety" is the most popular, original piece that has appeared since "A Maiden's Prayer."—Bell's Life. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street; and all Musicsellers.

MOZART'S SONATAS. 10s. 6d.—BOOSEY and CO.'s New and Complete Edition, printed from engraved plates, and edited by W. DORRELL. In royal 4to., paper cover, 10s. 6d.; or half morocco, gilt edges, 15s.; or cloth, gilt leaves, 15s.; or half morocco, gilt edges, 18s.—St. Holles-street.

THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND.—This day is published, in one volume, price 5s., cloth gilt, THE OLD SONGS OF IRELAND, with Pianoforte Accompaniments. "The Old Songs of Ireland," a collection of fifty of the most popular melodies of the Emerald Isle, arranged and copied by Stephen Glover, with the Poetry by Thomas Moore, "The Croppies Lie Down," "Shule Agra," "Rory O'More," "Kate Kearney," "The Harp that Once," "Lovely Norah Creina," "Erin, oh Erin," "Erin go bragh," "Groves of Blarney," &c. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE OF THE SEA and 19 other songs, including seven by J. R. Thomas, in BOOSEY and CO.'s Musical Cabinet, 1s. 6d. each number. Holles-street; and all Musicsellers.

BOOSEY'S PRICE LIST of Music, Musical and the best Editions, at half the publishing price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or for a Stamped Wrapper. Holles-street, London.

HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street, W.

THE CHILDREN OF THE HEATH.

O, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! Price 3s. 6d.—HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' OH, would I WERE A BIRD! Price 3s. "A very graceful morceau."—Morning Post. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS' FAVOURITE SONGS, sung nightly, at St. James's Hall, Piccadilly. Beautiful Isle of the Sea. Dance while Eleanore. Dear Lilly Dale. Ring de Banjo. Darling Nelly Gray. The Banjo. Dandy Jim from Caroline. The smile that brightened every Nelly Bly. [tear. I'm ready to laugh. Willy Reilly and his dear Lily of the Vale. Rosalie, the Prairie Flower. Sung by all the Christy Minstrels. Each post-free for fifteen stamps. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW and BEAUTIFUL SONG, THE LAST LINK IN LIFE. Written by Rosalind. Price 3s. Likely to become even more popular than his celebrated song, "The Ivy Green." HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S SOLO ON THE WINTER EVENINGS.—

Fiddle your own song. Coote's prize Clerk. Martin, the Milkman's Daughter. The Good-tempered Man. Sailing away home. Dear Jenny. Sweet Lucy Neal. Yes, and the Postman. The ready way explained. The Parlor Maid. Yes, I'll be Mrs. Howe. Ja. Won't that a suit look. Yes, you'll remember me. Each post-free for fifteen stamps. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

THE LIFE OF GUY FAWKES, a parody on "The Pilgrim of Love." Price 3s. Intensely amusing. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

I WENT A-ROAMING THRO' THE FIELDS AWAY. EARLY IN THE MORNING, MERRILY O. Two delightful Songs, by Miss LINDSAY, with extraordinary success.—HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S EARLY IN THE MORNING QUADRILLE. Price 4s. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT SANDRINGHAM. COOTE'S MAID OF ATHENS WALSE. Price 4s. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

A MERRY SET. COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S ECHOES of LONDON LANCERS. Price 4s. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

THE NEW GALOP. COOTE'S ROSE GALOP. Price 3s. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS. COOTE'S HUMMINGBIRD VALSE. Price 4s. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW ALBUM OF DANCE. MUSIC. Price 4s. 6d. net; beautifully bound and elegantly illustrated.—HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

THE BOB-O-LINK POLKA. Arranged by COOTE. Price 3s. Each Post-free. HOWARD and CRAW, 43, New Bond-street.

A WILD, HIS-STORY. An Illustrated Song, sung by Mr. Arthur Lloyd. Price 2s. net. Each post-paid for fifteen stamps. "Mr. Lloyd's new song is a success."—Edinburgh Review. "Finest musical act."—Edinburgh Scotsman. "I take it."—Philosophical Mother. "Wild Boy."—Fine Art Society. "The illustrations are quite worthy of the song."—Fine Arts Quarterly Review. "This song ought to immortalise its composer."—That's Hall.

NEW PIECE by WILLIE PAPE—AIR and VARIATIONS, Price 3s. Post-free at half price, by the Publishers, HALL, WORTH, and CLARKE, 29, Poultry.

New Song, This Day, Twilight Hours.

THE BIJOU PIANO. By MISNIE. Splendidly Illustrated. Price 6s. Post-free, at half price, by HALL and CLARKE, 29, Poultry.

THE POPULAR NEW SACRED SONG, IN THE HOUR OF TRIAL, by Mrs. HENRY SUTTON. Price 2s. Post-free at half price of HALL and CLARKE, 29, Poultry.

MELODIA DIVINA; or, Sacred Companion. For the Voice and Pianoforte or Harmonium. New Edition, Revised, enlarged, and corrected by Dr. Wesley. Price 1s. "By far the best collection of sacred music for the family circle."—Observer. HALL and CLARKE, 29, Poultry.

HENRY FARMER'S LITTLE FETE CHAMPESTRE QUADRILLE. Illustrated. Price 3s. Post-free at half price.

London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-hars, and Cheapside.

HENRY FARMER'S CHRISTMAS QUADRILLE. Price 3s. 6d.; Duet, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 4s.; Violin and Cornet, 1s. each. Quadrille Bands as performed at the Crystal Palace.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-hars, and Cheapside.

SINGING THROUGH THE RAIN. By HENRY SMART. Price 3s. Sung by Miss Dolby. The song of perfect excellence. Vide the Press. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, Holborn-hars and Cheapside.

NEW MUSIC.

GEORGE LINLEY'S JUVENILE ALBUM (National Airs), Edited, adapted to Familiar Tunes and the Pianoforte. Price 5s. Five Illustrations. Elegantly bound for presentation. Price 5s.

London: ROBERT ADAMS and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

RINK'S PRACTICAL ORGAN SCHOOL, 24 New Editions, with the Pedal part printed 3ft separate Staff, and the Technical Studies selected from the German by COLIN HILES. In the Press, price 5s. each; or, complete in One Volume, 20s.

ROBERT ADAMS and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

WINTER NIGHT. Words by J. E. Carpenter; Music by STEPHEN GLOVER. The most telling and original Song of the season. Price 2s. 6d. HEWEY and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

JUVENILE QUADRILLES on POPULAR Airs, Illustrated. Elegantly printed.

Young England Quadrille ... ... 3s. 6d.
Little Favorite Quadrille (Duets, 3s.) ... ... 4s.
Little Beauties Quadrille ... ... 3s. 6d.
Little Favorite Quadrille ... ... 3s. 6d.
Little Exhibition Quadrille ... ... 3s. 6d.
Little Mary's Quadrille ... ... 3s. 6d.
Little Queen's Quadrille ... ... 3s. 6d.
Little Lady's Quadrille ... ... 3s. 6d.
Little Cave's Quadrille (Duets, 3s.) ... ... 4s. 6d.
HEWEY and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST, may be had in Thirty-seven Books, 3s. each, or in Six Volumes, 20s. each. The Six Volumes contain the Thirty-seven Books complete, and are the most economical form in which the work can be purchased. The facility, variety, and musical merits are most remarkable. Fully sufficient for the Church Service.

London: BARNES and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

NEW VALSE, THE ANTOINETTE. Composed by FRED. PHILIPPE, Author of "The Battle March." Price 3s. London: BARNES and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM. Words by J. E. W. H. MILLS. Beethoven's celebrated poem wedded to an exquisite melody. Price 3s. 6d. HEWEY and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

EWER and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY, ENGLISH and FOREIGN. Subscription, One Guinea per annum. EWER and CO., 390, Regent-street, London; 150, Regent-street, Liverpool.

MENDELSSOHN'S HIDDEN ORGAN WORKS.—EWER and CO.'s new, full, and only complete Edition, in Two Volumes, 4to., 10s. 6d. each. EWER and Co.'s Musical Library, 67, Regent-street.

BEETHOVEN'S, MOZART'S, HAYDN'S, and MENDELSSOHN'S Pianoforte Compositions.—The most elegant and cheapest editions are sold by EWER and Co., Manufacturers to the Queen and Royal Family, 390, Regent-street, London.

SPINDLER'S LE CARILLON. Morceau de Salon pour Piano. The most successful Pianoforte piece lately published.—EWER and CO., 390, Regent-street.

ELISE MARIA DUDLEY. This most lovely, new, Sacred Composition for the Organ-duties has been played by Mr. Edward Hopkins at least fourteen times in Perth, and was received with unbounded enthusiasm. Sent free for fourteen stamps.—EWER and CO., 390, Regent-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL. Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, manufactured by Lachenal and Co., and may be had in tone, from Her Guinea upwards.—EWER and Co., 390, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS.—THE COTTAGE, price 12 guineas. The most perfect Harmonium for the money. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street, W.

HARMONIUMS for CHURCHES and DRAWING-ROOMS, from 12 to 70 guineas. All Boosey and CO.'s Harmoniums are of the best English manufacture. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

PIANOFORTES. — The Miniature, price 17 guineas. The 35-guinea Piano has the Check Action, Albert Model. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

PIANOFORTE (The Model Cottage), price 32 guineas. All Boosey and Co.'s Pianos are of the best English manufacture.

24, Holles-street, W.

BEATEN'S PERFECTED FLUTES, Best Model of Fingering, from 4 guineas. Also, the Perfect Cylinder Flute.

BOOSEY and CO., Manufacturers, Holles-street, London.

CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINAS will suit amateur and professional. These instruments remain longer in tune than other Concertinas. Rosewood, Ebony, and Walnut. Illustrated Price List free.

MUSICAL BOXES.—A New Assortment, just received, containing the newest and most popular Music, just arrived from Switzerland. Also an application to BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

LONDON AND RYDER, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street), Manufacturers to the Queen and Royal Family, and to the Emperor of the French, beg to call the attention of the Nobility and Gentry to their New and Improved Pianofortes, with Revetion for the Present Season, which are the best portable form of original Pianos ever invented. They have all elegances suitable for bridal presents, Christmas gifts, &c.; and from their peculiar construction are more portable than any other make. Cir. Terms and Testimonials sent free on application.

17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street).

HALLOWAY, Brighton, for PATENT ROLLING PIANOFORTES, Drawing-room Harmoniums, &c., and all kinds of Portable and Ground Engravings.

LINDUNE'S NEW ILLUSTRATED LONDON BOOK.—The Half-yearly Volumes bound in the appropriate Cover, with gilt edges, 7s. 6d. each, of vol. xxxvi. for January to June, xxxvii. for LEGHTON, 307, and BODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The half-yearly Indexes, 2d. each, post-free.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS and New-Year's Gifts at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Coloured and Ormolu Albums for the Beadwork, Tatting, and Writing-table; and a variety of novelties suitable for presents.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best workmanship, and fitted with every requisite for the pocket. Rodrigues' Travelling Bags.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or gilded fittings, for ladies and gentlemen, in russia, morocco, ebony, tiger-ware, and Persian. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DESIGNS, Arranged and Executed in Gold Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour-relief, and Silver-plate Engraved at moderate charges. At Rodrigues', Piccadilly.

A VISITING-CARD PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 CARDS PRINTED, for 5s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Seal Programmes, and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN and SIMMONS, SURGEON and SON, 30, New Bond-street, and 188, Fleet-street (opposite Chancery-lane Station), Established 1825. Those teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For Sets, Single Teeth, Stopping, Regulating, and Painful Operations, they attend daily at 30, New Bond-street, from Ten to Four. Specialité: 188, Fleet-street, from 4 to 6. Mr. Simmons, Dentist, by examination will express of the same house.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and elegant patterns, in every variety of ivory decoration of the finest quality, and of the most moderate prices, suitable for purchase for presents to choose from.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 91, Lombard-st., E.C. Established 1780.

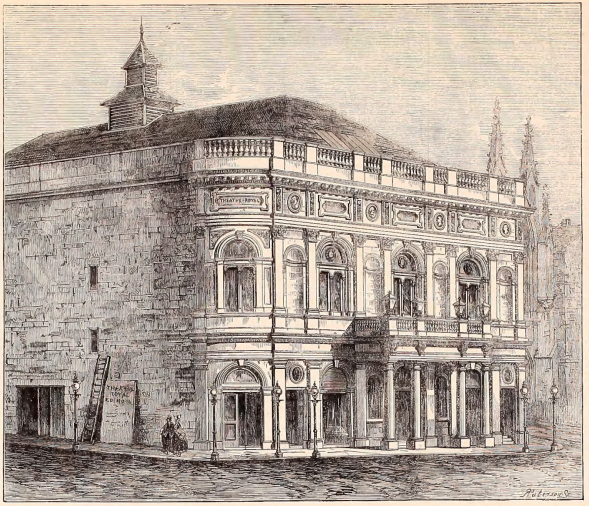
GARDNERS' LAMPS and CHANDELIERS, Moderator and Paraffin Table Lamps, Chandeliers fitted to the Queen, 450 and 454, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Northumberland-street).

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—Gardner, Manufacturer, 450 and 454, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Northumberland-street).

GLASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Modernal Fittings, &c. A large assortment always in stock. Particular attention to Country orders.

D. ELLIOTT and SON, 164, Tottenham-court-road.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE, Bedding, and Carpets.—PAINE and CO., 494, New-road, Whitechapel, have a large and choice assortment of serviceable Furniture, marked in plain figures. Purchasers waited upon in all parts.



KAMPTULICON.

Patented, 1844, 1846, 1851, 1862, 1865. Printed, 24, old. Strip. TRELOAR, MANUFACTURER, 37, Ludgate-hill.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, and 59, Jermyn-street, Lessees of the Royal Letters Patent. Sewing Machines, Lockstitch, Elastic Stitch, Improved Machines with the Reversible Feed, Hand Machines, Table Machines, Treadle Machines, Machines for Tailors and Manufacturers, Machines for Braiding, Machines for Hemming, Machines for Gathering, Machines for Embroidering, Machines for Cording, Machines for Quilting, Machines for Binding, Machines for Fringing, Machines for Felling, Machines for Stitching, Machines for Tucking, Machines for Frilling, Machines for Corsets, Machines for Boots and Shoes, Machines for Harness, Machines for Tents, Machines for Sails, Machines for Clothing, Machines for Umbrellas, Machines for Hats, Machines for Caps, Machines for Bonnets, Machines for Flowers, Machines for Feathers, Machines for Fringes, Machines for Laces, Machines for Veils, Machines for Shawls, Machines for Dresses, Machines for Mantles, Machines for Jackets, Machines for Trousers, Machines for Waistcoats, Machines for Collars, Machines for Cuffs, Machines for Shirts, Machines for Drawers, Machines for Petticoats, Machines for Crinolines, Machines for Stays, Machines for Belts, Machines for Ribbons, Machines for Braces, Machines for Garters, Machines for Purses, Machines for Bags, Machines for Carpets, Machines for Rugs, Machines for Mats, Machines for Curtains, Machines for Blinds, Machines for Window-shades, Machines for Table-covers, Machines for Antimacassars, Machines for Cushions, Machines for Pillows, Machines for Bolsters, Machines for Mattresses, Machines for Quilts, Machines for Counterpanes, Machines for Sheets, Machines for Towels, Machines for Napkins, Machines for Handkerchiefs

THE NEW THEATRE AT EDINBURGH.

THE destruction of the Edinburgh Theatre by fire, in January last, will be remembered by the readers of this Journal, an illustration of the scene having appeared in the following Number. A View of the new building, which has now been opened with every prospect of success, is engraved for this week's Publication. The present theatre, which stands on the same ground as the old one, though its internal structure affords much more accommodation both to the audience and the stage business, has been erected from the designs of Mr. David M'Gibbon, the architect. Its front is divided into two stages: the centre of the lower stage is occupied by a handsome portico surmounted by a balcony, and forming the box entrance; and on each side, separated by pilasters with Doric capitals, are the entrances to the amphitheatre, pit, and two shops. The second stage contains several windows, the lights of which are divided by red sandstone shafts. In the space between the windows is a series of niches, flanked by pilasters; and in these it is proposed to place lifesize allegorical figures representing Tragedy, Comedy, Music, and Dancing. Over the second stage is a broad frieze, in which are three mezzanine windows, alternating with medallions. The medallions are four in number, and contain respectively portraits of Molière, Shakespeare, Dante, and Sir Walter Scott, carefully carved in high relief by Mr. Rhind, sculptor. The whole is surmounted by a massive cornice and balustrade. The only openings in the side of the building next Little King-street are the entrance to the gallery, the scene-door, and several small windows which light some of the passages. Much internal space has been obtained by doing away with two of the four shops which occupied the front part of the old building, and contracting as much as possible the dimensions of the two shops which have been constructed, one on each side of the box entrance. The working department of the theatre is now concentrated on and near the stage, an arrangement which has allowed the auditorium to be removed further towards the front of the building, and to give more space to the stage and its appliances. On the whole, the new theatre is much more convenient than the old one. It will seat 2691 persons, or 900 more than could find room in the former house, the amphitheatre, as it is called, being twice as large as the pit of the old theatre, while the space which used to be the pit is now laid out in stalls; the dress circle is not divided into boxes, but filled with seats, each of which is a comfortable armchair. The decorations of the interior, as well as the arrangements for lighting and ventilation, are worthy of so complete and commodious a theatre.

THE NEW THEATRE ROYAL, EDINBURGH.

ASPINWALL AND THE PANAMA RAILROAD.

THE seaport town of Aspinwall, on the coast of New Granada, in the Gulf of Mexico, is the Atlantic terminus of the Panama Railroad by which passengers are conveyed in a few hours to the shore of the Pacific Ocean. It is, as all the world knows, quite a new place, having been founded on Feb. 29, 1852, by the Panama Railroad Company, and named after one of the most active promoters of the scheme, with the sanction of the New Granadian

PARIS FASHIONS FOR JANUARY.—SEE PAGE 664.

Government. The houses are built on the law, swampy island of Manahilla, which is about a square mile in extent, but little more than an eighth part of its surface is yet covered. As opportunity offers hundreds of ballast are brought, and as the island is raised more is gradually filled in, but this process is a very slow one. When completed, however, Manahilla ought to present a solid surface. There is no fresh water on the island; and all the water required for the consumption of the inhabitants has to be carefully collected from the rainfall or brought in pipes from the mainland. The principal feature of the place is the railroad, with a number of hotels and bars, which thrive amazingly. The streets are limited, and there does not appear to be the slightest effort to improve the condition of the town. The mandamus of part of Argentina's new constitution for the months of October and March tremendous scorchers visit the coast, and coming cholera will probably compel the authorities to act. The Engravings shows the lighthouse erected on the Point at Aspinwall. It is a light-looking iron structure, and stands on a remarkably low heaviest sea. If the Panama Railway had belonged to an English instead of an American company, a solid pile of heavy masonry would have been built, costing as many pounds as the present structure cost dollars. The light is visible at a distance of twelve miles, and is under the charge of Harbour-Master Macgill, Esq., who is also the able and excellent author.

Our other View represents the starting of the train for Panama in the early morning. The time of leaving is supposed to be six a.m., but it is not always punctual. Nowhere have the Yankees put up a more striking examples of American energy and perseverance. It was commenced in 1850, and finished in 54 years, having been for the most ever undertaken in a tropical country. Its length is forty-seven miles and a half, and the charge (there is no distinction of class) is $5 4s. 2d., or 2s. 2½d. per mile—the most expensive railway travelling in the world. The fortunate shareholder receive a dividend of twenty per cent, but this sum is earned, for the expenses are heavy, the cost of luggage, and has to pay five cents, or 2½d., for any exceed. Freight is also high. The Panama Railway is the only means of the other is about four hours. The rolling stock is, of course, American, and the carriages are found to be as superior in point of comfort to those of the English railways. By a reference to the Engraving it will be seen that the passengers avail themselves of the roof as well as of the carriages, and the guard can walk from one end of the train to the other while it is in motion.

THE FARM.

The Islington and Birmingham shows have passed away, thanks to the excellent veterinary precautions, without any development of contagion. We must say that the two new rebate rules on the cup decisions more cavilled at. In the ox and steer class, for instance, the Royal Jersey ox seems penally penalised, as he is disqualified by one of the judges assured us, and we quite agree with him, that, to his mind, a Short-Horn ox was better than a Devon. The rebate between Hereford cow Spangle won again at Leeds, and her owner believes her to be in calf. Mr. Samuel Wylie, the chief of our shorthorn breeders, very little short of ninety, won a first prize at the same place for a fat ox and a three-year old cow. The Shorthorn Club, whose premiums and donations for the year only reached £320 3s., have a balance in their banking account of £64 8s., and the Royal Agricultural Society numbers 3833 members, or an increase of 1833 members. George Clive, M.P., succeeds Lord Leigh on the council, and brings an accession of strength to the Herefordshire interest. Mr. Cruickshank, Mr. Druckham, dwelt very fully, in his able "Breeding and Management of Cattle" essay in the Journal of the Farmers' Club, upon the various the disadvantages of the time of calving, which the present rules of the Royal Agricultural Society breeders.

Mr. G. M. Allender has protested against the decision of the veterinary judges at the Birmingham Show, and has received certificate from Professor Simonds to the effect that the destution of three of their cows was correct. In the case of pleuro-pneumonia it is slight deviation from the rule which obtains in the seething of pigs; but, still the Professor considers that "this deviation is only exceptional, and that the five pigs are free from disease." Mr. Allender, who has made his solemn declaration on the subject before a commissioner, is the duke of Richmond, and has a herd of more than 100 pigs, for the pen of five, and that he sold the worst for 20 gs.

Farmers are necessarily in the habit of being a little hardened up at last to the terrors of ringerpest. In Cumberland, for instance, the county police have kept their line more than once, and with a very rough work with the drovers who tried to force them. At Carlisle, the legend of "how we beat Hunter" is current, and the "dodges of old" has been curiously exemplified by a jobber, who had nearly £1700 worth of beasts in an uninfected district. It seems that several fields were taken by Carlisle, and that Mr. Hunter's drovers were their wits's end what to do with them. First, they tried to burn one in a garden; but the people looked, and a stop was put to that. Then came than that, the carcass took all day to consume, and sent up volumes of black smoke over the town. The Corporation were communicated by bony their dead at Kingmoor; a common between two and three miles out of the town. Accordingly, some bodies were taken out to the one night. The farmers in the district heard of it, and rallied on the Saturday night, partially repaired the road, and commenced. The bold "jobber" in question headed them, and threatened with his double-barrelled gun to shoot the horses in the Corporation carts if they proceeded to work further. But the men, with their horses, proceeded over the bridge in a cab to find what had been done with the bodies of the dead beasts; but their progress was soon arrested by order of the jobber, who staggered the horse with a blow from his stick, on the spot, accomplished his Vivandi and his carcass was put in the cart, and, it is said, collared one or both of them, with menaces. Then, the property began to be taken in orders from out of the county, and the Corporation corpses pass into the country; and, finally, the rural pressure became so great that they were compelled to cart their dead to the town and buried, with slaked lime over them, in some Grassings within the borough. The wonder is that this resolve was not taken at first; but, probably, it seems that the beasts were considered to be infected before they were carted for Kingmoor.

A few days ago there was some concern at the suspension of the indiscriminate use of the poleaxe by inspectors; but, as they also hold to the opinion that every beast so slaughtered is paid for by the Government, the original Order in Council is not likely to be re-enacted to its full extent. In many places the appointment of local inspectors coming straight from diseased beasts, without cleaque of clothes, or even washing their hands, has been objected to, and the cutting servants under martial law as regards going among other cattle or dwelling, and there are such active official agents spreading rather than allaying the disease.

Professor Gamgee states that his experiment as to not taking its has succeeded, and that the cost of a fine beast by Lord Ducie.

The sheep mixture of Mr. Henry Woods, agent to Lord Walsingham, and author of the pamphlet on "Sheep Management," which has become one of our pastoral classics, has been so successful that arrangements have been made to sell it. We shall be glad to see it.

The following scale of doses has been found to answer for sheep:—For lambs above two and under four months old, two drachms; above four and under eighth months, three drachms; above twelve months, four drachms.

A dose may be given every two or three days if required. The best way of giving the medicine is out of a soda-water bottle. The mouth of the animal may should have a complete change of food, and should be placed in a dry shady place, care being taken that they do not get wet. If they are put on turnips or common turnips or roodes, they should be taken from such food entirely, and have hay, cut chaff, or a few oz. or peas given them. Bran is considered an excellent allowance (but not too much at a time) of peas, malt (if cheap), and oil-cake. Sheep should not be allowed to drink for at least two hours after taking the medicine or mercury the chill. In four or five days' time, a dividable to add a little linseed cake. I prefer the American barrel cake, because it is generally richer than the English cake. With reference to the disease now so prevalent among sheep, the threats of the animals are frequently so sore as to prevent their swallowing the ordinary food, and, consequently, many sheep have died from exhaustion. In the case of Mr. Palmer's sheep, twenty at least were saved by giving half a pint of good oatmeal gruel, with half a wineglassfull of brandy, three or four times a day; and this I would strongly recommend to be done in the worst cases, after the first dose of medicine. If there is much purging, the gruel should be given cold. Many persons have expressed their opinion that in giving the medicine for the rinderpest in cattle it is not necessary to give an opinion as to whether it is likely to prove effectual, or not, however, quite certain it can do no harm. Of course, for cattle the dose must be largely increased.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

ILLUSTRATED BOOKS.

Dante's Inferno. English Text by Cary; with Seventy-six Illustrations by Gustave Doré. (Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.) The materialism with which Dante is justly charged was but a concrete expression of the faith of the age. The "Inferno" is a representation there is nothing indefinite, incorporeal, ideal, as in Milton's; he would have us believe that in his "Vision" he actually saw what he said, and, accordingly, with the most literal and realistic particulars he describes the torments of the damned. He took there—men and women of his own time, many of whom he himself had known. The materialism, whilst it undoubtedly renders pictorial illustration in some respects more easy, also presents many difficulties to the conscientious artist. A translation of Dante's horrors into a still more definite language is likely to appear as this nineteenth century to loathsome for genuine sublimity of tragedy, and it also runs some risk of being voted simply ludicrous. The grotesque, which was so dear to the Middle Ages, is hardly known in modern times, especially in England. The grotesque of Hogarth and other Continental artists. The Gothic caricatures has little real affinity with it. We cannot place ourselves on the same footing as our ancestors in this, and would not if we could. It has for us curious, not sympathetic, interest. That M. Gustave Doré has some modern conventionalism and certain artistic faults and deficiencies, should, in the present generation, so truly and so worthily have realised the mediæval conceptions of Dante, is a fact which, in the history of modern art, is one of the most remarkable psychological phenomena of the day. In cruel and (in M. Jules Janin's opinion) unjust criticism of Dante himself, He fails, many will think, chiefly in not giving sometimes enough of the horrible. Many of his pictures which he might have derived from study of Goetia of Dante's friend), the Florentine artist, the Bolognese Michelangelo. The artist, doubtless followed a true instinct in selecting Dante's poem as the best vehicle for the display of his powers in the first work (we speak of the Paris edition), undertaken at his own cost and avowedly with a view of producing something entirely worthy of himself. Yet the Shakspearean version of Dante's poem appears to even more remarkable than his success in any one direction. Turning from the terrible to the tender, he find him equally at home, almost equally, at home in comedy, humour, fun, burlesque, landscape, satire, and the highest poetry, in which pathos, sentimentality and grandeur, and devotional sentiment. Even more marvellous, however, than the versatility, elasticity of power is the truly unparalleled productiveness. It is said that, three years ago, his published illustrations numbered upwards of 1,500 designs. This would be surprising enough if the artist were an octogenarian. But he is not yet forty. Of these 1,500 designs, the few drawings seem with ideas as original as they are diversified. Nor must we forget Doré's services to the art of woodengraving. He has revived the old style of line, which was universally adopted by the Netherlandish masters and by our own Bewick. Hawkhurst, however, is the only English engraver on wood who fully retains engravers capable of preserving or translating the spirit of his designs. Many of the cuts in this volume are admirable as works of art. The printing, also, is excellent. Wood-engraving being the severe process of engraving on metal, requires that the printing-ink tank tones are, of course, its forte: and of this the utmost advantage has been taken in the present volume of Dante's "Inferno."

The Life of Mrs Sandoford. Illustrations by J. Leighton, F.S.A.; passages selected by R. Pigott. (Longman and Co.) Upon the production of so gift-book of the season Mr. Leighton's pencil has been lavished as upon this. Compiler, illustrator, printer, binder, have combined each to produce a work worthy of the days of old. The atlas of the work, which resembles an Emblem-book after Cats by the same collaborateur as the illustrations, is appropriate. The subject life is portrayed in its principal phases, physical, mental, and moral, strictly allegorical. The figures typify the virtues, the vices, and of the tree, and the varying aspects of nature during the months and seasons of the year. Each illustration has explanatory motto in prose or verse, with text, motto, and proverb, from a very wide range of nations and sources. Human life again, as the leading theme, with emblem, type, and symbol thereof in every page of illustration, in almost prodigal profusion in the designs, hundreds of which are associated with the text, and in the rich and elaborate borders, tail-pieces, and tailpieces; whilst more elaborate compositions mark the commencement of each of the twelve months, corresponding with the months. These designs by Mr. Leighton (known also by his admirable work on "Costume") are remarkable for originality and suggestive, often inventive and very ingeniously fanciful. The purely physical portion of the work, however, occasionally is little uncertain and heavy, arising from being over-wrought. A double treatment is adopted in the illustrations of the text initials. Each quotation is printed in the character of the author's period, and the initials corresponding with that character; they range from the Anglo-Saxon to the present time, and are very varied as regards the moderns. The general style of the ornamentation is Renaissance, and of a brilliant character, but occasionally (as in the initial letters to that style), which might sometimes have been exchanged with advantage for a more appropriate one. The initials to the quotations sections are often as playful as they are beautiful, and the artistic bibliophile will not fail to admire the skill and taste with which he will where the ornamentation ends and the typography begins—so reasonably does each pass into the other. The latter is in no way with praise "present his best thanks to Mr. W. H. Bradbury for the admirable printing of the whole: no more beautiful example of typography has been produced in our time.

The Anatomy and Philosophy of Expression, as Connected with the Fine Arts. By Sir Charles Bell, K.H. (Fifth Edition. Bohn.)

The scarcity and dearness of copies of this book have long rendered a new edition desirable. Although the first publication affords hardly sufficient pretext (even had we the space), or we should gladly dwell at length upon this grand work, we feel that it is though widely known, Sir Charles Bell's researches into the secret centres of life and expression have much given to the profession to all works of art containing representations of the human figure are specially open to appreciation and appreciation of the author. It suffice it to say, that the education of no figure-painter or sculptor can be considered complete without careful study of Bell's "Anatomy of Expression." The work is also of great value to students of all orders these researches of Sir Charles are of the profoundest interest, forming a link between physiology—those mysterious relating to the nervous system which are now acknowledged to be the most important discoveries of modern times—and the higher branches of discovery of the circulation of the blood.

Diversity of Nature, &c. By C. Barnard. (Longman and Co.) We must protest against the title, size, and price of this book as more fit for the drawing-room table than for the shelf of the student for the young student, and consisting mainly of "progressive observations" in the form of conversations. The author, with an unconscionable padding of matter either wholly irrelevant or of the smallest practical service to the class for which the book is ostensibly designed. In the first chapter, on the "Economy of studies," is scarcely anything more than the ordinary gossip on our neglected, pleasant, and easy study of nature, with a few quotations or popular botany; whilst the remaining half (partly retaining the form of dialogue) consists of a string of facts, more or less recently made up of still more discursive stories of rambles in the woods of Fairyland" country, and the Alps and Pyrenees. The mountains of Alpine and Pyrenean travel—the information being either of a most elementary kind, or, if not, such as can be acquired by any person of taste. The book should prove pleasant reading enough to any young amateur wishing to learn something of the favourite haunts and subjects of the landscape-painter; but we cannot recommend it to the young artist. The direct instruction scattered here and there is meagre and commonplace; the illustrations are poor and conventional, the author's own lithographic sketches being among the weakest. You have a spray of leaves and a detached branch of scribbled foliage in the place of careful studies of the entire anatomy of each species of tree; which is as reasonable as to give a leg, a head, or a tail, as sufficiently explanatory of the whole form of an animal. There is, in short, the entire absence of scientific method, and other faults of the old-fashioned drawing-masters' so-called "guides" to art.

Archæology of the Month

THE restoration of the Chapter House of Westminster, which has been so long neglected through the apathy of the Government to the preservation of our national edifices, has been discussed at a meeting convened by the President of the Society of Antiquaries in the beautiful building which it is their object to save from decay. Its painted walls, its coloured and gilded arcades, and high-arched windows have long been sadly observed; yet, not far from the Dean's decay's effacing fingers" have long been at work, millions of money have been expended with unsparing hand upon what were declared to attain the celebrity of the Chapter House of Westminster. "Westminster Abbey," observed Mr. Scharf, a contemporary, "is a perfect national building—the most interesting building in the British empire. We have made it the shrine of our royalty and illustrious dead. It is, then, sad—is it not really disgraceful to us as a nation—to see the present condition of the Chapter House—the chapels, the cloisters, the shrines, its cloisters, its exterior, and its western front? The shrines and monuments of the dead are in a state of neglect, and in a condition and decay. The Chapter House was built, by King Edward the Confessor; and the existing walls are of the time of King Henry III. The House of Commons first met herein, exactly six centuries ago. The Act of Supremacy and Uniformity, the Declaration of Parliaments were passed in this very chamber, after which the Chapter House was consigned to the custody of the Commissioners of the Land Revenue for public records; upon the removal of which this ancient building was left to dilapidation, for the which her Majesty's Government are responsible. At the recent meeting Mr. G. G. Scott exhibited a view of the interior restoration of the chapel, and a question of opinion as to care and labour alone, nothing except the details of the garagets and the buttresses being in the face of the architect. Although the present building is a crypt, with walls 17 ft. thick. From a straight joint which separates the Norman from the later masonry portions, Mr. Scott is of opinion that the bulk of the present building is of the date of the Confessor, the foundation having been enlarged for the new Chapter House of 1250. The Pyx Chapel, which now forms the Salute Chapelle in Paris. The Dean of Westminster presided at the meeting, and, upon the motion of Mr. Stanhope, a resolution was passed, deploring the neglected state of the edifice, and explaining that as a national property, it was a national property. The Queen's House should be restored by a Parliamentary grant. Mr. Beresford Hope urged that it formed a practical Reformers in "exercise" from any source they can a sum of £30,000 or £30,000 for the perfect restoration of the interesting building, and the Chapter House. The presence of the First Commissioner of the Board of Works having been pointedly alluded to, the right hon. gentleman took occasion to state that he had no power to act in any meeting in official capacity; that as a private individual he took a warm interest in the restoration of the building, and would consult the colleagues who were about to bring the subject before her Majesty's Government on before Parliament to obtain the necessary grant. Mr. Gladstone was not capable of practical utility. This hint as to "the way not to do it" was discouraging. Parliamentary responsibility of any kind, and the meeting must be influential in raising the requisite funds, should the influential House of Commons refuse a grant from the public purse. A highly temperate letter from Mr. Gladstone, however, to the Chapter House, and the responsibility of the Government for past neglect would be the last object of it. As the depository of a portion of our precious records, with "Domesday Book" for its nucleus (the suggestion of Mr. Hope), the restored Chapter House would surely command the public intelligent means, and especially of its architectural beauty. In addition to the Chapter House are "the penalty-house" and the cloisters, which would be also of no insignificant doorway, in the worst stage of decay.

Winchester cathedral is to be the next curious specimen of ancient domestic architecture to be found in the City, has, at length, entirely disappeared, and the site is now in the possession of the Dean of St. Augustine; and, with its gabled house-fronts and ancient air, was endured still more striking contrast with the new warehouses and fronts and fronts and new shops in progress around it. Some of the old shops, without doubt, in this street were very remarkable. During the recent pulling up of the pavement in which carry to the Great Priory occupancy—as a piece of Saxon wars and part of a well-wrought hand of the Saxon time. It is said that the Rose, Crown, minster, almost exactly like that given in Mr. Roach Smith's catalogue, page 74. "Those relics," says the writer, "have been exhibited at British Archæological Association by Mr. Wrinkle.

We are happy to say that the President of the Archæological Institute has received from Sir Charles Phipps a communication announcing that the Roman villa at Lydney has been excavated by the Archæological Congress in London, next July, to be under his especial patronage. Lydney is a small village on the banks of the River Castle.

In the sale of the collection of the late Mr. Daniel, of Cossebury, we will be recollected, was an imperfect copy of the "Vade Mecum for Malt Worms" for £16; and at Mr. Tyrrell's sale the only perfect copy known is to be found for the sum of £20 10s. 6d. Of "Ralph" the most eminent Publick Houses (more than 800) in and about London and Westminster, with the Sign on the Front (or Principal Customers) of each House; in a Method so plain, that any Thirsty Person (of the meanest Capacity) may easily find the Way from one House to another." Dedicated to the Brewers." It has one hundred woodcuts, and is a curious book, but has been reprinted.

Last month we briefly reported the communications read to the Society of Antiquaries upon the authenticity of the "Pastor Letters," recently impugned by Mr. Hermann Merivale; and referred to the Athenæum, which, on the 30th of November, the secretary, Mr. Knight Watson, first read a communication from Mr. Merivale's agents to certain external proofs of the authenticity of the "Pastor Letters," after which Mr. Merivale read a long and able paper in support of the evidence they presented, and expressed his firm opinion that the documents were genuine. Mr. Merivale's paper has been RESS, and we refer them to to remain for a time in the library at Somerset House, with a view to their inspection by a committee to be appointed for the purpose, and by such other gentlemen as may take an interest in the subject. Mr. Hermann Merivale, in his communication to the Society of Antiquaries on the result of the doubts he had raised a short time ago; adding that the appearance of the fifth volume, from custody beyond all suspicion, had removed all his doubts. Mr. Merivale added he had recently ascertained that several Pastor Letters have been found in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, and it is supposed that they found their way from the possession of the late Mr. Thomas Rawlinson.

According to a statement in the Moniteur du Soir, the postage-stamps used in a month in France is not less than 1,000,000 francs. Mr. Pierre Pascone quotes an "instruction" from the French Post Office, dated 1653, which says that "Letters, packets, &c., must be paid by the quarter of Paris to another, provided a ticket is attached to the letter, &c., by which the clerk may see it, and receive the money." The ticket being inscribed "post paid," because money will not be taken for the letter. But the tickets may be purchased at the office, and the head clerk of the palace. This story, and that of the printed billet, with blanks to be filled up by the writer, and of the prepaid envelope, instead of the postage stamp, appeared in the Quarterly Review in 1839; so that, in a twofold sense, there is nothing new under the sun.

A few days since, as some labourers were excavating in the Castle Gallery at Chirk, near Wrexham, they came upon a stone coffin about two feet of ornamental guilt chain. The cross has a large pearl at each intersection; on the upper side is represented the crucified Saviour, with the glory, the crown of thorns, and I.N.R.I., which, in apparently Lombardic characters, occur one on each limb of the cross. By removing a small pin, a portion of the upper side of the cross may be taken off, and in the cavity is a small piece of wood and a fragment of granite: the wood is a supposed relic of the true cross, and the stone a memorial of some locality in the Holy Land. It appears that, in 1378, Philippa, Countess of Clare, bequeathed to Edmund, her son, a piece of the true cross, which she charges him on her blessing to keep; and this Edmund, Lord of Clare, also bequeathed to Wymare Abbey "a cross of gold set with stones with a relic of the true cross;" and in many ancient wills similar bequests are met with.

MUSIC.

Signor Arditi's concerts at Her Majesty's Theatre were brought to a close on Monday evening, the 18th inst., after a course of twenty ordinary and almost unprecedented success. The last concert of the season was also the most brilliant. The instrumental portion included the "Grand March" from the "Prophète;" the scherzo from the andante from Mendelssohn's Italian symphony; the grand selection from Wagner's "Tannhäuser;" and Gounod's celebrated "Concert-stück," admirably played by Mr. Charles Hallé. The vocal performers were Mdlles. Emilie and Constance Soldene, and Signor Ferrucci. These accomplished sisters made a great impression, and were received with enthusiasm. Mdlle. Emilie Soldene sang the beautiful cavatine, "Le stagione amiche," from Gounod's "Mirella," and the famous brindisi, "Il segreto per esser felice," from "Lucrezia Borgia;" and they sang together the duet, "Dans les doltes des Pyrénées," from Auber's "Diamants de la Couronne," delighting the audience by their brilliant execution and dramatic style. The great success of the evening was, however, Signor Arditi to resume them next season.

A musical correspondent writes to us from Paris:—"Mdlle. Adelina Patti, after singing ten nights here, goes to Turin, and there sings twice in a concert. Before quitting Paris she was presented by Mdlle. Patti had promised to sing at a concert in aid of the cholera hospitals at Naples; but being unable to remain for the performance, she generously contributed an ample donation to the treasury. Mdlle. Patti will this last week for Madrid, where she is engaged to sing eight times for £1200 sterling. Grisi and her three daughters leave Paris for Nice on the Mario is January. A monument is to be inaugurated at Arezzo, next year, to the memory of the celebrated Guido, the inventor of musical notation, as represented by the established gamut. This homage was suggested by Rossini, and a subscription has been got up for the above object. In the list of contributors are the names of Ella, the director of the London Musical Union; Mitchell, Spontini, and the widow of the celebrated composer; the Contessa Rosenberch, Mdme. Cavalli, and several of the most distinguished amateurs of Italy. Meyerbeer and Pinsuti are at Florence, and much music is to be heard in private circles. Mdme. Goldschmidt (Jenny Lind) is passing the winter at Cannes, and the widow of Ernst at Nice."

The Society of British Musicians is dissolved, after an existence of thirty-two years. The Madrigal Society of Music, under the direction of Mr. Henry Leslie, is also dissolved.

A new opera, in three acts, entitled "Les Berges"—the libretto by Hector Cremieux and Ph. Gille—will be produced at the Bouffes Parisiens.

It was reported throughout Europe that Meyerbeer's Musical World ears at Vienna has also written to her London agent, Mr. Jarrett, begging him to contradict it.

THE THEATRES.

PANTOMIMES, BURLESQUES, AND CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS.

We have, on former occasions, remarked upon the monotony and cheap origin of pantomime, and so fully detailed the monotonous sameness of the various pieces of this class, that we need not repeat ourselves. In our remarks in previous years for instruction on these various important productions we have proposed a plan which, if carried out, would ensure that modern managers are usually compelled to mount a pantomime "regardless of expense," and in many cases to produce magnificent scenes for the delectation of the public. Hundreds of families that have no other means of amusement benefit by the annual pantomime for Harlequin and his motley crew. Most of these, we have come over the spirits of the Christmas season, at the Theatres. There the pantomimes are not so funny as they used to be, and are far more expensive and less productive of comicality than uninterrupted in the olden time. In this kind of serious, really poetical pantomime Mr. E. L. Blanchard has, as we remarked before, the stated last week, been engaged this year both for Covent Garden and Drury Lane.

To his pantomime at the ROYAL ENGLISH OPERA HOUSE Mr. E. L. Blanchard has given the title of "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp." If the splendour of accessories could ensure success, this production would be certain of it. The interest of the piece is not, however, equally distributed. Be Ghee pay to the Spirits of Darkness; and in the Subterranean Caverns of Jewels, where the wonderful lamp is found, a scene in Canton at early morning. We will elaborate scene in this: Here are the shops in process of opening, and wonderful specimens of the business carried on by Chinese tradesmen. Abanazar now disguises himself as the uncle of Aladdin, and (Harlequin Aladdin Ranger), for the purpose of tempting the youth to leave his mother, the widow Twankay (Mr. Paul Herbert Sheppard), an incidental ballet follows. Aladdin is then brought by his tempter to the Cobler Valley in the Kingdom of Cathay, and the magic of the sprite incantation by which the opening to the cavern is discovered. And now we come to the realm of our Fairy Queen, the Subterranean Caverns of Jewels, where the wonderful lamp is found burning. We cannot pursue further his adventures. Finally, with the assistance of the Genius of the Ring and the Fairy of the Lamp, with Aladdin escapes the dangers that threaten him, and returns to his mother's house. He now learns the powers of the lamp, and by the subsequent rubbing of his cousins are fed the Magician assuming further disguises—in that of a pedlar, in the character of a Chinese lady, and in a new one. The Flying Palace (a very cleverly-contrived scene) conveys them both to the Kingdom of Cathay, and ultimately the lady by the instigation of means. The treacherous Magician is punished by Be Ghee. The transformation scene is one of the series of the Wonderful Lamp of Day—glories which we cannot attempt to describe. Of the performers in this pantomime we shall sufficient last week. The success of the pantomime is decided.

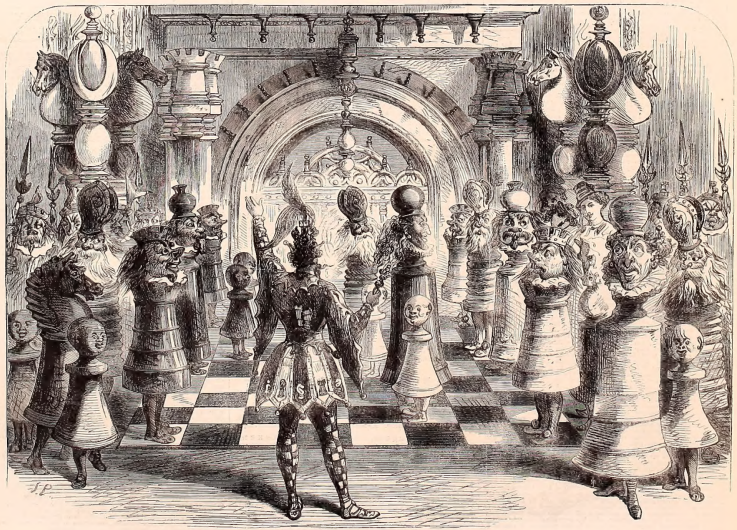
At DRURY LANE, on Boxing Night, was presented, with the title of the favoured production is "Little King Pippin," Harlequin and Tartarus and the Magic Mirror, or the Fairy Messes. Falconer and Chatterton are reported to have a mind to make its appearance, and the completeness really achieved warrants the assumption. The pantomime with the Fairy of Autumn (see our illustration), the dirty deity Drayton, who, by the magic agency of the Fairy of the Mirror, ultimately, she becomes on Spring, in the Fairy of the Lamp. But did not the beneficent Fairy of Autumn, who had given Pippin blessing to the possessor? Also, no! unless his experience should be likewise gratified. Supply him, therefore, with a wishing-cap! all means. Let him, on the other hand, be supplied with a wishing-cap! Having purchased the wishing-cap of King Pippin (Miss Rosalie) and their domestic establishment, the monarch's treasury, the result is that a popular revolution ensues, and the monarch's reign takes to flight, and subsequently to Portsmouth. They find refuge in Flanders, but meet with such difficulty that they are obliged to part altogether, and, in sentiment, rise above it, winging their way to happier regions. Fortune steps in at this juncture, and the wonderful transformation scene follows, revealing the Fancy Factory of the Wheels of Fortune. Mr. Beverley has surpassed himself in the skill of all his scenes, thus altogether surpassing himself this year in the degree in which he succeeds usually in surpassing himself in the harlequinade we need add no more so what we stated last week, and have now merely to record the complete success of the pantomime.

SADLER'S WELLS, this year, presents the season with a pantomime supplied by Mr. Charles Millward, and called "Cock-a-doodle-doo! or, Harlequin Prince Chanticleer and the Princess of the Golden Valley." We need not tell the story, for the author himself has told it on the playbill. The piece commences in the Island of Gamecocks as alike should, when they are disturbed by their chief's mysterious youth, given to sleep-walking. Finds recognition in the orchestra on which he is seated. The secret is, he is in love, and a spirit, and also has learned that he is a great king's only son, and more so by the acquaintance of a wicked magician, Grindepeet (Mr. John Rouse), King of the Golden Valley, who defies to his journey towards the Golden Valley. Here the magic rose, the gods, three of which may be overcome by three enchanted gifts. In Cockerel's Grove, and introduces us to the Princess Rosyttist (Miss Leigh), daughter of the Queen of the Golden Valley (Miss Emily Fowler), a lady who, however, falls into the tyrant's power, and is threatened with death if she refuses his wicked love. Chanticleer and the King engages Grindepeet and his followers, so that he is able to escape. This scene forms the subject of our illustration. In the third, a grand Prince Chanticleer overcomes his second peril and the Princess Rosyttist. The fourth scene introduces Gamecock Grove, Summer, now the inclement weather, and the Princess Rosyttist, and no cease to the Prince and, and introduces us to the Golden Valley and the transformation scene, which represents "The Fairy Queen of the Golden Valley." The subject of this piece is certainly pretty, and has been well worked out.

The Strand opens with a drama by Mark Lemon, entitled "Honesty the Best Policy." It is entitled "Harlequin King Chess and Queen Check, or the Fairy Dogs

SCENES FROM THE CHRISTMAS PANTOMIMES.

COVENT-GARDEN THEATRE: "ALADDIN AND THE WONDERFUL LAMP"—THE ENCHANTED CAVERN IN THE GARDEN OF JEWELS.—SEE PAGE 649.



DRURY LANE THEATRE: "LITTLE KING PIPPIN"—THE TEMPLE OF MAMMON.—SEE PAGE 648.

SCENES FROM THE CHRISTMAS PANTOMIMES.

SADLER'S WELLS THEATRE: "COCK-A-DOODLE-DOO"—ESCAPE OF FINFIN AND ROSYTINT FROM CHANTICLEER CASTLE—SEE PAGE 658.

SURREY THEATRE: "KING CHESS"—GIVING CHECK TO THE QUEEN.—SEE PAGE 655.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE HON. W. G. GREY.

The Hon. William George Grey, Secretary of the British Embassy, and, at the time of his death, acting Chargé d'Affaires at Paris, died, at the British Embassy at Paris, on the 19th inst., from an attack of cholera, which had only existed three days. He was the third son of Charles, second Earl Grey, was the youngest of the family of ten sons and five daughters of Charles, second Earl Grey, who was for the eminent statesman and Premier, by his wife Mary, daughter of Richard Ellison, of Hepscott, Northumberland, and was brother of Henry, present Earl Grey, K.G. He was born on the 24th July, 1819, and was educated at Harrow and the University of Oxford, which he became a Fellow. He entered the diplomatic service in the autumn of 1841, and was appointed Attaché at Hanover, and in October in the same year he was attached to the Embassy at Vienna, where he became Secretary of Legation in 1844, and afterwards Chargé d'Affaires. In 1847 he was Minister Resident at Paris in February, 1848; and in September, 1849, was appointed Secretary of Embassy at Constantinople, where he remained till the absence of the Minister, acted as Chargé d'Affaires. In December, 1850, he removed to Berlin, but was only there a few months, when he was sent to the succeeding post he was appointed Secretary of the Embassy at Paris, in which post he has since continued, and has there frequently acted as Chargé d'Affaires, in the absence of the Ambassador. Mr. Grey was highly regarded and esteemed by those with whom he had official intercourse, as well as by those personally acquainted with him. He married, on the 2nd of May, 1848, Miss Theresa Catharine Stuckings, only daughter of Major-General Stuckings, Deputy Inspector General of Hospitals, and by that lady is one of the betchelaer women to her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.

SIR G. C. BISSHOPP, BART.

Sir George Cuxon Bisshopp, tenth Baronet, of Tanton Park, in the county of Sussex, who died at Hastings, on the 14th inst., was born on the 19th of January, 1788, and was the eldest son of the Rev. Sir George Bisshopp, the eighth Baronet, Dean of Lismore, Prebendary of Westminster, of Aylesford, by his Lordship, Archdeacon of Raphoe, third daughter of Captain Andrew Sproule, Esq., R.N. He was the only surviving son of his father, and was educated at Eton College. He was formerly in the Army, and retired from the service with the 12th Foot, in 1813. He succeeded his brother, the late Baronet, in August, 1839, and was married, on the 22nd of January, 1839, He was survived by his widow, and by his only son, the present Baronet, the Rev Edward Cecil Bisshopp, the eleventh Baronet, who was born on the 12th of April, 1847. Many, only daughters, to the 11th of A PAGE OF NONSENSE FOR THE NEW YEAR.

THE AGREEABLE COMPANION.

Try, invariably, to render yourself an agreeable companion. Always have a quip or a crank ready for the amusement of your friends. By-the-way, a joke that has to be got up with a wrench, must be a rather heavy affair.

Quips, Quirks, Quiddities, these are the things to have at your fingers' ends; then you can give them out, just as an honest debtor ought to pay you what he owes, "down on the nail." Shall I give you a specimen of ready wit? I had better do so, or you will go away and complain that I neglected your education.

This is ready wit. Says A to B, "I'll show you a conjuring trick with a shilling. Lend me a shilling." B does so. "Hocus-pocus," says A. "Observe, there's no deception, the shilling is gone." "Very good," says B, "when will it come back?" "Oho!" returns A, "it won't come back at all; so, you're done." "Not quite," replies B, "it wasn't a shilling." Now, you see, my dear friends, B had his wits about him: it was D's shilling, "which, when D come," as the song says, "for to hear on't, he very much applauded what B had done," because the shilling was a bad bit.

The apt quoter is a being much lauded and envied in society. Try my worthy dinner-out, my professional supper-eaters, professional luncheon-devourers, and amateur breakfast-swallowers, generally, to cultivate quotations. Deep reading is not necessary. Read much; read judiciously. Learn passages by heart; love and there. Lead up your conversation to your particular points. Somebody with a great memory learnt a whole article out of Smith's "Dictionary of Antiquities," and gave it out at a dinner-party. A gentleman present corrected him as he was delivering it. The quoter was confident in his memory, until he found he had been retailing the article to its writer. Therefore, my sweet young people, do not choose (as a rule) a living author, unless he be a poet. You are pretty sure to know if Mr. Alfred Tennyson is in the company. Get Shakespeare by heart. Most people don't know his writings, except in a popular style, which means incorrectly. I'll put down a few lines for you, as a short guide to conversation at dinner, during dinner, before dinner, or after dinner.

Say to the Lady of the House, "I was sorry to hear, the other day, that my Cousin John was not so well." She will say, "Indeed; I am very sorry." Whereupon, come out with—

"Give sorrow words; the grief that does not speak Whispers the o'er fraught heart and bids it break."

"Ah! how beautifully Shakspeare has expressed it."

Again. I was at Mr. Parchment's office, my solicitor; he had his table covered with deeds and draughts, or whatever their names are—in fact,

"A deed without a name,"

as Macbeth has it.

After dinner, in the drawing-room. When the lady of the house says, "Now, Miss Plantzee, I hope you're going to give us a little music," you smile, and, in order to relieve Miss P.'s embarrassment, say waggishly to the lady of the house, "Faith, those last some crotchets in thy head now;" and give your authority from the "Merry Wives of Windsor."

For early in the morning, at a friend's house, say, as you take your seat in the breakfast-room,

"And then to breakfast, with What appetite you may."

Always be ready with an anecdote of Sheridan. Make a few good stories, and hang them on to the names of illustrious or notorious pegs; including Peg Woffington. Always try to be an agreeable companion. And so, for the present, I have finished my advice.

PROVERBIAL PHILOSOPHY.

(A la Dandreary.)

It's a poor heart that gathers no moss.
One swallow is the soul of wit.
Never cry before you 're out of the frying-pan.
Pins is cheaper than needles.
It is never too late to do to-morrow what you can do to-day.

CITY SONNET.

Know ye the land where the cygnets and myrtle
Are emblems of deeds that are done in their climes?
No; but I know where, at Birch's, the Turtle
Melts, in his green fat, a martyr sublime!

CONTRIBUTED BY THE OLDEST PUGILIST IN MDME. TUSSAUD'S.

An Irish waxwork show might be described as an exhibition of Pugilopinheels.

VERY CLASSICAL LATIN.—(BY MASTER JACKY M'CRACKEY.)

Why is the girl who takes care of me in the nursery not so big as our cook?

Why? Because she is My mens (mi-ans).

[Master Jacky M'Crackey is next to text at once.

THINGS THAT I HATE.

(By a Member of the Mi-nothropological Society).

Hate being asked to a nice dinner-party and when the day comes forgetting the address.

Hate a telegram arriving.

Hate a circular at breakfast-time.

Hate bills that look like letters from friends.

"I hate," whispers a young lady to me, "being told out loud by mamma, before a lot of people, 'to hold myself up, and not to stoop so.'"

Hate cold weather.

Hate little London boys who eat skibs.

Hate little boys who snowball one another and don't look where they're throwing.

Hate, in a street, a fellow who swings his walking-stick about.—N.B. There ought to be rules for carrying sticks and umbrellas. I don't know one man in twenty who can be trusted with either.

I hate a fellow who slaps you on the back, and says "How d'ye do, old boy?" and then laughs.—N.B. Don't see anything to laugh at. Idiotic.

Hate, in the streets, orange peel.

Hate shopkeepers who empty pails recklessly just as you're passing. N.B. One ought to get oneself up in the law on this subject. I once waited until a policeman arrived, and he couldn't tell me what the law was in this case. Policemen ought to carry Blackstone, or Coke, or something of that sort about with them, in their helmets.

Talking of Coke, I hate passing a door where the coals are going in. Hate stumbling, and begging a lamp-post's pardon.

Hate pennabusters.

Hate the ducks in the park.

Hate hoops; especially iron ones coming down hill.

Talking of hoops, I hate crinolines in theatres.—N.B. Would inscribe, if I had my way, over the stall entrances—

All hoops abandon ye who enter here.

Hate a fellow at the theatre who keeps asking you, "What did Buckstone say, eh?"

Hate all bet-knappers; and pew-openers.

Hate a man in the stalls who will sing with the opera-singers.—N.B. Once said to a gentleman who kept on humming "Casta Diva" while Grisi was on the stage, "Just a pity it is that Grisi sings so loud." "Why?" asked he in surprise. "Because, I returned, "we can't hear you." He would have called me out, only we were too comfortably seated, and hoping the end of the act he had forgotten the cause of offence, and was humming again. I changed my stall.

Hate feeling at a ball that my nose is red.

Hate seeing it in a glass, on a similar occasion, that my ears are red.

Hate being obliged to laugh when a fellow says to me before a lady whom I have been regarding tenderly, "How red your nose is, old boy!"

Hate getting change out of a purse.

Hate having to unbutton two coats to find out the time for a friend.

Hate a fellow who says "What? Eh?" whenever you speak to him.

Hate a fellow who never will shut a door after him.

Hate writing letters.

Hate a hair in a pen.—N.B. Cant get it out. Hate mending pens; hate going on writing with a bad pen. Hate trouble; shan't take any more. Hate everything generally.

MODERN NIGGER SONG.

VERSE 1ST.

Oh, Missy Dinah, am dat you?
Walk booly cooly de buckwheat, Sambo!
I swear on my knee dat I'll be true—
I hab you in substancion, dat am do,
So come, Missy Dinah, to me'll be two.
Walk booly cooly in buckwheat, Sam!
(Symphony on the bones. One screamer walks round as if lame.)

VERSE 2ND.

The blue fly know whar de 'possum dwell.
Walk booly cooly in de buckwheat, Sambo!
But de 'possum he won't go to hell,
For him steal all de corncake baked in the dell,
And, when Massa am gone, den down him fell.
Walk booly cooly in de buckwheat, Sam!
(Ad lib, value to publisher about, £3000, including a law suit for copyright.)

HISTORICAL NOTES.

(By Professor Jumble of Hanwell College).

William the Conqueror invented bear's-grease. He was the original bones. After his decease there were no more muffins, at least for several years, until the Danish bones, who had sailed for Gravesend, refused their signatures. The bathing-machines, however, were spared, and all ended happily.

II.

Xerxes was a fool. This was found inscribed on his door one day. The butler was very angry; and, on being unable to discover the perpetrator, offered a reward, but himself believed before he could reap the benefit of his enterprising spirit. Si sic omnes, said the King, who could read, write, but not speak French.

III.

The Mormons landed in Sardinia two years before the fall of Mesopotamia. There were great rejoicings, and no money was returned. On this account the saying of "We won't go home till morning" was prohibited to be sung after nine o'clock, when the curfew was blown and the day broke. Let us be glad that we live in milder times.

IV.

Horace, the poet, was a distant relation of Julius Cæsar. This was not generally known until he himself, while writing his Commentaries, exclaimed, "Oughi Cæsar, ought Nullus!" Nullus was Horace's cognomen. Horace used to say, that the proudest moment of his life was when, under an assumed name, he composed the works of Tate and Brady.

LITERARY NOTES.

(By Dr. Muddle, of the Sun.)

I.

It was Bacon who said, "Give me the making of the people's laws, and I'll soon stop their singing."

II.

Cardinal Wolsey, in early life, was in the habit of walking from London to Brixton and back before breakfast. One day, meeting Catherine Parr (whom he playfully used to call Old Parr, in allusion to the Doctor found fossil longevity), he said, "Well, Parr, how's your son?" This, being repeated by Somers at Court, gave great offence.

III.

Talking of Somers, it was he who built Somers Town. He was a fool.

IV.

Thomas Carlyle one day said, that the man who blew the first flute was a windbag. Professor Faraday retorted that he'd very much like to know who eat devilled trombones in the back kitchen. The Rector was silent.

V.

It was the fashion in the days of Queen Anne (who, some people assert, is defunct) to extend four fingers of the hand and apply a thumb to the nore. Builders did this: they called it, technically, taking a site.

VI.

The Young Pretender was born at Turin. His great mistake in life was signing Magna Charta in red ink. He did not think so, however; and, such is the unintelligibleness of coursiers, no one could find him anywhere, until Cromwell came out of the oak and informed them of the trick.

ARITHMETIC FOR THE FIRESIDE.

Nine tailors make a man; one man makes two jokes; two jokes make one laugh; one laugh makes a noise; a noise makes one angry; anyone angry makes me go out of the room and say "Good-night."

A CONUNTHRUM.

Och, Misther Augustus, whoy is this cup o' ryple foine-flavoured pekoe loike a moighty great river in Spain an' Portigal? Ye give it up, do yez? Will, thin, its bekase it's the Tay 'Ove, me durlin'.

SERIOUS THOUGHTS FOR EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

JANUARY, FEBRUARY, MARCH.

THOUGHTS FOR THE MORNING, ON AWAKING.

Think it's cold,
Think I sha'nt get up yet.
Think I'll get up in five minutes from this time.
Think I've been asleep for half an hour.
Think it must be rather late.
Think what I'll do when I get up.
Think I'd better have some fresh hot water.
Think I must get up now.
Think I'll lie still it's scarcely the quarter.
Think my watch is fast.
Think that, if so, I've got three minutes more.
Think I shall be all the fresher for lying in bed a little longer.

THOUGHTS WHILE DRESSING.

Think that shaving is a nuisance.
Think that razors ought to be sharpened.
Think I'll let my beard grow.
Think what I shall look like while it's growing.
Think that I ought to go to a dentist.
Think I shall have no pocket-handkerchiefs for to-morrow.
Think I must write to several people to-day.

BREAKFAST.

Think I should like to be married.
Think I shouldn't.
Think I must have my hair cut.
Think I must pay a visit to my grandmother to-day.
Think I can go to my grandmother's first, and have my hair cut afterwards.
Think I'd better have my hair cut first, and go to my grandmother's afterwards.
Think that I ought to write to several people to-day.
Think, by-the-way, that I ought to call in and pay my bootmaker.
Think that the bootmaker's is in the same street as the hairdresser's, so I can do both.
Think I must write a letter to my grandmother's.
Think my family will be very angry if I don't call on my grandmother some time or other.
Think, if I pay the bootmaker, I shan't be able to pay What's-his-name.
Think I ought to pay What's-his-name first.
Think the bootmaker can wait.
Think What's-his-name can wait.
Think they might both wait.

APRIL, MAY, JUNE.

Think there's going to be a change in the weather.
Think I must get something from my tailor's.
Think I must owe him something considerable.
Think I'll ask to see my bill to please him.
Think I'd better give him something on account.
Think I won't, as he can't want it.
Think I ought to pay What's-his-name.
Think I might get Thingummy to lend me twenty, and pay Thompson and my tailor.
Think that I really ought to write to several people to-day.
Think I really ought to go and call on my grandmother.
Think I'll go to a dentist's, have my hair cut, and then call on my grandmother.

IN THE STREET.

Think I'd better not stop to speak to What's-his-name.
Think he saw me.
Think I ought to have spoken to him after all.
Think I really must pay What's-his-name as soon as possible.
Think town's getting very full.
Think that I ought to answer some of those letters, and write to several people.
Think I'll take a turn in the park.
Think I should like to go to the opera to-night.
Think I can make a sovereign last me to the end of the week.
Think I must get some gloves.
Think the washerwoman has not sent home my white ties.
Think, while passing, that I really ought to pay What's-his-name.
Think I don't want any more dinner.
Think, if I take a cab now, I shall be in time for the overture.
Think there is an overture.
Think there isn't.
Think it begins at eight.
Think it begins at half-past eight.
Think it used to begin at eight.
Think that I really must answer my letters to-morrow.

JULY, AUGUST, SEPTEMBER.

Think that it's very hot.
Think that I should like to be by the seaside.
Think, if I'd the money, I'd be off at once.
Think, before I go away, I ought to call on my grandmother.
Think that I ought to look in on What's-his-name and tell him that I shall pay him next week.
Think I'll write to What's-his-name instead.
Think I must have some sort of wideawake for the country.
Think some one might invite me down to his place in the country.
Think I might write to him.
Think I ought to write to a lot of people, and answer some letters.
Think that I really do want some cigars and gloves.
Think that I can make a sovereign last me till the end of the week.
Think that if anyone had been going to give me an invitation to the country, I should have had it before.
Think I should like to see Florence and Venice.
Think I'll go to Ramsgate.

OCTOBER, NOVEMBER, DECEMBER.

Think I should like to get married.
Think that I must get some peculiar polish for my patent leather boots.
Think that I must get a new umbrella and gloves.
Think that I ought to write to several people.
Think I ought to pay Thingummy this month.
Think, as it's my birthday, I'll call on my grandmother.
Think the old-fashioned custom of giving presents on a birthday admirable.
Think my grandmother ought to keep it up.
Think that my grandmother's not wearing well. Her memory's impaired; she quite forgot 'twas my birthday.
Think that I must have my hat done up.

25TH DECEMBER.

Think What's-his-name didn't expect to be paid so soon.
Think that there'll be a jolly party to-day at my grandmother's
Think everybody's a good fellow.

11 2009 084 10635

ASPINWALL, CENTRAL AMERICA: THE TRAIN STARTING FOR PANAMA.

ASPINWALL, CENTRAL AMERICA: LIGHT-HOUSE POINT.—SEE PAGE 688.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1868.

71 2009 084 10035